Cincinnati Sinks Tigers in Second Series Tilt, 5-3

By HARRY FERGUSON
CROSLY FIELD, CINCINNATI, Oct. 3 (UP)—Bucky Walters' sinker ball sank the Detroit Tigers today and the Cincinnati Reds evened up the world series by winning the second game, 5 to 3.

Silencing the bats of the Tigers with three menacing hits, Bucky brought the Reds surging back into contention for the championship of baseball. For while Bucky the Baffler was doing his work, his teammates went out and pounded Schooby Rowe out of the box. The Schoolboy, who got a lesson he will long remember today, took the walk to the showers in the fourth inning when Cincinnati base hits began whistling across the diamond.

Walters might have had a shut-out but for the fact that he broke into two wild streaks when his sinker got out of control. He walked the first two men up in the ball game—Dick Bartell and Barney McCoskey—and then Charley Gehringer blew him.

The Story of Your Newspaper I Am Your Mechanic

face I was admitted to fill standing in my craft. Not only all, but character, were considered before I was admitted. I forgot three years ago that a printer and a mechanic are not the same thing. I have been printing the written word. I am, solid, dependable. My neighbors know me as a good citizen and a good neighbor. I bear responsibility, and I bear it steadily. I have never forgotten that three days when printer and mechanic were one, the days of old Ben Franklin. Though my work is now all mechanical, I still have an eye for a good story. I have pride in my work. A poor bit of makeup, a faded eye, a splintered nose, a forgotten three-year-old story, things worry me. I know good work, and I get a kick out of making it. # How to Spend Wisely-- That's Advertising Message

Calling on the merchant — first step in the advertising department's task of showing you how to stretch your dollars. An advertising specialist "lays out" the ad, using illustrations and text to best advantage. Taking care of national advertising from outside sources. Here an ad man is holding a "plate." Checking the "proof," to see that the message is presented accurately and as the merchant wishes it. Handling classifieds — the "little plants" of advertising — by telephone and over the office counter.

Aunt Sally—in a very long dress and a huge bird's nest hat—puffed down the wooden sidewalk.

She stopped to study the window displays at Grant's Emporium and General store.

She went inside and tediously studied out the price tags on a dozen things she wanted to purchase.

Out of Grant's Emporium, she puffed, and into the New York Apparel shop . . . then into the Jones Hardware store . . . and into half a dozen others on dusty Main street.

Three hours of that—every time Aunt Sally wanted to compare prices to get the most for her dollar.

All over America, just before 50 years ago, that was the rule.

It's just a memory today.

With the streamlined age and the almost unbelievable advances that have been achieved through America's inventive genius there has come, too, the means through which you and all Americans readily can find the things you want to buy . . . shop around from your armchair until you find the most advantageous place to buy them.

Personalized, pictorial, as hot as the banner lines on page one, newspaper advertising has influenced American progress more than even those who use it are aware. This direct-to-consumer message has been the major factor increasing sales of modern-day necessities and conveniences. And increased sales mean mass production, with lower costs of manufacture and therefore lower prices to retailers.

Without it your automobile would still cost $10,000, your radio would be a thousand-dollar instrument, scores of the luxuries you desire would be available only to the rich.

That's the background for the efficient specialized advertising service offered to Twin Falls and Magic Valley by Twin Falls newspapers. Consisting of five men and one girl, six advertising staff brings to you daily the merchandising messages that help you to live better and make your dollars go farther.

The department handles three different types of advertising—classified, national and local display. One man handles the national advertisements, such as gasoline, coal, auto and other ads from outside sources. Classified advertising is handled by one man and one girl on your Twin Falls newspapers. It is solicited by telephone and in person, and is taken over country. For the third type—local display ads—the entire staff is coordinated.

Few persons realize the steps needed to place an advertisement in Twin Falls newspapers, where it reaches more than 80 per cent of the total population of Magic Valley.

Let's look at those steps in the case of a local display ad.

First, the ad specialist calls on a merchant. Next he incorporates the merchant's ideas into an "ad layout." For this he may select illustrations from any of the three services offered by Twin Falls newspapers—the Meyer-Both, the Metro and the special photo service. If the advertisement is to be even more localized, the Times-News photography and engraving departments are called into play, and pictures taken in the store itself are soon made into engravings for use in the ad.

