

JUGOSLAVIANS MOBILIZE FOR WAR

RELIGION, PEACE LEADERS NEEDED, LDS MEET HEARS

By MURRAY M. MOLLER
SALT LAKE CITY, April 5 (UP)—General authorities of the Latter-day Saints church, speaking at the second day sessions of the 111th annual Mormon conference, agreed today the world's greatest need was for peacemakers and a closer adherence to religious teachings.

Speakers at the meeting included the highest ranking officers of the Mormon faith, and at the morning conference session, more than 10,000 faithful saints plodded through rain and snow to the Salt Lake tabernacle for the meeting.

Feeling of the authorities on the need of peacemakers was summed up by Richard R. Lyman, member of the council of twelve apostles when he blamed the current European struggle on the fact that there have forgotten the teachings of God.

"Little Progress"
"Survey of world conditions show that little progress has been made in the following of the teachings of Christ, the Prince of Peace, in the last 19 centuries," Lyman said. The apostle said the result of this failure to follow the Lord's teachings has brought threats to liberty, democracy, to our own way of life and to civilization itself.

As a solution to the evils rampant in the world, Lyman suggested that man return to religion because "only through such a return can we have permanent peace and happiness." He urged increased prayer and more attendance at sacrament meetings.

Lyman also warned that when the war was over a depression—probably the greatest in the world—would follow.

Joseph F. Merrill, also a member of the council of twelve apostles, warned Mormons against false prophecies and speculations that are inspired by Satan, who now has greater power than ever before.

Addressing the first council of seventy, second ranking officers of the church, Merrill said those who were being called to the military forces of the nation.

He said that going should not be done for personal gain, but certainly because there have always been uncertainties. "There has been a feeling of uncertainty that they should go forward and let their inevitable uncertainties overtake them when they will."

All's Not Quiet on the River Rouge

Wildly falling arms and fists marked this general meet of Henry Ford's River Rouge plant when pickets, identified by buttons in caps, attacked a worker leaving the plant on the second day of a C. I. O. strike against the huge industrial plant.

Britain and Germany claimed heavy damage to enemy shipping today as a preliminary to apparently inevitable war in Yugoslavia.

With Yugoslavs rushing final defenses against Nazi troops massed across the closed frontier, the British reported the royal air force had laid sticks of heavy bombs across the two big 26,000-ton German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau in attacks on the French port of Brest.

Complete results of the raid—third in a week and 4th of the war—could be awaited, although one report said the British expected the battleships would be unable to resume their raiding activities on the Atlantic for some time, at least.

Report Heavy Sinkings
The German high command, meanwhile, reported the sinking of 118,000 tons of enemy shipping in March, and the destruction of 18 ships in two attacks on a British convoy in the Atlantic.

In addition, RAF planes raided German objectives during Friday night and heavy German attacks were launched against the English towns of Southampton and Plymouth, with some planes ranging as far as the Liverpool area.

Berlin took the position that war was virtually won against Yugoslavia. There appeared to be little hope in Belgrade that a conflict could be averted, although one report said the two Yugoslav vice-premiers might go to Rome in a little hour attempt to reach a settlement with the axis powers.

Prepares With Cuba
In Belgrade, Leon Kay, veteran United Press correspondent who has been in Holland during the German invasion, reported that the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes were preparing for war with the aggressors and calm, determined to fight in event of a German invasion and confident they will be able to give a good account of themselves in the movement.

COAL MINES TO REOPEN MONDAY AS STRIKE ENDS

NEW YORK, April 5 (UP)—An agreement to open most of the nation's soft coal mines next week was reached among wage-hour negotiators and the Appalachian bituminous industry today.

Terms of the agreement and its scope will be announced at 10 a. m. Monday.

It was understood a majority of operators in the eight-state Appalachian area had acceded to union demands for a 31-a-day wage increase and vacation with pay.

The agreement, being drafted in detail, will affect most of the 338,000 miners idle in the Appalachian area, it was believed, and some 40,000 more in other districts where mines had been closed pending conclusion of the Appalachian negotiations.

