Roosevelt Calls for National Guard Mobilization

Needs Approval Of Congress to Get 50,000 Men

By JOHN A. REICHMANN
WASHINGTON, July 13 (U.P.)—President Roosevelt needed only congressional authority today to mobilize 50,000 national guardsmen as a preliminary step to a compulsory military training program that would put nearly 2,000,000 men under arms by October, 1941.

The approval is expected to be granted soon after congress reconvenes nine days hence.

Plans for the unprecedented mobilization of the national guard were revealed by White House Secretary Stephen T. Early who said four divisions and seven anti-aircraft regiments would be ordered into extended training "as soon as possible."

The length of the training period was not revealed but the war department advocates one year. The guardsmen would receive army base pay—$1 a month for privates. The disruption of family life is avoided by virtue of a war department order recently issued permitting enlisted men with dependents to resign. What provision will be made to return the men to their jobs after their training was not known. Presumably, employers will be asked to hold their jobs open or to guarantee their re-employment.

Present obligations are obligated by the terms of their enlistment to drill one evening a week, to spend two weeks annually in training camps, to serve in any emergency designated as such by the governors of their states, or in any national emergency so designated by the president. They come from every walk of life and the majority are steadily employed.

Early's announcement came after Mr. Roosevelt revealed he was considering proposals to order out the guard in full strength—250,000 men. The decision to call out 50,000 guardsmen—to be drawn from 13 states—came after a conference between Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

Needed "Right Now"
It followed by only a few hours, testimony before the senate military affairs committee by Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, that the entire militia should be mobilized "right now" and that some form of compulsory military training is "immediately essential."

The four divisions which Mr. Roosevelt plans to mobilize are the 44th division of New York and New Jersey; the 30th of North and South Carolina and Tennessee; the 45th of Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona; and the 41st of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

Each division has a normal peacetime strength of 12,000 men, but their strength is said to be below that. Once in service, it was believed, the divisions would be brought to wartime strength of 18,000 men each.

BRITISH BATTLE
BIG ITALY FORCE
CAIRO, July 13 (U.P.)—An official announcement said today heavily outnumbered British troops in British Moyale, on the Kenya side of the frontier with Ethiopia, were holding out against persistent Italian attacks and were inflicting severe losses on the enemy.

(The Italian war communique claimed Italian forces had occupied Moyale and had repulsed British counter-attacks.)

Middle east headquarters here described the British garrison at Moyale as small but said it was holding all positions. Moyale is an important communications center on the Kenya-Ethiopia route.

Gun Fights Feared In Cuba Campaign
HAVANA, Cuba, July 13 (U.P.)—Stringent regulations are in effect here today to prevent bloodshed at the polls in tomorrow's presidential elections.

Clashes between the followers of Col. Fulgencio Batista and those of Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin, rival candidates for the presidency, have been frequent during the protracted campaign.

STOMACH ACHE BLAMED FOR ELEPHANT TEMPER
FORT WORTH, Tex., July 13 (U.P.)—Zoo officials were trying today to determine if the stomach ache had caused Sugar, a two-ton, malnourished elephant, to trample her caretaker, for which she was executed.

DEMOCRATS RUSH TO PUT ENTRIES IN PRIMARY RACE

With O. W. Witham filing for state senator and E. F. Prater for state representative, Twin Falls county Democrats raced against time this afternoon to place candidates in the field for nomination to major offices in the August primary election.

Deadline falls at 5 p. m. today. At noon the Democrats lacked a candidate for state senator, needed one more to fill the slate of three state representatives, and had entered no aspirants either for third district commissioner, for county superintendent of public instruction or county coroner.

Declaration Ready
But Mr. Witham, Twin Falls attorney and former county prosecutor, stepped into the state senate breach and had his declaration of candidacy ready for filing by mid-afternoon. Prater, longtime sheriff of the county, similarly was to file for representative during the afternoon.

The county Republican slate, complete for all offices, was assured another primary contest when Mrs. Alice G. Leslie, Twin Falls, entered the race for G. O. P. nomination as treasurer. Mrs. Hazel E. Leighton had previously filed. Mrs. Leslie was the 1938 Republican nominee who lost by a narrow margin to the incumbent, Mrs. Cora E. Stevens.

Superintendent?
Whether the Democrats would enter a candidate for the county superintendent nomination—or whether they would permit that office to go by default in the November general election to the Republican incumbent, Mrs. Doris Stradley—was in doubt early this afternoon. Except for scattered write-in ballots two years ago, the Bourbons did not oppose Mrs. Stradley.

It was understood that efforts were underway to secure a Democratic candidate for county commissioner from the third district, the east end. At least one filing was believed probable. The same status applied to the county coroner post.

No Battle for Some
As far as the August primary voting goes, many of the candidates on both party tickets in the county will be nominated without opposition, at least on the basis of the aspirant list at 1:30 p. m. today. On the other hand, vigorous contest looms for such offices as prosecutor, on both party tickets; first district commissioner on the G. O. P. slate; treasurer on the Republican ticket, and assessor on the same ticket.

Contests are also assured for the Republican state representative nomination, where four men seek

2ND NON-COLLEGE AIR SCHOOL SET

With the first non-college flight training program just about completed at the Twin Falls municipal airport, plans were underway this afternoon for another similar program which will start with opening of the ground school in the immediate future, it was announced by Milton L. Powell, director of the civilian pilot training program for the Chamber of Commerce.

Powell announced he had received word from Wiley R. Wright, senior private flying specialist, to the effect that the Washington office has confirmed Wright's recommendation for the second non-college phase of the training program. Likewise, Powell was informed that Jack Wise, senior instructor, has been named to carry on during the second course.

Ground School
The new course will consist of a ground school to be open to the general public and a specified number of flight scholarships for this training center, depending upon the number of competitors enrolled. This number of flight scholarships to be awarded locally will be determined as follows:

For 25 to 49 fully qualified competitors, five flight scholarships; for 50 or more fully qualified competitors, 10 flight scholarships. For each flight scholarship secured by the sponsor and paid for by others than the federal government, the CAA will award an additional scholarship over the original quota, provided that the total number of additional scholarships awarded by the CAA shall not exceed 10.

Unless there is a minimum of 25 fully qualified competitors, a training center will not be established, Powell said. It is hoped here that more than 50 persons will take the ground school course in order that 10 flight scholarships will be available to the students receiving the highest total in written examinations and also a physical test.

Must Be 18 or Over
Those qualified to try for the flight scholarships, by attending the ground school, must have attained

GERMANS EXTEND BOMB ATTACK TO SCOTLAND, WALES

By WALLACE CARROLL
LONDON, July 13 (U.P.)—German air raiders, steadily increasing the fury of their attacks, extended their bombings to Scotland and Wales today in addition to continuing their campaign against England in apparent preparation for the blitzkrieg invasion attempt.

After bombing England heavily during the day, the German planes, coming in relays, attacked southeast and southwest Scotland and various areas in Wales, doing considerable damage.

Some of the German planes dropped their entire bomb loads at one time in order to race for home before British fighter planes arrived to challenge them.

Eleven German bombers had been shot down in the last 24 hours and 48 bombers and fighters had been shot down in the last 72 hours.

100 Bombs Dropped
Twenty-four high explosive bombs and more than 100 incendiary bombs were dropped near a northeast England village this morning.

One person was killed and two were wounded in a Welsh town. One German plane dropped three bombs in a municipal housing area in southwest Scotland, wrecking a three-story apartment building and causing numerous casualties.

Reports indicated the Germans had dropped both high explosive and incendiary bombs on southeast and southwest Scotland but had concentrated on incendiary attacks in northeast Scotland.

The German attacks were costly ones, the air ministry said, claiming nine bombers had been shot down yesterday by British fighters and Hurricane fighter planes, that a 10th was shot down by a plane of the coastal command, and the 11th was shot down by anti-aircraft gun fire. In addition numerous German planes had been damaged.

