CHURCHILL FLAYS FRENCH FOR AGREEING TO SURRENDER ENORMOUS ARMED FLEET

TAFT MOVES AHEAD IN GOP RACE

Ohio Senator Now Rates as 'Man to Beat'

By LYLE C. WILSON CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 25 (U.P.)—Permanent Chairman Joseph W. Martin today called on the 1940 Republican national convention to fight "absolutism" at home and abroad and pick a leader who will end seven years of New Deal "failure and futility and broken promises." Martin sounded his rallying cry as the Republicans moved into the second day of a red-hot presidential nominating fight—probably the hottest in 20 years.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio appeared to have moved into the man-to-beat position but the race still was wide open. The biggest first ballot vote will go to Thomas E. Dewey of New York but there were reports the Dewey strength is beginning to wilt in Philadelphia's hot-house political atmosphere.

Candidates Jittery Wendell L. Willkie's last minute delegate raids had all the candidates jumpy. But many picked Taft as the ultimate beneficiary of both the stop-Willkie drive and Dewey's lagging race.

It was reported Willkie had picked up 10 or a dozen votes in the last 24 hours from Sen. H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire. There were suggestions Willkie might be negotiating to obtain Bridges as his vice-presidential running mate but the report was without confirmation.

Drafting Platform In a closed committee session plank-drafters were hammering out the 1940 Republican platform. Resolutions Chairman Herbert Hyde said the final draft would be ready for consideration at tonight's session at which former President Herbert Hoover speaks and may touch off a draft-Hoover boom. Hyde thought the platform probably would not go before the convention until tomorrow.

Martin's address picked up the theme of last night's keynote address by Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota. He charged the administration of President Roosevelt was tending "toward one-man government and national bankruptcy" and that "personal liberty, equal rights, and equal justice and constitutional government" are threatened.

"America," Martin said, "wants to get back to sanity, progress and peace. Peace at home. Peace abroad."

FDR Flayed Martin, Republican leader in the house, slashed at Roosevelt bumbling of national defense and warned that "there is much reason to believe we may yet wake up to find we have been pushed into war."

Willkie breakfasted today with delegates of his home state of Indiana. He told them "some people might have the jitters" but he was feeling fine. He claimed he had won votes from California, Utah, Wyoming and other western strongholds.

Greets Idahoans He planned to spend the day receiving delegates from Illinois, Nebraska, Oklahoma, California, Michigan, Idaho, South Carolina, Nevada, Wyoming, Oregon, South Dakota, North Dakota and Florida.

All temporary convention officers except Governor Stassen were elected permanent officers.

Good news for Taft and bad news for Willkie came from Pennsylvania whose organization leaders privately indicated they might soon desert Gov. Arthur H. James, a "favorite son," in an effort to throw the nomination to the senator from Ohio. The strategy would be dictated by a desire to prevent Willkie's nomination.

W. B. Daughtry, secretary of the South Carolina delegation which went out in a contest over Joseph (Telesoo Joe) Tolbert's faction, proclaimed today that the victory was a victory for appropriate dress.

"Look at us under the South Carolina banner and you will see," he said, "that we wear both ties and shoes."

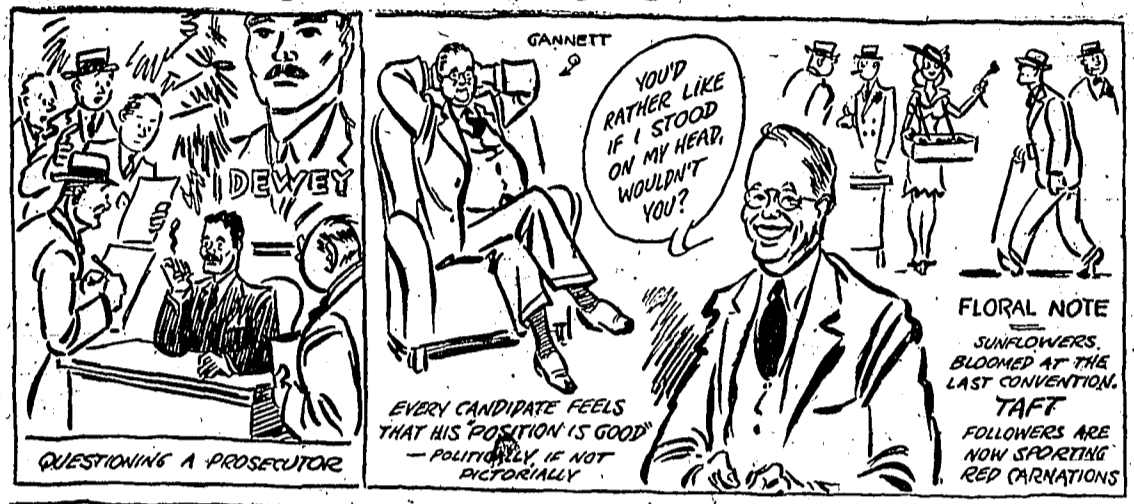

Slander on Hats Denied by Judge HOLLYWOOD, June 25 (U.P.)—If Irene Castle McLaughlin ever talked about a milliner's hats, even to the extent of saying "her hats are terrible," she did not commit slander, Judge Myron Westover has ruled.

The suit was brought by Miss Bohya Zaranoff, who asked $100,000 damages. Mrs. McLaughlin, once a famous dancer, denied she had criticized Miss Zaranoff's hats.

Whatever she said, Judge Westover held, carried no malice.

MISSIONARIES BOUGHT DCISE, June 25 (U.P.)—Walter G. Jones, missionary recently returned from India, predicted today a "day of Christian ascension" was approaching in India. He told 200 members of the south Idaho Christian Missionary society America should send more missionaries to India to capitalize on the opportunities for spreading Christian doctrine.

CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS By United Press CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 25 — A piece of literature distributed to the delegates' edification was a document by David Sherman Beach of Bridgeport, Conn. All he wants is $5,000,000 to enable him to make a presidential campaign. Calling himself the "world's secretary," Beach is running on a platform of "one God, one religion, one country, one law, one finance, one language, one public school, one tax, one vote, one ticket."

A four page newspaper, the Democratic Republican, was circulated among delegates. It took a somewhat pessimistic view of things. A headline asked: "Will It Be Willkie and War vs. Roosevelt and Ruin?"

The national dunking association handed out manifestos declaring that dunking would cure the world's ills. "Society dunks and the worker in shirt-sleeves dunks," the association said. "A nation of dunkers is a nation that would never tolerate a dictatorship. Dunking is the American way."

The police lost-and-found department in the hall reported a couple of items turned in after yesterday's session. One was an old fashioned umbrella which the man-in-charge said "looks just like Chamberlain's." Another was a roll of currency totaling something less than $50 (they didn't want to give out the exact figure for fear too many folks would pay them a call.)

Frank M. Sparks, 63-year-old editor of the Grand Rapids, Mich., Herald, on which Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg started his career as a cub reporter, said he was here "to kick Van up-stairs again." To hear Sparks tell it, he pushed Vandenberg into the senate in 1928 because they were associates on the paper and "he was getting in my way."

