HERD TEST WORK VALUES OUTLINED

Value of dairy herd improvement groups lies not only in improving the stock involved but also in betterment of the dairyman himself. Roy Jones, senior extension dairyman from Washington, D. C., told 225 herd owners last night at a joint banquet of Magic Valley's two testing associations.

The banquet, held at the Park hotel, attracted members of the Gooding-Jerome and the Twin Falls-Mini-Cassia associations.

Registry honor

Highlight event of the evening was formal presentation of Holstein-Friesian association "conservative breeder" certificate to L. J. Tencknick, Twin Falls; A. H. Jagels, Buhl, and Charles Hager, Rupert.

The registry constitutes the highest possible award for Holstein breeders. Mr. Tencknick has been chosen twice. His double honor, plus the awards to Mr. Jagels and Mr. Hager, give Magic Valley a unique national standing since there are only 28 of the registry awards thus far made in the entire nation. University of Idaho also has received the distinction.

Presentation of the certificate was by Ivan H. Loughary, state extension dairyman.

Col. E. O. Walter, Piler, was toastmaster at the banquet. Speakers included Mr. Jones and C. T. Koeler, Twin Falls manager for the Jerome Cooperative Creamery.

Tells of Sires

The federal extension expert tallied summarized data concerning breed of sires, and pointed out benefits of herd improvement inspection.

Mr. Koeler, pioneer cow-leader in this area, told of incidents that occurred when work was just getting underway.

County agents from Burley, Rupert, Jerome, Gooding and Twin Falls attended the banquet. They are, respectively, W. W. Palmer, Warren Daight, Eugene W. Whitman, C. L. Mink and Bert Bolling.

Also introduced at the session was Sam H. Kayler, Twin Falls dairyman who is outstanding breeder of Jersey cattle.

Entertainment

Mr. and Mrs. Whitman led community singing. Entertainment included vocal selection by the county agents; flute quartet by the Stokes twins, John Rasmussen, Jr., and Miss Betty Luke, all of Twin Falls; quartet, Betty Barrett, Nadine Tracy and Olga O'Neill, all of Gooding; George Catmell, Burley, and Mrs. Ferning; Wallace Stocking, Burley, reading.

Variance Wide for Power Rate in Idaho

BOISE, Ida., March 5 (UP)—The federal power commission today issued a report on electric power rates in Idaho which showed the difference between lowest and highest residential bills for identical quantities of power range from 83 per cent to 162 per cent in charges of 1,000 population or more.

The study showed that residents in some communities are paying as much as 76 per cent more for their electricity as those in cities of similar size.

For 250 kilowatt hours of electricity residential consumers buying from Idaho Falls municipally owned power plant pay $2.1 per cent less than do consumers of the same amount of electricity in Boise and three other larger cities. In Idaho Falls, residential rates for electricity cost $1.15; while in Boise the same amount of electricity costs $1.90.

However, as consumption is stepped up among Boise consumers the difference in cost goes down. In Idaho Falls, 100 kilowatt hours costs $3.85, and in Boise, $3.50.

For 250 kilowatt hours the cost in Boise is $6.25, and in Coeur d'Alene and Lewiston, $6.97.

The greatest disparity between cities, electricity appeared to be in smaller communities, the report shows. In Grangeville, cost of 250 kilowatt hours was $1.21, while the same amount of electricity cost $2.12 in Cascade, or 76.2 per cent more.

The report was made up in the form of typical net monthly bills for residents in 118 communities of 250 or more population; commercial rates for communities of 2,000 or more, and industrial rates in cities of 10,000 or over. The Idaho report was one of a series of 48 now in course of publication which, when completed, will constitute a study of American electric rates.

POT SHOTS

WITH
The Gentleman in the Third Row

Racketeers

Nestled racketeers of the season, thinks Pot Shots, are the very young Pro-Wee league baseballers who do battle to get unannounced the enrichment of Mister Alton Young, the eminent dirt gent.

