Germans Virtually Halt Air Attacks on Great Britain

British Blast at Nazi Objectives As Battle Quiets

By WALLACE CARROLL

LONDON, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—German air attacks on Britain came to a virtual halt today while the air ministry reported the RAF had raided far into Germany.

In an official communique the air ministry reported that in the 12-hours since dawn this morning the Germans had not made a single attack on Britain. However, there were occasional reports of German planes, possibly reconnaissance craft, flying over scattered areas.

At the same time the ministry reported the RAF last night attacked many new objectives in Germany including the Leuna oil works, Bohnen, Jena, Augsburg and Holledz.

The British attacks on several German towns is part of a campaign to blast the centers of German power and paralyze German initiative both for the air blitzkrieg and the possible invasion of the British Isles.

The air ministry indicated the attacks were highly successful and that "important objectives" were attacked. It mentioned specifically the hydrogenation plant at Leuna, near Leipzig.

The score on yesterday's battles was placed by the air ministry at 75 German planes downed and 22 British planes lost. Fourteen British pilots were safe. A revised tabulation placed Germany's losses Thursday at 170.

Casualties High The air ministry said while the Germans employed fewer planes yesterday, possibly because large scale attacks are "proportionally" more costly, the "proportion of casualties which the Germans sustained continued high."

There was a growing feeling here the German air force is suffering under the punishing blows of the RAF and that raids will not increase materially in strength unless Germany has another ace in the hole. Whatever the cause there appeared to be a notable fall-off in German air activity today.

Substantial Toll The air ministry indicated anti-aircraft guns are taking a substantial toll of German planes. These guns destroyed 22 German planes Thursday and a total of 57 since Monday, it was said.

One raider dropped 16 incendiary bombs on a southeast coast town this morning. Fourteen more bombs were dropped near a golf course on the southeast coast, but there was little damage.

The new raid began as air raid protection workers dug into the debris of London's southwest suburbs which had been battered by German bombs.

Londoners were angered by the attack on the suburbs and many suggested that British planes strike at thickly populated industrial districts in Germany. The British have bombed military objectives around Essen and Munich. British planes also have flown over Berlin, but have never dropped bombs on the German capital.

REPORTER SEES NO SIGN OF NAZI INVASION PLANS

By FREDERICK C. OCHSNER

WITH THE GERMAN AIR FORCE ON THE ENGLISH CHANNEL (via telephone to Berlin) Aug. 17 (U.P.)—I saw few signs of any expeditionary force which the Germans might be preparing to send against Britain in a tour of the French and Belgian coast completed today.

My tour in company with six colleagues from Berlin took me over about 2,000 miles of Germany, Belgium and France.

I found scores of emergency airfields that dot portions of the French and Belgian coasts from Ostend to Boulogne. But I saw little sign that an expeditionary force was being prepared.

One trip was made by airplane and automobile. It was conducted by the German high command.

Make Airfields I saw how the Germans have cleverly made airfields out of farm-lands and hangars out of haybarns.

The fields are strategically distributed and are part of a vast network which the German air force established upon Belgian and French soil for the offensive now taking place against Britain.

Neither directly on the coast nor inland did I observe any large troop concentrations, although they may have been there out of sight.

I passed frequent columns of motor buses on the roads filled with air force men moving to fields or to anti-aircraft batteries.

These batteries pepper the coast. But the only army troops I saw were moving to the east.

Large Artillery Pieces On three occasions I saw large railway artillery pieces of a caliber which appeared to be big enough to fire across the channel.

The most concentrated air activity which we saw was in the area around Cape Blanc Nez and Cape Gris Nez which were in the public eye years ago when Gertrude Ederle and others were swimming the channel. Only 21 miles separate the British and French coasts there.

The Germans showed their brilliance at camouflage and at many places where I had not the slightest (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

Willkie Approves Conscription in Acceptance Speech

Wendell L. Willkie today formally accepted the nomination for the presidency on the Republican ticket at his old home town of Elwood, Ind. He spoke to friends and neighbors at the school which he attended, before the acceptance speech, and here an artist sketches the scene in detail—even down to the "wrong way" N in "The Hope of Our Country."

GOP Head Lashes Roosevelt During Acceptance Talk

By LYLE C. WILSON

ELWOOD, Ind., Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Wendell Lewis Willkie accepted the Republican nomination for President today in an address in which he endorsed conscription and material aid to Great Britain as national defense measures and suggested that President Roosevelt may have been "deliberately inciting us to war."

He accepted the nomination almost as an afterthought and said that party lines were down. Nothing could prove it better than the nomination of himself—a liberal Democrat—by the G. O. P., he said.

He invited all races, creeds and colors to join the battle for "the preservation of American democracy" and challenged Mr. Roosevelt to meet him in a nation-wide stumping tour to debate before the same audiences and from the same platforms the fundamental issues of the campaign.

That was Willkie's platform today and it took precedence over the document contrived of sweat, compromise and anxious anger by the Republican platform committee which met at the Philadelphia convention.

The candidate's home town was out on a mass to cheer the small town boy who had made good. Thousands from coast to coast were in Callaway park to see the Republican leader of the third attempt, to stop Roosevelt and the first attempt to block a third term.

The ceremonies were as rural as an Iowa corn field. Willkie's own words.

Ask for Debates "I want to meet the champ," he had said when he was nominated. So he called out Mr. Roosevelt today face-to-face in meetings that would top the Lincoln-Douglas debates preceding the Civil war, if the dare was accepted.

Willkie made a pounding attack on Mr. Roosevelt as a President and leader and proposed to carry it on. He charged that the President "distorted" liberalism and was leading the United States down the road toward destruction and dictatorship by France under the regime of Leon Blum, who may face trial in France.

He said Mr. Roosevelt employed political persecution through taxes, that he incited class against class and that the New Deal had distributed poverty instead of the more abundant life among the people.

Old-Time Liberal "Because I am a business man connected with a large company, the doctrinaires of the opposition have attacked me as an opponent of liberalism," he said. "But I was a liberal before many of these men had heard of the word and I fought for many of the reforms of the elder LaFollette, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson before another Roosevelt adopted and distorted liberalism."

Willkie called the roll of spending and unemployment. "Where is the recovery?" Willkie asked.

On that theme, he based his first campaign appeal. But he endorsed substantially great areas of the New Deal fabric. Specifically, he committed himself to that much of the New Deal policy as is covered in the following quotation from an address by President Roosevelt:

Back Two Principles "We will extend to the opponents of force the material resources of this nation, and at the same time we will harness the use of those resources in order that we, ourselves in the Americas, may have equipment and training equal to the task (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

BLAZES IN PARK UNDER CONTROL; GATES REOPENED

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Fire crews worked feverishly today to throw control lines around the big forest fires in Yellowstone park. The wind had died down, giving the firefighters a chance to extend their systems of trenches.

The south entrance of the park, closed yesterday because of smoke from a big fire nearby, opened this morning. Park officials said it would be kept open until noon, and all day unless smoke conditions become bad again.

National park service officials said frankly the fire situation in Yellowstone was "the worst in history." All fires, however, were in isolated spots far from the main highways, so tourist travel was not affected.

Two New Fires Two new fires broke out in the park yesterday, one of them on Spirea creek less than a mile from the Snake river road. It was smoke from this fire that impelled park officials to close the entrance for a time yesterday. The other new fire was southwest of Shoshone lake, but its extent was not determined immediately.

The Ranger Lake, Moose creek, Ozel falls and Mountain Ash creek fires still were out of control, and has spread over about 2,600 acres each. Park officials hoped to establish control lines by tonight if the wind does not spring up again. The Fox park fire in the Teton national forest just south of the park boundary was under control, but still was being patrolled.