Temporary Chairman Harold E. Stassen and Permanent Chairman Joseph W. Martin spent a few minutes comparing their gavelts. They were the same size, about that of a chopping block, and heavy—"heavy enough to bash your head in," Martin told a pal.

W. B. Daughtry, secretary of the South Carolina delegation which went out in a contest over Joseph (Telesoo Joe) Tolbert's faction, proclaimed today that the victory was a victory for appropriate dress.

British Hope For Part of Naval Force

By JOE ALEX MORRIS United Press Foreign News Editor Great Britain charged France today with agreeing to surrender of the French fleet in violation of solemn pledges, but called on the French empire throughout the world to fight on for "the rescue of France from bondage." Prime Minister Winston Churchill, addressing the house of commons, said it was with "grief and amazement" that he learned the armistice signed by the French government provided for turning over the fully-armed 804,000-ton navy to Germany and Italy, but he did not definitely say the fleet had yet fallen into hands of the axis powers.

That the British still hoped to get part of the French fleet despite the armistice terms to which the French cabinet of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain agreed was emphasized by Lord Caldecote, dominions secretary, in the house of lords. But the attitude of Churchill indicated there was little if any hope of preventing the bulk of French naval power from falling into hands of Germany and Italy.

The prime minister, asserting France had pledged the fleet never would fall into German hands, ridiculed Adolf Hitler's pledge not to use French warships against Great Britain.

"We know the value of that," he snapped.

Churchill said he met Reynaud at Tours June 19, accompanied by Lord Halifax and Lord Beaverbrook. Reynaud asked for release of France from the pledge not to negotiate a separate armistice or peace, but Churchill refused.

"We agreed a further appeal should be made by Reynaud to the United States and if the reply were not sufficient to enable Reynaud to go on fighting—and he after all was the real fighting spirit—then he would meet again to take decisions in the light of new facts," Churchill said.

Churchill said Britain asked that the French fleet be dispatched to and remain at British ports while negotiations were being conducted. He said Britain likewise made clear her determination to continue the war.

Reynaud Overthrown "I was preparing to go to see Reynaud and in fact already was on the train when I received the news he had been overthrown," Churchill said.

"We did all possible to secure proper arrangements for disposition of the French fleet. We reminded the new government that conditions indispensable to their release from their pledge had not been complied with."

He reiterated one of these conditions was dispatch of the French fleet to British ports.

Fleet Powerful The French fleet, he added, was a "powerful but not decisive" factor in the safety of the British empire and it was only after the French cabinet of Paul Reynaud agreed the navy would put into British ports that the British government released France from her pledge not to seek a separate armistice.

Germany, observing the cessation of fighting in France, indicated less than two-thirds of France would be occupied by Nazi forces and said the German terms were "hard but not humiliating." Italy expected to take over the Mediterranean coastal area, said the fight against Britain would go on "until victory."

SPOTTED FEVER FATAL TO FOUR BOISE, June 25 (U.P.)—Rocky mountain spotted fever has caused four deaths in Idaho this year, about one-third of the number of cases reported, Mrs. Mae G. Atwood, registrar of the bureau of vital statistics, said today. Eleven cases have been reported this year.

In 1939 the toll was seven deaths in 31 cases, she said.

The state bureau of public health has distributed enough spotted fever serum, received from laboratories in Hamilton, Mont., to immunize 3,812 persons. Physicians and public health units have also distributed the serum, the bureau reported.

TRAIN RIDER KILLED POCAHELLO, June 25 (U.P.)—Sheriff's officers reported today Leo Collins, 30, Mullan, died of injuries suffered when a freight car door slammed against his head. Collins was riding in an empty car and was apparently looking out the door when an engine bumped the car. The door closed, inflicting a deep gash in Collins' head, and he died several hours later.

France Decrees Time of Mourning as Armies Cease Firing After 296 Days

BORDEAUX, France, June 25 (U.P.)—France's shattered armies grounded arms today after 296 days of the nation observed a day of official mourning. The cabinet met to discuss enforcement of the German and Italian armistice terms and plans for the future of France—a future, they pledged, that should bring to the stricken country a new and better life.

The entire government, led by President Albert Lebrun, attended a solemn mass at Bordeaux cathedral as part of the day of mourning observance.

The public knew the French government decided to leave the city until it was able to return to Paris. The Germans agreed to remain outside until the government had left. The last high communique of the war was issued late last night.

There were slight German advances in the Charente department, where the enemy occupied Angoulême, as well as to the east of the Rhone valley where they reached Aix les Bains and the banks of the Voreire river.

In the Alps Italian attacks continued. They were blocked in proximity to the frontier by our advance posts except along the Maurienne river, where the enemy slightly passed Lanslebourg and a section along the coast where they occupied Menton.

"Our position of resistance is intact along the entire Alp front." This means that on the west the Germans had reached a point about 68 miles north of Bordeaux and that on the east, as fighting stopped, they had reached a point about 42 miles from the Mont Blanc sector of the French-Italian frontier.

Charles Pomaret, interior minister, proclaimed to the nation in a radio speech the national day of mourning.

Williams, who was serving a sentence of life imprisonment for the slaying of police officer Craig T. Bracken of Twin Falls, escaped from the prison by hiding in a barrel of garbage. Prison officials said the "dangerous killer" submerged himself in the swill and breathed through a short piece of hose while the barrel was being removed to the hog pen on the prison ranch.

They believed Williams, who has a long criminal record in Idaho and Nevada, swam down the Boise river after he climbed from the barrel and entered an irrigation ditch which transverses the city. He was reported seen by residents near the state capitol, where the search concentrated yesterday.

Police Widen Search for Young Escaped Murderer BOISE, Ida., June 25 (U.P.)—Search for Danny Williams, 20-year-old murderer who escaped from the Idaho state prison, was extended over a wide area today as peace officers received reports from persons who believed they sighted the fugitive. Ada county sheriff Don Hendrick warned citizens to keep their cars and houses locked to prevent the youth from obtaining transportation and arms with which to continue his flight.

City, county and state police, aided by national guardsmen, checked little-used roads leading into the hills but found no trace of the youthful-killer. Nearly a score of reports from persons who believed they saw Williams proved groundless.

Fire Razes Mother's Home as Son Faces Double Accusation While the ashes of his mother's ranch shack near Rogerson smoldered this morning from mysterious flames which totally destroyed it, LeRoy Wilkins, 30, giant Negro, demanded preliminary hearing on separate felony charges which accuse him of criminally assaulting a Rogerson ranch woman and burning the home occupied by the woman and her husband.

The alleged arson, followed by the asserted criminal attack, occurred early Monday.

In the early hours of this morning the home of Mrs. Cornelia White, 52, mother of Wilkins, burned to the ground. Mrs. White is at present in county jail in a cell not far from that of her son. She was incarcerated for non-payment of trial costs in a misdemeanor accusation, and is seeking release through a writ of habeas corpus.

Connection Undetermined Whether the mystery fire which destroyed Mrs. White's wooden shack was connected with resentment against Wilkins in the Rogerson area had not been definitely determined today.

