

BRITISH BOMBS DAMAGE BERLIN

BERLIN, Nov. 2 (AP)—British planes, in a raid which caused the deaths of scores of people in theaters, movies, restaurants and cafes, rained high explosive and incendiary bombs on the Berlin area last night, killing and wounding "a number" of persons, a government communiqué said today.

The raid on Amsterdam, it was said, at least 26 persons were killed.

The air raid sirens shrieked in Berlin just when the fashionable west end was crowded with pleasure seekers, and the suburbs were crowded with those going home.

Soon as the sirens sounded, managers of most theaters appeared on their stages, announced the air raid and asked the audience to go to air raid shelters.

Because of the early hour of the raid, most public shelters were soon jammed and many people spent an uncomfortable time standing or sitting on makeshift seats.

The first half of the raid was marked by the rumbling and crashing of anti-aircraft fire, mostly in outer districts. Now and then resounding salvos from the big guns near the center of the city rocked the United Press building.

COURT UPHOLDS PARKING METERS

POCATELLO, Ida., Nov. 2 (AP)—Legality of Boise's parking meters was sustained yesterday in a decision handed down by District Judge Isaac McDougall.

Judge McDougall, who took the case under advisement several weeks ago after hearing arguments in Boise, held that complaining merchants had not proved city officials exceeded their authority in installing and purchasing the meters.

Judge McDougall overruled the contention of O. J. Foster and C. B. Little, Boise merchants, that the meters were illegal because they collected revenue from property already taxed.

"The amount raised by the meters must be considered income but this is not a primary object of the ordinance," McDougall wrote. "That is revenue producing is beside the point. Regulation of traffic is the chief concern of the ordinance."

LONDON, Nov. 2 (AP)—German airplane bombs have wrecked parts of Kensington palace, in which the Earl of Athlone, governor general of Canada, has his apartments and in which his sister Dowager Queen Mary and Queen Victoria were born, it was disclosed today.

The few servants in the palace were not hurt as they had gone to air raid shelters.

Firemen saved paintings, furnishings and other valuables worth between $4,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Transit of Mercury Across Sun First for U. S. Since '24

By J. HUGH FRUETT
Pacific Director, American Meteorological Society

A transit of the little planet Mercury across the face of the sun, a phenomenon so rare it occurs only 13 times a century — is scheduled for the afternoon of Nov. 11. This will be the first such transit visible in the Americas since 1924, and the only one until 1933 to be seen by earth dwellers anywhere. Nov. 1933 will be favorable to transit recur.

Astronomers welcome transits as they give valuable help on the incompletely solved problem of Mercury's orbital motion. They also furnish information on the slight irregularities in the daily rotation of the earth, our standard time-keeper.

Mercury encircles the sun in 88 days on an orbit inside that of the earth's. This means that a few times each year this planet is almost between us and the sun, because its orbit is inclined seven degrees to the plane of the earth's orbit. Mercury usually seems to pass a little above or below the sun, but on such occasions Mercury happens to be on that part of its path which crosses the plane of the earth's orbit, it is lined up directly between us and the sun, and appears to be on the solar surface.

Small telescopes—even strong binoculars—firmly mounted and properly equipped with sun shades or used as projectors will show Mercury as a small, very round object on the solar face. Its apparent diameter will be about 1/200 that of the sun. Ordinarily it appears of the same size while appearing gray in contrast with the intense blackness of the unilluminated side of the planet. The transit will begin at approximately 3:48 p. m. Eastern Standard time.

Capt. J. F. Hellweg of the U. S. naval observatory at Washington, D. C., is anxious to obtain careful observations from all operators of small astronomical instruments. A letter addressed to him will bring complete instructions.

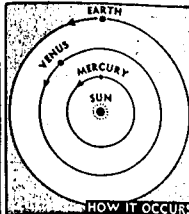

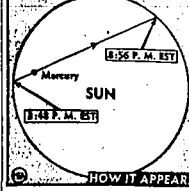

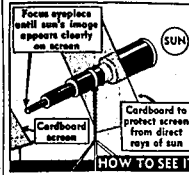

Chart shows orbits of three planets and their positions at time of Mercury's transit. Venus will not transit until 2004 A. D.

This is apparent path of Mercury across face of sun.

Draw-tube telescope with good lenses can be used to view Mercury's transit by projection of sun's image on screen.