"FINGERS CROSSED" MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Major E. W. Kelley, regional forester, said today the fire situation in region No. 1 had taken a turn for the better "but we've got our fingers crossed."

The huge fire in the Nez Percé national forest in Idaho, he said, was under control although 1,100 men still were engaged in "mop up" operations. He said the crews will be reduced gradually, but that the job (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

DEFENDERS FLEE ITALIAN ADVANCE

ROME, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—A high command communique said today British troops were "fleeing along all fronts" before the Italian drive through British Somaliland. The announcement said the climax of the Somaliland battle had been reached yesterday.

Italian dispatches from Addis Ababa in the last few days have told of Italian victories over British forces defending semi-circular defense line south of Berbera, capital and principal port of British Somaliland. British warships were reported to have left their base at Aden, at the southern entrance of the Red sea, for Berbera to bolster the British defenses.

The confusion in the nation's mind has been largely due to... lack of information from the White House.

GERMANS ORDER FULL BLOCKADE AGAINST BRITAIN

By RICHARD C. HOTELET

BERLIN, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Germany proclaimed a complete blockade of the British Isles today and in formal notes to neutral governments which have, not forbidden their ships to enter British waters said "in the future every neutral ship approaching the British coast subjects itself to danger of destruction."

Notes were not sent to the United States and Argentina, which have banned their vessels from British waters.

Denouncing the British blockade of Germany as in contravention of international law the German government said it had "decided to retaliate with an eye for an eye and act with the same ruthlessness as the British" around the British coasts.

It said, "The high command of the armed forces will, in its operations, make use of favorable strategic positions offered by its domination of continental coasts from Biscaya to North Cape as well as the superiority of German armed forces in both the sea and air around England."

The government said henceforth planes will attack every ship in British waters and it said in proclaiming a complete blockade of the British Isles Germany was acting in the interests of all Europe.

"It lies in the interest of the states themselves that this request (that neutral ships stay away from Britain) be followed as soon as possible," the announcement said.

Naval warfare has flared up in full force in the area around England. The whole area has been sowed with mines.

Earlier, it had been announced mines had been laid by German planes last night in the Irish sea, North channel and St. George's channel and that henceforth no ship would be able to enter British waters in safety.

Stressing its charge that Britain's blockade of Germany was in violation of international law the government said it had been answered with a counter-blockade and the sinking or damaging of 6,000,000 tons of British shipping by the German navy and air force since the start of the war.

JEROME TO HUNT CANAL FOR MAN

JEROME, Aug. 17 (Special)—The main canal east of here will be scene of a search Sunday morning for James H. Wheatcroft, 51, manager of the Farmers' elevator, Jerome, who disappeared Thursday about 2 p. m.

Late yesterday a small boy, while hunting rabbits, discovered Wheatcroft's car parked on the canal bank east of here. Officials, after looking the car over, said that footprints could be seen leading directly from the car into the water.

Today water had been turned from the canal and the intensive search of the canal bed will start Sunday morning, according to Sheriff Les S. Johnson. By that time the water will have receded enough to permit the search.

Friends of the local businessman said they knew of no reason why he should take his own life. If this proves to be the case and if the body is found in the canal.

One friend reported seeing him driving his car at about 2 p. m. Thursday on Main street. He was not reported as having been seen after that time.

All Candidates Show Vote Gain As Official Canvass Is Ended

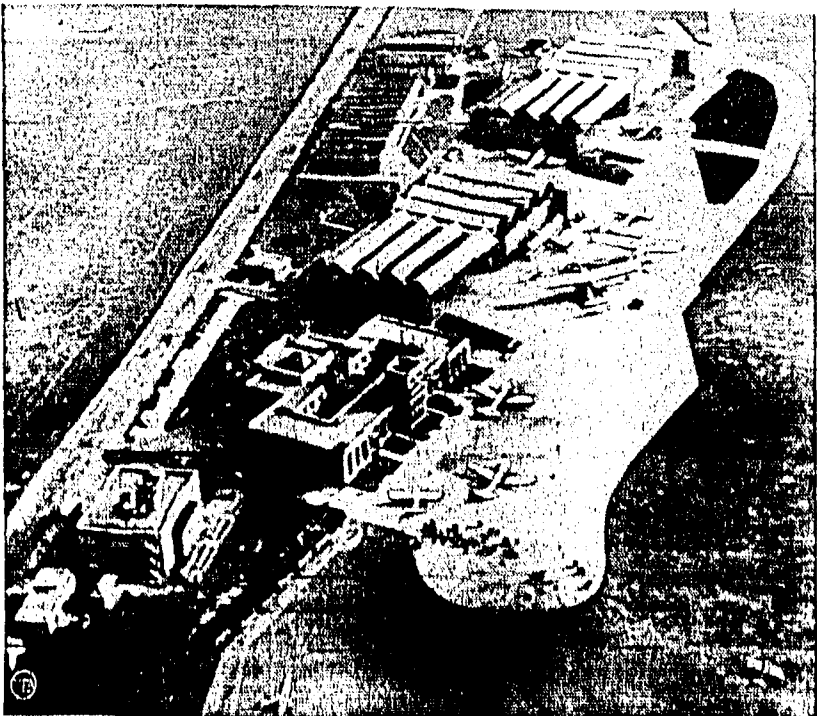

All candidates for national, state and county posts in the Twin Falls county primary election showed minor gains over unofficial results as the board of commissioners announced complete tallies in the formal canvass this afternoon.

Only one reversal of nomination occurred as result of the canvass—E. V. Molander taking the Republican first district commissioner race by 18 votes over A. E. Kline, former commissioner.

Major Results Unchanged All major results in the county remained as at first announced. Electors of the county favored James I. Bothwell as Democratic senatorial nominee; upheld Frank Keenan over Ira Manders as congressional choice; endorsed Chas. A. Clark over J. W. Taylor for the governorship. Republican voters gave John Thomas a landslide approbation; granted Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen an even greater margin.

In the Molander-Kline commission contest, the reversal came when Twin Falls No. 3 was found 65 votes short for Kline and 97 short for Molander. Kline's results turned out as 12 for Kline and seven for Molander, were actually just the opposite in the official canvass.

"INVADERS" BEAT BACK "DEFENDERS" IN ARMY GAMES

190 UMPIRES TO NAME VICTOR IN WEST MANEUVER

By ARTHUR L. SCHOENI
YELM, Wash., Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Denim-clad troops of the army of the south poised for a knockout blow against defending "red" forces at four points along the Nisqually river today.

Only an armistice call by Brig.
Gen. Henry T. Burgin, chief umpire of the fourth army's annual maneuvers in southwest Washington apparently could save the northern forces from a beating before the "war" officially comes to an end tonight.

The northern army of 15,000 troops, most of them regulars, was throwing heavy reinforcements into the badly shattered sectors in a last stand to prevent invasion of the lower Puget sound region, but still they were forced to give ground before the numerically superior force of 28,000 men.

"The invading 'blue' army advanced under a heavy smoke-screen aided by chemical warfare units, and the pincer movement it attempted threatened not only the main defense force but the northern headquarters as well.

Storm Heights
Cavalry and infantry stormed the heights above the Nisqually river and within a few hours were engaged in one of the few pitched battles of the maneuvers, in the flat farmlands around the Centralia powerhouse.

Both armies suffered severe aerial losses. The defending "red" troops lost 14 of their 21 pursuit planes, a flying fortress and three observation planes. The "blues" were charged with the loss of 22 out of 80 observation planes and a blimp.

Defense forces were momentarily successful yesterday when they threw back an attack across the McKenna bridge, but within a few hours armored cars thrown into the fray succeeded in fording the Nisqually southeast of McKenna.