Sheriff L. W. Hawkins, who went to the scene of the fire, said that he was "still investigating" this afternoon. It was understood that persons he questioned this morning said they had "no knowledge" of how the fire at Mrs. White's home may have started.

Hawkins said that only the two-room shack itself burned down. Outbuildings at the ranch, where the Negro woman maintains a varied

JAPAN 'WATCHES' FRENCH COLONY

TOKYO, June 25 (U.P.)—Japan announced today it was dispatching a battle fleet to French Indo-China and it was reported that in future the Japanese government would deal directly with Indo-Chinese authorities and not with the French government in any negotiations.

Imperial Japanese headquarters made the formal announcement that arrangements had been made to send a part of the Japanese fleet to south China waters to Hatphong, the great port of Indo-China, "to watch for the time being conditions of transportation of goods to China by Indo-China."

If the Japanese "watch" should be extended to the remainder of the Indo-China coast, it would reach positions within 600 miles of the Philippines and 700 miles of Singapore.

At the same time the foreign office announced a corps of military experts and foreign office officials would leave soon to inspect conditions in Indo-China, in compliance with an agreement by France for stoppage of all aid to China, and that pending their arrival army and navy officers and non-commissioned officers would go to Indo-China by warship to start the inspection.

The newspaper Yomiuri, independent, reported that the government, following its recent protests against the dispatch of goods to China through Indo-China, Hong Kong and Burma, would make fresh representations to Italy as well as to France and Great Britain "for correction of the pro-Chinese character of foreign concessions" in China.

As regards Indo-China, it was understood in any future dealings the Japanese government would ignore the Bordeaux government of France and approach Indo-Chinese colonial authorities directly.

BILLION DOLLAR TAX BILL SIGNED

WASHINGTON, June 25 (U.P.)—President Roosevelt today signed the special $1,050,000,000-a-year tax bill designed to help defray the costs of the huge national defense program.

The bill, which permanently lowers income tax exemptions from $2,500 to $2,000 for married persons and $1,000 to $800 for single individuals, also raises the national debt limit $4,000,000,000 above the present $45,000,000,000 ceiling.

Debt Limit Raised The measure boosts surtax and corporation tax rates, and together with the individual income levy increases, is expected to yield an additional $322,000,000 annually.

The new bill creates a temporary five-year schedule of increased levels which are expected to raise an estimated $750,000,000 a year. Such funds will go into a special treasury account earmarked for use only in retiring government obligations.

Revenue under the temporary tax schedule will be derived from a 10 per cent surtax on individual and corporate income taxes, 10 per cent increases in estate, gift, capital stock and excess profits taxes, and an increase of 10 to 50 per cent in most excise or "nuisance" taxes.

Super-taxes (10 per cent over and above the ordinary tax amount) are expected to yield $288,000,000; excise taxes (gasoline and miscellaneous) $112,000,000; distilled spirits $70,000,000; beer $40,000,000; tobacco and amusement taxes $25,000,000; estate taxes $20,000,000; stocks and excess profits $12,000,000; stamp taxes $7,000,000 and gift taxes $3,000,000.

BRITISH CABINET FLEES FROM RAID LONDON, June 25 (U.P.)—German airplanes, raiding over England and Wales from the North sea to the Atlantic, brought London its first air raid alarm since September today and sent members of the cabinet hastening to shelter.

The death toll mounted to five when two bodies were recovered from a demolished house adjoining a hospital in southwestern England. Bombs were dropped over a wide area. The dead represented the first casualties in southwestern England since the war started. Six civilians were wounded in other parts of the country.

The crash of bombs was heard in many areas. Searchlight batteries sent their beams into the sky in search of raiders. Anti-aircraft guns burst into fire and royal air force fighter planes were soon up.

The most wide-spread alarms of the entire war showed that German planes, evidently in great numbers, were ranging almost the entire 50,340 square miles of England and Wales. Alarms were sounded in all corners of the country, in the midlands, in Wales and in London.

As usual the Germans flew in waves at exceedingly high altitudes. Searchlight batteries went into action over the entire greater London area. Buses and street cars were halted, light bulbs put out and passengers, automobilists and pedestrians took to shelter without excitement. Members of the cabinet were holding an early morning meeting at No. 10 Downing street when the alarm was sounded and they, too, went to shelters.

IDAHO OFFICERS HOLD ELECTIONS

POCAHELLO, June 25 (U.P.)—Election of officers and a pistol shooting contest today held the interest of more than 200 state, county and federal police officers gathered here for the annual convention of the Idaho peace officers association.

An address on ethical delinquency and its control by George N. Stetfield, Moscow chief of police, highlighted the opening day's session. Mindkoko county sheriff, William Manifold, president of the organization, directed the program for discussion of new police methods.

DENTISTS MEET SUN VALLEY, Ida., June 25 (U.P.)—Nearly 100 members of the Idaho Dental association meeting at their annual convention today considered a suggestion of Dr. E. R. Swank of Dee Moines, Ia., for adoption of a budget installment plan of payment for dental work.

GOP CHAIRMAN CALLS FOR END OF DRIFT TO ABSOLUTISM

MARTIN DEMANDS STRONG DEFENSE OF U. S. LIBERTY

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 25 (AP)—Joseph W. Martin took office today as permanent chairman of the 1940 Republican national convention and summoned his party to check the drift toward absolutism at home, and strengthen American defenses against threats to her liberty from abroad.

Martin, Republican leader of the house, declared that:

"Eyes that are clear, hearts that are fearless, minds that are free must maintain our ideals of liberty in the midst of world chaos and confusion."

He denounced a seven year trend under the New Deal "toward one-man government and national bankruptcy" and warned that "personal liberty, equal rights, equal justice, constitutional government—these are in danger of being extinguished."

"This convention," he said, "will nominate a President to lead America out of the wilderness of economic confusion and spiritual chaos. We are here to rally all patriots in a crusade for Americanism."

"We must see to it," he said, "that our national reason is not warped and befuddled by political propaganda, pleas for power, bureaucratic blundering or selfishness of section or class. This is no time to be stampeded into hasty decisions."

"We must preserve our country from the schemes and treachery of those unscrupulous to our constitutional republic and who would destroy it."

"The destruction of our constitution, our government and our freedom can be brought about, unless we are vigilant, by economic betrayal just as readily as by military betrayal."

"All 'fifth columnists' must be rooted out and thrown out. Trojan horses must be barred from our government. We must not permit political liberty to be used as a mask for plotters against the American system. The constitution must not be misused to destroy the constitution."

"Our people may well thank God there is in this nation one party which refuses to coddle or foster the enemies of free government."

Martin emphasized the Republican party's long stand in favor of adequate national defense.

Martin warned that the cost of national defense would be high, that taxes would reach "painfully into every household" and charged that administration failure to achieve full economic recovery would make the burden heavier.

