DAIRYMEN ASK TAX ON PRODUCTS TO PROMOTE ADVERTISING

CONFEREES SEEK FUNDS TO BUILD UNIVERSITY BARN

BOISE, Dec. 11 (UP)—The Idaho State Dairymen's association today launched a legislative program which included proposals for a dairy products tax to finance an advertising program and for an appropriation to construct a new dairy barn at the University of Idaho.

The program was based on resolutions adopted at the group's 17th annual convention. The association will ask the 1941 legislature to set up an advertising commission and tax milk, butter, cheese and other products for revenue to join in advertising dairy products with other states.

A $100,000 appropriation will be sought to build the dairy unit on the university campus. Other resolutions called for reclassification of dairy laws, expansion of the county agent program, higher tariffs on fats and oils, and banning importation of dairy products from countries which do not have cattle disease control laws.

W. L. Hendrix, Boise, was re-elected president; A. H. Jugh, Blaine, vice-president; and Ivan H. Lough, Boise, secretary-treasurer. Directors are L. J. Tencknick, Twin Falls; A. W. ## DEC. 31 DEADLINE ON 2 AAA PHASES

Deadline for two important phases of the AAA farm program will come Dec. 31. Walter Reese, Castleford, chairman of the county agricultural conservation committee, announced today.

End of December is the last day for submitting applications for parity payments on the 1940 wheat crop and for applying for commodity loans on wheat and barley.

All wheat producers who signed up last spring to participate in the program and did not complete 1940 wheat acreage allotments on any farms in which they are interested are eligible for 1940 parity payments. Mr. Reese said. Most eligible farmers in the county already have received their 1940 parity payment, made at the rate of nine cents a bushel of the yield established for the farm.

However, a few eligible farmers have not come in to sign their applications, and they will lose out unless they sign them by Dec. 31.

Loans from the commodity credit corporation on 1940 wheat and barley stored either in approved warehouses or farm granaries will be available to Twin Falls county farmers until Dec. 31. Also, the committee chairman announced. Loan rates in Twin Falls county average 40 cents a bushel, varying according to the loading point; while barley loans are based on 35 cents a bushel for No. 1 barley in farm storage.

Auto Licenses Here but Sale Day Uncertain

Carrying a slogan intended to lure more tourist dollars as Idaho motor cars spread the message throughout the nation, the 1941 automobile license plates were stacked today at offices of Assessor George A. Childs. "Scene Idaho" is printed at the bottom of the plates, depicting the current year's statehood anniversary reminder.

Mr. Childs received 10,750 sets of passenger plates. That total is a new high for the county, and the boost came because this year's all-time record sales have passed the 10,500 level.

The 1941 plates carry black lettering against a background of yellow.

The licenses normally go on sale immediately after Jan. 1 but Mr. Childs said he has dispatched a query to the department of law enforcement to determine if distribution can be started sooner. Earlier, he indicated, would be "a big help" in lessening congestion.

If the state approves, the licenses probably will be offered at the courthouse and at the Buhl highway district offices Dec. 16. If not, the 1941 plates probably won't be dispensed until Jan. 2.

The Gentleman in the Third Row

Mr. Hammond Gets a Rooster

Cock-a-doodle-do, Potale! By the beard of the prophet you've got to do something in print about Howard Hammond and his rooster. Howard, one of our big seed men down on Rathbun river, received this rooster yesterday by express. He hardly knew what to do about it when he opened the box, and didn't believe his eyes. "There, there, be of one mind, was a live rooster. One of his Democratic friends in Twin Falls tipped the rooster to Howard, a staunch Republican, because the Democrat wanted Howard to see what William Loked liked to do during the cooler recipient plans any reprisal by express. —An Idaho Spud

VITAL NEWS DEPT.
For the information of those constituents who may be interested, the following came up at the Twin Falls county fair, called "Hackaw, Hackaw, Who's Got That Missing Hunk of Hackaw Bisk." As the public prints duly record for you, Sheriff Doc Hawkins and his cabinet (with two ladies pinch-hitting for the bald officials), found five hackaw blades hidden in the dress of a young woman who had come to perform a fallbreak for her hubby and his pal.

As the public prints duly haven't recorded this—there's a chunk of a sixth blade missing. Seems part of a broken hackaw blade was found in the dress of a young woman who had come to perform a fallbreak for her hubby and his pal. But the edges of these blades don't fit. Hence, there's a hunk missing. It was in the jail or ain't it? That, brethren, is the theme of the current little game.