The Twin Falls papers offer the best facilities in the state in providing illustrated services, ranging from antiques to automobiles. These services provide an illustration for use in ads featuring such things as furniture, space, home appliances, apparel and almost any item you can think of.

If that sounds generalized, consider this: The advertising department receives 50,000 separate illustrations every year. In addition it has access to a special library of more than 3,000 "cuts" available on special order. And every one of these 50,000 illustrations is filed each year for possible use again.

With the master of pictures selected, the advertising layout man then puts the ad together into its physical design. Then the "copy," or written message, is composed and the whole is taken back to the merchant for his approval.

Next step finds the ad "scheduled" as to date, day and size. It's then taken to the composing room, set into type, brought back to the advertising department and checked for accuracy. After any necessary corrections, a revised copy or "proof" is taken to the merchant.

After that only two steps remain. When the paper is being "dummed"—drawing of the page layouts to guide the editing department and the composing room—the advertisement is marked on the page and the part of the page on which it is to be published. That dimming prevents conflict of various advertised products, keeps the advertising well balanced and gives each merchant the best position possible.

Soon thereafter you read the ad in print and more likely than not you find it a pleasure to stretch those dollars of yours.

The advertising staff of the Twin Falls papers is known throughout the Intermountain country for the excellence of its work. Its clean-cut and well illustrated advertisements have brought rich dividends to a large number of retail stores because Magic Valley knows that ads are the modern market place.

Newspaper Week, With Focus On Freedom, Draws Approval

Strong support for observance of National Newspaper week — with emphasis on the focal role of the American press in preserving traditional American freedom — was voiced today by a group of Twin Falls citizens chosen at random.

The comments follow:

W. W. Thomas, commander of Twin Falls American Legion post, said: "With all the turmoil and trouble existing in the world today, it behooves each United States citizen to protect his or her rights given by the great constitution of these United States, among which is the right of a free press. Let us guard our rights and it need be fight to keep them ours."

Rev. Roy E. Barnett, pastor of the Baptist church and president of the Twin Falls Ministerial association — "I not only add my voice in commendation of the work of the local press in forwarding community and religious endeavor, but also in this effort to bring before the American public the importance of continued press freedom. I join in the sincere hope that freedom of the press, as well as the other related freedoms of speech, will be perpetuated in America."

Alma M. Irelia McCoy, state president of the Business and Professional Women's clubs — "In these critical days citizens must determine facts and form their own opinions. The right of a free press in the United States gives each citizen the opportunity to know the facts. The emphasis is indeed a worthy contribution toward preservation of our democracy."

Superintendent Homer M. Davis of the Twin Falls district public school system — "We the public schools appreciate particularly the opportunity offered by the Twin Falls newspapers during their 'open house' to show students of south central Idaho the operations of a modern newspaper plant. It also offers the people in general an insight into the acute of newspaper publication operations, heads a showing the place of the press in the national scene."

Shepherd's View
K. J. Vallon, chairman of the merchant's bureau of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce — "National Newspaper week and its observance here is bringing home to the people the fact that they still have the right to write and say what they think, unincumbered by unjust censorship. I would also like to say that in carrying the Times-News plant I found it a revelation to observe the complexity of the process necessary to produce a newspaper. Despite this, the newspapers may be brought by the man on the street for a small sum which makes all its contents available to the people as a whole."

Gordon A. Day, Blaine river area council Boy Scout, executive — "Needless to say, the underlying principle of Boy Scout organization are American ideals, which include that of a free press. As the youth of today will be the nation's leaders of tomorrow, such an understanding of the importance of an unfettered press. Within the 'Boy Scout' organization itself there is the magazine 'Boys Life' as an example of the effort to provide accurate information as a basis for intelligent action."