JURY IS CALLED IN HIT-RUN CASE

BURLEY, June 25 (Special)—A coroner's jury, in session here late this afternoon, was expected to return a verdict that Rulon Dayley, 20, Oakley, came to his death early Sunday morning as a result of being struck by an automobile operated by an unknown person, who sped away from the scene immediately after the accident.

Even as the jury met to fix the cause of death, police continued a widespread search for the driver of the death car who fled from the scene of the mishap and left the injured youth on the highway, badly hurt. Taken to the Burley hospital by passing motorists who found him near Oakley on the main highway, Dayley died two hours after he was hit at about 1 a. m. Sunday. More than 50 cars have been inspected by officers in search for the death car.

Coroner in Charge
The inquest was in progress at the Payne mortuary, where the body was in charge. Witnesses called to the stand included the following: Deputy Sheriff George Bray, State Policeman John Church, and Oakley Marshal John Martin, the three investigating officers; Floyd Moyer, Burley, who brought the youth to the hospital; William Sutton, Oakley, first person on the scene after the accident occurred; Hilda Martin, Oakley, who attended an Oakley dance with the youth, and was en route home, accompanied by him, at the time he was struck.

Was Seeking Ride
She told police that she was about two blocks behind Dayley, seeking to get friends to give them a ride home, when he was hit. She did not see the accident.

"Other witnesses on the stand were to be Coroner Payne, Jay Ellison, Oakley, and Dr. C. A. Terhune, the Burley physician who was attending the youth when he died."

The boy was a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Dayley, residing near Oakley. Funeral services will be at the Oakley L.D.S. tabernacle Wednesday noon after which the body will be shipped to Pocatello for burial. The Payne mortuary will be in charge.

Dr. J. H. Murphy, county physician, encountered an "operation" today that his surgical skill can't handle.

The "operation" came in the form of the battered and smashed rear portion of his new 1940 motor car.

The county physician's machine was damaged as result of an accident caused at 8 p. m. last night, sheriff's deputies said, because a California motorist stopped partly on the U. S. 30 pavement to pick up a hitchhiker.

The Californian was Varden Fuller, 2821 Shasta road, Berkeley. Fuller stopped for the hitchhiker two and a half miles west of Twin Falls, according to Deputy Claude Wiley. Dr. Murphy, driving behind Fuller, was unable to go around the stationary machine because of oncoming traffic. As a result he was forced to stop his own machine. Donald Rathbun, Buhl, driving a 1934 sedan, rammed the physician's car from behind, the investigator said.

Damage to Rathbun's car was about $50.

Bids at Sheriff Sale Show 'Slight' Variation—10 Cents and $1,600.74!

There were exactly two bids presented today as Murlaugh property was sold at foreclosure auction at the east door of the county courthouse.

The bids, briefly, were these:

Jake Pope, assistant county brand inspector: "Ten cents."

Edward Babcock, attorney: "Sixteen hundred dollars and 74 cents."

Deputy Art Siffer promptly "knocked down" the foreclosed property to Mr. Babcock. Meanwhile Inspector Pope did a little blushing.

As far as anybody in the sheriff's department knew, that jump from 10 cents to $1,600.74 was the largest "spread" ever to pop up at a foreclosure sale hereabouts. Pope opined later that he was only joking and didn't expect to get the property for a dime.

Babcock's bid was made for Peter Pearson, plaintiff in the civil suit which resulted in the sheriff's sale.

Utah Officials to Attend L.D.S. Meet

Two representatives from Salt Lake City, an apostle and a member of the central welfare committee, will be present at the state quarterly conference here this week-end. Latter Day Saints officials announced today.

A meeting of all interested welfare workers will be held Saturday at 7 p. m. at the tabernacle, followed by a priesthood meeting at 8 p. m.

Sunday sessions will begin with a general assembly at 10 a. m. An afternoon session is called for 2 p. m. and the M.I.A. meeting will take place at 7:30 p. m.

LECTURE

Gordon Kolb today had told local police that when they order him to stand back from firemen in the future he would do just that.

Police records show that Kolb was brought to the station during a cafe fire here yesterday. He had refused to "back up" when asked to do so by patrolmen who were aiding the firemen and was taken to the city jail.

His case was heard a short time later and he was dismissed by Municipal Judge J. O. Pumphrey after it was determined that it was his first offense.

Third Republican Seeks Solon Job

Republican aspirants for nomination to the Twin Falls county legislative delegation had mounted to three today after H. C. (Chris) Reinke, Twin Falls rancher and incumbent representative, presented his declaration of candidacy.

No Democrats have yet filed for legislative nomination on the Bourbon primary ticket.

State Sen. Floyd W. Neale, Twin Falls, has already entered for re-nomination on the G.O.P. slate, and Ronald (Skip) Towan, Twin Falls county Young Republican club director, is in the race for G.O.P. nomination as one of the three representatives.

WIND-UP STARTS

Because a few "loose ends" still are incomplete in the business and manufacturing census, Mrs. R. V. Jones, Twin Falls, was reappointed today as enumerator to wind up those phases.

Earl F. Kramer, Boise, supervisor of the census for most of Idaho, announced the reappointment as he stopped here this morning en route to the state capital from Pocatello district offices.

Mrs. Jones will complete the remaining details of the business census here, and will then perform the same task at Burley, according to Kramer. Since the Pocatello office must close June 30, next Sunday, the job must be done within four more days.

Forgery Suspect Seized by Swift Action in Burley

Fast work by the Burley police department had captured today a man who will face charges of passing bogus checks at the Hansen service station and Howard grocery establishment.

Six hours after Sheriff L. W. Hawkins called Burley, Jerome and Buhl to watch for G. Robert Kelly, the Burley city police reported arrest of the accused man. A Twin Falls deputy sheriff was to return Kelly to county jail here this evening.

Authorities here charged that Kelly forged the name "Carroll C. Clark" to two $10 checks, and passed the checks at the combined service station-grocery in Hansen. Prosecutor Everett M. Sweely expected to file complaint in probate court some time late this afternoon.

Italian Troops Mass for Triumphant March Into Conquered France

BRITISH, ROMAN FORCES MEET IN MEDITERRANEAN

By R. NOLDS PACKARD
ROME, June 25 (AP)—Italian troops massed today to march triumphantly into conquered France as Italy's 14th communique of the war, announcing cessation of Franco-Italian hostilities, said that the "war continues against Britain and will continue until victory."
The communique said hostilities between Italy and France ended at 1:36 a. m. (4:35 p. m. Monday, MST) not only on the continent of Europe but overseas.

Legions March
Today's communique made no reference to occupation of French territory by Italian forces but an earlier dispatch by the official news agency, Stefani, said that before the cease fire order became effective Italian Alpine detachments had passed La Blachere and were marching on the Riviera road. Stefani said Italian forces had penetrated into French valleys after breaking through French lines at three points.
The cease fire order was effective in all sectors, according to the communique. Previous reports had indicated hostilities continued to the very minute of the deadline.

Submarine Missing
The communique said an Italian submarine yesterday had sunk an enemy ship of 8,000 tons and it admitted an Italian submarine was missing in the Red sea.