Dear Greeks:
For Gosh Sakes, Don't Take Rome!

Your ingenuity is unbought so I'm writing to you, my Greek, through your column. I feel sure you can devise a way to estimate how much money you have shagged back Mr. Mussolini's army by any given time, and thus see that my letter is sent to the right town, the Greek Army (Somewhere in Albania, Or maybe Italy).

I call you gentlemen in spite of what a certain B. Mussolini must be calling you in the privacy of the club. But there's no need in letting you exercises to keep that fat/punch down.

If you are valiant fellows and we hope you continue giving B. Mussolini's blackbirds a chance to uphold their reputation for vigorous deed. But in America, dear Greeks, plead with you NOT to go in. Italy and capture Rome with you. Hop over the Adriatic if you must and capture Naples. We're told it's a nice sunny town with nice friendly people and they'll probably greet you enthusiastically.

But for gosh sakes, DON'T go up and down Rome.

Let's put our cards on the table. You capture Rome and then what happens? Then B. Mussolini, ever a man of great courage in letting his army fight somebody very far away, hops into a boat and commences to sail.

Then where does he go? He couldn't get to Berlin. They don't let him get in there, anyhow. So he must go to the sea. He's got a hearted, fat-headed country where everybody lives in freedom and nobody minds what kind of plotting you do as long as you keep a plow face.

But B. Mussolini comes to the United States. We got enough grief here now, what with defense strikes, influenza, and a man of great courage in letting large hunk in front of you of the movie.

He's got a heart, Greeks, and don't take home.

Trusting you have a merry Christmas in Naples.

What's the use of being a Great Big Conqueror if you can't get any respect out of the conquered? The Italians jumped into the war against France just before the final curtain. But they don't seem to have impressed even the conquered French as conquerors.

At Mentone, on the new Italian-French border, waggish French soldiers are reported to have cut up a sign facing Italy: "Notice to the Greek soldiers: This is the French border."

It must be galling to a conqueror to have the conquered thumb a nose at him thus. And, incidentally, it's the best sign we've seen in months that something yet remains of Gallic wit, Gallic buoyancy, Gallic courage.

ANDRE OUTLINES A PLOT
CHAPTER XIX
ANDRE GIRARDEAU loped a low hill with his car and braked easily to a halt. He turned to the girl at his side.

"Now you can see what I mean," said he, pointing. "That darkest spot is the Bailey home, the main ranch house. There's no moon out now but on a clearer night you can study the place carefully from here. To the left you see the bluffs—those are the hangars. They aren't more than 200 yards from the main house and the army men sleep right there. Understand?"

"Yes," said Lona Monloya. "That moon is all right. But where will you be?"

"In town. I'll park my car—this car—near the theater. I'll buy a flashy one so that people would soon identify it with me. I'll even buy a ticket and go in the theater at the right time. But I'll slip out the emergency fire exit when the men are asleep. That leads into the alley beside the Variety Pharmacy, on the corner. With a rented car parked in the alley, the men are asleep and easily without being seen, as they rush out here. With the lights out I can drive within half a mile of the hangars—you have seen how plentiful they are, and you know the open country in their cars, so my trail won't matter."

Lona nodded. "And—the other?"

Andre turned to smile appreciatively at her. "Listen, Lona, you're the best-looking thing that comes along in 50 years, and you're also smart. I suggest you do it."

"What has been pretty good to do with this?"

"Nothing, nothing. I just mentioned it," he spoke lightly, half in amusement. "But you are."

"You are hard to do strictly business with, Andre," she snuggled with her shoulder and laughed in her deep throaty way. But her speech clung to a note of eternal caution even so. "Some day I'll kill you, maybe, too. But this job—I suppose you are right. We don't dare to hire anybody—not anybody ever—and it's dangerous. But I'll be glad to do it first. Can we come out in the same car?"

"Why not? And I'll have the house prepared, never fear. I'm looking up quality. Then Ronica herself answered for Colonel McDavid.

"Sure, Wes. It's a place away from the center of town. I'll be your number one. And I'll take him in my own plane!"

Colonel McDavid laughed benignly. "Certainly, Miss Ronica will have a better afternoon with you—if Girardeau has no objection. Personally, if I were young Girardeau, I wouldn't tolerate any other man's hanging around you—a very charming young lady!" Ronica half frowned. "Girardeau? But Colonel, what has Andre?"