This collection of pint-sized baseballers (some of them are half-pints) wasn't such a much a few weeks ago. But then they descended on Alton in a body and highjacked him into becoming their mascot.

They made him promise that for every game they won, he'd donate a bottle of orange drink to each player.

Since then they've been winning all the time. In fact, they're so consistent that Alton has decided he was diplomatically jobbed. The proceeds on his bottled orange drink are terrific.

During Monday's Pro-Wee battle, his team captained Alton on the field a couple of times—right smack during the game, too—to tell him that "it looks tough, Mister Young, but we can pull through."

Whose Advantage?

Every business man worth his salt knows that only one deal in which both buyer and seller are satisfied, by which both profit, is worth making. The deal in which one party gains an advantage at the expense of the other is no good in the long run. No permanent business, no permanent system of trade can be built on that basis.

That goes for trade between nations as well as for trade between people. We have found out that no country can continue indefinitely to buy more than it sells, to be placed at a permanent disadvantage. International trade never comes out exactly even. There are always some odd balances to be settled. But as a permanent matter, exchange between countries must come sooner or later into something like a balance. Each country must dispose of what it has too much of, and receive equal value in the things it needs.

That general principle throws light on Herr Hitler's recent speech in which he outlined his principles of international trade. He was not going to be restricted by money considerations, he said; he was going to buy for the German people, not money, but goods. So far, so good.

"We are going to do business," he added, "solely on the basis of German advantage. If it's good for Germany, we shall trade."

The Colombians found out about German advantage. They "sold" huge quantities of coffee to Germany for blocked marks, "money" which was good only in Germany—in short, for a credit against German goods, when, as, and if German goods they wanted should be available. The Germans then took the coffee, and instead of drinking it themselves, sold it around Europe to Colombia's regular customers at trick prices. Colombia lost the coffee, lost its regular markets, and got nothing but credits in Germany. Because that credit was good nowhere else, they had to take what Germany offered at Germany's prices. They didn't like the deal much, though it was certainly "on the basis of German advantage."

STORY OF A FORLORN LITTLE DOG

Dear Third Row:

One of the prominent local grocery stores tells me about what he thinks is a shabby trick on a faithful dog, so I pass it along to you as Defender of the Public Mite.

A certain Twin Falls family moved away from town. They left behind the little dog they had for several years. And for days on end, the dog maintained a vigil outside the family's passenger coming home from school.

However, I understand the dog is now in good hands.

A VERY COMMANDING YOUNG LAD!

Zoe Lynett Squires, pride and joy of the Frank Squires household, is already wise in the ways of a disciplinarian.

Accompanying her parents to Twin Falls from Buhl for dinner Sunday, she had a hand in a laugh riot in no time at all.

A young man of about 14 months, placed himself on top of an adjacent table, after he was bathed with his dinner.

"Get down, big boy!" commanded Zoe in a loud and authoritative voice.

Surprised as he could be, the youngster did just that.

CASE OF BROKEN-HEARTED MRS. BROWN

POSSIBLE REASON:

In fairness to all... a correction is in order.

It's been rumored that the Twines is liable to be sued for libel; i.e., defamation of character if a trial of Gene Bentley of Barney Oldfield.

"I was held up to public ridicule, contempt and hatred," Gene says.

"She... has been discriminated against."

Monday night the diminutive Mrs. Bentley's sister, a new merchant's league high which went unheeded in the morning print.

To add insult to injury, he was quoted with 119 first line, which actually was a breezy 190.

Do something, Pote, or the 20-30 million will use the Twines for a complete social revolution.

—Society for Prevention of Libel Litigation

A VERY ODD MATTER

The draft is an odd matter and its terminology is even odder.

I mean what the army chooses to call its future cannon fodder.

You'd think a man who is drafted would be a draftee. But the army doesn't like that term. It's been determined against it.

Monday night the diminutive Mrs. Bentley's sister, a new merchant's league high which went unheeded in the morning print.