(Saturday the admiralty in London claimed a large Italian submarine had surrendered to the British trawler Moonstone after a gun battle in the gulf of Aden.)

The communique described an air raid, presumably British, over Tripoli in which it was claimed no objective of military interest was hit. The "enemy" also raided Cagliari in Sardinia, dropping 30 bombs, according to the communique from Italian general headquarters.
Two attempts to raid Palermo, Sicily, were said to have been repulsed by Italian pursuit planes.

French Return
French armistice plenipotentiaries, led by Gen. Charles Huntziger, prepared to return to France after having been delayed by unfavorable flying weather. Terms of their armistice with both Germany and Italy remained secret.

End of hostilities found the Italian army ready to take up positions in the territory of the vanquished. Italian troops had gathered for the "forward march" order from Mont Blanc, at the Swiss border, to the Mediterranean sea.

The sectors to be occupied were Savoy and Nice, for which Italians had clamored in the Venice square news exchange. Benito Mussolini spoke. It was hoped that Corsica, Tunisia and Djibouti, all catchwords for Fascist crowds, would follow. Britain's Malta was to come, Italians hoped, and a change in the status of Suez.

"Casualty" in Cafe Flames

Looking highly angry at this indignity to the king of birds, the stuffed eagle which decorated a front wall of the Blue Arrow cafe was the only "casualty" today as result of the $5,000 fire which flared in the restaurant building Monday afternoon. The eagle's feathers went up in smoke and his general appearance after the fire resembled that of a fried chicken. (Times Photo and Engraving)

CAFE STARTS ON DAMAGE REPAIRS

As C. P. Smith, manager of the Blue Arrow cafe, announced that repairs would get underway at once and the establishment would probably be open for business in three weeks, damages caused by fire yesterday afternoon were estimated at $3,500 to the building and $1,500 to the fixtures.
It was reported losses are covered by insurance. The building, in downtown Twin Falls, is owned by Mrs. Frank Smith.

The fire started at the rear of the cafe and spread quickly to the interior, drawn by a suction fan at the end of the building. Firemen had the blaze under control within 20 minutes but swift spread of the fire had done much damage. Upstairs, where the Hawaiian Gardens is located, water and smoke caused some damage but the place was able to operate last night.

Fire Chief Zeke Bartlett announced the blaze was caused by the placing of hot ashes at the end of the cafe. The same building was the scene of another fire Feb. 22, records show.

Hundreds of persons witnessed the firemen at work. At least two persons were taken to the police station and given a stern "lecture" for not getting out of the way of the firemen when ordered to do so by police and two persons were fined for having cars parked in the alley, thus impeding progress of the firemen.

The two fined were Harold L. Nelson and Floyd Z. Miller. They appeared before Municipal Judge J. O. Pumphrey and entered pleas of guilty to ordinance violation. City law prohibits cars from parking in and blocking alleys.

Discovery of Cricket Plague Saves Picture

HOLLYWOOD, June 25 (AP)—A crisis had passed today at 20th Century-Fox studio, whose property men can paint shadows on walls, drop rain from buckets and spin phony spider-webs, but who can't manufacture a cricket plague.

The studio was well into its $1,500,000 epic, "Brigham Young"—to the part that calls for flocks of seagulls to swoop down on Salt Lake City and end a cricket plague—when this shortcoming of the property men was discovered. The crickets had to be alive.

Telegrams were hastily dispatched to every county seat in the west and from Elko, Nev., came this cheering reply: "Twenty million crickets are here waiting to pounce on Tyrone Power and other stars."

The cast of "Brigham Young" moved to Elko before the only cricket plague reported in the west ends. Dean Jagger, cast in the title role; Tyrone Power, Mary Astor and Jean Rogers rushed to the site of the cricket plague. A. F. Erickson, production manager, and Henry Hathaway, director of the new film, had previously flown to Elko by plane.

Condition of Mrs. J. C. Gates, 80, Buhl, was said to be improving at the county general hospital this afternoon where she is being treated for injuries received in an automobile accident four miles west of Buhl on highway 30 about 6:30 p. m. Sunday.

Mrs. Gates is suffering from shock, cuts and bruises. Two other persons were injured in the mishap. They were Mr. Gates, 91, driver of the machine, and Mrs. Laura Gray, a passenger. Mr. Gates, Buhl justice of the peace, suffered shock and scratches and Mrs. Gray a sprained shoulder. Both remained at the hospital only until the minor injuries were treated.

The accident occurred when the Gates machine locked bumpers with another car and both turned on their sides. Names of the occupants of the other machine, who escaped uninjured, were not learned but it was reported that driver of the other machine was a 17-year-old youth. Three other boys were said to have been passengers in that car. Both autos were damaged.

WAR VETS GIVEN CHANCE FOR CCC

An enrollment of World War and Spanish-American war veterans in the CCC corps in Idaho will begin July 1 and end July 30. It was announced here this afternoon by W. Clyde Williams, office manager of the Idaho state employment service and American Legion member.

Announcement of the enrollment was made by Williams after he had received word to this effect from Homer Hudeston, manager of the veterans' administration, Boise. Williams was informed that the Idaho quota for enrollment of veterans during the announced period is 25. Veterans selected must be unemployed and in need of employment. Veterans who have been discharged from the CCC within the past six months will not be eligible for re-enrollment during this period. We Need Tough, Pliable Minds

The United States at this moment faces several situations in which precedent is no guide. Other such situations are certain to develop.

The past, except in the most general way, is no guide. Countries which have clung to past precedents have gone under.

We need every ounce of mental resiliency we can summon to guide our course through shoals that loom up directly ahead.

For instance: The United States has officially declared that it will not tolerate transfer of New World soil from one Old World country to another. That is not new. It goes back 100 years. But new techniques may be desirable in enforcing it.

The United States does not covet, for its own sake, any more territory in the western hemisphere or elsewhere. French island or continental possessions we do not want to annex. Yet we will not see them fall to Hitler or any other European power.

When a colony's home government is destroyed or ceases to function, that colony becomes automatically an independent country. The French possessions in the New World are small and defenseless. They could not maintain such an independent status by their own strength.

But to whose interest is it that they become independent rather than fall into the hands of European conquerors? To that of all the 21 American republics! So why should not all of those American countries join in guaranteeing this new-found independence? It is true that the major share in defending such countries would probably fall to the United States. But that is no reason why all should not share to the extent that they can. Dr. Oswald Aranha of Brazil has already suggested some such final answer should emergency develop.

Nothing quite like this has ever been done. Yet is it not better than annexation, which would stir again in South American breasts distrust of "The Colossus of the North"?

The situation of France itself is uncertain at this moment—that of her overseas possessions is more so. But the situation may clarify at any moment—action may be necessary. The American nations should meet immediately and decide in advance that they will resolutely face their responsibilities in this connection if circumstances so dictate.

The United States would prefer this kind of joint action. But if other American countries draw back or hesitate, necessity may force the United States to act.

"Nothing Mean or Common"

Churchill, Britain's prime minister, in addressing the British people with a report on the adverse course of the war thus far, did a great deal to instill into them that measure of iron that seems necessary for today's world.