"NOBODY heard the question. Colonel McDavid and three other officers and their host, Thomas U. Bailey, himself, had all laughed and started to rise, scraping their chairs and chucking and laughing in a most unbecoming manner. It was, at least by implication, one of those leave-the-young-people-to-themselves-and-consequently-of-bridged-the-longshoremen's case.

"If by any chance it should reverse its former decision, you're bargaining rights by ports instead of giving one union rights for the entire coast, the power of Bridges' unions—and consequently of Bridges himself—would be seriously curtailed."

Ernest Jones, Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—A show-down on the long-standing west coast "Bridges case" is just about due.

There are several ingredients. First, the administration's labor ad hoc committee has been set up to find some new means to head off and/or sell labor squabbles. Most ambitious of these plans is taking shape under the wing of Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman. It aims at setting up regional boards, probably joint employer-worker affairs, whose job it would be to keep in constant touch with all important plants, offer mediation and conciliation services constantly, and in general try to keep differences from reaching the strike stage.

If it were put into final form and checked by the defense commission, the project would probably be set up under the commission by executive order.

FATHER PRESENTED SETON WITH BILL FOR BIRTH AT 21

Few are they who can look back at 80 on a life so rich as that of Ernest Thompson Seton, author of "The Boy's Life of North America" and "The Boy's Life of the West." Seton has now written, and superbly illustrated, "Trail of an Artist's Life" (Scribner's, $3.15). It is not too much to place it among the half-dozen best books of the year. Twelfth of 18 children, Seton became a naturalist, a collector to achieve success, and not the least difficult was a hard-bitten Scotch father who said to him one day: "Now, my son, you are 21 years of age; you have attained to years of manhood. If not disinterested, all the duties and responsibilities which have hitherto been borne for you by your father, you must now assume for yourself. I have been prayerfully remembrant of your every interest, and I need hardly remind you that I have been a good father to you under God, indebted to your father—and of course, to some extent, to me. This, my son, must feel yourself under a bond of gratitude that will strengthen rather than weaken as you grow. I shall be glad to see you all should keep in view. Use everything on earth, even life itself, to your father's glory, and your own should be your only thought. While it is hopeless that you should ever discharge this debt, there is yet another to which I must call your attention at once."

CANAL OFFICIALS SET WATER ROLE

By resolution, directors of the Twin Falls Canal company today had ruled that free discharge delivery of water to lands under pumping systems should be permitted after an investigation had revealed that such lands had not received more than their proportionate share of water.

Following is the resolution adopted by the directors yesterday afternoon: "The resolution heretofore placed upon the minutes by the board of directors to the effect that the general manager report upon whether the pump lands of the project can receive their proportionate share of water upon free discharge was considered along with the manager's report and it was the unanimous opinion of the directors that the delivery of water to these lands can be made by free discharge. And that the records disclose that the pump lands while receiving larger drafts of water on given days have not, based on seasonal delivery, received more than their proportionate share. And further that the details of this delivery shall be worked out by the general manager to the board of directors."

SKI AREA GIVEN JAYCEE SUPPORT

The Twin Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce today was on record in favoring development of the new ski area south of Twin Falls in the Rock creek-Mintoka forest area.

The action was taken yesterday at a session of the directors. It was pointed out that six ski runs, the longest of which will be 4,000 feet in length, are planned at the new site, across the creek from the old location which was used last year. Forest service officials have indicated that road improvements are being completed at the present time. A ski lift is being installed at the present time by John Weaver and Claude Jones.

During the session President Alton Young announced that the state board session would be held in Jerome Sunday. He urged that the Twin Falls organization be "well represented."

Loyal Perry announced that the Salvation Army is serving as a clearing house for Christmas basket orders for the needy and that Jaycee cards would soon be ready for checking in order that duplications will not occur.

Chairman Named For Yule Baskets

William R. Woller has been named today as chairman to handle distribution of Christmas baskets by the Disabled American Veterans of the World war. The baskets will go to needy veterans and others, and the D. A. V. is cooperating with various organizations which seek to eliminate duplication and assure Christmas cheer for every home in which it is needed.