Four-Point Drive
Strategy of the invading forces was believed to be a four-point drive across the stream to split the defenders and dislocate their lines of communication. Artillery and machine gun units kept up a steady stream of fire against the invaders vainly seeking to prevent them from repairing bridges destroyed in the retreat.

When the games end tonight, staff officers of the fourth army and the national guard units from the ninth corps area will call the 190 umpires into conference to decide the actual outcome of the four-day battle and to study the weaknesses and strength disclosed.

With completion of the new addition, the hospital is now able to care for 25 mothers with no crowding. Among the rooms found in the new addition are four private rooms, two wards, two delivery rooms and one preparation room, a room for the doctors, an office for the nurse and incidental rooms. Nurse Hilma Noble is shown above displaying the new infant baskets in the nursery at the maternity home. Provisions have been made for the care of 25 babies at one time. The room is soundproofed so that mothers will not be disturbed "should all the babies cry at once," as one hospital official put it. (Times Photo and Engraving)

New Maternity Home Ready for Inspection

New maternity home at the Twin Falls county general hospital will be open for public inspection the initial time Sunday between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m., it was announced today by H. C. Jeppesen, superintendent.

During those hours the general public is invited to take the opportunity of inspecting the new home, which is completely modern in every detail and which features new equipment. Tea will be served during visiting hours.

25 at a Time
With completion of the new addition to the maternity home, 25 mothers can now be cared for at one time with no crowding.

Four private rooms, two wards (each having three beds), one preparation room and two main delivery rooms are found in the new section. The private rooms are equipped with Simmons beds and alloy mattresses, a combination meal tray and beauty table which fits over the bed, a closet, dressing table, dresser and easy chair with foot stool. Venetian blinds are at the large windows and drapes to match the cream and white walls and ceilings have been hung. The flooring is grey linoleum with green trim. Provisions have been made for air conditioning the entire structure.

Two Delivery Rooms
The two delivery rooms have a delivery table, complete gas machines, an instrument table, a baby incubator, a solution bowl stand and Castle lights. Sterilizing equipment is in an adjoining room.

Remodel Old Section
Announcement was also made that the old section of the maternity home will be completely remodeled, but the work will be carried on in such a manner that it will not be necessary to close the structure at any time.

Completion of the new maternity building gives Twin Falls county general hospital the finest such quarters in Idaho. The expansion program was the second in six years.

Lasso-Toss Blocks Woman In Suicide Plan at Bridge

Suicide leap off the Twin Falls-Jerome intercounty bridge by a prominent former Twin Falls woman had been frustrated today by alert work of two deputy sheriffs.

The deputies, Roy Fuller and Claude Wiley, prevented the woman's leap Friday afternoon when Fuller hassoed the woman and both men then climbed over the bridge railing to drag her back to the trawelway of the span.

About 50
Sheriff L. W. Hawkins did not divulge the name of the woman, who is about 50, but said she was "formerly a prominent resident here."

Each time she made the remark, the woman moved nearer the edge of the steel "cat walk."

Rope Over Head
Cooper was about to try lassoing the would-be suicide when Fuller took the rope and stepped near the railing, several feet away from the woman. He tossed the rope expertly over her head and around her neck.

Tightening the impromptu lariat so the woman was unable to jump off and thus hang herself, Fuller—with Deputy Wiley—climbed over the railing. With the woman shouting and resisting strongly, they lifted her back to a safe place.

After first aid treatment in Twin Falls, the woman was released.

OGDEN WILL GET MUNITIONS DUMP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—The war department announced today that it has completed arrangements to purchase 1,617 acres of land two miles northwest of Ogden, Utah, where a $6,165,000 general depot will be established.

The depot will serve as a base for general supplies for the army, particularly from the Pacific coast to the middle west. The land was appraised at $342,000 and congress voted $213,000 towards the purchase.

The Ogden Chamber of Commerce has offered to buy and donate $100,000 of land. It agreed also to assist in disposal of war surplus and in the salvage of improvements on the site.

Maj. Gen. Edmund L. Gregory, quartermaster general, said that warehouses for the chemical warfare service, the engineer, medical, signal and quartermaster corps, will be constructed in addition to administrative buildings, utilities and railroad facilities. Gregory said $1,665,000 is now available to begin the construction. Expansion of the facilities, he said, will require an additional $4,500,000 which is not now available.

DEPUTY CHOSEN AT IDAHO PRISON

BOISE, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Dan Cavanaugh today was named deputy warden of the Idaho state prison, succeeding Emmett Corbin, who resigned Wednesday after Warden Pearl C. Meredith was discharged by the state prison board.

Herman Falls, regular parole officer, was selected by new Warden Gilbert Talley as chief identification clerk, succeeding Ed Whittington, who like Corbin, Typist Helen Duvaney and Guard Earle Williams quit Wednesday. No successors have been named for Miss Duvaney and Williams.

MERCHANT GROUP WILL MEET HERE

First district-wide meeting of the Independent Merchants association of Idaho will be held in Twin Falls at 7 p. m. Monday, Aug. 19, it was announced here this afternoon.

Merchants from Buhl, Jerome, Burley, Rupert, Twin Falls and Boise will convene at the Blue Arrow cafe for the meeting, according to Keth Hunter, Twin Falls. Approximately 100 are expected to attend. Hunter will preside as temporary chairman pending selection of district officials.

Seek Federal Fund
One major topic to come before the association, which aims to improve the services offered Idahoans by home-owned establishments, will be plans to take advantage of a $10,000 federal fund allocated to this state for employer-employee education.

The government purpose, Hunter said, is to train merchants and their workers in better business tactics. Pat Branin, Boise, will outline the program and will lead the discussion on ways and means of securing the federal money.

Other major topics at the open forum dinner-session will be presentation of the autumn advertising budget, action on that budget, and discussion of various activities planned by the association.

Local Units Elect
Hunter announced today the officers thus far selected by association units at Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Buhl. Bill Roper leads the Burley group as president; Ross Freer is secretary; Lester McKean, vice-president. At Rupert, Jack Roper is president and Al Gregory, secretary.

Jerome has selected only its president, A. W. Tingwall. Buhl also has named only a president, who is Roy Falt.

White to Battle For Water Funds

BOISE, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Rep. Compton I. White, D., Ida., informed Idaho irrigation leaders today he would fight efforts to sidetrack reclamation project appropriations in favor of defense funds.

White said the "irrigated regions of the west offer the major opportunity to stabilize the nation's food supply, come what may." He added that "should drought come with existing world war conditions we will face a situation more critical than that attributed to unpreparedness in planes, guns, tanks and warships."

Freedom the Allis-Chalmers Way

WITH THE ALL-CROP HARVESTER!

Out of the Sacramento Valley of California, in 1930, came a curious contraption. It cut and threshed a 5-foot swath. It had a full-width 5-foot cylinder—a wire brush. It was a one-man machine operated by power take-off from a THREE-PLOW tractor.

Machinery men laughed and called it a toy. Engineers had "proof" to show that no combine could ever replace the binder. But Allis-Chalmers saw its possibilities—PROVIDED they could solve certain "must" specifications:

THESE WERE THE "MUSTS"

- It MUST be pulled and operated by a 2-plow tractor with power take-off—then the prevailing size farm tractor.
- It MUST be priced to replace the binder.
- It MUST do good work in all climates.
- It MUST harvest ALL the small grains, beans and seeds on diversified farms.

RUBBER TO THE RESCUE Five years passed. Rubber tires and a new kind of rubber-faced bar cylinder solved the problem of draft. They made the harvester a 2-plow tractor load—with no auxiliary motor necessary. Rubber-shelling surfaces solved the moisture and crackage problem.

Seeds crops were threshed with rubber as easily as grain. This California idea—now changed almost beyond recognition—had at last become the ALL-CROP HARVESTER . . . "Successor to the Binder."