BRITISH SMASH AT KRUPP WORKS

LONDON, Nov. 2 (AP)—British planes, in a smashing attack on German objectives during the night, bombed Berlin, the great Krupp armament works, 15 airbases at some of which German planes were being taken off to attack Britain, and various industrial objectives, the air ministry asserted today.

Several of Berlin's principal railroad stations and freight yards were attacked, a communique said.

Among other targets, were synthetic oil plants at Magdeburg and Gelsenkirchen, an industry factory near Gelsenkirchen, the Krupp works at Essen, where a blast furnace was bombed, and the railroad junction at Osnabruck.

Other royal air force planes bombed the 15 airbases, all in German-occupied territory.

The damaged aircraft on the ground and about to take off for attacks on Britain.

Aircraft of the coastal command bombed German gun emplacements at Cape Cruz Nez across the channel.

(It was indicated strongly British planes had made raids on Italy for the second straight night. There were two air alarms at Berne, Switzerland. Such alarms in the past have invariably meant a British raid on Italy).

RECORD BALLOT LOOMS IN IDAHO

BOISE, Nov. 2 (AP)—Election officials predicted the largest vote in Idaho history would be cast next Tuesday as county auditors prepared to close registration books at 6 o'clock tonight.

The prediction was based on heavy registration already recorded and the unprecedented number of absentee ballots which have been filed. More than 1,500 absentee ballots—twice as many as cast in the 1936 election—were on file in the Ada county recorder's office. The total was expected to reach 2,000 before issuance of absentee ballots—end Monday.

"THE MAN OF THE HOUR FOR AMERICA'S GOOD"

WENDELL L. WILLKIE

Vote For LELA D. PAINTER
For Treasurer
REPUBLICAN TICKET
Previous business training, banking experience. Courtesy, efficiency, economy!
(Paid Political Adv.)

Let every sincere American weigh these significant thoughts as he goes to the polls to cast his ballot Tuesday:

The continuation of a policy that even points toward dictatorship is too hazardous a risk for this country to take. There is only one assurance that such a tendency will be definitely squelched—the election of Wendell L. Willkie.

If there is the remotest danger in the third term precedent being broken, so that any president may seek to remain in office indefinitely for whatever purpose he may have in mind, there is only one way to dispel that danger—the election of Wendell L. Willkie.

If you fear the American people are jeopardizing their freedom and their independence by becoming more dependent upon government, and you feel that we must change our course if we are to remain a free and self-supporting people, there is only one way to bring about such a change—the election of Wendell L. Willkie.

The American people are confused, divided, uncertain and suspicious because of a policy that has been leading us away from the fundamental principles of our democracy. The continuation of such a policy can mean only a continuation of this unrest. There is only one way for America to get back on her feet—the election of Wendell L. Willkie.

You need not be a Republican to vote for Willkie. It's gone beyond partisan politics. It's Americanism that's at stake!

—MAY NAPIER BURKART

A Royal Zombie

All will remember that shuddery West Indian legend of the zombie—the dead charmed into a burden-bearing semblance of life without the consciousness that is life's essence.

We thought of it with a shudder the other day when a short dispatch described silent "King" Leopold of the Belgians, walking through the grounds of the Laeken Palace in Brussels, head bowed, like a man in a trance.

Here he lives, this man who once headed a proud and independent people, conferring daily with German generals and Belgian "officials"—a king without power, a sovereign without sovereignty, a man without a country. Not yet do we know enough for a historical verdict on his surrender—all we can do is mutely watch him pace the grounds of his palace prison, a royal zombie. In a Europe so overflowing with tragedy, he is only an episode, a fragment, a walking ghast.

Held a boyish love on the telephone: "Will you please tell me the exact hour when Willie will move into the White House?"

Well, it seems that the young man is a very Republican headquarter.

"A small act of kindness on his part. Oh, not to me. He hates me. But to a poor little mutt of a dog. A mutt that he leaves out like ridges. It couldn't have smelt meat for days."

"A dog?"

"Sidney's interest quickened. 'To get a lot of that poor mutt. He fed it, even though Mr. Langdon had never allowed a dog on the place.'"

SILENCE Arose. More stars came out until the heavens had jeweled the dark leavings of the moon. But the beauty of the night inhibited no peace in Henry Barkes, so far as Sidney could read. Dejection emanated from him.

Yet try as he would, Braithwood could not place the chauffeur with the murder gun in his hand. Why did the poor devil come into the open about his police car? On guard met him and after a few words of whispered conversation they crossed to Sidney and the chauffeur.