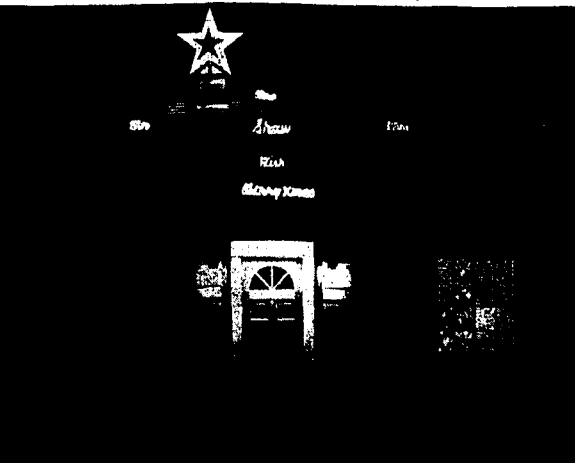

Funds for the D. A. V. baskets are being raised by sale of Christmas trees and other decorations. Offices are maintained at 153 Main avenue west, with sales centers at the rear of Vogel's and at the John Cinar parking lot. Blaine Van Ausdine is chairman of the tree sales.

Here's One Example of Christmas Lighting for Contest

If you're looking for ideas in Christmas lighting you might adapt the plan utilized in 1939 by Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Shaw, 291 Fillmore street. Using neon, the Shaw home was a Christmas card in itself and proclaimed "Mrs. Mr., Miss Shaw with Merry Xmas." This doorway was lighted and the interior Christmas tree contributed to the effect. But your plan needn't be as elaborate nor expensive as this to win a prize in the 1940 contest—simple but effective arrangements stand fully as good a chance to win the $50 in cash awards. In the business division the 1940 contest offers prizes of $10 and $5. (Times Photo and Engraving)

No Entry Blanks Necessary for 1940 Times-News Christmas Light Contest

No entry blanks are necessary for the Times and News 1940 Christmas home lighting contest. Managers of the annual event said today after receiving dozens of telephone calls from households.

Since the judging committee from the Twentieth Century club will tour the city street by street, every lighted home will be eligible to win each award included in the $50 list. Just arrange an exterior lighting scheme and your home is automatically entered in the contest without further trouble.

Elaborate or simple arrangements—they all stand an equal chance for prizes, the contest managers announced.

The rules: 1. Contest open to any householder in the city limits; for business division, contest open to any store in business district. 2. Total prizes $60 in cash. Home division—$25 first prize, $15 second, $5 third and five awards of $1 each. Business division—$10 first prize, $5 second prize.

Lights must be exterior, and may be coordinated with interior lighting effects clearly visible from the street. In the business division, merchants may include display windows as part of their decorative scheme.

All decorations must be in operation by the night of Monday, Dec. 23, and must remain lighted through the night of Jan. 1. No permit judging committees to make their tours throughout all sections of the city. Lights should be kept on nightly until 10 p.m.

Type of decorations: Any type desired by the individual householder or merchant, whether carrying Christmas theme, religious theme or abandoning a central theme altogether for varied lighting effects.

Judging basis: General effect most important. Elaborate nature of displays will not be the decisive factor. A small and ingenious decoration may take grand prize over others more elaborate.

No entry blanks or entry listing necessary. Simply decorate and thus join in upholding Twin Falls as "the Christmas city."

Directory Work Underway Here

Groundwork for start of work in compiling information for the new R. L. Polk and company directory, which is expected to be issued next June for the year 1941-42, was being completed here today by M. S. Pfeiffer, special representative, with headquarters in Salt Lake City.

The directory, Pfeiffer said, will cover five counties including Cassia, Gooding, Jerome, Minidoka and Twin Falls, as well as all communities and also rural routes in those counties.

The directory will also list home owners and designate those telephone connections. Occupants will be listed in each case including husband and wife and children over 18 years of age. Occupational listings will also be made.

At the present time the special representative is taking orders for advertising space in the new book. He said that a crew of 15 persons will come to Twin Falls and will cover five counties to begin work on material for the book in the spring, or as soon as the winter weather breaks making travel in "off the main road districts" easy. This crew will take about two months to gather all the information which will be placed in the book.

The Polk company publishes about 1,100 different directories covering practically every city, town and community in the United States.

KETCHUM DRAFTS CIVIC CAMPAIGN

KETCHUM, Dec. 11 (Special)—Though generally considered as somewhat of a quiet month prior to the holidays, the newly organized Ketchum Chamber of Commerce will shortly open a December program that will keep the members busy for a time. At the present the body is getting down to the business of formulating a budget.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors, and other matters were considered. Among the items in the promotional category is a publicity and advertising campaign, involving pamphlets and brochures to large degree. There is some disposition to hold the regular monthly meetings of the entire body at a holiday luncheon, and this may be tried right away. Suggestions on alloys and property cleanup were approved. The well known Green River ordinance, in operation in many communities, will be given full consideration at the next session. It provides measures to minimize itinerant peddlers as much as possible. Additional police regulation has likewise been broached with considerable backing, and the matter of town incorporation is again in mind.