Decision Not Clear
It was not made clear whether the decision reached today affected southern operators, who have been holding out against union demands for elimination of the 40-cent wage differential between the north and south.

John R. Steelman, director of the United States mediation service, announced that Major Percy Felt, international representative of the United Mine Workers of America, and Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the operators, would meet at 10 a. m. Monday to discuss the terms of the agreement.

The Own Interpretation
Asked if his announcement meant the deadlock was broken, he said: "You can put your own interpretation on it, but I think this statement makes it clear."

Erza Van Horn, Cleveland, O., operator and general chairman of the joint wage-hour conference, would not comment on Steelman's announcement, and U. M. W. President Arthur J. Wise said only "Obviously, Mr. Steelman's statement is illuminating."

Range examiners training school for Utah, Idaho and Nevada will be held at the Rogerson CCC camp near Big Water, Idaho, Monday through Friday.

Frontiers Closed As Country Gets Set for Conflict

BERLIN, April 5 (UP)—The German-Jugoslav crisis peaked at the breaking point tonight when the German pro-Chargé Yugoslav was "preparing for war" and cannot be regarded as fit to be a part of the new order in Europe.

In the first editorial published since beginning of the Yugoslav crisis, all afternoon newspapers denounced the Belgrade government.

Authorized sources said the crisis was so grave that further deterioration was "scarcely within the bounds of possibility" and this idea is now being conveyed to the German public.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 5 (UP)—Yugoslavia, united as it never had been in its recent history, mobilized its full man power today, closed all frontiers but that oppo Greece and forbade travel except by special military plane.

Anti-aircraft guns blazed at a foreign plane which crossed over Zagreb, near the Austrian-Hungarian frontier.

Belgrade police started this morning to stop all private automobiles and trucks and ordering them to return to garages until further notice.

It was believed the order forbade government requisitioning of all motor transport.

War with Germany and Italy was believed here to be not only inevitable but imminent.

Rich, poor, old, young, were flocking to the colors. Those who still believed they could carry their arms and emergency rations along with them.

Started Preparations
The government declared that King Peter II, an eye of the first act of his reign, the military forces in a state of readiness effective last Tuesday.

Belgrade quoted radio broadcasts as announcing that the powerful Sokol sports organization, numbering 600,000 members, had decided to mobilize for defense duty Sunday and had advised its women's auxiliary forces of the kingdom.

U. S. OBSERVERS TO ACCOMPANY BRITISH PILOTS ON RAIDS

EXPERTS TO SEE AMERICAN CRAFT IN FULL COMBAT

WASHINGTON, April 5 (Special)—U. S. army aviation observers soon will accompany British pilots on raids over enemy territory to study the performance of American long-range bombers in actual combat, authorized quarters disclosed today.

Such aerial missions by Americans are without precedent in the current war, but have their counterpart in observations already made on sea and airfield. U. S. naval observers have been aboard British warships during operations in the Mediterranean and elsewhere, while army officers have accompanied British troops at the various fronts.

Hitherto, U. S. aviation experts in London have confined their observations to British pilots to study actual combat operations over enemy territory only.

Military circles attached significance to the new phase of aerial observation in view of the fact that it will provide the first actual performance check-up on the huge, long-range bombers which the U. S. high command believes to be the world's finest.

Britain is getting 46 of the 22-ton, flying four-engine giants, which are rated as capable in excess of 200 miles an hour, with a range of more than 4,000 miles and capable of carrying six or more tons of bombs.

DRAFT FACING PENALTY ACTION

One draft registrant, already overdue for induction into the army, faced delinquency action today under the selective service law unless he reports immediately to board offices at Latah, Coeur d'Alene, Murtaugh.

The possible penalty looms for Maglaughlin because he failed to appear April 2 when the replacement card for Twin Falls county area No. 1, left for the Latah office. Because Maglaughlin didn't show up, only four went to Fort Douglas and area No. 1 must make up the deficiency late this month.