"Not so fast, Barkes," Plowman detained him. "We want you to go with us to headquarters tonight."

"I've told you everything I know," Barkes said deprecatingly, as the trooper's fingers clamped his arm. "I have to be here. I'll lose my job. Can they make me go, Mr. Braithwood? You'll have to tell the Barkes," the lawyer advised. "Better not talk too much."

"You'll talk plenty," Plowman broke in. "There are some things you may be able to explain, Barkes. Now about that package you hid in the tree..."

"I've had him for years," Barkes stammered. "I had him with me until Mr. Langdon came from New York. To get the mutt, I took him to the village. Yesterday he came back. I locked him in my rooms over the garage and took him to town with me. I think he was in the village. He paused, swallowed, then hurried on. "I'd driven as far as the first turn when I remembered

Bruce Catton in Washington

Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles by Bruce Catton on the presidential campaign. The second will cover the eastern outlook.

By BRUCE CATTON
Evening Times Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Democracy in Washington has almost got to the point where they speak of the far west as a party stronghold second in loyalty and dependability to only the solid south, but the west isn't quite that secure in actual fact.

There are plenty of weak spots in the western front, and the two great imponderables of the campaign—the war issue and the third term question—may have made deeper inroads than the party chiefs suppose.

California was listed as a sure Republican state at the start, but it has been held to be a bit less of a sure thing lately. Senator Hiram Johnson has been a powerful party primary and his strong speech in favor of Wendell Wilkie has tempered Democratic enthusiasm. Democratic congressmen are facing stronger opposition than they figured.

On the other side is the fact that although California has two strong isolationist senators, the Democratic senator—Sheridan Downey—has been a powerful force in California. California is acutely alive to the Japanese situation.

But there is another factor. The Republicans are still hopeful, a Wilkie victory in California would be a genuine upset.

NEWARK MAY WIN OREGON

State party Republicans their best hopes in the far west. Democrats publicly predict a clean sweep of the whole coast; privately they admit that Oregon could go Republican. Senator McNary, Wilkie's running mate, is highly popular there.

Washington looks safe for Roosevelt. Congressman Mon Wallgren, Democratic candidate for the senate, is getting plenty of opposition from the Republican candidate, Ex-Legion Commander Stephen Chadwick.

Away from the coast, many experts see Idaho as a toss-up with probably a slight edge for the Democrats. Most of the western states forecast Democratic victories in Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico and Montana. But the latter state Senator Barton K. Wheeler, isolationist leader, is running for reelection and is reported to be getting plenty of opposition from the Republican candidate, Ex-Legion Commander Stephen Chadwick.

Colorado is more doubtful. Both of the state's senators are Democrats, but both will be retiring with the new deal restoration—Senator Edwin Johnson as an isolationist, and Senator A. A. Bennett as a Democrat. Missouri seems likely to go Republican, Iowa shows few signs of following native-born Republicans. Missouri should go Democratic, although the war issue is hurting Roosevelt badly. Idaho will probably get the Dakotas.

All through this region, it seems that the war issue that is most important.

Virtually all of Ireland's inhabitants belong to the Lutheran church.

There are several reasons for the new deal's unexpected strength in the western states. One is the tradition of political "liberalism" throughout the entire region. Another is the industrial enormous sums have been spent on power and reclamation projects. Public power is popular out west, and Wilkie's utilities past has unquestionably hurt him.

Balancing all of this is an unknown extent—the innate isolationist sentiment common to the west. But many of the strongest

G. O. P. Regime Tore Down Defenses, Attorney Claims

MURTAUGH, Nov. 2 (Special) — Emphatically declaring that the Republican administration which preceded the first administration of President Roosevelt "destroyed rather than built up the United States navy and its defense," Marshall Chapman, Twin Falls attorney, last night addressed a Democratic rally in the high school gym which attracted between 250 and 300 persons.

The meeting was in charge of John Savage, Murtaugh precinct committeeman. Harry C. Parsons presided and introduced Mr. Chapman as well as county candidates.

Began With Harding
During his forceful address, in which he was interrupted several times by applause, Chapman said that the "destruction" of the defenses started with the Harding administration and added:

"And yet the Republicans would today have you believe that President Roosevelt is doing nothing for defense."

"At the conclusion of the Wilson administration the United States was on its way to become the ranking naval power of the world. In addition, the United States had a powerful fleet there were under construction eight battleships, of which two, the Washington and the West Virginia, were practically completed. There were also half a dozen battle cruisers under construction."