Defense Efficiency High
There seemed growing confidence in the efficiency of Britain's defenses against air raids, army officials expressed if Germany lost so many planes in comparatively minor attacks.

WILLKIE OFFERS 3-POINT PROGRAM

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 13 (U.P.)—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, offered the country today a three-point program of national unity, rehabilitation of American economic life and a vigorous defense program against totalitarianism.

His views were outlined in an address at Denver yesterday before the Colorado state central committee.

"I dedicate myself to three things," Willkie said, "one, a united people without class distinction or class hatred; two, rehabilitation of our national life; three, the building of an adequate defense program."

Earlier, in an address on the state-house steps, Willkie told a crowd estimated at 9,000 that America must have an adequate naval defense "so that no Hitler or any other totalitarian leader may ever strike at this great, free, democratic way of life that we possess here in America."

After the state committee luncheon, Willkie shook hands with an estimated 6,000 persons.

Italian Sources Claim England's Fleet Cut in Two

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
United Press Foreign News Editor
Germany and Italy hammered at British rule of the seas today and Nazi airplanes continued with terrible monotony to blast at harbors, arms factories and communications centers in the British isles.

The spreading Nazi-Fascist offensive developed in three main theaters of war, intended to break British sea supremacy in the Mediterranean, to blockade and starve the British isles and to prepare the way for possible invasion of Britain.

In the Mediterranean, the Italians claimed to have cut the British fleet of seven battleships, two aircraft carriers, ten heavy cruisers and 80 other units into three parts by aerial bombardment and to be pushing them toward Egypt after cutting the inland sea in two below Sicily.

Claim Smashing Win
Fascist spokesmen claimed a smashing triumph over the British Mediterranean fleet, asserting a new bombing attack had scored hits on a battleship and two cruisers, but the British side of the operations was yet to be reported.

In the aerial and U-boat siege of the British isles, the Germans reported officially their naval forces were operating on the high seas, that British shipping was being sunk at a higher rate than at the height of U-boat warfare in the World war and that a number of valuable enemy ships had been taken as prizes to German ports.

Dispatches and broadcasts from London made it obvious that the British were giving greatest attention to the problem of food supply, but the German claims were disputed and there was as yet no definite basis for comparing the increased rate of shipping losses to the worst period of the World war, when more than 852,000 tons was sent to the bottom in one month.

Bomb Vital Ports
In the aerial attacks on the British isles, the German high command again claimed to have efficiently bombed many important arms factories, harbors and airfields, including such vital centers as Portland, Newport and Dundee quays and Billingham and Newcastle factories.

British censorship still concealed names of towns bombed by the Germans but reported continued heavy raids, which the London-air ministry said were matched by British bombing attacks on German military objectives.

The Germans dumped 24 high explosive and 100 incendiary bombs on one village in northeast England this morning. On the other side of the island they killed one person and

RUMANIA ORDERS DEMOBILIZATION

BUCHAREST, July 13 (U.P.)—Demobilization of the Rumanian army, estimated at a war strength of about 1,400,000 men, has begun, the general staff said in a communique today.

It was understood the demobilization immediately would involve 200,000 men and others will be demobilized soon.

It was considered significant the demobilization order followed closely Italy-German-Hungarian conferences last week at Munich where, it was believed, Hungary was told by the axis powers to hold in abeyance her territorial claims on Rumania until a general post-war settlement.

Stork Halts Hearing for Accused Torture Killers

SILOHON, July 13 (Special)—Opening session of the preliminary hearing for four youthful persons, charged with murder in the first degree, was cut short here yesterday afternoon as the stork superseded the laws of man.

Forty-five minutes of the hearing had passed when Lincoln County Prosecutor C. C. Shaw was forced to ask for a halt. He had just received word that he was about to become a father. With permission of the court given, Shaw left for the Gooding hospital at once and the hearing was continued until 2 p. m. today. Presiding is Probate Judge Howard E. Adkins. "The blessed event," a boy, arrived at 3:30 p. m.

The four charged with murder are Joseph, 20, and George Santer, 16; Mrs. Flossie Phillips, 16, their sister, and her husband, Chester Phillips, 22. It is alleged that they forced Charles Sanders, 48, Yale, (a farmer into the turtle back of a car at Burley, drove him into the desert a short distance inside the Lincoln county line, tied him with rope and then left him to die. At the time the body was examined a physician estimated that the man lived three to four days before death ended his suffering. The murdered man was the father of three of the defendants and father-in-law of Phillips. The prosecution claims that the four defendants took the man into the desert the night of June 21. The body was found by officers of Cassia and Minidoka counties on June 29 after they had been led to the spot by Phillips.

Only witness to take the stand at yesterday's brief start of the hearing was Deputy Sheriff George Bray, Cassia county officer who was instrumental in bringing the strange case to light.

Bray testified that work on the case started when Mrs. Mabel E. (Continued on Page 2, Column 2)

CLUE

NEW YORK, July 13 (U.P.)—A package—probably a bomb—found last night on the steps of the Jewish community center at Union City, N. J., may provide an important clue to the Independence day bombing at the World's fair, police said today.

Union City Police Chief Henry Jenkins, who summoned expert aid from New York when the object was discovered, hinted the package provided a valuable clue to the World's fair bombing, which killed two detectives and wounded five others on July 4.

GERMANS OPERATE PLANES, SUBMARINES FROM NEW BASES

NORWAY, DUTCH TERRITORY USED IN ISLE ATTACKS

BY FREDERICK C. OCHSNER
BERLIN, July 13 (AP)—Newspapers said today German planes and submarines, operating from new bases on the Norwegian, Flanders and French coasts, now were sinking British ships at a greater rate than ever attained in the World War.

The high command said German warships have been "operating on the high seas for some time" and have brought "several merchantships with valuable cargoes into German ports at prices."

German planes and submarines continued their attacks on enemy shipping and sank one patrol vessel, a cargo ship of 2,000 tons and damaged five other steamships, while other planes made "successful" bombing attacks on airfields, harbors and arms factories in England and Scotland, the communique said.

The high command did not elaborate on the reported operations of German warships on the high seas—reminiscent of the Nazi pocket-battleship raids in the Atlantic early in the war.

The high command said one German U-boat returned to port after sinking 24,675 tons of British shipping and that other vessels were sunk by aerial attack yesterday, especially in the English channel.

Five German planes are missing and British air losses were placed at 13 planes on Friday, but the big emphasis here was on British shipping losses.

The high command said British bombers attacking German objectives had "destroyed several houses and killed several civilians in north Germany last night."

It reported five planes destroyed in aerial bombing of St. Merryn airport and said oil tanks were bombed at Exeter, quays and harbor works attacked at Portland, Newport and Dundee and arms factories blasted at Billingham and Newcastle.

Sapping Strength
(In April, 1917, German submarines sank 430 ships totalling 852,000 tons, including 198 British ships totalling 522,000 tons. This was the World War's most disastrous month for British shipping.)

Commenting on the high command report that more than 4,000,000 tons of British shipping had been sunk since the war started, the newspapers said these losses were sapping Britain's strength and reducing her powers of resistance on the eve of the "final" offensive.

According to newspaper calculations, British ship losses totaled 2,183,000 tons on April 30. In May, while Germany's submarines and air fleets were diverted to the Norwegian campaign, the losses dropped to 134,000 tons. In June the losses were 1,000 tons, submarines alone were said to have sunk 609,000 tons. Mines reported accounted for another 200,000 tons. Torpedo boats joined the campaign in mid-May and the total sinkings credited to the German naval forces was 3,283,000 tons. Bombers were credited with sinking 235 ships totaling 1,049,000 tons, a large number of them during the allied evacuation of Dunkirk.