Capt. J. H. Seaver, jr., chief clerk of the draft board, said that Maglaughlin has now been designated to serve as Maglaughlin's notice to appear at board offices immediately, since mailed notification apparently has not reached him or has been ignored.

Grange Gleanings

By A. HARVESTER

HOLLISTER
Out at Hollister, Grange, on the Salmon tract if you please, they are always alive and active and you really get your money's worth at all their meetings, so last Wednesday night was no exception. Thirty members were present besides a lot of visitors from Park Lane school.

A petition was presented and signed by most of the patrons, in respect to the filing of power lines on the Snake river, in the so-called scenic area. This petition was presented at the board meeting of Friday night. It has been claimed that only a few are objecting to the marrying of the natural beauty of the region, but the Grange is going over the top against the power proposition almost 100 per cent. Making no distinction as to letting private parties appropriate the only power sites left for the use of the people of this section of Idaho, and others are just simply "agin" it.

Plans were made for the annual jamboree by the Grange, to be held at the close of the school year, for the high school and eighth grade graduates, of the Hollister school district, together with their parents, and a event will be held April 30, and a fine time is anticipated by the Grangers and their friends.

BECOMES INITIATE
Miss Virginia Biles was given the first and second degree obligations by Master Frank Eastman and became an initiate in the order of Patrons of Husbandry.

It was suggested that the resolution committee get in contact with the county news reaches A. Harvester, your local correspondent who keeps the record.

COVOTES, ETC.
Filer, Lucerne, Northview, Excelsior and Palverlie all met this week, more on those later. Bahl is having quite a meeting on Tuesday night of next week. A class of 14 will be given the first and second degrees in the column, however obtained, somewhat aroused by the appearance of too many coyotes in that vicinity. They are seeking some help from the authorities as the coyotes have become a menace to young stock.

Some have wondered how the points for news in Grange Gleanings are determined and who keeps track of them. Points should be counted every time you have news in the column, however obtained, though of course it would be safer to have a regular correspondent who can see the news reaches A. Harvester, your local correspondent who keeps the record.

WILL ATTEND TWIN FALLS
My article says that a bunch (and she doesn't mean vegetables either) from Hollister Grange are going to Twin Falls Wednesday night to the annual meeting of the Grange, and the Mountain Rock Grange will be on the receiving end and a large gathering is expected to be held at the Knoll district to pick up a bit of news. Saw Bro. Fay Holloway and Bob Anderson and talked to Sister Domett on the phone after an almost interminable wait for the line to clear. Mrs. Domett reports a very interesting meeting with visitors present from the Knoll and Piler regions Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Evacuation of Benghazi Shows British Have Troop Shortage

By J. W. T. MASON

United Press War Expert
Evacuation of Benghazi by its British garrison shows Britain has not enough troops and equipment in the middle east to go around. The call for military operations in Italian east Africa and for heavy concentrations in Greece as well as the defense requirements in eastern Libya have compelled the British to curtail some commitments.

That action, however, would not have been necessary, but for the required use of the British eastern Mediterranean fleet to protect convoys on routes for Greek ports against just such attacks as the Italian naval command attempted last week with such tragic consequences. Concentration of British warships in Greek waters loosened the British control of the passage between Italy and Tripoli.

Take Advantage
The Germans have been taking advantage of this opening to transport considerable bodies of troops to Tripoli. That is the initial reason for recapture of Benghazi by Axis forces.

The advance from Tripoli to Benghazi by the Italian-German battalions, however, would have been possible if the British had continued to hold their advanced positions in eastern Libya. The Italian advance covered by the axis troops is 500 miles over terrain without natural barriers, requiring that supplies be carried along with the troops.

Attacks by British air forces and mechanized units should have been

WITH THE Gentleman in the Third Row

A Considerate Burglar, No?

What Bob means is that the guy who sneaked into an apartment building last night on the right side of the sleeping Dickards, even if he did steal a pair of trousers from the apartment next door.