"The Harding administration, as a result of the Washington disarmament conference assembled in 1921, destroyed 17 battleships then in use, totaling 267,740 tons."

Target and Scrap Iron
"This number was in addition to the eight new battleships which were then under construction. Of those under construction, the navy kept the West Virginia and the Washington, 75 per cent completed, was towed out to sea as an experimental target. Six more under construction were cut into scrap iron. They ranged from 11 per cent completed for the Massachusetts to 38.5 per cent completed for the South Dakota."

"In all, during that time, there was no less than $250,000,000 worth of ships destroyed," Chapman said. He pointed out that the Republican administrations were "as in building navy when practically all the other countries of the world were hard at work doing just that."

"In 1922 and 1924 the United States laid down two heavy cruisers, five destroyers and four submarines. During 1926, 1927 and 1928 Great Britain and Japan went right ahead outbuilding the United States efforts."

Japan Builds Ships
"Japan, in these same years while the Republicans were building no ships, laid down six heavy cruisers, four light cruisers, 20 destroyers, 17 submarines, four mine sweepers, four river gunboats, two submarine tenders, one store ship and three others."

"In 1926 the United States laid down one vessel, a submarine. At the same time Japan laid down two heavy cruisers, five destroyers and four submarines. During 1926, 1927 and 1928 Great Britain and Japan went right ahead outbuilding the United States efforts."

Japan Builds Ships
"In 1926 the United States took another naval holiday, and during that year Great Britain laid down 30 ships from destroyers on down to 11 ships from an aircraft carrier to a river gun boat," Chapman said.

FDR Preparedness
"He then turned to a discussion of the preparedness program which has been followed under the Roosevelt administration."

"During the first year (fiscal year 1934) of President Roosevelt's first term the navy laid down two aircraft carriers, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, two patrol gunboats and 21 destroyers."

"In the fiscal year of 1935 one heavy, seven light cruisers, five submarines and 14 destroyers were laid down. In 1937 the extension of the naval treaty under which the United States could build no battleships expired and that year the two battleships that were launched last June went into construction, the first in almost 20 years. Also laid down were six submarines and 14 destroyers."

"The records show that the same rapid construction of ships for the navy continued in 1938 and 1939 and is continuing today under the direction of President Roosevelt. And yet the Republicans would have you believe that we are not preparing and that we are weak," Chapman said emphatically.

FDR Builds Planes
"The speaker also told of gains, and quoted figures to show the rapid production of airplanes under Roosevelt. At one time Chapman said that the Republican administration pursued a policy of strict economy and both army and navy flight arms for eight years went on flying ships that had been built in 1917 and 1918."

Regarding the third-term issue Mr. Chapman said that even the framers of the constitution were not against it. To prove his point he said that "their objections against barring a President from reelection are aptly expressed by Roger Sherman. Consider, one of the constitutional workers who said: 'Why throw out of office the man best qualified to execute his duties?'"

Rape Johnson
"The so called third-term issue has never been else than a matter of political expedience," Chapman said. "The most violent and passionate opponents now are those who supported Theodore Roosevelt in 1912. Senator Hiram Johnson, California, who is now speaking against the third term for Roosevelt, is the same Johnson who ran as a vice-presidential candidate with Theodore Roosevelt when he was seeking a third term. Johnson had nothing to say about 'tradition' then," Chapman said.

The attorney also declared that in a poll taken of the Republican national committee disclosed that the Idaho member of that committee favored a third term for Mr. Coolidge.
"That man who in 1928 favored the third term for Coolidge is none other than our present junior senator from Idaho, John Thomas," Chapman said.

Quotes Borah
In closing Mr. Chapman declared that the late beloved Senator William E. Borah "clearly expressed this wise Democratic doctrine by saying:

"The people who could be trusted to determine whether or not they desire a President for a second term may also be trusted to determine whether or not they desire a President for a third term."

SHEEPMAN FIRES AT TRADE PACTS

Assuring Idaho farmers and stockmen that Sen. John Thomas is "the man who will fight our battle against reciprocity trade agreements," R. Clyde Bacon, rancher and sheep owner, had called today for election of the senatorial incumbent.

Bacon's radio talk contained a vigorous denunciation of the effects of trade pacts on the American farmer and on Idaho in particular. Charging that the agriculturist has been made a "guinea pig," the speaker asserted that solving the domestic farm problem cannot be achieved "until the American farmer has the American market."