Here Are 12 Good Reasons for Your Small Investment in Buying Times

- Twelve good reasons for investing approximately two cents a day to receive the Idaho Evening Times or the Twin Falls News by carrier for a month were outlined this afternoon by Al Westergren, circulation manager, in a statement made in connection with National Newspaper Week, now being observed by all publications.
- Mr. Westergren also pointed out that by mail, per month, the cost of such publications per day is approximately one and one-half cents. The mail edition is sent anywhere while the publications are delivered by carrier in a score of Magic Valley towns, in addition to Twin Falls.
- 12 Reasons
- In order to point out just what a daily paper means to the subscriber," Westergren said, "I have drawn up 12 reasons why you should not be without the Idaho Evening Times, the Twin Falls News or both."
  - The reasons, outlined by the circulation manager, follow:
    - You are kept abreast of "fundamental" news such as births, deaths, accidents, marriages, anniversaries and so forth. Without your daily Times or News you often don't hear of these things until days or weeks later.
    - Up-to-the-minute reports of world affairs arrive by United Press and Associated Press leased wires.
    - Concise news is delivered to clubs, lodges, churches and all types of organizations. Chances are you're a member.
    - Without your daily Times or News you can't read the "Sports Square" column.
    - The "localized" sport pages in Idaho are found in the Evening Times. Entertaining side columns are in "Sports Square" by Hal Wood.
    - Hundreds of money-saving advertisements, and your insured household contents will tip you off how she shops through the ads regularly and is far ahead of the budget in no time.
    - People who like to read fiction get many complete novels annually in both the Times and News. Daily indulgences are featured and at the present time this is running that interesting serial, "This Could Be Your Story."
    - Carefully selected comic strips and additional cartoons are voluntarily passed by men, women and children.
    - Want-ads—something everybody can use either as a buyer or seller. The want-ad page is full of things you want and things other people want.
    - Don't just "tag" your mail. Without your daily Times or News you can't really "take part" in life being on around you. You merely "tag along behind."
    - The Times and the News give you complete coverage every day. They are the mirror of Twin Falls and communities of the Magic Valley.
    - Will our children grow up and be alert to their surroundings? Yes, if they're added in getting a newspaper.

MUSSOLINI AND HITLER TO CONFER ON NEW ALLIANCE

ITALIANS TERM U. S. 'ENEMY' OF SPANISH NATION

BY REYNOLDS PACKARD
ROME, Oct. 3 (UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler will meet soon to discuss new developments following last week's signing of the German-Italian anti-Comintern military alliance. It was reported persistently but without official confirmation today.

Ramon Serrano Suñer, Spanish minister of the interior, who had been scheduled to return to Madrid today suddenly postponed his departure, at least until tomorrow.

He had planned to leave today with brief rest stops on his way to Madrid for Suñer's report and was expected to decide from there whether to throw Spain into the war, possibly within the next few weeks.

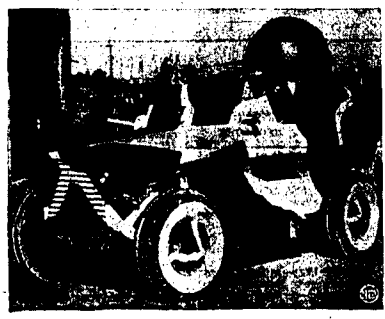

An official announcement said Suñer will stay in Rome at least until tomorrow. Unofficial sources said Suñer would stay two more days, in an unofficial capacity.

The Spanish question was predominant here. Mussolini's newspaper Popolo d'Italia said Spain's right to Latin America was one of the "three great objectives" of the combined future of Italy and Spain. The other two were the Mediterranean and Africa. The newspaper linked these aspirations with the German-Italian plans for the reconstruction of Europe.

Three Great Enemies
"Spain has had three great enemies in her long history—England, France and the United States," the newspaper said. "The present conflict is not a mere flame of imperialistic ambitions or financial interests as have been so many wars in the past. The present conflict is an historical struggle, an economic and social revolution."

"Italian, German and Spanish contributions to European civilization represent at least 70 per cent and the rest can be divided as follows: Ancient Greece, 10 per cent; England, five; France, five; other European peoples, eight; the United States, two."

He was scheduled to speak at 2:30 p. m. (MST), after which his campaign caravan heads into North Dakota.

Wallace arraigned eastern Republicans as the "enemies of agriculture" last night before 1,500 persons at Spokane, Wash.

"They are even careless about saving the faces of their own fellow Republicans in the west, as you have seen in the way they embarrassed the able and public-spirited Sen. McNary (Republican vice-presidential nominee)," he said.

He told his audience the November election was more than a political selection of candidates. It is a referendum on the whole farm program.

MR. BUSINESSMAN, HERE'S the STORY:

What is it you want most in your place of business? What do you have in mind when you trim your windows? What is it you expect to get when you spend money for advertising?