(a) One package of cigarettes.

(b) Six pennies.

(c) One package of cigarettes.

The burglar took the dime. But left the six pennies for lunch money.

HOW TO INFLUENCE PARTIES AND WIN FRIENDS (?)

If you constitute will pardon another reference to the Twin Falls Jaycees' coming in fact, whether you pardon it or not, we arise to offer you a panacea for any of your partying ailments.

We advise the next time one of your social gatherings seems to lag, that you play the "running program" game somebody talked on the Jaycees.

Just print some notes on cards, divide your guests into two sides and hand out the program cards. The idea is to shout out some simple word, and then each team must run like hell to a designated spot. Arrived at the spot, your guests proceed to spell out the word by reading their individual cards in front of them. First team to spell the word wins that round.

This sounds innocuous enough, we grant—but you make sure the paths of all team members cross as they dash madly to the spot chosen for their own team's runners and alternately, we solemnly declare you ain't seen a madhouse unless you see that.

Guests will collide with terrific force, very seldom in a hat or blouse, but by that time is probably tired of the guests again.

WELL, THERE ARE BATTLES AND BATTLES!

Dear Pots: Danged appropriate, if you ask me. Morning paper said ex-soldiers in the city who were doing a little bit of experience. And the headline said that the ex-service man spoke "At Meeting in Maricopa" in a "War and the martial theme. Year, dangd appropriate.

EPISODE NO. 3, SEAT CUSHION FRANKING!

Approve the recent lecture we gave you constituents about the cushioning of seats. We're glad you follow-up has now developed.

As we explained, the crux of the matter is the bladder, the one which lays on the right side of the Evelines' "twined" balliwick were inserted into the cushions to surprise pudgy persons. When the victim sits on the chair, the bladder-like affair promptly surpresses him—down the cushion.

Now cometh episode No. 2. Morris Anderson saw that the office in the bladder. He was sitting at one end of the office. B. slipped quietly over to B's chair and put the prank device under the cushion.

Branan's phone rang. But he was still busy at the other end of the office.

Mr. Morris answered B's phone, completely forgetting that he had personally inserted the prank device under the cushion.

He sat down in B's chair.

And night himself!

(This is a postscript. Branan chuckled at Mister Anderson, ... went back to his own desk a few minutes later. ... and, who, got caught!)

COMMENT ON CASH

Dear Fellow: Last Nightly says too much money goes.

VARIATION ON AN ANTIQUE THEME!

Third Row: Heard on Main avenue as a guy said howdy to one of our local characters. The guy grabbed a hat that's as stout as a bear's and merrily sorta varied it a little.

"How's business—dead?"

"Hope, very much—dam!"

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

VESTERDAY'S was especially anxious day for Mrs. Bruce Sheldrake in the face of Miss Dane's floor. She hasn't seen a cent since she was last seen in the store. "It wasn't like this in the old days."

DEFEAT FOR AN IDEA

CHAPTER XXI

BEATRICE HUNTINGTON DAVENPORT backed off, slowly and unbelievably, from the spectacle of Miss Dane sobbing like a baby, her hand on the capacious bosom of Miss Gae. Miss Dane's tortured words rang in her ears. "It wasn't like this in the old days. The store had some heart, then. Mr. Huntington wasn't hounded, he didn't drive people."

BEATRICE HUNTINGTON

"What could you do?" Mrs. Sheldrake asked wearily. "It's no use, Be. I'm locked."

She stood very still, searching his eyes. Anthony's hands were curled into fists. "No, I'm not locked! I'll show him, you'll see!"

THROUGH

"I need a lawyer, I need a lawyer!" he bellowed. "But I can't go to him now! He's at the hospital. Trust his former stewardship..."

Only Mr. Wessing hadn't had time to do with the store. That was the last company, said Mr. Sheldrake. "I need a lawyer. I need a brilliant, honest, humane lawyer. I need someone to go into every nook and cranny and every single detail of the organization and operation of this store. Accountants, managers, clerks, clerks, clerks of people."

