Capital Ready for America's First Peace-Time Conscription

17,000,000 Awaiting Initial Drawings Set For Tuesday Morning

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (UP)—The capital was ready today for the first peace-time conscription lottery. Throughout the nation more than 17,000,000 men awaited the drawing. The numbers assigned to men who registered for military service Oct. 16 were posted at local draft headquarters in cities, towns and villages.

At noon (10 a. m. MST) tomorrow high government officials will begin drawing those numbers and the order in which they are drawn will determine the order in which the men are called before draft boards and ordered for military service.

Workmen Gamble America loves a lottery and this one even though for serious business—provided an opportunity to gamble. In offices, factories, neighborhood groups—wherever men of leisure worked or relaxed together—pools were organized. In some the first man called takes all; in others the pool is being split.

Master of Ceremonies One of the busiest men in Washington was Col. C. R. Morris, retired, of Elizabeth, N. J., veteran of three World War draft lotteries. He will act as master of ceremonies.

Invaders' Attack of Land, Sea, Air Forces Repulsed In Bloody Early Battles

BELGRADE, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Greek forces beat off an initial attack by Italy's land, sea and naval forces, according to advices received here today.

Italian troops attacked over the Albanian border this morning but advices from Pec on the Yugoslav frontier said the Greeks had driven off the Italians with heavy losses except at two points.

The Italians were said to have occupied the tiny Greek frontier towns of Bobiho and Radoti, but only after a bloody fight.

By LEON KAY BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Italian land, sea and air forces attacked Greece at dawn today upon expiration of a three-hour ultimatum for occupation of Greece by Italy.

Greece appealed for British aid and Britain announced she regarded Greece as her ally and would make good her pledge. It was estimated 10 to 11 Italian divisions, plus auxiliaries numbering in all about 200,000 men, made up the Italian attack force. Included, it was reported, were an armored division and an Alpine division, one of the crack units of the Italian army.

Italian warships attacked Greek naval bases as the Italian legions, under protection of massed planes, poured through the mountain passes from Albania into Greece, advices said. A Yugoslavian airplane was shot down in the Balkan explosion, made ready to proclaim its formal neutrality and it was reported Bulgaria also would remain neutral.

Warships of the powerful British Mediterranean fleet were reported racing from Egyptian waters to the Aegean islands, seeking contact with the Italian fleet. Italian troops entered Greece at many points. It was reported there were 200,000 men, was said, had been awaiting the zero hour.

Frontier dispatches reported the Italian vanguard had penetrated Greece as far as the first fortifications, which the Greeks had erected some distance inside their frontier. The first Italian tanks were said to have landed troops in some southern Greek islands before the first Italian thrust into Greece. The first Italian tanks were said to have landed troops in some southern Greek islands before the first Italian thrust into Greece.

Rejects Ultimatum Air raid sirens sounded at ancient Athens at 7 a. m. Greek time, four hours after expiration of the Italian ultimatum. John L. Lewis, who had rejected British aid and had described as a traitor declaration of war.

British announced Greece had appealed for its aid under the British guarantee of Greek integrity, and it was understood they were ready to be taken to rush naval and aerial assistance.

COMMUNISTS ON STATE BALLOTS RESULTS IN SUIT

BOISE, Ida., Oct. 28 (UP)—Suits to determine the legality of Communist elections on the Idaho general election ballot was filed in Ada county district court today by Edward A. Gilligan, Boise precinct election judge.

Gilligan asked the court for a declaratory judgment on two points: 1. Whether as election judge he should count or disregard votes for Communist party electors. 2. Whether or not inclusion of nominees of the Communist party on the official ballot is lawful, and if unlawful whether or not it is the duty of the plaintiff as election judge to disregard ballots containing the names of said nominees.

Named Defendants Named as defendants in the suit were Gov. C. Bolleson, Secretary of State George H. Curtis, Attorney General J. W. Taylor, Otto F. Peterson, Ada county auditor, and three Ada county commissioners: G. C. Kendall, E. L. McKinney and Maurice Adkins.

Since Taylor is the state and county officials were named as defendants because of their position on boards of county electors. The complaint outlined the method by which the Communist party obtained a place on the ballot by naming for electors.

Two Ballots He pointed out that the secretary of state qualified the electors for a place on the ballot and said that the attorney general later decided that the names of Communist electors "to be contrary to law and invalid."