BUYING TRAFFIC, of course, and the more the better!

That's understood, but there's a lot more to the story.

There are many types of advertising, and it's a wise merchant who can figure out an advertising program that will give him the greatest results at lowest cost. It's easy to fritter away a lot of money on scattered shots of ineffective advertising, but it's not so easy to understand why the expected results are not forthcoming after the money is spent.

Let's draw a simple comparison.

You could go about your place of business every morning killing the flies, one by one, with a fly swatter. You could go even further by putting out sticky fly paper, poison and what not, but still you wouldn't be killing them off fast enough to get the job done. So instead of scattering your shots in an ineffective fly-killing campaign, you use a spray gun and knock 'em off by the hundreds with every pump of the plunger.

Believe it or not, that's something to think about when you consider advertising. You can spend your money on scattered shots with different methods of advertising that reach comparatively few people, or you can concentrate on one advertising weapon that's just as effective as a spray gun is on flies.

Perhaps you do not realize it, but comparatively few newspapers in the United States cover their trade territory so thoroughly as do the Idaho Evening Times and Twin Falls News. Delivered into 16,100 homes every day, these newspapers are read by 98 per cent of the people in Twin Falls, 80 per cent of the people in Twin Falls county, and 80 per cent of all the people living in the eight counties of Magic Valley!

That all of these newspapers are bought and paid for is sufficient evidence that they are actually wanted in these 16,100 homes—the most welcome medium possible for your advertising message.

There's the whole story. Is it better to scatter your shots, or to concentrate on the Times-News advertising spray gun which you know is teaching practically all of your trade territory?

IRVING CAMPBELL LOOMS AS STAR OF SERIES

Tiger Star Leads Hitters After Initial Contest

By GEORGE KIRKSEY CINCINNATI, Oct. 3 (UP)—The world series has a way of dragging up those little human interest stories that only baseball can produce.

For example, the strange story of Bruce Campbell. Here he is today with one leg on the hero's trophy after an amazing career that has hovered perilously close to tragedy.

The fellow who held down right field for the Tigers yesterday and batted out a single and home run, drove in two runs and leaped out in front of his more famous teammate with a batting average of .667 is playing on borrowed time.

Back in 1925 he was carted to the hospital with spinal meningitis and the doctors told him not once but several times during the fall of that year and the spring of 1926, he never played ball again.

But the stout-spoken Chicago boy smiled again at the sad news, and in a valiant struggle that baffled his doctors, he won his way to the hospital in Chicago, Detroit and Boston fighting for his life.

Closest Call But the stout-spoken Chicago boy smiled again at the sad news, and in a valiant struggle that baffled his doctors, he won his way to the hospital in Chicago, Detroit and Boston fighting for his life.

He just got out of the Cleveland Indians in time. They traded him to the Tigers last winter in an even swap for Beau Bell.

Modesty prevents Campbell from talking about his narrow escape from the Cleveland hospital.

Campbell was a last-minute starter in the opening game against the Reds.

Old Manager Will Catch For Bucky Walters Today

By HENRY McEMORE CINCINNATI, Oct. 3 (UP)—This is a story that had its beginning on a plate of fried chicken, way down south where the moon is big and the Spanish moss sways in the live oak trees.

It is the story—as those of you who know your baseball already have guessed—of those two Cincinnati Reds, Bucky Walters and Jimmy Wilson.

Walters said no, Wilson argued. They were on the third helping of chicken before Walters reluctantly agreed to pitch.

Most of you know the trials and tribulations of Walters as a pitcher. His first start was against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Henry Defends Title Friday; Tackles Zivic

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (UP)—With sports interest shuttling busily between the world series and football, one of the best prizefighters of the year has crept up virtually unnoticed.

That's tomorrow night's world title brawl at Madison Square Garden between welterweight champion Henry Armstrong and prizefighter Zivic of Pittsburgh.

This 15-rounder shapes up as a grand battle and a mighty dangerous one for the bull-shoeddered little Los Angeles Negro who is making his 20th defense of the 147-pound crown.

Zivic is one of the best all-around fighters Armstrong ever tackled. This 28-year-old Croatian from Pittsburgh's east side is fast, smart, punch and tough.