To add insult to injury, he was quoted with 119 first line, which actually was a breezy 190.

Do something, Pote, or the 20-30 million will use the Twines for a complete social revolution.

PERSONALLY, WE'RE NEARLY TONE DEAF, SO—

Dear Pot Shots:

Everybody is concentrating on a "city more beautiful," I propose to suggest that we include "city of peace" in our slogan.

I refer particularly to the brand of community singing that bursts forth from men's and women's civic club meetings. If a motion is in order, I propose a law against "mug" singing to piano accompaniment.

FAMOUS LAST LINE

And here, dear sir, say anything about her last snoring. We awake and she's a 60-year-old man has a new tooth—

SERIAL STORY

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

BY RUTH AYERS

was doing, I wanted to call me an officer but you wouldn't let me."

April turned around, saw that the front door was shut securely. Inside, the living room lamps were lighted, but out here on the porch there was only the dim bulb overhead. No one in the family had seen her yet but she didn't dare chance it further.

She motioned Wilkie and the constable down the steps. At any minute Hal would be here and know how to help her.

She stopped in front of the constable's car, her spirits lifting in a quick spurt of defiance.

"You can't prove anything," Wilkie Applenman, she said. "This is no better than a hold-up and you can't prove a thing!"

"Oh, can't I?" Wilkie sneered and twisted the shapless brim of his hat. "I guess maybe the check would speak for itself."

THE CHECK What had been a blur of pain and horror to her that night in the Patonville railroad station, started to clarify. She had opened her purse and handed a few bills and some change at Wilkie. Hal whined for more. She had remembered her check book and how with a numb, shaky hand had written a check.

"And I got $10," Wilkie had said, "make it my nothing."

April saw it all. Wilkie, unscrupulous no-account that he might be, was legally within his rights.

"Very well," she said finally, "what am I supposed to do?"

She heard the constable speak of posting bond, of appearing for a preliminary hearing. "What you waiting for?" the constable asked. "Why don't you come along with me now and get looked at at the station without any fuss?"

An upstairs window in the Burnett house opened. Through it into the crystal air came a strain of song from April. At this minute, Ann was dressing for her date with Kent. Ann's wedding day would be soon.

"I'll go with you just as soon as a friend of mine arrives," she said. "I'll go without any fuss. There's only one thing I ask. Does anyone have to know this? Does my father? You see, and she spoke very humbly, "we're going to have a wedding in our house and the fuss, the notoriety would spoil everything."

Again, though the window, she heard Ann's lovely voice lifting in silver notes of happiness. April closed her eyes briefly.

Wilkie was speaking from the corner of the room, "trying to keep it on the ally a little longer."

April shuddered and then opened her eyes quickly. A clear, masculine voice was saying— "Keep what on the ally?"

Only one voice was like that. Not Dad, not Hal—Kent Carter! "Keep what on the ally?" Kent was repeating and somehow had come to stand by April, one hand steadying her.

THE constable was ruffled. "Served a warrant on Mr. Elbel Burnett here," he said. "Failing to report an accident—damage suit."

Kent took the papers from April's hand. "We'll see about it," he said. "I happened to have been concerned with this so-called accident."

Wilkie was whining. "You're the fellow that punched me in the down when he'd already been run over. I know you Kent Carter. Miss Ann's fall."

April felt Kent's fist double under her hand. "Please," she whispered and her face was close to his.

That was the first time she had seen him since he had returned, his light restored. This was the first time she had been near him. She had not seen him since he had returned, his light restored. This was the first time she had been near him. She had not seen him since he had returned, his light restored.

April pushed Kent aside, "Wait a minute," she began breathlessly. "I've got something to tell you. I'm predestined for only one purpose—to bring her back to Kent."

Then she remembered Ann. "Wait a minute," she began breathlessly. "I've got something to tell you. I'm predestined for only one purpose—to bring her back to Kent."

