Two Nations Renew Non-Aggression Pact After Conferences

By DANA SCHMIDT

ISTANBUL, March 22 (U.P.)—Russia was said by reliable sources today to have given Turkey written assurances she has nothing to fear from the Soviet union in what was described cautiously as the event that, "the Turkish political situation should deteriorate."

Well-informed Turkish quarters believed Russia's assurances constitute, in effect, a pledge Russia will not take advantage of the situation to attack Turkey in the future. In the event Turkey goes to war against Germany, word Turkey has obtained a Russian pledge followed circulation of circumstantial rumors that Russia might sign a non-aggression treaty with Turkey.

Bound Since 1925

Since Russia and Turkey have been bound by a non-aggression pact since 1925, it appeared any Russo-Turkish understanding would implement the 1925 treaty.

(A United Press dispatch from Moscow reported Turkish Ambassador Ali Havalat Aklay, conferred last night with the Soviet vice-consul for foreign affairs, A. V. Vishniakov. It was the second conference of Aklay and Vishniakov since the pact was signed.

According to reports circulating here, Turkey's foreign minister, Samouh and the Russian ambassador, Alexander Vinnikov, are expected to sign a Russo-Turkish non-aggression pact.

It was noted here that any Russo-Turkish pact would be a significant step at least tacit support for an active ally of Britain. However, there was little doubt here that Russia had been disturbed by the German advance in the Balkans, the occupation of Rumania and Bulgaria and the possibility that Germany, too, will fall into the axis camp.

DAMAGED BRITISH SHIP IN U. S. PORT

CHESTER, Penn., March 22 (U.P.)—The British freighter Naragansett, torpedoed by a submarine, is being repaired at the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company here, the United Press learned today.

It is believed to be the first British ship to be repaired in the United States since passage of the lease-lend bill.

Neither the amount of damage nor the time and cost of the submarine attack could be ascertained. The freighter came into this port in ballast a week ago for a war cargo after stopping at Marston, Penn., where a private physician went aboard to treat seven members of the crew.

ARMY COMES TO BOISE APRIL 28

BOISE, March 22 (U.P.)—Lieut. Col. Robin A. Day, commanding of the new Boise army base, said today the first 80 officers and 2,225 enlisted men to be stationed here will start arriving April 28.

The officers and men will not come in one group, but in increments as soon as the base is completed. The total of 305 officers and 2,225 men is the ultimate allowed to be stationed at the base by air district officials at Fort George Wright in Spokane.

Spokane district officials have requested orders from the war department relative to send a contingent of 150 to 200 men to the base immediately, he said.

Fireworks Fly as Chapin Challenges Claims by Koehler

Developments in the city election campaign let loose a barrage of political pyrotechnics today as the result of a circular distributed throughout the city by Mayor Joe-Koehler, candidate for reelection.

Lem A. Chapin, opposing candidate for the office, charged the mayor with misrepresentation and challenged him to identify those against whom he is making his accusations.

Chapin's "Warning! So the People May Know" contained two paragraphs which took emphatic exception. He wrote: "Why is it that Twin Falls has no airport when just a few years ago it had one? Why is it that the federal government has marked one-hundred-thousand dollars for a Twin Falls airport? Why is it that Twin Falls has no auxiliary water-main when it could have been had for the price of a nickel? Why is it that the water main occurred just 24 hours later at the time of the fire in the Junior high school building? Why is it that we have no storm sewer, even though the canal company has offered to cooperate with the city? Why are the water works available? Why are U. S. highway No. 30 designated for the north side of the river? Why is there not a single member of a previous administration helped on the fight for the toll-free bridge at the time of the meeting with the governor and members of the commission?"

"There are many more failures that we could enumerate, but that I think these things over and then ask yourself if you should want to reelect to office those who either opposed the projects or did not have the best interests of the city at heart enough to support them. We feel sure that on the coming election day, April 1, that you, the voters, will repute those whose office interests in the city of Twin Falls are their own personal, selfish interests first and the interests of the city second." "I am a member of the present commission. I will show that I am and so you are running the city."