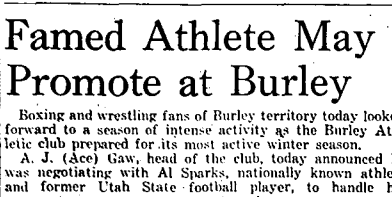

Unquestionably Armstrong has been one of the greatest fighters the ring ever knew. He has lost but one bout in 50 contests during the past four years.

Fraud Claimed In Results of Salmon Derby

SEATTLE, Oct. 3 (AP)—Seattle's famed Salmon derby acquired a slight taint today when it was revealed that four entries, who captured all but two of the top prizes, allegedly had bought their fish from Indians and "planted" the salmon that later were adjudged the biggest of the catch.

The alleged fraud came to light when grand larceny charges were filed against Anthony Zuanich, Jr. and Frank Dupue of Everett, Wash., and M. E. Smith of Spokane. Zuanich and Dupue are held by police, together with Miss June Smallcraft of Aneta, N. Dak., detained as a material witness. She completed as an "unemployed waitress," and won one of the top prizes.

The Seattle Tribune, sponsor of the derby, said the four automobiles awarded the accused persons had been recovered.

Police quoted Zuanich as saying Smith and Dupue bought four large salmon from Indian trappers, kept the fish alive in a submerged box, killed them the night before the derby, Sept. 29, then carried them on the beach and entered them as their prize catches.

Antelope Hunt Proves Success; Ketchum Sportsmen Get Bucks

KETCHUM, Oct. 3 (Special)—The five-day open season on antelope closed off successfully locally—for the hunters, not the antelope. Nearly everyone, so far as ascertained, got his pronghorn, and a good many visitors extended the sport to find the public has been denied for a great many years. The range being almost the last sport to be eliminated the need to the extent of 450, that is theoretically. Actually, it has not been disclosed that the hunters took that many animals. This is based on the assumption that Ketchum, having the largest number of hunters in the state game department lottery, and practically every one of the 32 bagging either a buck or doe, the average in the five counties of Custer, Blaine, Blaine and Jefferson, would not hold up to the department's record, unless some odd circumstances and slight application figures developed.

However, it was a good hunt and everybody enjoyed it, some with a camera. The first day when the fellows afield, despite stormy and cold conditions. The road over trail creek summit was virtually blocked by sign not only on the road, but standing the route has been straightened out in fine manner, and over the mountains, and practically every one interfered for a short time, though the routes soon cleared in the higher temperature of the morning.

Many sportsmen of the later day did not appear to know what it was all about, as they had not previously hunted antelope. As an old time westerner said today: "It was really interesting to watch this shoot. Some of the boys actually figured they were abouting at something the size of a jackrabbit. Often it looks like it, but it is a pretty big buck that weighs 100 pounds. Some claim to have secured bucks that weighed 130, but we are all conservative for the satisfaction of fellows in the red room who always capture 20-pound antelope."

Many of us still recall the days of 30 years ago when we really did shoot them like rabbits at the head of the principal street in Ravalli, Wis., over in the Gargoyles and Piney country, in the Lost river sink section and elsewhere in the Idaho barrens. But it is not being done today. It is indeed a rare and fine thing. The antelope have been taken care of in great manner, as have the deer and elk, until it becomes necessary to keep them within the feeding space. They had to be cut down in numbers. This section of Idaho should feel grateful that we have the swift little prairie creatures in sufficient number to afford a five-day open season. Colorado had to close its deer season some years ago to five days, and it is a marvelous deer country, but never equal to Idaho.

"Well, it was just a great and interesting spectacle," stated Dr. Hugh Kuhn, of Hammond, Indiana. He was a little too late in receiving a non-resident license and participating in the antelope drawing, but he accompanied two other individuals into the Fishburner valley, where the two secured their pronghorns. This is Dr. Kuhn's second trip to Idaho, and he is returning to the company of his son, Arthur, and another sportsman, and under the direction of John Bauman, expert guide, they leave for Selway forest, in quest of elk. Returning they will join Lou Hill and several others in a deer hunt in the Myers Cove section, near here.

"I have three objectives in hunting in Idaho this season," said Dr. Kuhn. "One is elk, the other deer, and the main one a vacation, and I certainly am enjoying it in Ketchum." Then return John Bauman and George Pike of Ketchum, who are on a hunt for antelope. They secured fine buck each, with dead hits, and their trophies were just about the maximum in antelope weight.