A community ice rink on one of the vacant lots will likely be arranged for, and Christmas trees will soon be on the streets. In all probability a community Christmas tree being included. Many other community items, such as game conservation and propagation, screening and the like are on the program, and through a public service bureau in connection with the chamber, informative printed material will be placed in the

Leagues Conduct Fellowship Meet

Following the meal the Rupert young people, with Miss Dorothy Baylor as leader, conducted the devotional service in which talks were given by Miss Elsie Watson, Paul, and David Smith, Rupert. The program concluded with a stereopticon lecture, entitled "Behold I Send You Forth," given by Rev. Joseph Coulter, pastor of the Murtaugh church.

Flu Epidemic Still as Big a Riddle as in World War Days

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — If the influenza epidemic which has developed in California and spread east is no worse than present reports, it is the worst that public health service officials, the American people do not need to be alarmed about a repetition of the great 1918-19 epidemic.

A great many cases of influenza have been reported, but — as far as the public health service is concerned — there have been very few deaths.

If that holds true in later and more detailed reports, the public health service authorities, the 1918 variety of influenza probably is not present. For the 1918 epidemic carried many deaths with it.

Epidemic influenza is about as mysterious a riddle as medicine ever has to tackle with, but one thing does seem to be known definitely — that there are two varieties, a severe one like the 1918 visitation and a relatively mild form which is a nuisance and a pain, but which is seldom fatal.

A month or two ago, Puerto Rico had an epidemic of influenza — the mild form. America, apparently, is getting what Puerto Rico got.

No Sure Control Now

Right at the moment, there is no sure method of controlling influenza. Medical science is better off than it was in 1918 in one respect — the virus which causes the malady has been isolated, by several investigators, and has been established as a virus. Two types of influenza virus have been isolated so far. The relationship of these types, is not yet known.

Chief work along this line has been done by the Rockefeller Foundation. Scientists there have succeeded in making a vaccine which, apparently, will give protection against one type of influenza to animals. Whether it will also give protection to human beings is not yet definitely known, chiefly because opportunities to test it have been rare.

Should another epidemic of the 1918 type of disease strike its appearance, this vaccine could be tested under conditions which would show exactly what degree of protection it might give. It should be proven that the vaccine is able to give immunity, science would then be able to "control" influenza.

Unless and until that or something similar happens, however, the simple fact is that millions of men today are no better equipped to fight epidemic influenza than they were in 1918.

For one thing, there is no simple, specific diagnostic test by which a physician can be dead sure he actually has a case of influenza on his hands. There are a few laboratories in the country where such a test can be made, but the process is long and difficult, and is not available to the ordinary physician.

For another thing, public health service experts frankly admit they do not know how to control epidemic influenza.

Influenza is highly infectious in the early stages; apparently it is transmitted from one person to another in the air, probably in the minute droplets of moisture from the mouth and nose. Yet the elaborate efforts to check the 1918 epidemic by isolating all sufferers, closing schools and theaters and churches and preventing public gatherings as much as possible seemed to do little or no good. For the influenza virus apparently can transmit the infection to someone else before he knows he has it himself.

Yet to be tested.

An indication that complete isolation would give protection is given by an experiment of the U. S. navy in 1918. The navy succeeded in giving absolute isolation to a group of men stationed on an island in San Francisco bay. All communications with the shore was cut off. When supplies were taken to the island they were left on the dock; only after the boat which brought them had left did the men on the island come down and get them.

The sailors on that island escaped the flu. Yet public health service officials point out that isolation of the kind is simply impossible for the public at large. People have to go to stores, they have to go to shops or offices to work, they have to ride on street cars and buses—they cannot avoid all contact with their fellows.

Even the wearing of masks, familiar during the 1918 epidemic, is believed to be of doubtful value — again, for the simple reason that no one can possibly keep his mask on every minute through the weeks that an epidemic lasts.

All of which, of course, does not mean that the picture is entirely gloomy. The big thing is that the influenza virus has been isolated — which means that there is now a good chance (which was not true in 1918) to develop a protective vaccine. In addition, the various sulfanilamide derivatives have yet to be tested thoroughly on influenza. They will get such a test the moment a real epidemic appears. It is quite possible that one or another of these drugs will be found effective.

The public health service is keeping in constant touch with the influenza conditions throughout the country through daily reports from local and state health officials.