THEY LAUGHED AGAIN All those years . . . the experts were saying it was "another Allis-Chalmers dream." But today . . . there are two sizes of the All-Crop Harvester . . . setting a pace for all to follow . . . taking the backaches and the sweat and the drudgery out of harvest. Next to the rubber-tired tractor—also pioneered by Allis-Chalmers—the All-Crop Harvester is the greatest contribution of modern times to better farm living. All-Crop Harvesting doesn't cost—it pays!

NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES WEST-HOLIDAY CO., INC. Mills Tower, 220 Bush Street, San Francisco, Calif.

What Did Mr. Curtis Say?

Idaho's record in the administration of her state prison has been anything but good.

Wardens have come and gone, and so have many prisoners who should have been kept behind the bars.

Not only have too many convicts escaped under circumstances not always explained, but in times past our state pardon boards have released dangerous criminals who have continued to prey upon society, a practice that has been openly criticized by the federal bureau of investigation.

Several years ago, William H. Guest, warden at that time, was replaced by P. C. Meredith when Douglas Van Vlack, a condemned murderer, escaped execution by committing suicide under what appeared to be mysterious circumstances.

Now Warden Meredith has been ousted for reasons that do not appear to tell the whole story. "Too many escapes" and "trouble with his guards" are the generalized criticisms that precipitated Meredith's discharge.

But during the actual process of handing the warden his walking papers, at least one member of the state prison board indicated there were other reasons for the ouster.

Asked by Warden Meredith to make an "official explanation" of his discharge, other than the statement that he hadn't shown enough warmth toward the guards, Secretary of State George Curtis declined to elaborate, saying he already had given his reasons to Meredith privately.

In view of all the circumstances, the people have every right to know what Mr. Curtis said to Mr. Meredith in private. To clear up any further mystery about the operations of the state prison, either one or the other of these men should let the people in on their secret.

One People, Government, Army

How far the plan has gone to enlist a home defense force to replace the national guard if the latter is called into active service, we don't know.

It is certainly worth considering. But one thing must be carefully provided:

Any such force must be a legally constituted part of the U. S. defense forces, under their leadership and responsible to them. It is perfectly all right that such a force be recruited largely from veterans' organizations. But though we respect the veterans' organizations as probably more patriotic and devoted to their country than any other cross-section of the people, even such organizations should not be allowed to form armed organizations on their own. All members of any such home defense force should be serving their government direct, and not through even the most purely patriotic private organization.

"One people, one government, one army" is the only safe guide.

Will Congress Take a Recess?

While there are a few senators and representatives who have been conscientious in their demands that congress remain in session so long as world conditions have a critical bearing on the United States, it is significant that the general ado over the issue is waning as the November election approaches.

Some of those who were loudest in their insistence that congress stick to its guns are now growing a little apprehensive over their political welfare back home.

While it might not be altogether kind to make such a prediction, we'll hazard the guess that nothing short of war will keep the boys back in Washington from arranging a little recess between now and November, so they can scamper back home to patch up their political fences.

Let's see if we are wrong.

Excellent-With Exceptions

"Idaho's highways are in excellent condition," says Public Works Commissioner J. O. Newcomb after a 10-day tour of the state.

Generally speaking, Commissioner Newcomb is probably right, but just in fun, we're wondering if he happened to travel over U. S. 93 between Twin Falls and the Twin Falls-Jerome intercounty bridge, and that stretch of gravel about 10 miles beyond Galena summit.

New York conservation department is feeding cellophane to brook trout. Next thing we know the chamber of commerce will insist we can land 'em already wrapped.

The Windsors traveled light to the Bahamas, carrying only 52 pieces of baggage. Of course, if they like the place they can always send for the rest.

There are no vitamins in the raspberry but often there is a strong physical reaction.

POT SHOTS

WITH The Gentleman in the Third Row

The Buckeroos, The Lasso and The Lady

It looks like our Twin Falls county constituents will have to abandon Deputy Sheriff Roy Fuller's nickname "Buz", and substitute "Cowboy."

They may also prefix "Buck" to Deputy Claude Wiley's moniker. As you'll see elsewhere in today's Evening Times, the lads stopped a lady from hopping off the big bridge. Cowboy Roy lassoed her and both gents then climbed over the railing and lifted her, kicking and screaming, back to safety.

R. G. Cooper, who runs the "Brink" Inn, was getting ready to try the lasso act. Whereupon said Cowboy, formerly Buz Fuller: "Listen, are you a cowboy?" "Gosh no," said Cooper. "Then gimme that rope," snapped Roy.

He twirled the rope over the head of the woman teetering out on the bridge girder. Then he handed the lasso to someone else, and he and Buck Wiley climbed over the railing. Incidentally, Roy slipped and darn near fell into the canyon himself.

We quote Sheriff Doc Hawkins as of this morning: "I'm seriously thinking of entering both my buckeroos down at the county fair rodeo. I didn't know what I had on this staff!"

(Note: If Doc enters Cowboy Fuller and Buck Wiley in the rodeo, Buckaroo Fuller will do a little more practicing to vary his attack. It seems he lassoed the bridge lady around the neck.)

EXTREME ONE DEAD IN FOREST FIRE

Although the press apparently didn't get the important news, Pot Shots is in a position today to announce that there was one casualty in that Shoshone basin forest and range fire.

Our private sleuths advise us that this casualty was extremely deceased when he came upon his (or her) body. The casualty: One porcupine.

THE DOO, THE FLY ROD AND THE 400-POUNDER!

This is the story of a fish who tried to hook a 400-pound giant on a fly rod.

Needless to say, the gent didn't land the fish. In fact, it's questionable whether the fish even knew the little trout-hook was stuck in its side.

The gent is Doc E. R. Price. He was fishing Wednesday afternoon at upper Salmon falls with Mike Throckmorton and Larry Lundin, two stalwart precursors of our local youth.

Doc pulled in a six-inch trout, disgustingly threw it back in—and let out a whoop.

"Hey!" he hollered. "A sturgeon!" And there it was, right below him, a sturgeon that looked as big as a baby whale. The three Waltonites swear it must have been 400 to 500 pounds. Doc took a look at his fly rod and decided what the heck, let's make history. So he dropped his hook into the water over the sturgeon and snagged the thing in the side.

Larry wanted to hop into the river and subdue the fish with a few well chosen uppercuts. Doc and Mike prevailed on him to stay out of the water.

Doc pulled on his light line. The big sturgeon moved upward a little. (Mike claims it was just a swell in the river that moved it.)

Doo was really getting enthusiastic by then. He yanked the line again.

The sturgeon started for other places. Doo's line reeled out. And reeled out. Just as it began to look like line, pole and Doo were about to reach a crisis, the hook pulled loose and the fly rod blitzkrieg of the sturgeon passed into history.

Which may explain why Doc is still with us today.

"Sword Swallower Chokes on Apricot"—Press oddity. Glamor is ruined by such swordrid details.

HAH—BUT REMEMBER THE PLAYOFFS!

Dear Shots: Allow me to point out since no one else has volunteered to offer this luscious bit of information, that the Cowboy baseball team (bleat their undying hearts) have lost even a mathematical chance of winning the league championship. (Excuse me while I brush away a tear.)

SERIAL STORY MURDER INCOGNITO

BY NORMAN KAHN

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, O'Leary questioned Dale about Saylor's business and possible enemies, and about the five dinner guests. A window of the study is discovered unlocked. O'Leary made a witness protecting Saylor from a breach of promise action. He summons Hazel Leighton.

CHAPTER IV WHEN Hazel Leighton walked into the study, it was quite apparent she had completely recovered from the shock of finding Saylor's body. Aloof and self-composed, she stood poised in the doorway for a moment, as if waiting for Lieutenant O'Leary to acknowledge her presence.