WILLKIE FLAYS NEW DEAL 'FUTILITY' AFTER HULL SPEECH

NOMINEE CLAIMS DEFENSE PLANS 5 YEARS BEHIND

By WILLIAM H. LAWRENCE

WILLKIE FLAYS NEW DEAL TO LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP)— Wendell L. Willkie today described Secretary of State Cordell Hull's statement of foreign affairs Saturday night as "an extraordinary documentation of New Deal futility."

The only solution to this crisis in our national leadership is to defeat the third term candidate," he said in a statement issued as his campaign train returned to Illinois for the seventh time. The Republican Presidential nominee speaks at Bloomington, Champaign and Decatur, Ill., and at Indianapolis and Columbus, Ind., on his way to Louisville for a nationally broadcast radio speech at 7:30 p. m. (MST).

He said Hull, in his address before the National Press club, had "pointed up more clearly than could any contemporary critic of the New Deal the serious failure to organize a nationwide system of public health insurance."

Willkie said Hull's statement of health insurance as early as 1935 advanced "inadequate defense" "making the whole tragedy of world confusions and our present precarious position in relation to them ever more apparent."

"Had the President not then also been a candidate for re-election, he might have done better than merely send up verbal trial balloons to see how the popular emotion ran toward foreign events," Willkie said. "He could have given an effective leadership, then that would have saved us from what the secretary of state now calls the gravity of the present situation."

"Even without raising international questions, or making domestic issues out of questions of foreign policy, the President, who is now a candidate for the third term, could have adjusted our national economy to the recovery level essential to support a program of adequate national defense, and could have done it without disturbing his purely political interests."

"The President having failed, however, Secretary Hull's picture of world crises since 1933 makes even more distinctly tragic the now famous sham of last May on hand and on order speech."

"Certainly those directly and indirectly affected by the recent registration for conscription—especially the mothers, fathers, wives and other relatives of all those lads who were required to register—have cause for concern that our national defense program was not begun five years ago, at the time of Secretary Hull's pointed warning."

Quiet Sunday

Willkie spent a quiet Sunday resting for the final week of his campaign. He went 160 miles off his route to stop at Reno, Nev., to visit Mrs. Blanche Halleck, wife of Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana who placed Willkie's name in nomination at the Philadelphia convention. Mrs. Halleck was recovering from pneumonia.

He tested a formal statement charging the New Deal housing program had "bogged down" and "generally paralyzed by a maze of red tape." He pledged his efforts toward federal government cooperation with local authorities and private enterprise in housing if he is elected, and outlined a six-point program for slum clearance and reconstruction.

Dayley told officers the machine had skidded to the side of the road and when he started to pull it back, his lights went out. Since the machine took place on the curve this side of the bridge, it was rolled off into the borrow pit and overturned.

The provisions that were spilled out formed part of the supplies. Dayley and Osterhout were carrying in the camping equipment they used while seeking farm work away from home.

GREEK LEADERS ATTEMPT TO ENLIST AID OF TURKEY

BRITISH PLANES ASSIST DEFENSE OF TINY NATION

By DEN AMES
 ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Greek defense forces, backed by British sea and air power, fought against Italian invasion and aerial bombardment today and attempted to enlist support of Turkey against the axis military might.

Italian land, sea and air forces attacked at dawn, bombing ports at Athens and Larissa where four were killed and 40 wounded.

Earlier, Premier John Metaxas had rejected an Italian ultimatum demanding Greece break off relations with Britain and permit Pasha's occupation of strategic Greek bases to guarantee the nation's "neutrality."

"Fight!" was Metaxas reply in a message to the people ordering mobilization of the armed forces.

Talks to Turkey
 The premier, assured of British support, conferred by telephone with President Cevat Bayraktar of Turkey, which had been reported prepared to aid Greece against an aggressor.

War came again to this ancient center of culture, learning and military science with the shriek of air raid alarm sirens and the roar of anti-aircraft guns roared a reassuring blast around Athens but enemy planes were not seen from the center of the city during the first of a series of alarms.

Later, Italian war craft dived on the Tatoi airport, where planes used by the military but now the civil port of Athens, dropping bombs. Other enemy planes struck at scattered points in the communications centers, especially airports, seeking to destroy them as bases for Greek or British airpower.

Wave American Flags
 Crowds of Greeks, cheering and waving American flags, rushed through the streets during the day, their shouts sometimes interrupted by a deadly murmur of anti-aircraft guns.