What Tree in Place of Elm? Plant Sycamore

Always regarded as the "grand avenue tree" in the city, but in the east the elms have fallen prey to various insect attacks and some of these have found their way to the west, according to the Twin Falls Gardener club.

Chief destroyer is the elm leaf beetle, with numerous other leaf chewers, San Jose scale and aphids.

The latter exudes the honey-dew which stains walls and auto fenders.

Most of these pests can be controlled to some extent, by spraying, but already it has been attacked.

A few years ago the Chinese or Siberian elm was heralded as the "stately elm" in a question in the minds of local residents who have already planted these trees, or who are contemplating planting their parking properties.

The oaks and sugar maples have already been discussed by the Gardener club. Other substitutes suggested are the sycamore and the horse-chestnut, Plantanus acerifolia, or London Plane, which is a deserved popularity.

There are several kinds of sycamores, all characterized by broad, heart-shaped leaves and maple. The seeds lie in hanging balls.

Sycamore Suggested The London Plane is the sycamore commonly listed by nurserymen. It is thought to be a natural hybrid between the Oriental and American sycamores. It is a compact and symmetrical tree with handsome, dense foliage.

Its characteristic white appearance is charming as the bark peels off in thin plates, leaving smooth, light-colored limbs and branches.

It is one of the most rapid growers among the desirable trees, yet give the lesson on the life of Lorenzo Snow. A visiting teachers' meeting will be held at 8:30 p. m. with Mrs. Minnie Blazer in charge.

RAINS, HIGH WINDS SUBSIDE ALONG PACIFIC COAST

PRESSURE AREA FAR AT SEA TO TOUGH THURSDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5 (AP)—Rains and high winds that have smothered the Pacific coast dwindled today and rivers began to catch up with the water accumulated by nearly three months of rain.

Winds that had churned up the coast into huge waves, tearing cabin cruiser and several smaller boats from their moorings and beaching them on southern California, died down and to more heavy weather was expected until the week-end.

A low pressure area far at sea was expected to touch the coast tomorrow night, but its intensity or effect could not be predicted.

Rail Lines Blocked

The main Southern Pacific railroad lines between San Francisco and Los Angeles were blocked for several hours last night because workmen cleared away a 600-foot landslide in the San Joaquin valley.

Six heavily traveled passenger trains were held on both sides of the slide.

River Drops

The Sacramento river, which had peaked perilously close to 100 feet of its levees and broke through at one point to flood several hundred acres of farmlands, was dropping along its length from the Sierran mountains to the delta. The San Joaquin river, however, was rising and there was some flood threat.

The Los Angeles river, which is dry for most of the year, was raging torrent that undermined and wrecked a 175-foot section of a Santa Fe railroad bridge.

Odds Point to No War Between U. S., Japan During Next Year

WASHINGTON, March 5 (NEA)—If you like to bet a few bucks on a long shot, now and then you might guess that there won't be any war with Japan for either the British or the United States for some time to come. Your ordinary horse sense should give you the necessary conviction to play this hunch.

Warlike preparations there will be lots of them. With plenty of shadow boats, shouting, breast-ings, moving about of battleships, troops, guns, airplanes, building of new bases for submarines, naval, diplomatic, strengthening of official statements, strengthening of all the fortifications from Singapore to San Diego. Everything leading right up to open hostilities. But not the hostilities.

All the preparedness for war in the Pacific, on the part of both the British and the United States, is perhaps the best reason why the actual fighting won't come off. Every move Japan makes toward expansion to the south and east has so far been effectively checked by the British, the Dutch in the East Indies, Britain in Malaya, Australia and New Zealand, the United States in the Philippines, Alaska, Guam and other American island possessions in the Pacific, including Hawaii.

Diplomats Here Men

The best of observers in Washington are of the opinion that the Japanese government itself does not know what its program in the Pacific is to be, any more than the United States government knows what its program is to be in Europe. Officially, we have stated that our program is to stay out of war in Europe, but we don't know what we're going to be able to do. Officially, Japan has stated that her program is to stay out of war in the Philippines, Alaska, Guam, and the Orient, but she doesn't know that she'll be able to do it.