2 STATE OFFICERS WILL CONFER ON CONFESSION NOTE

State Policemen V. K. Barron, Twin Falls, and Perry Brewington, Burley, will leave early Sunday to confer with State Law Enforcement Commissioner J. L. Balderston on investigation of the "confession" note in connection with the Duncan McEl, Johnston murder case. It was announced this afternoon.

Barron and Brewington expect to return to their posts either late Sunday or early Monday morning, according to the announcement.

It was pointed out that officers of the sheriff's department of Twin Falls county and of the local police department have, as yet, received no formal invitation to attend the conference.

A copy of the note which Gov. Chase Clark received earlier this week in which an anonymous writer confessed that he or she murdered George L. Olson, a Salt Lake City jewelry salesman, was received today. Johnston has twice been charged with the murder.

The wording of the note was the first official copy to be received here, with exception of a facsimile published yesterday in the Evening Times. The original note has not been seen by officers here.

The asserted 224-9-J. L. Balderston, state law enforcement commissioner, today called state officers from Twin Falls district to confer tomorrow on investigation of a note confessing the murder for which Duncan and Johnston are charged.

FEDERAL TAX IN IDAHO INCREASES

BOISE, March 22 (U.P.)—John R. Wiley, collector of internal revenue, reported today Idahoans paid 9.5 per cent more in federal income taxes this year than in 1940.

Unofficial figures to March 20 of this year showed a total of $1,249,227.78 received from 26,500 income tax returns. This compared to $860,442.16 at the same date last year resulting from the 15,200 tax returns filed.

Increased earning capacities and the lowering of income tax exemptions during this year are probably the two principal reasons involved in the huge increase, Wiley declared.

Floods Blamed on Early Snow Thaw

IDAHO FALLS, Ida., March 22 (U.P.)—Warm weather which caused an early spring run-off of snow from eastern Idaho mountains today was blamed for minor flood conditions in the upper Snake river valley today.

Residents of farming areas around Rexburg, Dubois and Canaan reported flooded basements as the result of the early high water. Low sections of the highway from Dubois along Canaan creek were under water, and a street in Rexburg was flooded earlier this week.

Effort Made to Halt Axis Nations To Axis Nations

BELGRADE, March 22 (U.P.)—Britain and the United States were reported tonight to have intervened in the tense Yugoslav situation in an 11th hour effort to encourage Yugoslavia to stand firm against the axis.

However, well-informed sources believed the Anglo-American intervention had come too late to prevent Yugoslavia from moving into the axis sphere as soon as the current cabinet crisis can be solved.

It was reported the United States had outlined to Yugoslavia the many possible effects which the lend-lease law may have upon the war while Britain was said to have given Yugoslavia an indication of what British aid she could expect if she stands up to Germany.

The feeling in informed quarters here was that Yugoslavia had advanced too far along the road toward the axis to turn back now unless the cabinet crisis should develop some unexpected twist.

Opposition to Yugoslav alignment with Germany appeared to be growing.

On Spot

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 22 (U.P.)—Yugoslavia's political crisis over collaboration with Germany widened as Germany with growing impatience, decided the solution would be the signal for a blitzkrieg war on Greece.

Leaders of the important Serb Agrarian party ordered all its members who held government positions to resign and it was understood the party's six senators, all leading men in national politics, would be ordered to quit today in protest against the cabinet's proposal to transport Germany was waiting across the country to attack Yugoslavia.

GRAND COULEE STARTS GENERATING POWER TODAY

TWO UNITS OPEN FOR PRODUCTION IN RIVER BASIN

GRAND COULEE, Wash. March 22.—Man's largest structure, the $107,000,000 Grand Coulee dam, today begins generation of power that ultimately will serve the entire Pacific northwest.

Two generating units of 10,000 kilowatts each today will turn the power into a transmission line linked with Bonneville dam, 250 miles down the Columbia river, bringing to materialization the dream of a century to harness the continent's second largest river.

The electricity to be generated today will be developed under the power that will be developed upon ultimate completion of the project two years hence. It then will generate 2,100,000 horsepower from 108,000 kilowatt giants.