The flags of the United States, Great Britain and Turkey were waved wildly by the demonstrators, who cheered as they massed in front of the various legations. Turkish embassies, including the American.

Schools were closed and thousands of reserve firemen and police were called to special duty. The proclamation of King George calling upon the nation to resist was read at the capital and loud speakers.

Metaxas also conferred with diplomatic representatives of Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, which reportedly were seeking to maintain their neutrality.

Italians Rounded up
 Police rounded up all Italians. Public buildings were guarded by holders of secret police, a safeguard against fifth columnists.

King George in a proclamation broadcast throughout the country said:

"I expect every Greek to do his duty, to have faith in God and Greek destiny. The nation is united and as one man will fight for his altars and homes to final victory."

The government, in declaring a state of siege to exist throughout Greece, ordered mobilization of the civil population as well as military reserves.

CAMP WILL OPEN NURSERY SCHOOL

Intention of starting a nursery school at the new camp south of Twin Falls—where the population now stands at 1,000 or a number equal to the population of Kimberly—was announced this afternoon by Roy C. Lane, camp manager.

Lane said that the nursery school will get underway as soon as possible in order that it can "get organized and the groundwork laid for operation next year." He expressed the opinion that it would start operation this week with five camp homes being used as headquarters and at least five WPA instructors engaged in the work.

100 Eligible
 At the present time records at the camp show that more than 100 youngsters are eligible to attend the nursery school when it starts.

Lane also announced that a hot lunch program is now in operation at the camp school for pupils of grades one to eight, attendance being 161. A large part of the materials for the hot lunches comes from surplus commodities and four women of the camp are handling the program.

When the shelter portion of the camp is closed in December, mobile units from Idaho Falls and Blackfoot will be brought to the camp here for overhaul, Lane said. These units will include power plants, water plants, diesel plants, clinics on wheels and other equipment.

All at Work
 At the present time all able bodied residents of the camp are engaged in daily labor in the fields, weather permitting.

When the camp closes in December for the season, the 46 labor homes will remain occupied, only the shelter portion of the camp being closed down.

Italian Invasion of Greece Aimed at Suez Canal Capture

By J. W. T. MASON
 United Press War Expert

Italy's invasion of Greece, which began this morning, is a preliminary stroke to an eventual offensive against Suez and the middle east from a new direction. Hitler and Mussolini conferring at Florence are now discussing the new phase of the battle of the British empire made necessary by Marshal Graziani's inability to attack the British in north Africa with assurance of success in reaching Suez.

Three possible objectives have formed the main strategy in the Greek operations. They are aimed at trying to obtain mastery of the Aegean sea and the Greek northern, eastern and southern coasts.

The first objective is the northern Aegean port of Salonika. This movement is a march on the Balkans through Macedonia along the border of Yugoslavia. If it were successful, the Italians would be half way to the western boundary of European Turkey, threatening a flank movement against the Turks. In the event of Germany's engaging in a later drive against the Dardanelles.

AIM at Greek Coast
 The second objective is the eastern Greek coast, with the Italians striving for force moving southeast. This plan immediate purpose of this operation would be the capture of Athens. If it were successful, a naval expedition might then land forces on the Aegean islands securing command of the Aegean sea.

Once that were accomplished, it would be possible for an axis force to land on the Turkish coast, far south of the Dardanelles, making unnecessary the hazardous operation of capturing the Dardanelles. This part of the Turkish coast is inadequately defended and might be open to invasion.

The third objective is the extreme southern part of Greece, as a move to occupy the large island of Crete, still farther south. Crete would form a first-class air base for bombing the British fleet at Alexandria, about 300 miles across the Mediterranean.

May Get Nazi Aid
 It is impossible to determine whether the Italians will confine themselves for the present to any one of these three movements, or will undertake all three simultaneously, until their directions of attack become clearer. If the Italians encounter serious difficulties, Germany will have to give help, probably by marching an army through Yugoslavia into northern Greece. Any such movement, however, might set the Balkan flame. If the Yugoslavs were to show the courage of their words and resist.

The Turks know that their ultimate fate is intimately concerned with the axis attack on Greece, whose resistance probably implies some direct understanding with the Turkish government. However, difficult strategic problems confront the

It budgeted the school fund and appropriated $1,000,000 a year for school equalization purposes... It gave back to the counties $3,000,000 from gasoline taxes to be used for Farm-to-Market roads.