STORK HOLDS UP MURDER HEARING

Nickerson, Burley, came to the sheriff's office in that community on June 27 to report that the elder Sanders was missing. Sanders had been staying briefly at the Burley home of the woman, who is a widow.

Suspicion, Bray said, pointed at the man's children. The officers (including Holl Church, Burley, state policeman) talked to George Sanders and his conversation led them to believe that something was wrong. George was arrested and Chester Phillips was picked up. He is alleged to have related incidents of the murder and then led officers to the point in the desert where the body was found.

Prosecutor Shaw asked Bray if George had told the whereabouts of the body. Bray answered that he had and that he had also said that the four of them had driven Sanders into the desert, had tied him up and then had left him.

Forced From House
Chester, the officer related, also stated at the time that Sanders was found on the bed in the Burley home where he was staying. He was forced out of the house, with Joe Sanders aiding, and placed in the turtle back of the car.

Asked who he was told placed the man in the car, Bray answered: "Chester Phillips told me that he drove the car... that Joe Sanders sat on the back to keep the top down and that Mrs. Phillips and Chester Sanders were in the car with him in the driver's seat."

Bray continued by saying that Phillips told him that they drove the men into the Kimama desert. At about this point in the questioning Attorney Paul S. Haddock, for the defense, asked that other witnesses be excluded from the courtroom. The court granted the request.

Then Comes Note
Shaw had time to ask Bray only a few more questions and then a note was handed him. It told him that the arrival of his child was near. He handed the note to Attorney Haddock who laughingly offered his "greatest sympathy to the prosecuting attorney."

During the progress of the hearing, Gladys Phillips' mother, overcome with grief, was forced to leave the courtroom.

After arrival of the note to Shaw, Judge Adkins granted the extension of time and the hearing ended, just 45 minutes after it had started.

GERMANS EXTEND BOMBING ATTACK

Lacks she might find it difficult to keep replacing crews in a big scale action.
British planes continued their daily attacks on German bases in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. Barge concentrations, sea-planes and harbor works were damaged in a raid on Boulogne, France; airbases were bombed in Holland and munition works, blast furnaces and other military objectives were bombed in Germany.

Attack Nazi Bases
Detailing the most recent raids on German bases, the air ministry said that heavy bombers attacked Waalhaven airbase, Holland, for two hours, causing many fires; blasted runways and damaged buildings at Schiphol airport, Holland; dropped more than 100 bombs, high explosive and incendiary, on Texel island air base, Holland, and bombed the Heerensande, Holland, airbase.

Using parachute flares, British bombers attacked munition works at Ludwigschafen and Cologne, Germany; blast furnaces at Sieburg and a factory at Mutterstadt. Explosions and a big fire were caused at Mutterstadt, the air ministry said. Pilots who attacked factories at Strasbourg, France, reported that they caused explosions and several fierce fires, the flames from one of which could be seen 60 miles away.

F. B. I. WILL TAKE CAR THEFT TRIO

Federal G-men will take custody of three men—and possibly a fourth—as result of asserted theft of an auto at Elko, Nev., Sheriff L. W. Hawkins said today.

The three, with a companion who said he was a hitchhiker, were arrested by deputy sheriffs after a hectic 100-mile-per-hour auto chase Thursday night near Twin Falls. Since the stolen car crossed the Nevada-Idaho border, the regional F. B. I. office at Butte indicated the men would be prosecuted under the federal Dyer act.

The three are Charles Brooks, 27, Boise; Ralph Strupp, 32, Dorchester, Ia.; Millard F. Mann, 28, St. Louis, Mo. The hitchhiker, whose case will be decided by the G-men, is Patrick Doyle, 24, New York City. Officers here considered it probable that Doyle might be held as material witness.

Husband Held in Parole Violation

Arrested at Jerome on claim that he has violated parole granted to him in Twin Falls last Jan. 19, Martin Cameron, 23, Jerome, was in county jail here this afternoon.

Taken into custody by Lee E. Johnson, sheriff at Jerome, and Claude Wiley, Twin Falls county deputy, Cameron will face hearing in district court. The parole violation assertedly came in non-support of his wife and infant child.

Cameron was granted parole, with suspension of sentence for a year, by Judge J. W. Porter after pleading guilty to forgery charge. He was in county jail less than a month ago on suspicion of violating terms of the parole but was released June 20.

WHISTLES

Twin Falls—and the local traffic whistles—today had "made" the latest issue of the magazine Better Homes and Gardens.

Mention of the city and the traffic whistles was made in the magazine's column, "The Diary of a Plain Dirt Gardener," by Harry R. O'Brien. His column at the present time concerns points visited last year during an extensive tour. On July 30, 1939 he spent the night in Twin Falls and of that visit he writes:

"Tonight at Twin Falls every-time the traffic light changed I would hear a policeman blow his traffic whistle. I looked but could see no policeman. Finally I figured out that the whistle was in the traffic light. Light changes—whistle blows. Just another Idaho peculiarity."

"SIT-DOWN" LOOMS IF ROOSEVELT IS RENOMINATED

POLITICIANS MAY DECIDE TO STAY OUT OF '40 RACE

By ELYE C. WILSON

CHICAGO, July 13 (U.P.)—Conservative and anti-third term Democrats today had the alternative of a sit-down strike or a bolt against the expected renomination of President Roosevelt by the party's national convention convening here Monday.

The sit-down seemed the likely course for some of these for there could be no doubt the convention would renominate the President, if he will permit it. In the absence of any word at all from the White House, but with two of the President's closest followers already here, the delegates pouring into this convention city assumed he would.

The hotels were filling and every train brought in more of the Democratic leadership and rank and file. Tammany hall's boss, Christopher D. Sullivan, arrived last night, announcing Tammany's delegation was solid for the third term. At noon Monday, the convention convenes, but not until Thursday, when the nominating speeches will be in order. Mr. Roosevelt has to decide whether to declare himself before then, or only after James A. Farley, and perhaps Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins and Sen. James F. Byrnes, S. C.—knew.

F. D. R. Emisaries

Hopkins and Byrnes came here in advance of the convention, it was said, as emissaries of the President. The draft-Roosevelt forces were being organized under their leadership. Hopkins is said by highly placed Democrats to be the convention pipe-line to the White House and Byrnes is said to be the floor manager for the third term.

Farley, who is also postmaster general, has decided not to bolt if Mr. Roosevelt is renominated, though he opposes the third term. There is a scattering of other party leaders here and in Washington as much opposed as he—Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Va., Sen. Carter Glass, Va., Sen. William D. Smith, S. C. But it is not likely they will bolt or any anti-third term party will emerge from a rump convention. Some of them may adopt the sit-down technique which would be to go home and say nothing until election day.

Two Others Seek Nomination

Regardless of Mr. Roosevelt's decision, two names in addition to his own will be put in nomination—those of Farley and of Vice-President John Nance Garner, whose supporters hope to get 100 of the 1,024 votes on the first and only ballot. If Mr. Roosevelt does not declare himself definitely before nominating day, Sen. Burton K. Wheeler will permit his name to be offered.

By instructions definite or implied, more than 700 delegates already are lined up for Mr. Roosevelt's renomination and the question—assuming he will take the job—merely is how it shall be brought about and whether it can be made unanimous. The consensus here is it will not be possible to obtain a unanimous renomination, but the convention will vote by a tremendous plurality.

French Fears Dispute Italy's Report of "Bottling" British

By J. W. T. MASON

United Press War Expert

Italian claims that the British Mediterranean fleet has been "bottled up" are contradicted by a French announcement that Italy is alarmed over the possibility of bombardment by British warships.

The Italian navy said air attacks are forcing the British to concentrate their warships at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, but the great French naval base of Toulon is near the western end. Italian naval intelligence thus seems to lack information possessed by the French.