He urged them to remember the famous lines spoken of Cromwell:

Ye nothing common did or mean Upon the memorable scene.

Those words could be repeated into our own ears. For we, too, stand upon the memorable scene. Our part is not that of the people Churchill addressed, but nevertheless we have a part to play. At the moment it is principally the choosing of a citizen to be our leader during the next four years. But there is a multitude of other decisions to make, courses to choose:

It would do us all good to promise ourselves that in making our decisions, in all our acts, there shall be nothing mean or common. In such times, all must try to rise above themselves. And when all, or nearly all, do so, then the sum total of rational action is also fine and good.

Turning to History

Librarians report that people are turning eagerly to history in an effort to find some explanation, to arrive at some understanding, of what is going on in the world today.

That is natural enough. But the reading of a little history, like the acquiring of a little knowledge of any kind, is a dangerous thing. There are, it is true, certain superficial parallels between what is going on today and what went on when the French Revolutionary armies swept across Europe. There have been invaders before, and aggressors, and conquerors.

But there are new aspects to the rapidly unfolding fate of Europe today to which history offers few parallels. As people of the past were largely guided by what bravery and common sense they could muster in the face of circumstance, so we must carve out our own fate in our own world. So much, at least, history seems to teach.

POT SHOTS

WITH The Gentleman in the Third Row

BASEBALL TALE, MOURNFUL TO MR. THOMASON!

Dear Third Row: Mr. Bill Thomson of the Shoshone baseball club is a very good player. Usually Mr. Bill Thomson will connect with the ball very nicely several times during a game, and the ball always makes a nice pleasing "crack" when he hits it. Now it seems that Mr. Bill Thomson was in line form at Shoshone Sunday. He strode vigorously to the plate, glared at the pitcher, and swung as the ball came toward him. There was the usual "crack" followed by a not-so-usual "crash" as the ball crossed over first base line and headed into a string of cars.

Bill halted his activities sufficiently long to cast a glance in the direction of the not-so-usual "crash." There was his own car with a hole where before there had been a windshield!

—J. S. Snoople, P. S. He struck out.

How a Dictator Could Benefit Human Race

Dear Third Row:

I ain't saying a dictatorship is the best form of government. But after hearing some of the hot weather remarks in and around Burley, I ain't saying a dictatorship hasn't got its points.

Now 'rinstance, if I were dictator, I would do the following to the following:

- 1) People saying "100 in the shade—no shade, ha, ha," one arm chopped off.
- 2) People saying, "It'll be tough tonight," one arm and two toes chopped off.
- 3) People saying, "Aw this is cool compared to the old days," one ear chopped off diagonally.
- 4) People saying, "Well, you think for this hot winter," thumb and both little fingers chopped off.
- 5) People saying, "I don't mind suffering—this helps the crops," other ear chopped off in V-shape.
- 6) People saying, "It is hot enough for you?"... head chopped off, torso boiled in oil, and all members of immediate family banished to concentration camp.

Dear Hon. P. S., esq.:

A certain gent, an engineer for the state highway department, gleaned certain enlightening information from a man on a Twin Falls street recently.

It seems like Glen Jones asked a man on the street where Magic City was located. He had noticed it on jubilee signs on cars and just wanted to know.

He found out. Don't know what we'd do without men on the street.

SERIAL STORY Ticket to Hollywood

BY W. H. PEARS

COPYRIGHT 1940 NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY When Francis refused to ride with him, Gusti picks up a hitchhiker, John Weston, whom Gusti thinks looks like a crook, but Gusti disregards the warning. That night Francis awakes to see a man in the doorway of the cabin.

CHAPTER VI FRANCIE tried to scream. No sound came from her throat. She lay with her eyes fixed on the prowler, unable to move. Her heart slammed wildly into her ribs.

She heard the metallic rip of knife on screen. (Oh, if she'd only closed and bolted the door!) The man slid his hand inside and withdrew the catch. Squint and bulky, he moved toward Aunt Hat's bed. Francie never knew what happened then. It was as if something snapped inside of her, releasing her nerves from the intolerable strain.

She sat up in bed. Her out-thrust hand over-turned the wrought iron lamp on the stand. The prowler whirled, came at her. Francie's hands tightened around the heavy lamp base. She struck out blindly.

She felt the lamp come to an abrupt stop, bits into something hard. There was a groan, a thud. Aunt Hat screamed. Francie sank back on the bed in a faint.

WHEN she opened her eyes, the cabin was flooded with light. Her father held her close. The camp proprietor and a patrolman looked in the door.

"Are you all right, dear?" he asked. With a shudder, Francie stared at the man on the floor. He lay motionless, a trickle of blood running from his head. "Did—did I do that?"

John Weston nodded. "You bet you did! See, it's our friend Blubber."

"He's... not...?" "No, you just dented his thick skull. I'll roll him over and search him."

"He—he didn't get my purse," Aunt Hat announced; her teeth chattering.

"But he did get Gusti's," John Weston said firmly. "Francie, isn't this the wallet you bought him for Christmas? And here's the little gold trumpet he always wore on his shirt."

"Oh..." Francie seized the wallet and pin. "They are his, Pops."

Weston's eyes were hard. "I'm going to see what happened to that boy." He turned to the officer. "Keep an eye on this fellow."

Francie was pulling on slacks over her pajamas. "I'm going along, Pops. I heard Gusti playing his trumpet just before I went to sleep. I know the direction it came from."

They followed the highway. Mr. Weston searching in all directions with the long beam of his flashlight. Francie forced her shaking legs to keep up with him. Horrible thoughts pressed in on her.

"There's the car!" Mr. Weston exclaimed. Gusti's old roadster was parked in a culvert. The dying embers of a campfire cast pale light on a still figure.

FRANCIE clung to her father as they stumbled forward. Mr. Weston directed his flashlight over Gusti's face. His eyes were closed. A great purple welt discolored his forehead.

Francie threw herself at his side, sobbing. "Oh, Gusti, Gusti, it's all my fault. I'm so—sorry. Please don't die."

Mr. Weston pulled her gently away. He bent, making a quick examination. "Easy, dear, Gusti's not dead. He's just had a nasty blow. Take the flashlight and run back to camp. I'll need someone to help me carry him. Have the proprietor get a cabin ready and telephone for a doctor."

It was all done so quickly that Francie had no time to think. A brisk young doctor arrived, examined Gusti and said with a grin, "Tough-skulled youngster. Except for a severe headache, he'll be okay in the morning."

Francie hurried into the cabin. Gusti's eyes were still closed, but he breathed evenly. His rugged, young face was pale, relaxed. His helplessness seemed at Francie's heart. It seemed impossible that she would ever hear his donkey laugh again.

Mr. Weston entered and Francie turned tear-clouded eyes to him. "I'm going to stay with him, Pops. He might waken and need me."

ALONE, Francie switched out all the lights except a small lamp by the bed. Then she drew up a chair and took Gusti's hand. It was cool and limp. Bitterly ashamed, she thought of all the nasty things she'd said to him. She bent over and brushed her lips across his cheek in a kiss of forgiveness.