Both these doubts are based on the seldom-admitted but none the less true confession of the best diplomats who make it in confidence—they aren't sure of their own minds. Japan's own uncertainty as to her future is no greater than the uncertainty of the other countries—Britain, France, Germany, Italy or the United States—as to where it will be one year hence.

And Singapore, in addition to its uncertainty in plotting courses of destiny. There are the conflicting elements of the Japanese policy and home factions within the government. Shortage of food, short-

SOCIAL AGENCIES GROUP CONVENES

Kimberly, March 5 (Special)—Council of Social Agencies met Monday evening at the warehouse building and a good attendance was recorded. Hansen sent a delegation of 12 all new members. The Friendship club, Mrs. Rose Wiseman and Mrs. Mildred Muhlitz; Community Council, Mrs. King Elvins and Mrs. Bryan Harris; G. A. R., Mrs. Carl Hughes; Royal Neighbors, Mrs. Edna Bailey and Mrs. Mary Trunkley; Grand, Stewart Scott and Mrs. Ralph Simmons; Assembly of God church; Rev. J. C. Cox and Mrs. O. S. Wren, all new Hansen representatives.

Mrs. Fred Moberg, disbursement chairman, reported that 152 garments were given out this past month with $5 pieces of this amount going to Hansen district, and many small articles too numerous to mention.

Shoes Needed

There is still a need for used clothing and shoes and anyone wishing to donate these articles to the Social Agencies may leave them at the Kimberly Motors.

Fred Moberg, member of the recreation committee, reported that some investigation had been made concerning a skating pond for the coming winter season. The council recommended the committee to work on plans for this project.

Shoes were ordered for a crippled underprivileged child, the shoes having to be made from rubber with built-up arches and heels.

A finance committee was added to the constitution and Rev. S. D. Peterson appointed Rev. J. C. Cox, Hansen; Mrs. Frank Trunkley, Hansen, and Bob Denton, Kimberly Alvora club, to act in this capacity.

A bill was presented and approved for a pair of glasses for a needy child.

LEGISLATIVE WIND-UP LOOMS BY THURSDAY NIGHT

EXTRA SESSION NOT NECESSARY, GOVERNOR SAYS

By LLOYD TUPLING BOISE, March 5 (AP)—Administrative leaders predicted the 20th session of the Idaho legislature will end on time Thursday night after completing arrangements to secure consideration of a "minimum" program.

Gov. Chase A. Clark said there will be no need for a "special session" of the legislature. He said all bills essential to the state will receive consideration.

Before the session ends—probably early Friday morning after the clock has stopped to come within the 60-day statutory limit—tax measures and bills appropriating about $13,500,000 to run state offices and institutions will have been disposed of.

Five Tax Measures Five tax measures have been sponsored by the Democratic leadership by the house of representatives but Governor Clark has asked for past-taxes on liquor 20 per cent and levying a three per cent tax on dividends by all foreign and domestic corporations from incomes derived from operations in Idaho.