APRIL 9, 1925

Paul E. Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McKinley, Twin Falls, has been chosen instructor of vocal music at the Idaho Technical Institute to begin his work there June 15.

Former Coach Clinton Evans of Twin Falls high school, but now of the California Prox team in Berkeley, writes concerning the new baseball manager for the Twin Falls class C baseball team. Coach Evans has been intimately acquainted with Zarnoch for several years and speaks with authority concerning the new spot for the Twin Falls team.

Mr. Beauchamp is well acquainted with Smith and has a long association with him and will no doubt make good as sole owner of the business built up by Smith and Beauchamp.

How many times have you read how the rivers of lava continued to flow even under the surfaces of lakes? You have, you've seen the result of such a river of lava flowing over a canyon wall into a lake?

"At the hole in the wall," below Hansen bridge on the north side of Snake river, are found remnants of such a phenomenon. There on the northern wall from its base up hundreds of feet is to be seen an expanse where mud and gravel gullies have splashed and hardened into the lava stream.

EVENTS AROUND
FAMILY'S DECAT

After anything reaches its peak, decline and decay set in. So it is with the Gaunt family, sturdy though in themselves but full of internal weaknesses.

The story of John and Carrie Gaunt and their children, Henry, Elton and Sylvia, is told in "Light on a Mountain," by Gertrude Warren Bruce (Putnam, $2.50). Hounded in the forest by a pack of wolves, the Gaunts try desperately to escape as a family and might have succeeded if Elton had not brought Sylvia back to life with him.

It is Marjorie who starts all the

A Treasure in the Treasury

Deep down in the vaults beneath the treasury in Washington there is a grided, well-sealed door. From behind that door comes a pungent odor of decaying vegetation—not at all the kind of small one expects in a dry vault dedicated to preserving gold and silver bars, or crisp-inkling new currency.

In heavy packing cases lining one wall of the shelf-vault is 500,000 pounds of the best raw Maceian opium. That means three years' supply of one of the most important strategic war materials.

Why the treasury vault? Simply because opium is likely to get away if stored in private warehouses, pressure for obtaining it is so great that it might slip through private hands, however closely guarded. But in public hands, in the treasury's own vaults, it will be there when needed.

Yet this priceless supply was secured by private dealers. Several drug companies put up $1,000,000 apiece to buy it, at the government's behest. It is a fine example of cooperation between the government and private agencies. The government saw a public need for a reserve stock of this necessary drug. The private companies went out and bought it. And the government stores it for such use, public or private, as may be found necessary for the public good.

Eight million ounces of quinine have been added to reserve stocks against some emergency which might interfere with normal supply.

This phase of preparedness is by no means complete. Similar cooperative measures are being taken to re-establish the cultivation in South America of cinchona bark. It is native there, but like rubber, its commercial production passed to the Dutch East Indies, which might be cut off. Government researchers are also busy on possible substitutes. Digitalis, mahuang, belladonna, cascara, ipecac, pyrethrum and rothenone are other examples—new sources are being sought. A Jewish refugee colony in Santo Domingo is developing the castor bean, and may provide a western hemisphere source for castor oil.

Preparedness in the supply of vitally necessary drugs is a fine example of what can be done by cooperation of government and private enterprise, given understanding and good-will on both sides.

The Employees' Share Rises

The vast U. S. Steel corporation had almost the same number of employees in 1940 that it had in 1929. It sold goods and services which brought in about $1,000,000,000. But it paid out in wages and salaries $489,000,000 as compared with $420,000,000 in 1929, and paid out $30,000,000 more in taxes.

Apparently the wage and salary increase is not accounted for by high salaries, for the amount paid during the year in salaries of $10,000 and over was less than 1.5 per cent of the total payroll.

If these figures, taken from the annual report of U. S. Steel, are correctly interpreted, it means that a greater percentage of the income of this giant concern is going to those who actually do the work, for the amount paid out in dividends to holders of common stock was roughly cut in half.