Let's continue the good work of this administration. Now let's give Governor Bottolfsen another two years in office and support him with Republican state officials and a Republican Legislature.

Skeletons?

One of the skeletons usually well hidden under mounds of secrecy in the classis of the best of our families is that middle name inherited by Junior when he was in his college condition, say at the age of about one week.

People seldom reveal these middle names unless they happen to be of the aristocratic variety. We've known guys to slip their first and offer to do battle because somebody got inquisitive about their middle name.

And now comes Uncle Sam, the thoughtful old muddle, and orders the spits from 21 to 38 to reveal the family skeleton for the draft registration. So Pot Shots, desirous of showing you something that makes common in the way of middle name selection, gives you the following random choices from draft cards in Cassia, Jerome and Teton counties.

One a Minute

No, it's not what you think. We know the commodity of which the rate of production used to be set at one a minute. Fools.

But this is 1940. And now the one-a-minute quota has been applied to a new machine that turns out shell forgings at that rate. The machines are simple and inexpensive to build, and a goodly line of them ought to be able to whip out the basic part of artillery shells in the kind of time needful in modern wars, when they are fired almost like machine-gun bullets.

Yes, the production machine is getting under way. The United States is in deadly earnest about this preparedness thing. Any foreign observer who thinks otherwise automatically puts himself in the class of the old-time one-a-minute production, not the new.

When a Profit's a Profit

There's nothing like a little touch of candor to make the whole world kin.

A friend of ours is a stamp collector. Stamp collectors are a sort of race apart from other men, so perhaps that explains something. Anyway, he had a prospectus from an Ecuadorian stamp dealer asking him to buy some Ecuadorian stamps. Postscripted the dealer, "For every U. S. dollar's worth of Ecuadorian stamps you order from us add 10 cents, this extra 10 cents may be in coin. It is a profit to us."

No baloney about 10 cents to cover cost of this or that. Just 10 cents: "It is a profit to us."

Nothing could be fairer than that. Nobody begrudges a fair profit on any deal in proportion to service rendered. Simple candor like that warms the heart. There should be more of it.

LESENCOFF SAVES A LIFE

CHAPTER XVI

SURELY nothing serious could have happened to Nella. Probably she had gone for a walk in the woods to regain her self-control. So reasoned Bratwood, as he made anxious way along a narrow path that pierced the grove east of the house.

"Nella!" he called. "Nella!"

When she did not reply his apprehension increased. He thought of the dream she had related to them the previous night, of the faint which had mercifully spared her from more of Murphy's questions, and of her undeniable neurotic inheritance.

Then he recalled that she loved the orchard and directed his steps there. The fruit trees, thickened and colored with promised abundance, held no hint of tragedy. Instead he heard a low whirr overhead and the distant murmur of the stream at the end of the estate.

"Nella!" He repeated the call. "Oh, Nella!"

Perhaps she had gone for a swim. Nothing like cold water to restore one to normalcy. He hurried toward the natural swimming pool at the southern boundary of the property. Screened by a growth of young birches and fed by the stream, the pool was visible from a small stone bridge which spanned a side road that joined the state highway. Suddenly Sidney's feet took started root. Impossible not to recognize the tall figure staring intently into the water.

Bratwood stood on the rail, arms extended for a dive. He had flung his coat on the bridge, but he was otherwise fully clothed. Immediately he became a streak in the air.

ONLY a few bubbles marked the spot where Lesencoff had gone under. In an instant a dark head appeared; a shoulder flashed Salladay of the Twin Falls Hardware company of this city, and a close friend of President Bush of the Western Pacific received a wire from the latter asking him to ship by express two barrels of the famous Twin Falls apples. It seems that the president had a special order for the toothsome vegetable while a guest of this city this summer and had been asking the owner to be acquainted with the staple product of the staff of life. The barrels filled with the Twin Falls finest have been sent out as per request.

Evening Times Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Recent statements of U. S. policy toward Japan was caused by many things. Not least important of these was the part played by a quiet, canny career diplomat in the state department, Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, who bears the title of adviser on political relations.

Ever since the "China incident" began three years ago, Dr. Hornbeck has advocated a sterner attitude toward Japan. He has been particularly much alone. Under Secretary Sumner Welles in the other direction, as did Maxwell Hamilton, chief of the division of far eastern affairs. So did the U. S. ambassador in Tokyo, headed by famed Ambassador Joseph Grew.

It has long been a tradition that U. S. diplomats in the orient like to have the home government talk tough now and then—but not too tough.