Launched Seven Years Ago

Grand Coulee dam was launched seven years, seven months and 26 days ago when President Roosevelt approved first funds. On the project for its completion in 1943, but pressed of national defense needs called the two generators into service today.

Immediate beneficiaries of the Grand Coulee power are the aluminum plants rising along the banks of the Columbia near Portland, Ore., already linked with Bonneville dam, a unit of the $400,000,000 Columbia basin project.

But the first actual customer will be the Napelium Valley Electric Cooperative, Inc., serving 150 percent of the Columbia near Portland, Ore., already linked with Bonneville dam, a unit of the $400,000,000 Columbia basin project.

President Roosevelt, Interior Secretary Harold I. Ickes and John C. Fage, reclamation commissioner, will send messages to be broadcast from the dam today.

Dimensions Breathing

Then Dr. Frank A. Baika, supervising engineer, the bureau of reclamation, will turn the project over to Paul J. Raver, chief of the Bonneville power administration that will market the electricity.

Dimensions of Grand Coulee dam are breathtaking. At its crest, it is 4,900 feet long at its base 2,000 feet. Boulder and Shasta dams are higher than its 550 feet, but not as long. The 2,500,000 tons of concrete poured into its formwork will pave a two-lane highway across the country. Its base covers 35 acres, an area roughly two blocks wide by 15 blocks long.

Upon completion 18 generators will have an output of more than eight billion kilowatt hours. Its 32 pumps will deliver 10,000 second feet of water to the basin above.

The basin itself covers an area of 74,100 square miles in Washington and Oregon, another 38,000 square miles in Canada today.

FARM PROGRAM MUST GO ON; DEFENSE WON'T HELP

Editor, Evening Times:

Just because American industry is getting back into high gear and employment is expanding rapidly under the impetus of defense orders, a great many people are assuming that farm problems will be automatically solved, and that farmers will receive their share of the national income. Many newspapers are even going so far as to predict that the appropriations for agriculture that we are asking congress to make, on the ground that farm income will be higher this year than in recent years.

The fact is that war and defense programs will not even, even temporarily, take the place of the program that the farmer needs. The farmer's problems, particularly the problems of the producer of export crops, have been greatly intensified by the war because the war has virtually shut off all foreign outlets for farm products. If anybody thinks the foreign market is not important to American producers, let us remind him that more than half of our farmers are engaged in the production of crops that depend to a large extent on foreign markets.

Former Secretary Henry A. Wallace last year made the statement that farm income during the previous 10 years had lacked two billion dollars a year of reaching parity with other American groups.

Canada and the South American countries also have great surpluses of cotton, wheat and other staples on hand, with no apparent outlet for them. Canada alone has enough wheat to supply all international demand for at least a year.

Under these conditions, our domestic prices would now be at bankruptcy levels if our markets were not supported by commodity loans. The national farm program, of which these loans are a part, has been available for every body who wants to work within a very short time. And now, strange as it may seem, at the time when consumers have more money to buy with than at any time since 1929, the cry goes up that farmers should make sacrifices by giving up the program that has kept his head above water during the past eight years.

It is in fact, one of our tariffs and other protective devices for the period of the emergency. If labor pledging itself not to strike during this period are not doing this, the contract has been written on a cost plus basis. In not labor receiving rates higher than ever, with only a one-half or double time for overtime work.

How different is the farm picture! The greatest abundance of food and fiber ever known in this country, and farmers planning their production for 1941, are being asked to see any slowing up, any strikes, any cost-plus contracts, anything except production as usual. Are the farmers asking for more money for their labor or cost-plus on their production? Why are the farmers asking for? They are asking simply for a continuation of their farm program, and the tightening up of the program that will bring them some where near parity. Everybody knows that the farmers are going to pay more for the things they buy. We know in advance that farm prices cannot go along up with prices of other things for the simple reason that our supplies are too great, and our outlets have been restricted. That constitutes a threat to our farm economy, and we will be helpless to meet it unless the farm program is continued and improved to the point that will insure farmers a fair share of the national income.

The board of directors of the American Farm Bureau federation voted unanimously to fight for amendments to present laws that will raise farm income to 100 per cent of parity. The loan feature of the present farm program has been so successful, and has resulted in so little loss to the government, that the farm program should be continued and correspondingly smaller government payments will be required to give full parity.