Most of the French fleet that is beyond British control is concentrated at Toulon. One of the major problems of the British commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean is to prevent any surprise naval sortie from Toulon which the Germans might direct. Constant watch over Toulon has to be maintained which may hamper British concentration of effort in the Mediterranean against the Italians.

Good Naval Strategy

It would be good naval strategy, therefore, if the British could damage the French fleet at Toulon so effectively as to put it out of action for an indefinite period. An attack against a land base so strongly fortified as Toulon, however, would be difficult. Long range bombardment and an air offensive would seem to be the only method open to the British, who cannot afford to take chances with their own warships.

The fact the French are disquieted over a possible attack indicates some British plan to remove the Toulon danger is being made.

Meanwhile, Italian warships are holding to cautious tactics, placing more trust in the security of their harbors than in the effectiveness of their gunfire. It is natural for the Italians to be reluctant to challenge British sea power in the Mediterranean to open combat. Italian naval strategy is based on speed more than on offensive combat.

Faster Than British

Italian warships are faster than the British by a maximum of two knots per hour. To gain this superiority, armament has had to be sacrificed. The British ships can give and take more punishment than the Italian, but they cannot get away as quickly when in distress. The Italians can maneuver more rapidly in a sea fight. If an Italian fleet of superior tonnage were to encounter a lighter British squadron, the Italians would have a fair chance of inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, but the British have shown no disposition to fall into such a trap.

Trustworthy details of Italian air attacks on British warships are lacking. Italian claims a British "naval formation" was attacked from the air and then divided into three groups and moved off at different speeds can be accepted as evidence that air power has not yet caught up with naval defense. To divide a squadron and cause the units to develop different speeds is the naval answer to a superior air attack by dissipating the target.

TIME CONFUSED IN TWIN TOWNS

CHAMPAIGN-URBANA, Ill. (U.P.)

—Summer students at the University of Illinois located here are being "time-timed" since these rival twin cities started their "battles" of sixty minutes' which appears due to continue through the summer months.

The trouble all began when Champaign decided to go on daylight saving time for the summer. Urbana, the adjoining city, refused to follow suit and residents found that it took a full hour to cross Wright street to enter Champaign.

Residents of Champaign, however, found that they made the trip from their town to Urbana in less than nothing flat—in fact, they gained an hour.

Hardest hit of all residents of both towns by the dual time system were U. of I. summer students living in Urbana. Although situated in that town, the university elected to go on daylight saving time with Champaign.

The shift makes it necessary for those living off the campus in Urbana to arise at 7 A. M. Urbana time to make 9 A. M. Champaign time classes. Students living on campus have little difficulty, however, unless they attend some affair in Urbana which starts on that town's time.

Banks in the two towns have followed their respective communities on the time schedules. Members of one Urbana church will attend services an hour earlier than usual on Sundays, but others are holding elections to determine whether fast or slow time shall be used for meetings.

The three Urbana hospitals, Carl, Mercy and County, advanced their clocks, along with Burnham City hospital, for the convenience of Champaign physicians who attend patients in Urbana.

Considerable difficulty is being encountered by families in which one member works in one town and another in the other town. In some cases families are operating on two schedules, at least for breakfast, to aid housewives in managing their households.

PEACE—SHE'S WONDERFUL BY ISABEL WAITT

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Bertrand wined Rhoda to dinner. Her wading-dress was lovely. The train stops abruptly in the desert. Ogdan leaves. Peace is left behind and she is alone. Denny watches, helping her as they disappear in the distance.

CHAPTER X

DENNY struggled to the rail to leap from the speeding train, but other passengers held him back.

"Don't be a fool! They'll be all right. You'd be killed!"

"Caleb—Mr. Ogdan will pick them up in his car!" called Mrs. King, from the rear. "Unless, of course, a coyote or a rattlesnake—"

"They'll be all right," the conductor reiterated. "Shack right near the track. See? Your runaway must have been in it or we'd have seen her. Darned luck the young lady didn't hurt herself, jumping off my train!" Indignation emanated from him.

Carole, Denny realized, had risked her life. A fine person he was to be entrusted with the care of a child.

"I can't stand it!" Rhoda blazed. "This is the end, Wayne Dennis. 'Shut up, will you?' Denny grabbed the conductor's arm.

"When do we stop? Can I get a car or—it'll be getting dark—a plane? Where are we, anyway? In Arizona?"

"There are wolves after dark!" a woman piped up. "And gila monsters. Oh, I'm going to faint!"

The conductor drew Denny away from the pack. Denny could get off at the first station. He could get a car, or possibly, wire Winslow force plane. Sure, there'd be time before dark. Daylight lasted in Arizona. More than likely this Mr. Ogdan would have seen the whole business, and would pick up Carole and Peace and bring them to the very same station, before Denny had made his arrangements. Nothing to worry about, but that train couldn't be delayed another minute. He was sorry. They were about a hundred miles from Winslow.

Mrs. King stood at Denny's elbow, wiping her eyes. "I wish I'd never given Caleb $500 for that option on his old oil well."

"Five hundred dollars, madam? So that's it!" The conductor sighed as if the limited meant the weight of the world. "Better let Mr. Dennis telegraph your bank to stop payment."

"But—but I gave him cash."

"We'll do something after I find Peace," Denny told her.

And this was the woman who'd

Does Gold Rust?

One of the properties of gold is that it does not rust. So the chemist will tell you. But there may be another side to that. If to rust is to deteriorate, to waste away, to disintegrate, perhaps even gold will rust.

The United States now has $20,000,000,000 worth of gold. That is between 70 and 80 per cent of all the gold in the world. The last billion has been accumulated since mid-May.

As this hoard accumulates, so interest mounts as to what to do with it. Monetary experts disagree.

Sad Lesson to Ladies

This dark and dreary dreaming This nightmare diabolic, Made Mary chew her nails, alas, She died of painter's colic!

The Student Prince

put the police on his trail. And she was going to watch out for Carole. 'Sucker! In his misery Denny almost pitted her.

In a few minutes the train slowed down at a cluster of 'dobe' shacks. Could that be a station? And a battered roadster beside it. "Good luck!" called several passengers.

"Pick you up en route, if you get a plane," the conductor said. "If we don't, wait for me in Los Angeles," Denny instructed Rhoda. "Cocacino Grove!" It was the only place he could think of at the moment, since their previous plans had been to go on at once to La Jolla. Rhoda would have to look out for herself. His anxiety was so great he forgot to kiss her goodby.

A wan, young station agent greeted him as he hopped off. "Jumpin' bullfrogs—a passenger!" Denny had explained the predecessor before the train was under way. "Can I take your car?"

"Sure, buddy. Only poor Liz has a flat. Patch her up in a jiffy."

"What would you do," Denny put it up to him, "if you had two girls lost in the desert and one on the limited?"

The agent scratched his rumped head. "Me? I'd telegraph for a plane. Car couldn't catch the train, even without a flat. Then I'd pick up the lost girls and get 'em safely aboard the train at first possible station, and head for Mexico by my lonesome."

Denny heard the click of the instrument, while he watched a group of barefoot, half-naked Mexican children playing in the sand.

The station agent accepted a cigarette. "Be here before you can say Jack Robinson. Hope your folks stick to the tracks and don't try to wander off. Not much twilight here in Arizona. Old sun smears itself all over the sky and plops out of sight. Lots of time before dark, though."

The dark! Denny smothered a rising frown.

IT seemed years before he heard the droning of the plane. Already the sun had splashed sunset gold across the sky. The light still held, and the afterglow would follow briefly. A little crowd gathered from nowhere to watch the plane land.

"Goodby, buddy!" The agent waved away Denny's bill. "Good luck, and when you find 'em, take my advice and beat it to Mexico. Three girls—no harem for me." Denny climbed into the plane. "Follow the track east. There's

Some say we are rapidly approaching the day when this gold will be useless as money. If one country has it all, or practically all, it seems clear that others must find a means of conducting trade without it. Already German papers like the Deutsche Bergwerkszeitung are saying, "The gold standard has for us only historical interest."