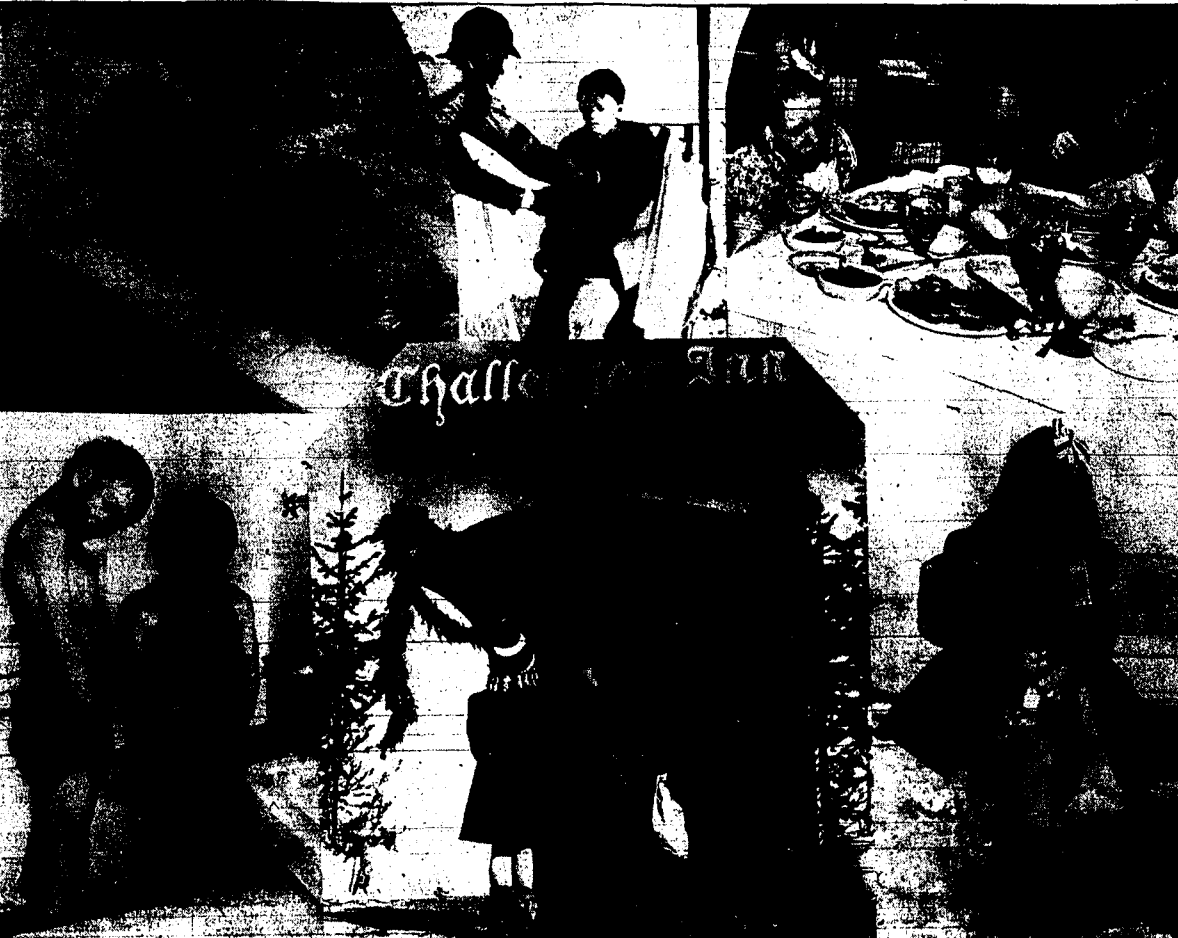

Republicans showed signs of favoring Gov. Clark's demands for the whiskey tax, but objected strongly to other tax proposals which would have taxed cigarettes, cigars, beer, auto license and set up a two per cent tax on retail sales.

Gov. Clark said that if the two tax bills—on whiskey and corporate dividends—were not passed before the session ends, then he would have to pare down appropriations after the legislators went home.

Warrant Problem A major problem to be solved by the end of the regular session is how to pay off nearly $1,500,000 in outstanding registered warrants left over from the last administration and continue to keep the state government on a cash basis.

CLASSES PLANNED ON DEFENSE JOBS

GOODING, March 5 (Special)—Defense training course under national defense training program will be given in Gooding in the future if a sufficient number of young men are interested, according to Supt. M. W. Tate. This program would include special training courses for out-of-school youth between the ages of 17 and 24, who are not regularly employed.

Administration of the course would be under direct supervision of the state board of vocational education, working through the local high school. The course will include courses, selection of instructors and approval of the trainees would be handled by a local committee.