The present farm program is not perfect. But it has been effective in raising farm prices over a very critical period for agriculture. In this emergency, the farm Bureau is proposing to gear it up, to enable it to render maximum results in the form of 100 per cent of parity for the American farmer. All farmers of this country should give their united support to accomplish this.

The world, during the past 30 years, has grown callous on its conscience. We are no longer shocked at things which would have horrified our grandfathers.

Danning Switch Questioned—But Greenberg Easily Handled Job

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—Bill Terry's judgment in switching Harry Danning to the outfield is questionable.

Harry the Horse is a top hand at the post most capable to fill satisfactorily.

Any baseball man other than Charlie Willie Terry will tell you that he would be much more valuable to the Giants as a catcher than as a none too graceful fly-chaser, especially when the pitcher is left to Ken O'Dea and the antiquated Gabby Hartnett.

Danning should be able to struggle along in the pasture without undue risk of head injuries. He broke in as a reliever, a superior pitcher of the old Eastern league.

Hank Greenberg, after 10 years in the base, made outfielding look rather simple.

Joe Gordon's only problem in moving from second to first base for the Yankees are learning to shift his feet to be in position to snag all kinds of losses and to master the art of catching balls thrown into the runner while avoiding the latter.

Versatile Players

Jimmy Fox of the Red Sox is the only man who can play more than one position. He can play first base, pitcher, shortstop, second base, catcher, and left field.

First a winning pitcher, then a catcher, then the National league's best pitcher, then a left fielder, great outfielder, 300 hitter when the team meant something and a menace on the bases, Brennan, the duke of Trust, was in a class by himself.

While with the Athletics, Fox and Jimmy Dykes used to play every position every year. . . . Just to keep in practice and for fun of it.

Bill Boudeau of the Indians was a catcher and third baseman before Steve O'Neill and Gregory Mulvey transformed him into a remarkable shortstop in Buffalo.

Strong Arm

Bucky Walters is the most notable case of a strong arm turning an infielder into a pitcher.

Third baser and outfielding is a favorite combination. Mel Ott, Pepper Martin, Debs Garms and Buddy Lewis did it with success.

Lou Finney shuttles between the outfield and first base.

He was stationed when Babe Ruth stood out at second base for the Boston Bees last spring. He was supposed to be a firehose. Few knew he had spent two complete seasons at the keystone in the minors.

Billy Sullivan tried first and third before being stricken by his true stridence as a catcher.

Buddy Hassett had trouble with the change in the glove in transferring from first base to the outfield.

Bucky York experienced more difficulty than that.

But even Babe Herman could catch a fly.

By applying himself, the instinctive ball player with the necessary physical qualifications can adjust himself to most any position.

By HENRY McLEMORE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22.—"I'll bet my suit of draft pants against yours that in all the persons you know there isn't a left-handed baseball catcher in the bunch. As a matter of fact, that isn't fair, because it is the same as betting you that you don't have a pair of matching socks or do you birds for you birds ends in your house, or that the next blue point you plug into the wall socket will give you a headache. There just isn't any such thing as a left-handed catcher. Certainly not in any league recognized enough to come under jurisdiction of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis."

"There is an unwritten law in baseball that a left-handed catcher just isn't right to catch," Bill Dickey said today. "I've heard a red dozen of baseball people the reason for this is that they don't want to know the answer. All I know is that let a left-handed youngster suggest he learn the catching business and he is shooed away from the plate as if he had the plague. I've had people say they suppose the reason for this is that a left-handed catcher would be a three right-handed batter in the head when he made a throw to second. That's crazy. Why wouldn't right-handed catchers hit left-handed batters when they made a pop?"

"I ask Bill why he thought left-handers would make better catchers, all things being equal."

"For a lot of reasons," he answered. "I wonder who the hell had the ball from the pitcher. Most pitchers are right-handers, right? They throw that kind of ball do they throw those of the left-handers, and how do they curve—hook or fly? Do you put the ball on the right side of the catcher's mitt? If so, the ball would be right there. He could just sit down and pick 'em