That is not braggadocio. Already the goldless German mark is the standard currency of the whole continent of Europe. Because it is not traded in international dealings, one may say that the mark is practically worthless. But if the bayonet can make it good throughout all Europe (and it has) then it is not worthless. And if barter dealing and economic pressure can make it good in other farther-away places, then it is not worthless there, either.

It is becoming increasingly clear to more and more people that gold is useless unless it is used. So the Republican platform has suggested its distribution, at home and abroad. The Democratic declaration is, of course, not yet available.

WE HOPE SHE HAS INSIDE INFORMATION!

Dear Fella:

Dinner-table conversations can be (and sometimes are) very enlightening.

Just to give you an idea of what I'm driving at, here's an example: Punkin' strongly stated at the table the other night that mosquitoes would soon be a thing of the past. After July 15 there will be no more of the buzzing pests to bother us this year, she said. The zero hour for the mass disappearance is probably noon.

In addition to that, you might be interested to know that horse flies will feed freely on specimens of homo sapiens in south central Idaho from July 15 to Aug. 15, and then things will just be hunky-dory until next spring.

Wonderful, ain't it?

'COUNTRY SQUIRE' ROOSEVELT GETS HARSH APPRAISAL

As the presidential election approaches, it is an opportune time to appraise seven years of the New Deal. John T. Flynn, economic writer, considers it a failure and falsely sold to the people as liberal. In "Country Squire in the White House" (Doubleday, Doran: $1) he tells why, and explains those characteristics of the President which lead him to conclude that the New Deal has come out as it has "because Franklin D. Roosevelt is that way." Flynn sees danger of war in a continued Roosevelt administration. He writes:

An election approaches. Americans are thinking of the 11 million people still unemployed, of the farm problem unsolved, of the utter paralysis of private investment, of the mounting public debt, of the scandals in Washington and local political machines and a score of other counts in the indictments of Roosevelt's political foes. And the war, the menace to our security, the call to national defense—all this will take the minds of our people off the failure to solve our own problems and will furnish a new excuse to spend another 10 or 15 billion dollars to return his party to power.

What is more serious than all this, of course, is that the President has been "meddling in" the European situation for two years and is increasing his meddling. While proclaiming himself the true neutral, he has been lurching the country more and more toward active support of the two great empires. He is now the recognized leader of the party. There is no the slightest doubt that the only thing that now prevents his active entry on the side of the Allies is his knowledge that he cannot take the American people in yet. He has said privately that he does not want to send men, in fact, never do it. If he went in, it would be merely with naval and air forces and with munitions and supplies. This, of course, is another example of the President's method of half-way thinking. Imagine this country going to war and then refusing to supply men to do the fighting!

But if the United States is to compete in international trade after Europe's war is over, it is clear that there must be countries whose money bears a recognizable relationship to our own, so that exchange is possible.

Every passing month points more clearly to the idea of distributing part of this gold to countries whose trade and friendship is sought, and whose money can thus be put in relation with our own. We do not want to set up a monetary bloc with the bayonet. But we must not much longer refuse to use that other more peaceful weapon, our own surplus gold stock. We should put it to work while there is still strength in it, before that rustless metal has rusted away in a manner that not the chemist but the economist may understand.

ANENT THE BLITZKRIEG OF THE BALLYHOO BALLET

Pot Shots suspects that a person of distinctly Ethiopian epidermal tendencies is hiding in the woodpile.

In short, we suspect something is distinctly amiss in the state of Denmark. More specifically, in the state of Idaho. Even more specifically, among a certain portion of the Republican bigwigs in the state of Idaho.

We base our opinion on the fact that somebody is pouring the syrup too doggone thick on the Sen. John Thomas pancake. If you'll pardon a little mixing of metaphors or what have you, we opine that somebody is over-playing the hand. Latest follow-up in a surprising stream of photo-filled press statements is a prize snapped at Washington, D. C., but coming strangely enough from one Glenn Balch at Boise. Wendell Willkie is at one side of the group in the photo; Senator Thomas is at the other side. The moral (Mr. Balch et al hope) is plain.

Along with a lot of our constituents, we'd get pretty huffy if we found somebody is trying to stuff something down our throats. You don't have to stuff a good man down. He should be able to win with what he packs on the ball. And we haven't any reason to suppose Thomas isn't a good man.

So will the Blitzkrieg of the Ballyhoo Ballet please pipe down before the People begin poking around the woodpile?

37 Lions Enjoy Couples "Chickaree"

With 37 couples attending, members and guests of the Lions club of Twin Falls and Jerome last night participated in a chickaree at the Kiwanis room at Shoshone falls.

Accordian numbers played by Robin DeVries and also an impromptu program featuring stunts by several of the members and guests was presented. Cluckin' and "all the trimmings" featured the dinner.

After the dinner was completed, H. G. Hayes, Twin Falls, was presented with a pair president's pin, the presentation being made by Ronald Graves, also of Twin Falls, who is district governor.

Roads for War

The United States has always been proud of its road systems. No other country of anything like the same size has such a complete system of hard-surfaced roads.

The road system was built as the country was built, for peace. It was built to get the farmers out of the mud, to enable products to move to market, people to travel from place to place readily for pleasure or profit.

Now it seems that some of our roads, built for peace, are not suitable for war. In the East Texas army maneuvers many secondary roads broke down under the heavy pounding of motorized equipment.

Here again, we shall have to keep one eye on road design in future with a view to military use. German road-building, and railroad-building for all that, has been for years strategic first, then civilian. We need not go that far, but since the world is what it is today, we ought to build no more important roads without due regard for their military value.

PUZZLE GAME FOR HARRIED AUTOISTS

Pot Shots would like to know whether the Powers that Be think they're playing some kind of a game with motorists entering Twin Falls on Blue Lakes boulevard north.

Driving into the city from the direction of the rim bridge, the puzzled autoist runs into the following conflict at the Washington school corner:

(1) A blinker light saying "slow."

(2) A street button commanding "stop."

Both, incidentally, on the same corner.

If it's just a game, we suppose it's not without interest. For instance, it would undoubtedly be highly entertaining if one driver saw the street button and stopped, and the next light behind him, seeing only the slow admonition, banged into him.

Good, clean fun for everybody.

HISTORY Of Twin Falls City & County

As Gleaned from Files of The Times

15 YEARS AGO

JULY 13, 1925

The financial status of independent school district No. 1 is in splendid condition, according to the annual financial report submitted to the board of education last evening. The tuition report shows a decrease per capita in the cost of each pupil for the past year.

Ed Vance has contracted at American Falls for the first carload of potatoes which will be shipped from Twin Falls this year.

H. A. McGarrick vice-president of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company, returned today after a business trip to points east.

37 YEARS AGO

JULY 13, 1913

There will be a meeting of the potato growers of Twin Falls county in Twin Falls Saturday at three o'clock at the Odd Fellows hall. The meeting has been called to talk over the advisability of affiliating with the Fruit Growers association. Those who are interested in this question are cordially invited to be present and talk the matter over.

The Idaho commission to the Panama Pacific International exposition desires to use an Idaho descriptive poem in their literature. Let us have your very best effort and the Times will publish it.

Arrangements for the installation of the Rev. Dr. John F. Shepherd as pastor of the First Presbyterian church are completed.

Visiting Canada

In one way it is unfortunate that the United States felt called upon this year to require suddenly that all visiting Canadians must have passports.

This led many people to the natural conclusion that the thing worked both ways, and that passports were required of Americans visiting Canada.

That isn't true. Canada badly needs American tourists this summer because the dollars they spend enable Canada to use those dollars to buy badly needed supplies in the United States. So Canada did not apply the same restrictions against Americans that the Americans had just applied to her. Travel into Canada is no more restricted this year than it ever was.