The police officer was still seated at Saylor's desk, engrossed in several documents he had spread before him. Lights in the room were coming from a series of lamps along the walls and from the desk lamp. O'Leary finally looked up, and there was the trace of a smile on his face.

"Miss Leighton?" Hazel nodded. "I'm Lieutenant O'Leary, Come over here and sit down, please." Calmly Hazel walked toward the lieutenant. It was only when she reached the desk, jagged stain in the middle of the room that she hesitated a moment and carefully stepped around it. O'Leary motioned her into a chair that had been placed to the side of the desk, at his right.

"Miss Leighton, I understand it was you who first came upon the body," he said.

"She lit a cigarette. 'Yes, it was pretty much of a shock.' 'Did you enter this room at all?'"

"Not until the others came. I just screamed. I couldn't help it. And then I felt weak, so I hung onto the door and stared at the body until Dale and the rest came from the drawing room."

The lieutenant fingered the check he had taken from the desk drawer. "Miss Leighton, did you know that you were to get a $5000 check from Mr. Saylor tonight?"

FOR a moment, Hazel's eyes faltered, and she tapped out her cigaret with quick, nervous movements of her long, slender fingers. "Why—yes," she said slowly. "Mr. Saylor was a lawyer, you know, and the check was part of a business matter he was handling for me."

"What kind of business?" "I don't think that matters. It was personal. . . nothing at all to do with—what happened here tonight."

O'Leary held out a single sheet of paper, clipped to a tan legal jacket. "Did it have anything to do with this?"

"Yes," she said. "It was a check for $5000. I was to get it from Mr. Saylor tonight."

"I can understand that," said O'Leary.

FROM the vestibule doorway, Sergeant Carroll stepped into the room. "Look, Chief," said the sergeant. "The boys have been doing a little checking, and the

"Why, I don't know. I can't—' 'Maybe I ought to tell you what this is,' O'Leary interrupted. 'It's a release—a release from possible future breach of promise action against Martin Saylor. There's a space down here for you to sign. You won't need to now.'"

Hazel sat forward in her chair and rested her elbows on the desk. "I can't understand it. I haven't the faintest notion what you mean."

O'Leary looked straight at the blond woman and gestured mildly with a cigar he took from his vest pocket. "Oh, yes, you have, Miss Leighton. I'll tell you what it means. Saylor was going to give you $5000 so you wouldn't sue him. And he was going to make sure that you couldn't sue. Maybe you'd better tell me the rest."

Hazel sat very rigidly, her blond hair glimmering in the glow of the desk lamp. Little spots of angry red rose in her cheeks. "All right, Lieutenant," she said. "I'll tell you. Maybe that's better. Then you won't be getting a lot of ideas about something that isn't so."

O'Leary struck a match and held it to his cigar. "Right. It would be a lot better all around if you told me everything."

"Saylor was one of the lowest persons I ever met," Hazel said. "Funny about that. . . I thought I loved him. He's got a kind of veneer that doesn't show up so badly under the right kind of light. We went together for almost a year. He wanted me to marry him, but I wasn't sure."

"And then, last week, he made me an offer. . . this offer. I was never so insulted in my life. I had known his attitude toward me was changing. But I didn't know what a rotter he was until he told me the wedding was off and offered me $5000 to be a good girl. I slapped his face."

O'Leary leaned back in his swivel chair. "Why were you here tonight, then, Miss Leighton?"

Hazel avoided the officer's eyes. "I don't know. There was something about that man. . . I can't tell you what exactly. He asked me to come, and I knew why he wanted me here. I didn't want to come. I had no intentions of coming. Until tonight. . . and then something just seemed to draw me here. I wish I hadn't now."

"I can understand that," said O'Leary.

FROM the vestibule doorway, Sergeant Carroll stepped into the room. "Look, Chief," said the sergeant. "The boys have been doing a little checking, and the "Right," said Carroll. "There's only one answer I can see, Sergeant," O'Leary said. "Whoever committed the murder was right here in this house—is probably still here."

medical examiner telephoned. I thought maybe you wanted to know—

"Go ahead, Sergeant," O'Leary said.

Carroll shrugged. "Okay. Well, first of all, we checked the phone company like you said. They don't know if any long distance calls were made here tonight. There wasn't any."

O'Leary nodded. "Which means Saylor never reached his desk. He was killed right after he left the others in the drawing room—on his way back to the desk."

Carroll squinted. "Right. And here's what the medical examiner has to say. He made a quick check and he said the bullet hit Saylor from the right, at an angle, and struck his heart. It knocked him off like a building collapsed on him."

"Which means that the shot must have been fired from somewhere near that window. . . right?"

"Right. . . Only it wasn't—not through the window, anyway."

O'Leary's eyes became quizzical, but he waited for Carroll to continue.

"The boys have been going over the grounds with a comb," the sergeant explained. "There ain't any footprints. The ground is pretty soft outside this window, and if anybody was hanging around there'd be footprints sure. And the window ain't been touched. . . not from the outside. The only way to open that window is with a crowbar or something sharp, unless it's opened from the inside. That'd leave a mark. There isn't any. Maybe the fingerprints we took on the inside will show something."

O'Leary granted. "They won't show anything. The housekeeper, Barbour, Saylor's, a few cops—they'll be a smear. Anybody who'd try a job like that would be smart enough to wear gloves."

"Yeah, sure," Carroll assented. "We just thought we'd better, though—the old routine."

"The angle of the shot is all wrong for any of the other windows."

"Right."

"And no shot could have been fired through this window—the one that would give us the right angle!"

"Right again," said Carroll. "There's only one answer I can see, Sergeant," O'Leary said. "Whoever committed the murder was right here in this house—is probably still here."

Grange Gleanings

By A. HARVESTER

DEEP CREEK Deep Creek Grange met at the Carl Harder home with a good attendance, an interesting business session and an equally interesting program. The program was under the direction of the Grange women and began with the singing of "America" and "Idaho" by the group. A quite comprehensive and interesting report of the women's summer camp at Eady's hot springs was given by Mrs. Ed Ahlin, master of Deep Creek Grange.

This was followed by a demonstration of the sometimes-gentle-and-sometimes-not-so-gentle art of milking the festive cow, by Mrs. Ahlin. It seems that this particular cow did not relish the idea of parting with her milk which she had worked so hard to produce and kicked lustily, scattering milkmaid, bucket and milk all over the room, which was, by the way, one of the rooms in the Harder's home.

Only when someone thought of pacifying boogie by playing the piano, did she become docile, and then she proceeded to dance blithely about the room, creating much merriment among the Grangers.

If this story is authentic, I don't know what is coming over the cows of the west end, for it is milk and not monkey-shines that the farmers need to buy gas and pay the mortgage off.

CEAR DRAW Seems like we have a joke on the Cedar Draw Grange this week. When I called up for the news they didn't have any for me as their Grange closed next, though that was the night they should have met. Instead they convened this week on Friday night. I just wonder if the master didn't forget to go last week, and if he did, boy, did he catch it when the gang saw him.

FAIRVIEW-KIMBERLY Well, the bunch from Fairview, about 30 strong, went over to Kimberly, like I told you they were going to do, on Monday night. Some of them had trouble finding the Grange hall and suggested that they should mark the spot more plainly. But one guy had trouble even to find the town of Kimberly and suggested that it should be marked more plainly. I'm not mentioning any names in regard to the latter happenstance as the folks might, yep, me.