This tendency is a rising one throughout industry—to afford actual producers a larger share in the business income, and further, to make reports which clearly and simply show what is being done. Employees who understand these things are the most likely to be content.

Winant's Farewell

John G. Winant is now the ambassador to Great Britain, and present attention centers on his work there. But let's not forget his last job with the International Labor organization before taking the new post. It was supervision of a report showing conclusively that labor in every country has perhaps a greater stake in the defeat of Hitlerism than any other group. The fate of labor is at stake just as clearly as the fate of democracy, for in countries under the totalitarian rule, the first chains are wrapped about free labor.

Europe learns that now. It is to be hoped that we can know it here the easy way, from studies like that of the ILO, and not the hard way, as Europe is learning it.

Lou Stringer Wins Shortstop Post With Cubs From Meyers

By HARRY GRAYTON
NEA Service Sports Editor

Pacific coast baseball men hold those most interested in the Chicago Cubs they had two Los Angeles leads—Lou Stringer as well as Novitoff, and Jimmy Wilson, having seen for himself, now knows they were right.

Louis Novitoff was accepted as a left fielder certainly from the outset, but to make the 21-year-old Louie Bernard Stringer has been much more impressive than the run home manufacturer, Mad Russian... the outstanding member of the Wright party, as a matter of fact.

Wilson says Lou Stringer is the finest recruit he has seen in 19 years in the National League coaches the Los Angeles high school product can't miss being a great infielder.

Stringer was supposed to be able to play anywhere but at second base, but with Billy Harman anchored there he was ordered to turn his attention elsewhere.

Stringer Features

Stanley Heck is a fixture at third, so young Stringer centered his efforts on second base, where Louie Wilson considered the Bruins so weak last trip that he sent Bobby Matlock, outfielder Jimmy Gleason and Louie unannounced to New York to trade in exchange for the veteran William Harrison Myers.

After Stringer took a strange position, makes it appear as if that move was totally unnecessary.

Billy Myers, as things are going now will be nothing more than a reserve infielder.

Though far western judges complained that he was more formidable in a clutch... belted six homers to account for victories in the eighth and ninth innings of the game.

Wilson's Coast League average was no more than .261.

So you can imagine Wilson's delight when in a stretch of 19 games he traveled at a .353 clip. Among a number of healthy poses was a two-foot, honest-to-goodness home run with the Pittsburgh, he hit a home run, a double and a half dozen singles in 10 trips.

Get on Right Foot

appointed in Clouting Coakock Novitoff's big gun from Los Angeles Boyle Heights was just striking his terrific stride when he rode a home run home on Saturday, April 6, against the Pirates, deep into the right centerfield seats at Los Angeles' Wright Field.

Novitoff obtained a late start in training and has been working under pressure because he knew so much was expected of him.

Novitoff has demonstrated he can make it open, despite his distance, and his fielding, save on ground balls, has been a pleasant surprise.

Louis Novitoff and Lou Stringer had implicit faith in their ability. They asked for raises before they started training, but they didn't want to get off on the wrong foot either at the paymaster's window or on the field.

They haven't.

Barlund Purse Held up After Conn Victory

CHICAGO, April 5 (AP)—Billy Conn's last dress rehearsal for a proposed title fight with Joe Louis was clouded today by an Illinois attorney's complaint, investigation of Gunnar Barlund's unexpected "surrender" after seven losses.

Eshdon Clark, new chairman of the Illinois commission, immediately announced Barlund's purse will be withheld and ordered a hearing within 10 days to determine why the alleged fight failed to answer the physician's order to continue.

Conn was unimpressed and admitted it, but in justice to Billy Barlund, he said he was just beginning to get up steam when the bout ended. A notoriously slow starter, Conn nevertheless had every round but the first and in both the sixth and seventh he was ripping Barlund's face with every left hook he threw. The fight was a close attack and growing more feeble with every tick of the clock.