In Canada it is generally believed that rumors of difficulty in traveling in Canada are deliberately spread by "fifth columnists" bent on discouraging this travel and thus handicapping Canada. Whether that is true or not, Americans ought generally to understand that Canada has left the door wide open this summer, war or no war, with "Welcome" written broadly on the mat.

SCHOOL IN BURLEY To Open Sept. 3

BURLEY, July 13 (Special) — Tuesday, Sept. 3, has been named as opening day of school by Burley school board at its meeting this week, according to word from Supt. George E. Denman's office.

Board approved a plan for transporting the fifth and sixth grade pupils from Overland to Miller school this fall to relieve the congested condition at the Overland school.

Hollis Grange, music director for the high school, explained the organization of his department. He told of summer band classes he is conducting, and said that almost 100 beginners are taking music besides those in regular band work.

The board approved the plan for heating and ventilating the high school, manual arts building, and also authorized for bids to furnish gas for the transportation department next year. Bids were also authorized for the audit as of June 30.

Resignation of Miss Carmen Hardin, Miller school teacher, was accepted as she plans to continue her studies at college. Miss Elva Girardell, Rupert, Albion Normal graduate with two years teaching at Buhl, was named for Miss Hardin's place.

SHOSHONE

Shoshone Rod and Gun club members helped state game department officials plant 600 quail in Lincoln county Wednesday.

Miss Elizabeth Coffin, who has spent the past two weeks at her home here, returned to Salt Lake City Wednesday to continue her nurse's training.

One hundred COC boys arrived in Shoshone Wednesday en route to camp at Ketchum. About 125 boys for the Wood river camp are not expected until July 20.

Miss Eula Calhoun, Wendell, was in Shoshone this week to attend the funeral of her uncle, John W. Jones. She also visited at the Bert Calhoun home.

Dr. J. E. Potter suffered a broken hand Tuesday as a result of an accident while trying to get his car out of a sand pile. Dr. H. G. Batigh is in charge at the dentist's office.

Dr. F. H. Howard gave a talk on tuberculosis at Wednesday's Rotary luncheon. Old visitors were B. Z. Thayer, Italey; Olet Mink and Fred Oralg, Gooding, and B. W. Powell, Shoshone.

At a recent meeting held at the Johnson building Wednesday financial arrangements were made for the annual Scout camp to be held this year at Daughters' park above Fairfield. About 80 boys from Shoshone and Dietrich expect to leave Monday morning and camp until July 22. Scouts from Jerome and Gooding district will also attend the camp. Dale Burkhalter, Jerome, will be camp director; Bill Miller, Jerome, camp cook. E. O. Hahn, Shoshone, will be with the Scouts until Thursday. Sam Johnson, Scoumatt, and J. J. Locke expect to be with them the remainder of the time.

CONCURS IN REBUKE FOR HEADLINE WRITER

Editor, Times:

I read the article in the Times under Forum by Albert E. Parrett, Rupert. I concur with him to every word. I wondered how you justified the two opinions with the text of the German note which I read three times. The enclosed review is a little different than what you get over the wires.

Fifty years ago, there was seldom a German name of a man or city spelled correctly in the newspapers. I have not found a single German name misspelled in the Times.

Respectfully,
J. G. H. ERDMANN
Jerome, July 11.

(Editor's note: The publication mentioned by Mr. Erdmann in his Public Forum letter is "Facts in Review," issued by the German library of information, 17 Battery place, New York City. It includes the authorized translation of Hitler's press interview on the day of Paris fell. The interview disavows any German interests in North or South America, and asserts that Germany has no connection with fifth column activities).

NEW GAIN MADE BY CHINCHILLAS
BUCYRUS, O. (UP)—A Bucyrus "ranch" devoted solely to the raising of South American chinchillas, soon may bring national recognition to Ohio as a productive center for the rare and extremely expensive animals.

Boyd Sawyer, owner of the ranch, says the tiny fur-bearing chinchillas, though natives of the high, cold Andes, can adapt themselves with little difficulty to this state's climate.

"They suffer during hot weather," he explains, "because they have no sweat glands. For this reason Ohio's climate, which has hot spells only of short duration, is almost ideal."

Sawyer began his ranch three years ago with the purchase of two pairs of the animals at $3,200 a pair. Their desirability for pelting had made them rare—and high priced. A single coat of their skins, he says, today would cost about $35,000.

Two Now 37
The two pairs now have grown to a total of 37, with 23 males and 14 females, with more on the way at the rate of a litter a week for the next six weeks. Each litter has one to four "babies" weighing an ounce each.

The health of the animals naturally is a matter of constant concern to their owner. Sawyer's barn has complete air-conditioning units in each of the pens in which the 20-ounce animals live. The Ohio climate, according to Sawyer, accounts for the fact that his ranch has the lowest mortality rate of any of the 30 in the country.

No Pelting Yet
The Bucyrus chinchillas—like the other 4,000 now in existence in America—are raised under the direction of the National Chinchilla Breeders' Association of Salt Lake City, Utah. There will be no pelting at any of the ranches until 1950 because until that time the breed will not be numerous enough to prevent extinction.

The American chinchilla industry started in 1923 when the late L. F. Chapman of California returned with 11 of the then nearly extinct animals from the mountains of Peru and Chile.

Although from 120 to 150 of their rare skins are needed to make one coat, and the cost is correspondingly high, there is much demand for chinchilla fur because it is the softest known to man. Fifty to 75 hairs grow from each cell instead of the usual one.

COWBOYS DRUB OGDEN BY SCORE OF 14 TO 4

MRS. PRILUCIK LOSES IN FINALS OF WOMEN'S GOLF MEET

Errors and Walks Bring Defeat to Lefty Porterfield

With two straight, convincing victories already under their belts, the Cowboys of Twin Falls will gun for their third and fourth wins over the week-end—against the Ogdon Reds. Last night Manager Ray Jacobs' club pounded out a 14-4 victory over the Reds in the first of the three game series—a tilt largely donated to the local club by walks and by six errors.

For tonight's engagement, scheduled to start at 8 p. m., Art Carpenter, late of Ogdon, will take the mound for the home town boys to see how he stacked up in the trade that sent him here with Pete Hughes in exchange for Tommy Canavan and Dick Wake.

Clayton Lambert, with a record of five won and eight lost to date, will do the hurling chores for Manager Bill McConery. Last night the Reds started a south Idaho youngster—Lefty Lee Porterfield, formerly of Tulle and Gooding. The southpaw was wild during the early innings and got the poorest kind of support and as a result the Cowboys went to town on his offerings.

Hayes Nicked for 10 Hits
Meanwhile Damon Hayes was pitching creditable ball for the Cowboys, being nicked for 10 hits during the evening—four of which came in a big seventh inning which saw the visitors push three runs across the plate. Hayes started the game by whiffing Gordon Duff on three straight pitches.

In the Twin Falls half of the first, Al March grounded out and Ernie Bishop drew a walk, but was thrown out attempting to steal.

Reynolds Safe on Error
Verne Reynolds was safe on an error that should have retired the side and Pete Hughes drew a walk—as did Ernie Endress to fill the bases. Then Bill Randall hit one down to second base and it slid through Sinner's hands for an error as two runs crossed the plate. Ken Holley drew the fourth walk of the inning and then Hal O'Bannon, making his first appearance in a Cowboy uniform, came through with the first hit of the inning to score two more counts. Hayes filed out to end the frame after four runs had scored on one hit.

The Cowboys added three more in the second. March filed out to start things off, but Bishop beat out an infield hit and Reynolds pounded a high one off the home plate and was standing on first when the ball got there for another scratch.

Then Hughes drew his second walk to fill the bases and Endress hit another ball to second base—and it rolled into the outfield as two runs scored. Then Randall hit a long ball to right field and Hughes scored from third. That was three more counts—on two hits.