As she did, she felt the weight of Gusti's wallet in her pocket. She wondered if it would be wrong just to see how much money Gusti had. The wallet contained $30 in crumpled bills.

Another thought struck her. She opened a side flap in the wallet. It was there! The precious ticket to the Pegasus-I, B. C. broadcast.

FRANCIE stood looking at him, now without tenderness. It was hopeless trying to be nice to Gusti. He simply wouldn't let a girl like him.

Gusti's wallet lay on the dresser. Francie looked at it. How easy it would be to take the ticket! It wouldn't be stealing. She had as much right to it as Gusti. She touched the wallet, drew back as if it were hot.

She'd saved Gusti's money for him, and maybe his life. He hadn't even thanked her. Why should she be so careful of his feelings? Now was the time to be ruthless, the way Aunt Hat was always telling her to be.

With shaking hands, Francie fumbled with the wallet flap. Slowly she withdrew the ticket and placed it in her jacket beside Gusti's trumpet pin. She drew the zipper shut with a terrible finality.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

(This is the second of three stories on "America's role in the new world order.")

BY BRUCE CATTON

WASHINGTON, June 24—If the New World nations agree to the "economic union" plan recently proposed here, the United States is in for a program which would make its previous farm-relief and export-subsidy programs look mild.

To begin with Europe annually buys around $1,500,000,000 worth of Latin American goods. On top of that the United States itself each year exports farm products running to hundreds of millions of dollars.

Any international cartel formed to buy and handle the New World's export supplies, therefore, would have to spend an enormous sum each year—and most of it all of the money would have to be put up by Uncle Sam.

But that only starts it. Once the cartel has bought these goods it will have to dispose of them. The bulk of them, undoubtedly, could be sold to Europe—Hitler's Europe, or anybody else's. But there is also little doubt here that a large quantity would remain as surplus. What to do about that?

FRAN LIKELY TO BE COSTLY The administration is firmly set against any plan which would mean the dumping of Latin American agricultural products into the U. S. market, to compete with home-grown goods. It's frankly the fact that a good part of the cartel's acquisitions simply couldn't be sold anywhere.

One suggestion is that these materials—mostly foodstuffs—could be moved in the United States via a vast extension of the current food stamp plan. Another one is simply that the whole business could, if need be, just be dumped into the ocean, possibly, given away via international relief organizations to feed refugees, and so on. In any case, the prospect that a huge loss, running perhaps to half a billion a year, would have to be taken is openly admitted.

Next: The pressure at home.

AMERICA NEEDS THOUGHT IN WAR CRISIS

Editor, Evening Times:

At a time like this, our country becomes, as its founders intended it should be, a republic rather than a democracy. That is, the decisions are all made by our duly elected leaders, and the rest of us have no direct voice in them.

But in a larger sense, we do have a direct voice, and we do have a sort of referendum. For a congress to declare war when the people behind it were not at what I would call "the saturation point"—that is, like a room sprayed with gasoline, and ready to burst into flames at a spark—would be folly. If there were lacking what Marshal Pétain of France has so poignantly termed "the spirit of sacrifice" in the people, all the guns and equipment our government could buy would be of little use.

If an enemy army should actually start to invade the United States, I have not a doubt that all of us would place that spirit of sacrifice above anything else in our lives. But if war should come to the United States soon, it probably will not come in that way. More likely it will come because a foreign power claims some remote island, or because of some alarming "incident" in South America, or from some other cause relatively small in itself.

As we read American history, we are impressed by the number of times the United States has narrowly escaped involvement in a war which never happened. In each of these incidents, there has been a hero—or more than one—a man who has kept us out of war. Sometimes he has been a diplomat in foreign service, as were members of the famous Adams family; sometimes he has been a statesman at home, as Borah was. But the point is, if while this man is doing his work, the people of his nation have reached "the saturation point" of hatred, his work may often be in vain.

Before we reach this very serious point, I hope none of us lets a day go by without thinking of what war really is. For instance, if the United States should go to war with the dictator nations now, our men would go forth, not merely to be shot at, but to shoot. And they would not, except by some astounding freak of chance, shoot at Mussolini or Hitler. No, these two, if defeated, would not doubt live to a venerable old age in pleasant surroundings; the ex-killer has.

The men at whom they would shoot would be men much like themselves: clerks and farmers, artisans and laborers. And if a young man happened to be an aviator he might find himself, whether he liked it or not, dropping bombs on German or Italian babies and mothers, old folks and sick people. For that is war!

These people against whom we would fight believe, as we should, that their own cause was the right one. To suppose something fanatical, let us suppose that the United States, 25 years ago, had had a dictatorial war with Mexico, and had

FELLER HURLS 7-1 VICTORY OVER YANKS

Success Against Weakest Clubs Termed Yardstick

NEW YORK, June 25 (U.P.)—One valuable yardstick to put on the pennant contenders to determine if they are on championship dimensions is to measure their success against the league's two weakest clubs.

Last season the Yankees and Reds became champions because they were able to grow fat on the seventh and eighth place clubs. The Yanks beat the Athletics and Browns 37 times while losing only seven. The Reds slugged the Bees and Phillies 35 times while losing only nine decisions.

If 1940 runs true to 1939 forms, the Dodgers and Red Sox may meet in the 1940 world series if they can keep up their winning form against the weak sisters. The Dodgers have won 10 out of 11 games against the seventh place Bees and eighth place Phillies. The Red Sox have the best record among the American league, contenders against the two trailers, having won 8 out of 11 from the Athletics and Senators.

Thus, the two pace-setting clubs, the Reds and Indians, are leading despite poorer records against the weaker clubs. The Reds decline against the also rans has been surprising. Last year the Reds licked the Phillies 19 times in 22 games. This year the Reds already have beaten the Reds four times, once more than they did all last year. The Indians' jinx club this season has been the Athletics who've beaten the tribe five times, more than any other team in 11 games.

In the only day game in the majors yesterday, the Browns beat the Athletics, 9-4. A 12-hit attack that included two home runs by Walt Judnich and one each by Don Heffner and Harold Clift, the latter's with two mates aboard, provided more than enough runs to win the game. Eldon Auker held the A's to nine safes.

Feller Beats Yanks Bobby Feller breezed to his 11th win of the year last night as he pitched the Cleveland Indians to their ninth victory in their last 10 starts, 7-1 over the New York Yankees.

The defeat was the Yank's third straight, eighth in nine games and dropped them to within one game of the second division.

The newly developed feud between the Brooklyn and St. Louis National league clubs is encouraging inasmuch as it proves there is still some fight left in baseball.

Things had become too orderly... the players too complacent. Those who prefer decorum at the parks ask whether the customers turn out to see a fight or a ball game.

I would say they like a little bit of both. Certainly in more recent years they have seen little enough real baseball.

While baseball was being built into the tremendous business it is, owners and club presidents were as much a part of their teams as the shortstop.

Now when a club president puts up a fight for his outfit they call him a screwball, and write magazine pieces about him.

