

ADMINISTRATOR POINTS TO IMPROVEMENT IN WPA WORK

NO POLITICS TO BE ALLOWED IN WORKERS' RANKS

Dean W. Miller, state WPA administrator, today told members of the supervisory of the organization from this section of Idaho that there is no reason why an inefficient worker should be kept on the rolls, and that the work is improving in this state and that we have no apologies to make for the quality of work being done here.

Miller spoke at a special meeting which was held today at the American Legion hall. He came during the morning session. Nearly 150 men, including state officials, project supervisors and workers, listened to the speaker.

Miller pointed out that workers on the WPA must perform "a fair day's work to receive their money."

Miller's appreciation of the WPA work was expressed under which we are now operating, congress doesn't expect us to care for every unemployed, needy person in the state.

"Our quota is now 7,200 and we have about 4,000 more who have been referred for jobs which are now on the waiting list."

"Therefore, there is no reason why an inferior worker should be kept on the rolls. If he is not doing a good job, he will be replaced and because of this policy the WPA project work is being improved, and is showing a steady improvement."

Miller also told those at today's session that he will not stand for any pressure on a certified worker that would influence his vote or his political views as he pleases.

Divisional Meetings

"If we find that any of the supervisors is doing a job that we are not satisfied with, the guilty party will be discharged," Miller said.

Following his remarks, the three divisional meetings were held. Discussion in the operating division was in charge of Lewis Roberts, director of the Sun Valley project. The director of the division of professional service directed discussion among members of the body. The finance division discussion was directed by L. W. Scott, director of finance.

Talks were given to all three divisions by Ray Ramsey, director of employment.

A special meeting was held yesterday in Boise and another will be held tomorrow at Pocatello. Another is scheduled for Coeur d'Alene on Sept. 11.

Bury Hatchet To Get Field, Idaho Told

Under the national program it is only feasible to build one airline field in the Magic Valley and it would serve all communities within 50 miles. Smaller fields in each community could be used for the civilian pilot training program, local operators and private owners.

Fill All Needs

The large field would fill military needs and government operations as well as airline needs.

"An immediate effort should be made on the part of all communities in the Magic Valley to select a representative who would determine just where such a field should be located and what the benefits would be by serving the mobile people. Such a field should be as near the center of population as possible."

Work was here today with W. H. (Pete) Hill, Idaho director of aeronautics. They conferred with Leonard A. Dean, commercial pilot and councilman, and Flea B. Wilson, city engineer, regarding the master plan of the local field. Yesterday they conferred with state officials and also the Burley heads.

MIDDLE-AGE WOMEN

Thousands of women are being misled by the "miraculous" claims of the "miraculous" compound—Amose (Loving) Female Functionals (Loving's Female Functionals, 777 1/2)

Recruiter Says Porthole Not Factor in Enlistment

Many people will not believe it, but take it from C. A. Edmondson, officer in charge of the navy recruiting station at the postoffice, the greatest majority of applicants "sign up" in order that they might learn a trade, and not that they might see the world through a porthole. This fact was established today in an interview with an Evening Times reporter.

Generally speaking, it appears that a great many young men do still continue to join the navy to "see the world" in the face of not infrequent god-awful views from their friends that the view from a porthole of a ship is not to be somewhat restricted one, but the greatest majority of applicants do, nonetheless, profess a serious-minded desire to learn a trade," Edmondson said. "He continued: "It has been said by one of the country's leading educators that one of the most striking developments in education during the past 10 years has been the tremendous growth of part time schools, evening schools, correspondence schools, and all kinds of instruction for men and women who are employed. States, cities, colleges and even the great business corporations of the country are spending millions of dollars on education for people who have to earn and learn at the same time.

The chief reason for the success and rapid growth of this kind of instruction is that, studying any trade or business, and getting practical working experience in the same line at the same time, seems to be an almost ideal combination for practical success. The man who can follow his chosen line of work and study it at the same time gets a broad, practical knowledge of his trade or business that is hard to get in any other way.