Such courses could include operation, care and repair of tractors, trucks, automobiles, both gas and diesel engines; metal working, including hammering, drilling, shaping, etc.; woodworking, elementary electricity, etc.

One or more courses might be set up in downtown shops or in the school shop. Courses must be conducted for at least eight weeks with a minimum of 45 hours and a maximum of 40 hours per week.

Costs of the courses must be conducted on a highly practical basis by trained and experienced teacher-worker and in all cases the special instruction of fundamental principles and the formation of correct and efficient work habits will be stressed.

General expenses will be paid the government from the defense appropriation.

A course would offer a young man an opportunity to learn a trade at no expense and better fit young workers with realistic training and skill which the future will undoubtedly demand.

Yanks May Develop Slick Infield With Joe Gordon Playing First

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Babe Dahlgren's sale to the Boston Braves suddenly gives John Peter Joseph Sturm a position of importance in the Yankees' camp.

Joe Gordon, 25-year-old, is the only out-and-out candidate for the first basing job.

But those closest to the situation doubt that Sturm, 25-year-old, is a German emigrant, will be at Lou Gehrig's old station when the first shot is fired, or for any length of time thereafter.

Sturm has the physical advantage of a left-hander enjoys at the post and fields well enough, but does not hit the long ball demanded of a Yankee first sacker.

With Gerald Priddy and Phil Rizzuto, who established a double play record in Kansas City with 123, making a determined bid to remain a second base combination, Joe Gordon is left free for duty elsewhere, and don't be surprised if the flying Oregonian winds up at first base.

His tonsils removed, and poison out of his system, Red Rolfe promises to do a comeback at third.

Tommy Henrich, who could be spared from the outfield, has fooled around first base since the great strike first showed signs of the illness which brought his illustrious career to a close.

Sturm batted .300 for Louisville in '38, .309 for Kansas City in '39 and .312 for the Blues last term.

He attributed his hitting in no more than 30, 35 and 43 cuts the same three years to his having been a lead-off man ... trying to get on base by hook or crook, and generally with no one in position to be driven across the plate.

But the fact that Sturm was a lead-off man in a Double A league doesn't strengthen his chances with

John Peter Joseph Sturm is the Yankees' only out-and-out candidate for first base, but what about Joe Gordon?

Vandals Trim Oregon State

MOSCOW, Ida., March 5 (UP)—University of Idaho basketball defeated Oregon State, 42 to 35, last night.

Idaho led 24 to 16 at halftime. At the outset, the teams traded the lead, but by the time they had amassed 14 points apiece, Idaho had settled down. And from there the Moscow squad led all the way.

John Mandic of Oregon State and Ron Harris of Idaho tied for scoring honors with 14 points apiece.

Four Meet for Best-Ball Title

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 5 (UP)—Gene Sarazen, veteran professional, and Ben Hogan meet Sammy Snead and Ralph Guldahl for the top prize in the 18th annual $5,000 international four-ball golf tournament final today.

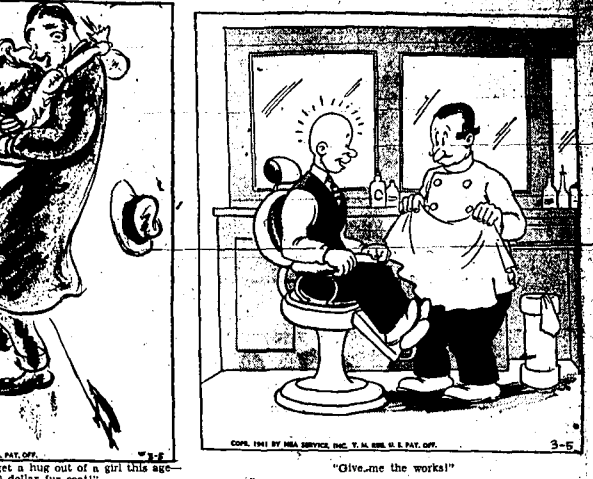

Sarazen and Hogan earned their berth in the final with a 2 and 1 victory over defending champions Bill Burke and Craig Wood yesterday while the Snead-Guldahl combination licked the veteran team of Horan Smith and Paul Runyan 1 up.