But you know, when you set out to save a few miles with the old bus as it reaches its declining years, you take a short cut here and there, mostly there. Now the Twin Falls highway district must have thought of that when they laid out the roads, so they fixed it so you couldn't get to Kimberly without going through Twin Falls, or down through Nevada. Well, after fighting our way through three different dead-end roads, we bowed to the inevitable and went the highway through Twin Falls. Thought for awhile we were going to perish within five miles of our goal, but we finally arrived before Grange was over.

They have a nice, handy hall now at Kimberly and plan to fix up the upper part of the building and have a still nicer place to meet. During the business session, Mrs. Carrie Jones was elected chaplain as the chaplain had resigned. Mrs. Jones was installed by Roy Durk, of Kimberly Grange. A letter was read from the fair secretary giving this Grange their regular booth in the agriculture building, which reminds us that it isn't long until the fair. After other routine matters were disposed of the meeting was given over to Mrs. O. G. Brooks, lecturer of Fairview Grange, who presented the following program as a Major Bowes amateur hour.

Two songs by the Fairview mixed chorus; tap dance by Betsy and Caroline Jensen; impersonation, R. C. Fox, Twin Falls.

There will be a softball game and Wilma and Wanda Cole of Jerome will be there with their ponies. The grandfathers of the little ladies is a member of Filer Grange. There will be games for all. And Editor Jimmy come down and eat chicken with us. Bring the wife along if you have one and if you haven't, bring someone else.

A. HARVESTER. P.S.—I just heard by short wave that the cow that cut such capers out at Deep Creek, was a couple of jitter-bug gas masquerading as a cow. They were so likable, that the Harder dog wasn't going to let them come into the room, and had to be held to keep him from biting the cow.

"Between the Book Ends," by Ted Malone, alias A. Harvester; solo, Mrs. F. L. Atkins; Negro dance, Thayne Roberts. (This number was especially good.) Song, "The Preacher and the Bear," J. R. Crawford. For an encore Mr. Crawford told of the trip to the city that Master Frank Beer of Kimberly made in company with Fomona Master, Eric Jones. This was very funny. I hope, Sandwiches, cake, cookies, coffee and iced tea were served by the host Grange, making the end of a near perfect day. You're a fine bunch, Kimberly, and we look forward with pleasure to more trips to your Grange, and thanks for a fine time.

BUHL Buhl Grange met Tuesday night with a good crowd in the Grange hall and had as their guests Northview Grange. I. E. Stansell gave a talk on chemistry, which is a subject that is always of interest to the farmers, as it offers a way out of ruinous surpluses of farm products. Northview was very funny. I hope, Sandwiches, cake, cookies, coffee and iced tea were served by the host Grange, making the end of a near perfect day. You're a fine bunch, Kimberly, and we look forward with pleasure to more trips to your Grange, and thanks for a fine time.

POMONA PICNIC The annual Pomona Grange picnic will be held at the Filer fair grounds, Sunday next. All Grange members are invited to come and spend the day with the Grange friends from all over the county. And folks, you better gunk up for the occasion, as we will sure have the cats. Fried chicken—yum, yum. Bring along a basket lunch, lemons, sugar and your appetites. The Grange will furnish ice cream and ice.

There will be a softball game and Wilma and Wanda Cole of Jerome will be there with their ponies. The grandfathers of the little ladies is a member of Filer Grange. There will be games for all. FILER Miss Ethel Smith and Tom Smith left Sunday for a week's visit with their sister, Mrs. Glen Copeland and family, Walla Walla, Wash.

L. M. Smith left Sunday to look after business interests in Grand View, Ore. His daughter, Elizabeth, accompanied him as far as Mountain Home, for a visit with friends.

Mrs. J. W. Creed and three sons left Tuesday for De Soto, Mo., to spend the winter with her mother.

Earl Ramsey, superintendent of the rural high school has announced the opening date of the Filer rural high school to be Sept. 3. Registration date will be Monday, Sept. 2. The North Street Dinner club will meet Tuesday, Aug. 20, with Mrs. Ed Rend.

Honoring Mrs. J. W. Creed, who has gone to Missouri for several months, a dessert bridge luncheon and handkerchief shower were given Monday at the home of Mrs. Lewis Hack, and Mrs. J. T. Anderson as assistant hostesses. Three tables of bridge were at play with the prizes going to Mrs. T. Dan Connor and Mrs. Caroline Jensen.

IT'S NEW

By W. H. WILSON In this age of synthetic fabrics, it remains for the old timers to recall when our clothing was made chiefly of cotton and wool.

Clothing from trees, where Adam got his first suit of leaves with two pair of branches, may soon be in fashion. Fibers resembling silk can be spun from the filaments of a new liquid wood, made of pulp with hydrogen added. In line with other clothing industry fabrics, a wood may be born. In winter emergencies, then, man can give the shirt off his back to keep the furnace fire going.

Style Commands "Into Black"

Splendid examples of that important "first black dress" for late summer and afterward are the two American-designed ones pictured here. The chic black wool jersey model, left, has a fitted, basque-like bodice and the very new gathered apron front. The other, of black silk crepe, has the new sleek "string bean" look about it. Notice the horizontal tucks and the high pockets.

Bob Feller Cops 21st Victory; Reds Capture Two

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Joe Cronin hasn't much to smile about these days as he watches the miracle he predicted—the fall of the Yankees—come to pass, as his Red Sox squander opportunity after opportunity because of their woeful pitching staff.

It could happen only in Cleveland, the Indians of which city are the only outfit in professional baseball with two parks to be used to the best advantage.

After playing all its big and Sunday and holiday games in the $2,500,000 lakefront municipal stadium with a capacity of more than 70,000, the Cleveland management took the two-game series with Detroit, the hottest of the year, to old League park, where no more than 20,000 can be accommodated.

Cyril C. Slapnicka's plan was, of course, to give the Tribe a bulge in the direction of a 290-foot right field fence, while handicapping the Tigers, whose power is preponderantly right-handed.

The Cincinnati Reds came out of their hitting slump and blasted out a double victory over the Chicago Cubs, 9-4 and 6-3.

Budnick, Duezabou Swing Fists as Cowboys Lose, 6-3

IDAHO FALLS, Aug. 17 (Special)—Big Mike Budnick, who was sent down from the Western International league to the Twin Falls Cowboys to see if he couldn't curb his temper, lost what could have been a perfect game last night when the "curbing" didn't work.

The final score of the contest was 6-3 for the Idaho Falls Russets, but going into the fifth inning Mike had a perfect game behind him—retired the first three men to face him in each of the initial four innings.

Then in the fifth he hit Mel Duezabou and the latter charged with fire in his eyes. The diminutive second baseman and the gangling pitcher tangled and they couldn't be separated until the peace got things under control.

However, from there on out Mike was not at his best and after pitching by Art Carpenter, the ace Cowboy relief hurler had an off night and it finally took Jack Hall to quell the uprising—but not until five runs.

had been pushed across the plate. In the inning there were two singles, two errors and two bases on balls.

All the Twin Falls runs came in the seventh when Bill Randall doubled and then scored on Verne Reynolds' single. Then Johnny Archer, who has been the hitting sensation of the road trip for the Cowboys, stepped up and smashed out a home run to drive in the other two runs.

The loss left the Cowboys still seven games in the cellar as the fifth-place Pocatello club also took a beating. The defeat was only the fourth out of the last 15 games for the Wranglers.

For tonight's game, pitching selections are Damon Hayes for Manager Ray Jacobs and Al Emmertson for Manager Ted Mayer of the Russets.

Bees Nearly Clinch Title With 2nd Win

(By United Press) The Salt Lake Bees made it two straight over the Boise Pilots last night, 6 to 5, before 3,000 fans in Salt Lake City.

A roaring three-run rally in the ninth tied the score for the Pilots, during which Larry Jansen, ace Bees right-hander, had to be rushed in to rescue Mel Marlowe and Nig Tate.