Regarding the navy method of training for a trade, the commanding officer said: "Such training in the navy commences on the day a man enters the service and ends on the day he leaves it, but he does it at the end of one enlistment or on his retirement after 20 years."

During the interview, Edmondson would not give an opinion as to the total number of trades and professions practiced by men in civil life, but he did state that 55 different and distinct trades are engaged in by men of the navy.

He mentioned machinist, electrician, painter, printer, shipfitter, baker, cook, radioman, carpenter, molder, patternmaker, stenographer, photographer, photographer, boiler-maker, musician, metallinist, aerographer, aviation machinist and aviation metallinist.

Such training in the navy commences on the day a man enters the service and ends on the day he leaves it, but he does it at the end of one enlistment or on his retirement after 20 years."

The film presentation will feature three reels explaining the interesting story of establishing and maintaining the worker's social security account, which has been called the "biggest bookkeeping job in the world." The second part illustrates the payment of unemployment compensation benefits in Idaho while the final reel will be "Social Security of the Nation," the San Francisco Golden Gate exposition reel.

This tells, according to officials, the dramatic story of the entire social security program which, in addition to federal old-age and survivors insurance, includes unemployment compensation, the states' free employment service, aid to the needy aged, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Nobody has been praying for anything much harder than this administration had been praying for a permanent settlement to the threatened strike of airplane workers in Boeing's Seattle factory.

Blitz-Year Ends; Burdens U. S.

Can it be only a year ago that the world's peace machinery thudded to complete breakdown, and war spread like an ugly blot over the face of Europe? Can a single year have so changed the world?

Yes, only a year. On Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler's legions crossed the border into Poland. On the 3rd Britain and France declared war, the effort to make Hitler draw back having proved useless.

So short a time ago, and yet so long. We almost forget the spark that set it off. It was the argument over Danzig and the Polish corridor, a not insoluble problem which the slightest good will would have peaceably settled.

Within a month Poland lay prostrate. Within two months the United States had repealed the embargo on arms that had been designed to keep war aloof.

The same 12 months have seen the United States turn resolutely to arming itself and to building a water-tight dike of defense around the New World.

Perhaps never in history have such tremendous changes come in a single year. The tempo of human affairs has speeded up almost beyond understanding or endurance.

Defense against dynamic forces must be dynamic. We have liberty to preserve, and a free way of life and living; so we must be strong.

Ten Million Acres
When farms raise more of any given crop than can be sold in the United States or abroad, and do it year after year, there would seem to be two primary solutions.

For 20 years a series of attempts has been made to accomplish No. 1. But many people do not realize how much progress has been made along the lines of No. 2.

Twenty years ago soy beans were almost a novelty. This year more than 10,000,000 acres are being devoted to raising them.

Every refugee from war-ravaged Europe who manages to reach the United States is a living story of personal tragedy. Gone the old associations, the skills and connections built up in a lifetime; everything must be built up from the ruins of a life.

Standing out in this welter of tragedy are certain prominent individuals, and latest among them is Sigrid Undset, Norwegian novelist and Nobel prize-winner.

"France always was the brains of Europe," she said sadly. "If she is smashed permanently, I fear it will be the end of Europe. We had something, England had something. But France had everything."

Europe has recovered from many grievous wounds down through the centuries. But if this final wound should kill the brain—what price survival then?

HILLMAN'S RECORD AT STAKE

It is nearly vital to the administration of the defense commission that a strike be prevented. For one thing, a strike which stopped work in a major airplane factory would mean the immediate loss of land in the middle of the presidential campaign with a resulting loss of momentum.

Under the surface, there have been a number of complaints by labor about Hillman's record on date on the defense commission. Burden of them is chiefly that he has been more anxious to help in the negotiations than to secure the gains and defend its rights.