THE SCOREBOARD

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

WHEELBARROW, the current Hitchcock novel favorite, has the conformation of Ben-Hur. ... as deep through the heart and shoulder ... is of the same height—15 hands 2 inches.

Man of War stood 16 hands. Phar Lap, the late and lamented Australian wonder, 17.

But how high is a hand? It is surprising how few track habitués can tell you offhand.

The question was put to a number of officials, owners, trainers, clockers, players, commentators and just plain hustlers at a major track before anyone replied correctly.

Famous handlers apologized ... said they would know at the farm, but that they had forgotten.

It remained for a jockey of English antecedents to clear up the mystery. "A hand is four inches," he averred. "The width of your 'and, Sir'."

Another term that puzzled veteran track men is steeple, though like the hand it has been used in connection with blood stock for centuries. A steeple is 14 pounds.

How high is a hand and how much is a steeple would be stumbling on a quiz program.

Phil Rizzuto and Gerald Priddy, the Yankees' new keystone pair, have teamed up in the minors for three campaigns and it is their ambition to become American league regulars as a combination.

Joe McCarthy starts with the diminutive Rizzuto as the first string shortstop.

And those who watched him closely in the American association say the swift Gerry Priddy is good enough to make a third baseman out of any competent second sacker as Joe Gordon.

John Peter Joseph Sturm is the Yankees' only out-and-out candidate for first base, but what about Joe Gordon?

Can Play Anywhere

The reason those who know Joe McCarthy best believe he has Joe Gordon in the back of his head as a first basemen in that the Eugene boy is the acrobatic type that can play anywhere.

Gordon has all the requirements of a first basemen except the fielding ability that goes to a second there, and being a right-hander certainly didn't handicap him in the field. You can start with a left back behind the late Frank Chance in hitting right-handed throwing first basemen who did all right.

No one has the right to doubt about Joe Gordon's ability to play first base. Daily Phil Rizzuto and Gerry Priddy give the Yankees the assurance that they'll maintain their Kansas City pace around second.

Red Rolfe is expected to demonstrate that physical instability which all that retarded him in 1940. If things work out in this way, the Yankee infield of 1941 will make professional sleight-of-hand performers look like novice pickpockets with thimbles on their fingers.

The bakers of BUTTER-KRUST, the bread that's already the outstanding favorite in "Magic Valley," and is recognized generally for its superiority, again take the lead with another major advancement in keeping with scientific research and new baking standards proposed by the United States government.

Now, as the new labels indicate, all BUTTER-KRUST white breads are "Enriched with Vitamins and Iron."

Now, BUTTER-KRUST Bread will enjoy an even greater popularity because it is made with an enriched ingredient that makes possible a most delicious white bread with important extra food values—two of the most important Vitamins of the B-Complex: Vitamin B¹ (Thiamin) and Nicotinic Acid, in addition to the food mineral, Iron. The addition of these food values does not alter the color, taste or other physical characteristics of BUTTER-KRUST Bread in any respect.

Recommended by the National Research Council, which is acting as an advisory body for all government departments interested in diets and nutrition relating to the national defense program, the "enriched ingredient" now brings BUTTER-KRUST Bread to the highest of modern standards.

Scientists contend that millions of Americans suffer from diets deficient in the food essentials now contained in BUTTER-KRUST Bread. If you have not been getting enough of these essentials, BUTTER-KRUST Bread now affords you a wealth of such vital ingredients. These are the food values that help to improve your appetite and digestion, keep you mentally alert, overcome nervousness, and build bodily resistance.

BUTTER-KRUST, your favorite bread, is now better than ever, more nourishing, and better for you. See that your family gets these extra food values. Buy BUTTER-KRUST Bread from your grocer.