Five runs came across home plate as the Cowboys did just about everything in the fourth frame except steal the park.

Hughes led off with a screaming single down the first base way, but Ernie Endress was safe on an error. He was forced at second, however, on Randall's fielder's choice. Ken Holley hit a single to score Hughes and then Randall stole third. O'Bannon singled him home and went to second on the catcher's error and Holley scored. Hayes was safe on another error as March filed out.

Ernie Bishop got a three-drive single to right field and March went to third. Then, while Ernie was trapped off first, Al stole home. After counting things up at the end of the fourth frame, it was found that Twin Falls had scored 12 runs on six walks, six errors and six hits—two of the latter being of the extremely scratch variety.

The only inning in which the Cowboys really pounded Porterfield's offerings came in the eighth, when Reynolds beat out a drag bunt to first. Hughes filed out to short center, but Endress lined out a single. Randall filed out to right and then Holley came up with his second safe blow of the game and O'Bannon got his third—all clean hits, scoring two runs.

Steel Five Bases
The Twin Falls club ran wild on the bases, pliffing five sacks, including in their work a double steal in the first inning—starring Randall and Endress.

There was only one error recorded in the Cowboy lineup—made by Pete Hughes on a ground ball after a single to right field. Meanwhile, the Wranglers came up with a pair of double plays—one in the second and one in the ninth innings.

Despite his defeat, young Porterfield drew a big hand from the crowd throughout the game. South side fans and northsiders alike roared when the southpaw trapped out a beautiful single to score two Ogdon runners.

Kimberly Tips Filer Team

FILER, July 13 (Special)—The slugging Kimberly Junior Pioneer League team yesterday edged out in 8-6 victory over the Filer entry in the only game played in the league.

Burley was scheduled to play at Jerome, but failed to show, while Twin Falls was idle. Leading hitters for the winners were Watkins and Favage, each with a triple and a double, and two hits. Dieloope topped the losers with two hits, including a double. The Kimberly team scored two runs in the first frame and then lucked the game away in the fifth

Adams Boosts Average to Lead Hitters

Robert Adams, Ogdon second baseman, added 16 points to his average during the past week, and pulled away from his nearest rival for the Pioneer league individual batting championship with a neat average of .377. Adams made 13 hits in 26 official trips to the plate in the 12 games in which he appeared since the last averages were released by the Howe News bureau of Chicago.

Dale Laybourne, shortstop and teammate of Adams, gained four points in a week and is still in second place with a mark of .361. Laybourne, who was the first hitter to reach the century mark in hits, tops the league with a total of 105 to his credit.

Walter Lowe, Boise first baseman, and Earl Owen, Salt Lake City outfielder, switched places during the week, the former adding six points to his mark to take third with a .354 percentage while Owen dropped to fourth with .343, a loss of nine points since last week. Buzz Arlett, Idaho Falls outfielder, is still holding forth in fifth place with .334, an increase of 14 points over last week.

Joe Egnatio, Boise outfielder, slugged out four four-ply blows to raise his total to 15 which is the best in the league. Egnatio also leads in runs scored, 76; total bases, 171, and stolen bases, 14. Gordon Duff of Ogdon is still king with 15 triples.

John Zar of Idaho Falls, won two games last week and though he lost one more game he still leads the pitchers with 12 wins and two defeats.

(Include games of Monday, July 8, compiled by Howe News bureau.)

 CLEVELAND — After all these years, the insurance statistics at hand, because I just don't happen to be the sort of fellow who collects insurance statistics, but I'll bet you that baseball players are listed among the better risks by Metropolitan, New York Life, Guardian, and the other collectors of my premium and your premium.

Without any figures at my fingertips, I would risk a wager the average baseball player has a life expectancy that exceeds that of pit bull fanciers, chimney sweeps, stepladders, and street cleaners, to name a few representatives of basic industries.

All of the above is a fancy, if needless, introduction to my belief that the hue and cry over helmets for baseball players is little more than the outburst of idle persons who seek an outlet for their energies. I can't help but feel that those citizens who are unduly excited over equipping baseballers with protective armor for their temples, ears, insteeds and profiles, would do the country a greater service if they spent their time weeding gardens, lobbying against cigar store clerks who won't sell you one package of cigarettes before trying to sell you two, and battling for shorter and more intelligent commercials on the radio.

Stanley Harris, who was a remarkable basketball player, has in the past advised youngsters contemplating a baseball career to steer clear of the court game. The quick stops and turns on hardwood were too hard on the legs, to the Washington manager's way of thinking.

Yet there was nothing wrong with Second Baseman Harris' underpinning, and the now famous team of Boudreau and Mack emerged from the hoop wars as sound as Howard Harding Jones' football system.

Boudreau and Mack may make Bucky Harris revise his opinion of basketball as a developer of infielders.

"The plans of ability is nearer equal in basketball than in most sports," says Ted Lyons, the veteran White Sox pitcher who got in three years of the cage game at Baylor. "Therefore a player to be outstanding has to be a remarkable athlete.

"In only one game does the reflexes have to be faster—and that is baseball.

"So when you've got a basketball player who can play baseball, you've got a real standout."

Mack, the Bohemian, is big and friendly. Boudreau, the dark-complexioned Frenchman, is reticent, but will talk on any topic but himself.

Boudreau and Mack are inseparable on and off the diamond. They room together on the road... sleep late, eat and attend movies together.

In Cleveland, Mack and his fiancée, Jean Fischer, with whom he went to high school, frequently spend the evening with the Boudreaus.

The youngsters give a great deal of credit for their rapid rise to Greg Mulleavy, a veteran infielder with whom they spent most of last season in Buffalo, but Lou Boudreau and Ray Mack were naturals together from the first day they met.

Mac Sees No Need for Hue And Cry for Baseball Helmets

 NEW YORK, July 13 (U.P.) — I don't have the insurance statistics at hand, because I just don't happen to be the sort of fellow who collects insurance statistics, but I'll bet you that baseball players are listed among the better risks by Metropolitan, New York Life, Guardian, and the other collectors of my premium and your premium.

Without any figures at my fingertips, I would risk a wager the average baseball player has a life expectancy that exceeds that of pit bull fanciers, chimney sweeps, stepladders, and street cleaners, to name a few representatives of basic industries.

All of the above is a fancy, if needless, introduction to my belief that the hue and cry over helmets for baseball players is little more than the outburst of idle persons who seek an outlet for their energies. I can't help but feel that those citizens who are unduly excited over equipping baseballers with protective armor for their temples, ears, insteeds and profiles, would do the country a greater service if they spent their time weeding gardens, lobbying against cigar store clerks who won't sell you one package of cigarettes before trying to sell you two, and battling for shorter and more intelligent commercials on the radio.

After all, few baseball players are injured by being hit with baseballs. Of the thousands of men who play the game, fewer are pitched than by collision or spike outs. So why not crusade for heavily padded suits or shoes that do not have sharp steel on their soles?

To be quite honest, there isn't much need for a crusade of any kind. Since Abner Doubleday invented the game of baseball it has produced few casualties. This is not meant to imply I am callous, and do not regret the tragic death of Ray Chapman or the near-fatal beaming of Mickey Cochrane. But taken as a profession, baseball is just about as safe as a man could choose.

Proof of this is to be found in the attitude of the baseball players themselves toward protective covering. There isn't any rule in baseball, minor or major league, that says what or what not a player shall wear. If he chooses he can step briskly to the plate in a cellophane shirt, a pair of nylon trousers, and a time bomb dangling loosely about his neck. Or, if he is a cautious man, he can garb himself in a diving bell, a raccoon coat, a football headguard, and a letter of introduction from his pastor.

What he wears and how he looks is strictly up to the player. All he has to do to secure the right to individuality is get his base knocks and catch or field the balls knocked his way.