Such a president is Larry MacPhail who, following the beating of Joe Medwick, stood in front of the St. Louis dugout and challenged the Cardinals to come out and fight... one at a time or in a body, and then took a punch at the pitcher.

MacPhail is criticized by the more conservative, but the fans love it, and Brooklyn will likely come close to playing to $2,000,000 this season.

John J. McGraw, greatest of all baseball feudists, engineered to mutual advantage the ill-feeling between New York and Brooklyn which exists to this day.

McGraw's Giants of 1906-12 fought the Cubs eye-for-eye and tooth-for-tooth. McGraw kept things stirred up by telegraphing the chief of police on each invasion of the enemy's territory demanding "protection from Chicago hoodlums."

Once when Barney Dreyfuss, stirred the easily aroused ire of McGraw, Little Napoleon spent entire series at Forbes field razzing the Pittsburgh president from the coach's box.

It was the same Dreyfuss who, in 1921, following the Pirates' loss of three consecutive double-headers to the Giants in mid-September, when they seemed on their way to the pennant, stormed into the dressing room and snarled: "Quitlers!"

It's good to see the noble athletes slugging snakes, and coming into bats with them flying high.

After all, they're not playing tennis. And the so-called national pastime had become baregame.

Mac Decides Cleveland Indians Don't Dare Win League Pennant

By HENRY McLEMORE NEW YORK, June 25 (U.P.)—Year in and year out I suppose I spend as little time brooding over the Cleveland Indians as they spend brooding over me. Their good fortunes and reverses have touched me lightly, and I am sure my own ups and downs have neither caused them to celebrate nor to grieve.

Yet today, for some reason I am unable to explain, I feel as if I heard a baby crying in the adjoining apartment. I found myself thinking of the Indians and wondering what would happen should they win the American league pennant and gain the world series.

I thought about the possibility of the Indians winning for quite a while, and then came to the conclusion they don't dare win the pennant. They've gone on record, I believe, as saying their manager, Oscar Vitt, drives them nuts, gives them theitters, and makes them generally psychopathic. Victory for them would be an open admission that performs with complete efficiency only when they're abnormal in the market for straight-jackets.

No team wants to admit that. Furthermore, I'm not sure baseball could withstand the presence in the world series of an outfit that by its own admittance was slightly less than rational. After all, baseball is our national game, and as such represents the temper of this country. This is no time for the United States to advise the world its citizens are of a type who get excited over, and pay tribute to, an organization of young men slightly out of their heads.

Far better—and I am sure Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis would see eye to eye with me—that a less gifted team mechanically, but one with all 52 cards in its mental deck, represent baseball in the world series. So, should Cleveland win, it would not surprise me at all if the members of the team were taken to the mountains for a rest and the Red Sox or Yankees or the Browns named to substitute for them in what so many of us know as baseball's blue ribbon class.

Of course, removal of the Indians from the world series would have a bad effect on the box office receipts. With the Indians in there, every psychiatrist, psychologist, and baby doctor in the country would buy a ticket. They would see in the series a chance to hold an outdoor clinic. And from the comfort of field boxes, study a group of interesting cases at close range.

I have a feeling the meddles would be chiefly interested in Rollo (take that stuff away) Remsley. Rollo furnishes a most fascinating case. In the first place, he is one of the few men baseball has produced who ever caught a double-header while in the throes of a hangover. He is also the only man I can recall who, after raising what is scientifically termed as hell for many a year, blew the whistle on a fellow who put up with him when he was creating his own little personal hades. I refer to Vitt, whose nights in 1938 were not made any more pleasant by Rollo's pranks.

But to get back to the Indians and the world series. Can you imagine the unhappiness on the bench-of-that-team: How they would blame and yap and criticize Vitt for being the sort of manager who led them into the series and a chance to pick up $5,000 each. How they would abuse him for helping them gain the goal of every major league player. Why, this would outrage them so much they'd demand his resignation on a petition of pure parchment.

The Suds have won 71 of their last 12 contests and soundly trounced Sacramento in seven of eight games last week. Seattle has a five and a half game lead on the field and a nine game edge on San Diego.

Sacramento goes up against the Portland Beavers, San Francisco entertains Los Angeles, and Oakland moves to Hollywood.

HITLER WARNS OF EARLY ATTACK ON BRITISH ISLES

GERMANS CLAIM ENGLISH PLANES ARE SHOT DOWN

By FREDERICK C. OCHSNER
 BERLIN, June 25 (Special)—Adolf Hitler's headquarters today declared the "campaign in France ended, with an incomparable victory of German arms," and Nazis predicted an early offensive against the British Isles.

"Since 1:35 a. m. today a cessation of fighting prevails," the high command said in an official statement.

After six weeks of blitzkrieg offensive, the communique said, the victory of German arms was climaxed yesterday by an advance on the Atlantic coast of France after breaking brief resistance.

French Forts Taken
 The German advance carried to a line between Royon on the Gironde estuary and Angouleme, it said, while on the Rhine front more French fortifications were taken.

The communique added:

"During reconnoitering along the French-Atlantic coast—a British transport of 5,000 tons was bombed. Further reconnaissance flights were made over parts of the North sea. During last night, fighting squadrons flew over central England where airmen and an airplane industry plant were bombed."

"One British airplane appeared over the airport at Stavanger (Norway), but was shot down by fighting planes before it could drop any bombs."

Planes Shot Down
 "British airplanes flew over northern Germany last night but did not damage any military objectives. Our anti-aircraft batteries brought down two British planes off the North sea coast."

The official German news agency said that soon after the "cease fire" order had been flashed to German armies occupying two-thirds of France, Adolf Hitler appointed Gen. Joachim von Stuepnel, former chief quartermaster in the German general staff, to be chairman of a commission to supervise fulfillment of the armistice terms. These terms have not yet been announced either in Germany or in France.

As a result of the German-French armistice agreement, an armistice commission will meet with headquarters at "Wiesbaden," the announcement said.

Commission Faces Task
 "The armistice commission's task will be to regulate the carrying out of the armistice agreement. The French government has been invited to send representatives to the armistice commission."

The fighting halted in battle-scarred France eight days after Marshal Philippe Petain, the French premier, had asked for a peace with honor and nine months and 22 days after France had gone to war with Germany.

The "cease fire" order was announced over the Berlin radio to German-conquered France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria in particular, and all the world in general.

Church bells echoed the tidings as the radio blared out a hymn of thanksgiving, followed by the "Deutschland Uber Alles" and the "Wessell" song and finally the new German fighting song—"We Sail Against England."

PICTURE

"He doesn't look like any picture I ever saw of Lincoln," remarked Mrs. Caroline Atmip, 430 Elm street, as she observed a Joyce "whiskers expert" strolling the streets of Twin Falls yesterday.

And speaking of pictures, Mrs. Atmip has in her collection a photograph of the court house at Mt. Pulaski, Ill., where Abraham Lincoln practiced law when a young man.

Her grandfather, Adolph Weckel, a farmer of the Mt. Pulaski vicinity, and Lincoln were great friends in those days, and that's one of the reasons why she treasures the picture, she said.