After an outbreak of tough talk, the diplomat can sit down with the Asians and say: "Look, you're kind of getting out of hand in your knowledge of oriental conditions and people and exact information on what has been going on out there."

Dr. Hornbeck was in charge of this division from 1928 to 1937, when he was elevated to his present job. He is one of the state department's elite who hold important posts but of whom the public seldom hears.

Dr. Hornbeck was sent to China in 1909 to teach in various Chinese government schools and stayed in the orient for four years.

He came to his state department in the early twenties, after having served both the peace commission and the American delegation to the Washington arms conference as a special expert on far eastern affairs.

Personally, Dr. Hornbeck is of the quiet, scholarly type, with a turn for ironic speech, remembering sitting in his office in the spring of 1937 just after the Germans had taken over Czechoslovakia. Prime Minister Chamberlain was on the air, trying to explain away his own appeasement program which had made the seizure possible.

At the end of the speech Dr. Hornbeck picked his radio off, heard a sigh, and remarked: "What a Chamberlain was on the devil must needs use a long spoon."

FBI DOUBLES MEN IN GOTHAM AREA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (UP)—Director J. Edgar Hoover of the federal bureau of investigation revealed today that the number of federal agents in the New York area has been doubled during recent months as a protection against sabotage and espionage.

He said the huge force, now totaling some 200 men, was necessary to protect shipping facilities and industrial plants concentrated in the area.

New York is a terminus for international travelers, and federal agents in the area can establish an early contact for the surveillance of those whose missions to this country might be contrary to the national defense. The flight of fugitive fifth columnists also can be halted.

Tommy Harmon 14, Penn 0; That's What Record Book Should Read

By Henry McElmore
ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 28 (UP)—It'll go in the record books as Michigan 14, Pennsylvania 0, and that'll be wrong. The way it should read is Tommy Harmon 14, Pennsylvania 0, because it was his kicking which cracked open the Quakers' ivy and cracked them open like the Liberty bell. Without Tommy and his 385-pound Michigan kicking which has been fortunate to get off with a scoreless tie. By this I mean that Michigan, without Harmon, would be as good a team as Penn. But with him the Wolverines are as good as anybody, because Tommy is a one-man squad. When he isn't running he is tackling and when he isn't doing either of these he is kicking. He actually constitutes a threat when he is standing still doing nothing at all. He puts this on the way his presence as safety man ruined Pennsylvania's kicking game on Saturday. Frank Reagan, a really great punter, was on the firing line, ready to go, but Regan arrived from Philadelphia with no ammunition. Frank kicked something like 330 yards against Michigan last year, but he sailed only 10 yards this time. He was jittery as relatives at a wild reading. He never settled down. He not only couldn't run, but his kicking was miserable and his punting was. It was unfortunate that Frank, who has played so many brilliant games, had to have a concussion a time when the spotlight was on him the hottest.

Harmon's eight points in the Penn game brought his season's total to 87 and if there were any such thing as an assist in football he would have even more. Because it was his perfect kick from the 27-yard line while hounded by Penn linemen that resulted in the second Michigan touchdown. He was flattened, and really flattened after this pass, but apparently there is no hurting the fellow. He got up and went on to travel the full 60 minutes. Aid at the finish was the freshest man on the field, and that was for the last-minute substitutions.

I don't want to belittle Evashevski's value. But Harmon can go with or without him. Evashevski was hurt just before end of the first half and didn't act back into the game. But Harmon kept rolling just the same. As a matter of fact, he was at his best near end of the fourth quarter. He tipped the ball on long runs in which his interference was negligible.

The much anticipated duel between Harmon and Reagan didn't come off. Harmon was on the firing line, ready to go, but Regan

OUTSIDE SURPLUS USAGE ATTACKED

Harold Koenig, Republican candidate for state house of representatives, this afternoon made "strong objection" to what he termed the "practice of shipping outside surplus commodities into the Twin Falls area for distribution here."

Koenig said that he had seen one carload of potatoes and two carloads of apples had been received here for local distribution, the apples and potatoes being purchased outside Idaho through the surplus commodities department.

"I don't object to surplus commodities being put out," Koenig said, "but I do object to outside shipments coming into this state when Idaho has approximately 20,000 carloads of potatoes and many carloads of apples available for sale. In my opinion, any apples or potatoes bought under the surplus commodities setup for distribution here should be purchased here."