It must be obvious, even to the most stupid crusader for bomb-proof equipment for baseball players, that the players themselves want no part of such protective haberdashery. They won't wear such stuff. This refusal can be attributed to a feeling of pride, or a fear of being considered a sissy. Because even as dumb as your average baseball player is, he still has enough sense to protect the skull that providence sent him into the world with. If he thought it was in any serious danger — that its pure concrete content was in jeopardy — he would go to any extreme to shelter and preserve it. The fear of being branded a sissy wouldn't stop him. He'd put on rompers, a bib, and come up to the plate in a kiddie car, if he thought it would prolong his life in the majors, where the real money is paid.

Hot Race for American Batting Lead

NEW YORK, July 13 (U.P.) — The American league has one of the hottest races for the batting leadership in years with only two percentage points separating the top four men, according to official figures released today. The figures included games played Thursday.

Rip Radcliff of the Browns, last week's pace setter, slumped off four points and dropped to fourth place as Ted Wright of Chicago, boosted his percentage two points to .359 and took the lead. Only a fraction of a point behind him was his teammate Luke Appling, with Lou Finney of Boston in third place with .355 and Radcliff at .354.

Harry Danning of New York continued to hold the National league lead despite a 10 point slump to .348. Actually, Pepper Martin of St. Louis is batting at .346, but has not played in enough games to be accorded the leadership.

Johnny Mize of the Cardinals paced the home run hitters with 21, while Jimmy Fox of Boston led American leaguers with 20. Buck Newson of Detroit scored his 12th straight victory to maintain his American league pitching lead, and as Jake Mooty of Chicago lost his first game of the year, Freddie Fitzsimmons of Brooklyn took the National league pitching lead with seven wins and one defeat.

Toolson Leads Idaho Junior Golf Tourney

BOISE, July 13 (U.P.) — The American Legion junior golf tournament entered the second round today with Val Toolson, Twin Falls shot-maker, still holding the edge after he posted a score of 78 to capture medalist honors.

The youthful Twin Falls ace looked like the class of the field as he came back from the next round with a 3-2 victory over Jerry Rodwell, Nampa, a strong contender in 1939.

However, giving him a strong race was Walter Garrity, Nampa, champion in 1938, who lost in the finals last year to Frank Hart, Garrity scored a 79 to turn back Gene Rodwell, brother of Jerry, 3 and 2.

One other Twin Falls entrant, Pat Wallace, looked like a strong contender for championship honors as he posted a score of 84 and turned back Perry Miller, Boise, 3 and 2.

Mel Hulbert, Twin Falls, was eliminated in a tough battle with Jay Gregory, Boise. The two fought 18 holes on even terms, with Gregory winning on the 21st hole.

Italians Claim British Mediterranean Fleet Split

ONE BATTLESHIP, 2 CRUISERS ARE REPORTED SUNK

By REYNOLDS PACKARD

ROME, July 13 (AP)—Italian planes have split the British fleet into three parts and are driving it eastward under the blast of bombs from massed squadrons, an official communique said today.

One battleship and two cruisers, at least, had been struck repeatedly, it was asserted.

An authoritative Italian spokesman said the Italian success in cutting the Mediterranean in two had forced the British fleet at Alexandria to operate without connection with the fleet at Gibraltar. These Italian victories, he added, has closed the Mediterranean at its "waist line" between Tunisia and Sicily.

Try to Cut Through

The British have tried to cut through and rejoin their forces in the last few days but have been repulsed, it was stated.

Italian mines, Italian aviation and the Italian fleet are responsible for cutting the British fleet in two, it was said. Special reference was made to the work of a large number of Italian submarines.

With Tunisia demilitarized by the French, it was stated Italy now holds almost every strategic point dominating the passage between Africa and Sicily, while the British have only Malta which is being hammered almost every day by Italian aerial bombs.

Admit Loss of Ship

It was admitted one Italian destroyer had been sunk after a British bombardment. The crew was saved, it was said.

The communique said Italian planes, striking at the British fleet from bases in southern Italy, Libya and the eastern Mediterranean, continued to bomb naval formations which had been sighted and bombed Thursday.

Two British planes were shot down in an air battle over Malta, the communique said.

Asserting that Italian troops had captured the British frontier post of Moyale, in east Africa, the communique said British counter attacks had been repulsed.

Peas Predominant

Peas were the one absorbing subject that occupied the attention of the royal French court in 1600. They were in such vogue that discussions by nobles on the pleasures of eating peas became the main topic of conversation, and it was even fashionable for noble ladies to eat peas just before going to bed.

The cake, measuring 30 inches in diameter by 16 inches high and weighing 107 pounds, was made by a Boise representative of the Idaho Bakers association who was selected by the local bakers' association to perform this feat. It is a thing of beauty and was decorated in a variety of colors of fondant made with Idaho sugar. The picnic was under the direction of Mrs. Lillian M. Siberian Russia Booms as Soviets Tighten Defenses

Here is the second of two uncensored dispatches on Russia, filed from Tokyo by Peter C. Rhodes, United Press staff correspondent, after nearly a month's travel through the Soviet Union.

By PETER C. RHODES

TOKYO, July 13 (AP)—Russia regards China's fight against the Japanese as a "just war" and is intensively strengthening her military and naval forces in the Far East.

The question I was asked most frequently on a trip across the Soviet Union was:

"Will the United States enter the war and will she decide to give open aid to China as the first step in her national defense?"

In line with that attitude, the Soviets have massed strong forces in the maritime provinces of Siberia and are working night and day to build up the region's population and industry. It has all the aspects of western United States in the boom days of westward ho.

Despite Russia's sympathy and interest in the Chinese cause it was my impression if the United States and Great Britain abandon all aid to the Chinese, the Soviets may swiftly seek to conclude a non-aggression pact with Japan.

Would Divert Japs

The object of that would be to divert Japan away from the inter-

Feeder Lines

I found the Russians have completed a number of important feeder lines to the Trans-Siberian railroad. One runs from west of Baikal up the Lena river to the Arctic sea. Another runs from a point several hundred miles north of Baikal to the town of Komsomolsk, half way down the Amur river from Khabarovsk and thence to the new Soviet seaport on the bay opposite Sakhalin island.

Another branch runs from Khabarovsk to the mouth of the Amur river where a new seaport has been built opposite the northern end of Sakhalin island. Another line, still under construction, skirts the sea of Okhotsk to the Kamchatka peninsula and will terminate at the Seaport of Kamachatka.

I saw few roads and highways in this country. The Russians apparently prefer railroads because of the long distance hauls of heavy goods. For frontier defense, they employ mobile units capable of travelling over rough country where there are few or no roads.

Conditions Better

Conditions, surprisingly, seemed better in Siberian than in old Russia. Many of the new towns have large factories and I saw building activities going forward.

Traffic is so heavy on the Trans-Siberian that the roadbed is suffering. We passed many gangs of maintenance workers.

I saw more than 20 trains of 60 cars each loaded with trucks, tanks, artillery and ambulances heading for the maritime provinces of eastern Siberia.

We met two crowded prison trains taking exiles to the northeast and several times I saw prison gangs working on the railroad under guard.

LABOR GROUPS AID ON DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said today a labor policy advisory committee pledged full cooperation in the national defense program holds out hope the program may be the means of bringing together the warring factions of organized labor.

The pledge, signed by 16 railway brotherhood, American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organization leaders, was presented to the national defense commission and through it to President Roosevelt.

Early said "receipt of the letter has made the President happy."

"It is the nearest thing to a united front we have had since the AFL and CIO split," Early said. "It holds out hope, at least, that national defense may be the means of bringing labor together. It is the most representative thing the White House has received in years from organized labor as a whole."

The labor executives, chosen by their own organizations, serve as an advisory body to the defense commission which is handling the national drive to rearm.