Jansen opened the Bees' half of the ninth with a walk, made his way around to third on a sacrifice and an infield hit, and scored on Manager Tom Robello's sacrifice fly for the winning marker.

Jack Montz was found for nine hits for the Bees. The Salt Lake victory puts the Robellomen 10 1/2 games ahead of the Pilots, and only a miracle could stop them from winning the pennant now.

The Idaho Falls Russets evened their series with the Twin Falls Cowboys, with a 6-3 victory at Idaho Falls. The Russets sent Mike Budnick to the showers, for his second defeat of the season. Budnick and Mel Duezabou of Idaho Falls mixed it up a bit in the fifth, when Duezabou was hit by one of Budnick's fast ones.

Ogden hammered out a 17 to 1 victory over the Pocatello Cardinals at Ogden. O'Boyle, Mills and Kempe were used on the mound by the Cards, with Ford holding the Pocatello aggregation to 5 hits.

Bees' Rookie Takes Lead in Bating Race

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Carvel (Bama) Rowell, Boston Bees surprise rookie second baseman, wrested the National league batting lead from Harry Danning, New York Giants' catcher who had held it almost continuously since the season got underway, by adding 11 percentage points to his batting average the past week and climbing to .339.

Danning slumped 10 points and dropped to .324 for third place behind Dixie Walker, Brooklyn outfielder, who is batting .325, according to the figures through games of Thursday.

Rip Radcliff, St. Louis Browns' outfielder, maintained his American league lead with an average of .350 despite an eight-point slump. Lou Finney, Boston Red Sox outfielder, first baseman, moved into second place with a mark of .347.

Freddy Fitzsimmons, Brooklyn veteran, held the National league pitching lead with 12 victories against two defeats and Buck Newson, Detroit right-hander, continued to pace the American league moundsmen with 15 victories against two losses.

Wilkie Backs Draft In Acceptance Talk

(From Page One) of any emergency and any defense, Wilkie said, "That is a pledge of material aid to Great Britain in a life-or-death struggle with Nazi Germany."

"I should like to state that I am in agreement with these two Roosevelt principles, as I understand them—and I don't understand them as implying military involvement in the present hostilities. As an American, I am glad to pledge my wholehearted support to the President in whatever action he may take in accordance with these principles."

"That led Wilkie to a slashing attack on Roosevelt foreign policies. "I cannot follow the President," he said.

"There have been occasions when many of us have wondered if he is deliberately inciting us to war. I trust I have made it plain that in the defense of America, and our liberties, I should not hesitate to stand for war."

"Inflammatory Statements" But Wilkie said the President had "dabbled in inflammatory statements and manufactured panics" instead of fulfilling the first duty of a President—"to try to maintain peace."

He said Mr. Roosevelt had caused bitterness and confusion "for the sake of a little political oratory," secretly mediated in European affairs, and unscrupulously caused other nations to hope for more aid than the United States could offer.

"Walk softly and carry a big stick" was the motto of Theodore Roosevelt," he said. "It still is good American doctrine for 1940. Under the present administration the country has been placed in the false position of shouting insults and not even beginning to prepare to take the consequences."

"But while he has thus been quick to tell other nations what they ought to do, Mr. Roosevelt has been slow to take the American people into his confidence. He has hesitated to report facts, to explain situations, or to define realistic objectives."

"As President, I plan to reverse both of these policies. I should threaten foreign governments only by them and when I was ready to act; and I should consider our diplomacy as part of the people's business."

RUSSIAN, TURKISH, GREEK GENERAL STAFF MEET CALLED

TENSION TERMED INCREASED; ITALY REFUSES BLAME

ATHENS, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Diplomatic circles here said today that emergency general staff meetings by the Russian, Turkish and Greek high commands are expected shortly.

The reports did not indicate when the general staff conversations would start but it was believed they would begin soon.

The reports said there would be a "series" of general staff talks which was taken to indicate a general meeting of the high commands was not contemplated, at least for the present.

The staff conversations were attributed here to the "tension" existing in southeast Europe, which has been heightened by the torpedoing of a Greek cruiser and the bombing of two Greek destroyers in the last two days. The Greek and Italian governments each denied today Italian planes attacked the Greek destroyers.

Tension Increases

However, tension between Italy and Greece was obviously on the increase.

Greece is calling up reserve specialists for service Aug. 20.

Reports here and abroad had persisted in identifying the planes which bombed the destroyers as Italian but the government, already embroiled in ever-increasing difficulties with Italy, said the reports were not true.

Ostensibly the men called to the colors today will participate in large scale Greek army maneuvers and they will report for duty on Aug. 20.

Reserves Called up

In addition to calling up reserve officers and specialists, it was announced, the class of 1932 was called up, effective Aug. 25, for a short period of training in modern weapons. The class of 1933, now in training, will be released on Aug. 29.

The original call specifically was for maneuvers.

The bombing attack on the two Greek destroyers by airplanes took place as the destroyers were en route conveying passenger ships from the island of Tinos where the Greek cruiser Helle was torpedoed and sunk by an unidentified submarine Thursday.

DRAFT MEASURE FOES CLAIM GAIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Members of the senate anti-conscription bloc claimed an eight-vote "margin of victory" today in their drive to modify the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

Foes of the measure, which would require 12,000,000 Americans between 21 and 31 years of age to register for a year's army training, said they had gained four votes during the last 48 hours in behalf of the amendment of Sen. Francis T. Maloney, D., Conn., which would defer the draft until Jan. 1.

Maloney's plan would require the army to try voluntary enlistments stimulated by increased basic army pay and a one-year rather than three-year enlistment period. If quotas are still unmet, the draft would become effective automatically.

Members of the anti-conscription bloc planned an intensive drive this week-end to gain support for Maloney's substitute and to defeat the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., unofficial leader of the bloc, has expressed himself as a "last-ditch" opponent of any form of conscription. He objects to Maloney's proposal because it would compromise the issue.

Wells Residents Fight Brush Fires

WELLS, Aug. 17 (Special)—Entire mountain side south of Wells was ablaze Wednesday night as a result of a brush fire started by lightning.

Citizens of Wells were alive with excitement. Preparations were made to fight the fire should a change of wind bring the flames to the city limits. The city council instructed all citizens to conserve the water supply for emergency purposes. Several groups of fighters from Wells went out into the hills in attempts to put out the fire by shoveling dirt on the flames.

The fire was started when lightning struck near the hillside ranch of Hubert Weeks and Mr. Simpson during a severe electrical storm Tuesday afternoon. It was brought under control Tuesday night by 60 CCC workers, but broke out again about 8:30 a. m. Wednesday. It spread in several directions at one time, endangering orchards and fields of W. H. Franklin. Volunteer workers fought to save Mr. Franklin's grain crop.

Shots of the fire burned all around the Wells power plant, destroying several poles. It was necessary to shut off the power for a short time. Workers were able to save the power house.

It was reported in Wells that the car of H. H. Cazier was trapped in the fire. Later reports said that the car had been saved. As a safety measure workers plowed around the Cazier home ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robertson and small daughter were forced to leave their home at the United States experiment station in Clover canyon. However the station was not damaged.

While there are small fires still burning in the mountains, those nearest Wells have been extinguished.

Today there are more than 25,000,000 cars and about 4,250,000 motor trucks on the highways.

SEES ROOSEVELT FIGHTING WALL STREET EVIL

Editor, Evening Times: "As a man thinketh, so is he." Therefore the man who has always voted the Democratic or Republican tickets may really be either or neither. The Communists, Buddhists, Fascists and all other beliefs vote some ticket in this country. To be the one or the other a person must have certain fundamental beliefs in economic and sociology. Perhaps never before has the division been so definitely drawn as it will be in this November election. We know definitely the line President Roosevelt will follow regarding the persecuting powers of finance and the real enemies of liberty that are centered in Wall street.