Mr. Bacon unleashed heavy verbal guns at President Roosevelt for opening the domestic markets to a "flood of foreign agricultural products."

Declaring that Senator Thomas has fought the Roosevelt-Wallace trade program in a strenuous effort to protect farmers and sheepmen, Bacon said:

"You can be absolutely certain that Senator Thomas will always fight this constant threat to Idaho welfare."

Weiser, Idaho

Dear Mr. Clabby:

The Commission met on this date and unanimously decided to give the manager and employees in all the liquor stores in the state an additional $10.00 for this month.

This, in a small way, shows the appreciation and splendid spirit that you have shown at all times and especially during the holidays, when trade was so very heavy.

The Commission has asked that I write this letter to the managers to be read to the employees, and it is the expressed desire of the Commission that each of the personnel consider this as a personal letter from the Commission to them; and again expressing to you our sincere appreciation, and wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year, I am,

Sincerely yours,

These letters are photographic copies of original letters that were sent by the Democratic Idaho Liquor Commission to employes of state liquor stores. This same state chairman of the Democratic Party, Robert Coulter, has been trying to make capital of the fact that Governor Bottolfsen merely sent "seasons greetings" to Department of Public Works employees and complimented them on the efficient manner in which they had done their work.

Hagerman Club Keeps in Win Column

HAGERMAN, Nov. 2 (Special)—Invading Fairfield Huskies took a 12-0 set-back here yesterday as the home-town Hagerman Pirates kept their north side record clean with a well-deserved victory. Sparked by a strong backfield performance, the Pirates counted once in the first period and again in the fourth and had the game well in hand most of the way. Parrott counted the first time and W. Moore was packing the pignin when the second counter came. The Fairfield club looked good in the second frame, when it carried the fight into Hagerman territory. The two teams battled on even terms in the third. The next game on the local schedule is the "big" contest of the season—against Glenns Ferry Nov. 11. If the local club can win this one, it will be tied with Shoshone for north side honors. No arrangements have yet been made for a play-off.

Utah Lays Chances for Title on Block Today

By STAN DECKER
SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 2 (AP)—University of Utah today laid its chances for a share in 1940 Big Seven conference honors on the block at Boulder, Colo., against a team which has beaten the Utes for the last seven years running. Colorado's Golden Buffaloes who finished the last two seasons with the conference hunting tucked in their pockets again were figured to blast their way through the Utah team toward an undisputed conference title. Expect Tough Battle. But only rabid Buff fans expected Colorado to breeze through the contest. It was remembered the Redskins had shown their outstanding performance to date when the conference hunting tucked in their pockets again were figured to blast their way through the Utah team toward an undisputed conference title.

Black, co-manager with Jack Robinson, said he had received many telegrams asking for a statement on his attitude toward Louis' speeches.

GOP BOLTER HITS THOMAS 'EVASION'

Confirming his bolt from the Republican party as regards its top "machine controlled" candidate, Frank H. Adams, in an article in the Idaho Falls newspaper, charged today that Sen. John Thomas is evading a pledge to work toward Idaho factories for processing farm crops.

"I have just returned from a business visit to Idaho Falls," Adams said today. "I noticed in the Idaho Falls newspaper a pledge from Senator Thomas to work for a water project. This is so the farmers can raise more crops and add to the farmers' existing distress in trying to market raw crops at a profit."

Verbal Silletto
Adams, a large-scale shipper, aimed a verbal silletto at Thomas, a cooling shoe and banker, with the blunt assertion:
"We all know large sheep growers are the smell of cheap raw crops here and Senator Thomas is in that business."

He pointed out that nothing was said in the Idaho Falls article about a pledge from Thomas "to help bring eastern-financed factory processing plants to Idaho, such as Utah and other states enjoy." Adams has campaigned—and out of political seasons—for crop processing in Idaho to eliminate the heavy freight rates paid by farmers in shipping raw crops east.

Chain Bank Connections
"I suppose a pledge to help bring processing plants to Idaho would interfere with the senator's chain bank connections in Utah, who in turn are anxious to have the raw crops to ship them to Utah for processing," Adams said sarcastically.

"The Idaho senator and our Idaho governor seem to be pretty well controlled in that they never mention it, notwithstanding the fact that it is the biggest development question before the state today."

"No, I'm not voting for any state Republican machine controlled out-of-state and a detriment to Idaho's factory development."