Any well read or radio informed man today knows that the slogan, "We want Willie," originated in Wall street. Therefore we can know that he represents and has the blessing of that persecuting power that caused all the bank failures which resulted in the 10 year years that are records of the past.

This small group of evil men believes he will liberate them from the curbs of such New Deal laws as the holding company act and the S. E. C. act so they can again pyramid worthless stocks and bonds and swindle the gullible public. The thinking men and women are determined to liberate our social structure from the hidden tenebras of this Wall street octopus.

These good citizens of our country will not deviate from their course but will vote for President Roosevelt. To them the third term issue has no meaning other than they wish to return to America's hardest and greatest job the man whose moral fibre has been tried in the fires of experience and emerged tempered so strong that he can be trusted by rich and poor alike to carry to the end the course best suited for all in this world crisis.

This campaign bids fair to remove from the ranks of each party those riders or politicians who blow neither hot nor cold but are out for what cash they can get for fooling the voters as much as possible. It is a good thing for those whose philosophy is against a liberal government policy to protect the common masses from aggression within to come from behind their smoke screen and openly support Wendell Willkie.

May we ask them to set up along the highways as many signs as they can financially afford so we humble citizens may know who they are and deal with them accordingly. The powers of darkness take many shapes and forms and can best be destroyed when openly displayed to light. The evil that swells and grows all the time hidden in the shadows and never reveals itself in sunshine is the one that leads to destruction of nations.

Poisonous fungus always grows in shadows and never on light.

DUKE SWORN IN TO BAHAMA POST

NASSAU, Aug. 17 (U.P.)—The duke of Windsor landed at ancient St. George's wharf today and was sworn to office as governor of the Bahamas.

The duke, accompanied by his American-born duchess, stepped ashore from a gray steamer to the sound of a royal salute and the strains of "God Save the King."

He wore a khaki general's uniform and the duchess wore a flowered blue and pink dress, a royal blue coat, a white-shelled turban and blue jeweled ear rings with clip to match.

A crowd of 16,000 persons jammed the waterfront, Rawson's square and Bay street to watch the arrival.

Stands at Attention

The duke stood at attention during the ceremonies while the duchess smiled at the honor guard and fanned herself with a palm leaf fan as the duke reviewed the troops turned out in his honor.

Only 16 minutes after he first stepped foot on Bahamian soil, the duke was sworn into office. He repeated the official oath after Chief Justice E. B. Daly in the colony's council chamber.

Mrs. W. L. Heape, wife of the acting governor, set the fashion in greeting the duchess. She bowed when she was introduced to the woman for whom Windsor gave up the throne of Great Britain. Other officials then followed her precedent and bowed, too.

Crowds Line Streets

As the Windsors came off the steamer which carried them from the Bahamas the crowds that lined the streets, rooftops and filled the harbor in small craft cheered and applauded.

W. K. Moore, president of the Bahamian legislative council, welcomed the duke on behalf of the islanders.

According to the U. S. bureau of public roads the average motor vehicle in 1938 traveled 8,870 miles.

ONE TEAM EARNS PUSH-CAR HONORS

The team of Doug Smith and Lyle Helder took just about everything there was to take at last night's annual pushmobile derby with the exception of the 50-yard backward race which was won by Kenneth Roberts and Bob Anderson.

An estimated 200 persons witnessed the races which were held on Shoshone street between Fourth and Sixth avenues east starting at 8 p. m. The 1940 primary election and apparent Democratic nominee for senator, said today if he wins the general election and goes to Washington, "I'm just going to stand up there and tell them plenty."

Taylor, in his first interview since winning the nomination, said he would tell members of the senate the same thing he told Idaho voters during the three months he, his wife and five-year-old son toured the state during the primary campaign.

"I'll tell the senate the people of the United States should cooperatively own and operate the nation's business to produce plenty for everybody, not just profit for a few," Taylor told the United Press.

The 36-year-old actor son of a "minister by profession; farmer by necessity" denied such a stand was in favor of Communism.

Bumps Curb

Only one near "motor" mishap occurred during the contests and this came when one contestant bumped his head against the curb when he lost control of his machine in the backward race and crashed.

Before actual races got underway, judging was held on construction with Helder and Smith winning first prize. Leonard Hampton and Bob Crandall, sponsored by the Chaney Motor company, came in second while third award for construction went to Eugene Vombur and Kenneth Roberts.

CITY POOL WILL CLOSE ON AUG. 30

Twin Falls' municipal swimming pool at Harmon park will close for the season the night of Friday, Aug. 30 it was announced this afternoon by Frank Carpenter, pool manager.

During the season thousands have taken advantage of the opportunity to swim in the structure and scores have learned to swim for the first time after attending classes which were in charge of Carpenter and in which life guards served as instructors. Other scores of swimmers received advanced training during the summer months.

At the same time as announcement of the pool's closing was made, it was also revealed that state department of health records show the pool to be the safest cold water plunge in the state.

Daily water tests are studied by the health department and three water tests are taken daily for chlorine count.

Although several cases of eye infection have been reported this year during swimming activities, not one has been traced to the city owned structure.

Lionel A. Dean, city park commissioner, is in charge of pool activities.

Glen Taylor Will Tell Senate "Plenty"—If He Wins Election

POCATELLO, Ida., Aug. 17 (U.P.)—Glen Taylor, Pocatello cowboy entertainer, surprise package of the 1940 Idaho primary election and apparent Democratic nominee for senator, said today if he wins the general election and goes to Washington, "I'm just going to stand up there and tell them plenty."

Taylor, in his first interview since winning the nomination, said he would tell members of the senate the same thing he told Idaho voters during the three months he, his wife and five-year-old son toured the state during the primary campaign.

"It's no 'ism," he asserted, "it's just extension of cooperation." He calls this platform one of "production for use." In his primary campaign he evaded most international issues and intends to do the same between now and November. His only international plank is that "I'm against sending our boys across the ocean to fight."

Taylor said that in his campaign he had no political backing. His "political machine" consisted of "the most wonderful wife in the country," Dora, and his son, Arod, a name derived by spelling Dora backwards.

It was Arod's singing and the acting of the trio that brought crowds to hear Taylor as he stumped the state. The same plan—entertainment, songs and short speeches—will be used in the general election campaign, where he will be opposed by Sen. John Thomas, Republican incumbent, with the remaining two years of the late Sen. W. E. Borah's term at stake.

this little COUPON tells a 4-ply story of Times-News Pulling Power

In last Thursday's Idaho Evening Times and last Friday's Twin Falls News, M. H. King and Co., placed a four column by ten inch ad. Filled with the characteristic values offered by this firm, it was fully expected the results would be good. But when a final check-up was made through the coupon included in the ad as shown, Mr. Russell H. Jensen, manager, found that more than 400 persons had availed themselves of the coupon offer! A real "result-story" — and here's what else it told:

1. It proved that newspaper advertising pays, and is one of the easiest and most effective ways to invite prospective customers into your store. It proved that your daily newspapers are media upon which you can depend for actual, tangible results.
2. It proved that both the Times and News have tremendous pulling power. Of a total of 429 coupons returned, 212 were from one paper, 217 from the other. That means that Twin Falls merchants have at their command two lively news media with an equal amount of reader interest.
3. It proves that advertising is real news to newspaper readers and that even big "front-page news" cannot crowd merchandising values aside. Inasmuch as the coupon in M. H. King's ad appeared well inside, it proves that the Twin Falls newspapers are so designed so as to carry reader interest throughout.
4. It proves, too, if you have merchandising news to tell, your daily newspapers can best convey your message; that a visual presentation of the goods you have to sell is the surest way to merchandising success.
