

PERKINS SAYS MEDIATORS CAN HANDLE LABOR SITUATION

CABINET MEMBER REJECTS PLAN TO OUTLAW STRIKES

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins contended today that present conciliation and mediation machinery can be effective in preventing disruption of the defense program by labor disputes.

Appearing as the first witness at a hearing of the house military affairs committee on proposed labor legislation, Mrs. Perkins interminably opposed anti-strike bills.

She said with responsive labor groups and employers cooperating through present government agencies in carrying out the defense program, it will be possible to increase production and efficiency and at the same time preserve and promote human welfare and good labor standards.

Emphasizes Danger

Mrs. Perkins said there is "danger in over-emphasizing" the present strike situation in defense industries. The responsibility for stoppages of work does not fall solely upon either labor or management, she said.

"Lack of mutual confidence as usually between the parties employed and particular labor group is usually at the back of failure to negotiate," she said.

The new defense mediation board already has shown it has the confidence of both employers and employees and more justified by future settlements in several defense strikes, Mrs. Perkins said.

Through its settlement of the Allis-Chalmers and other strikes it has justified that confidence, and I believe such confidence will be even more and more justified by future accomplishments in the interest of harmonious industrial relations and uninterrupted defense production," she said.

Strikes Decline

Mrs. Perkins testified the number of strikes in 1940 was much smaller than in the war years of 1916-1917. Mrs. Perkins said the U. S. conciliation service handled 1,868 threatened stoppages last year and that 80 per cent of the threatened strikes were averted.

Employment Management

Employment management and labor signed an agreement last night which will open the strike-bound Allis-Chalmers plants at Milwaukee, Wis., to the government.

Mrs. Perkins said a three-man panel of the defense mediation board. The agreement subject to ratification by union members today, a formality.

The display of Easter shoes at Van Engelen's is something worth setting up bright and early for. We feature a group of shoe styles for every member of the family — especially selected for their arch supporting, heel gripping, balanced walk construction. Moderately priced — they're quality built.

If all wives are getting their husbands' haberdashery to harmonize with their own costume!

Men who find it hard to keep their shirts, ties, and handkerchiefs from getting lost, should buy the new light, easy-to-care shirts, ties, and handkerchiefs.

MONK PREDICTED AIR WAR IN 1919. GAVS AVIATION SAGA

This is a good time to read a history of aviation. St. Paul Johnstone offers one, graphically written and strikingly illustrated, in "Johnstone's Unlimited" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, Inc., $3.75). Here is the whole story of man's conquest of the air from Da Vinci's crude drawing of his "Ornithopter" in the 15th century to the world's first air travelers — a sheep, rooster and a duck in a balloon over Paris, 1783 — and today's jet bomber and stratosphere. Just a few of this absorbing book is excerpted here, the story of the Monk who predicted in 1919 the heroes of modern air war.

A Jesuit monk, Francesco de Lana, was the first (1670) to make any record of the idea that might be gases lighter than air which, when confined in a suitable container, might float about like a cork on the ocean. He reasoned that "no air" was lighter than "some air," and argued that if he could remove the air from spherical containers, those containers must inevitably be buoyed upward. He proposed a vacuum balloon consisting of four just copper spheres 20 feet in diameter.

But de Lana never undertook the construction of a balloon because he concluded that any attempt to fly in the face of Providence would be impious. He wrote: "God would not suffer such an invention to take effect, by reason of the disturbance it would cause to the civil government of men. For if men were to rise into the air, they would be secure against attack, since our ship may at any time be placed directly over it, and descending down may discharge soldiers; that the same it would happen to private houses, and ships on the sea; for our ship descending over it, the air to the sails of sea-ships... it may overstep them, kill their men, burn their ships by artificial fire-works and fire-balls."

PLASTIC PLANES GIVEN APPROVAL

LOS ANGELES, April 7 (Special)—The army and the civil aeronautics authority today had approved the 23mm plastic training plane, which will be the solution to the mass production problem of the Navy aircraft industry.

Test pilots had subjected the sleek, foreshortened plane to every flying strain and test, and announced it was airworthy and had a desirable flexibility.

O. W. Timm, president of the 23mm Aircraft plant, said he already had re-tooled his plant, and soon would be ready to produce trainers on a mass production basis.

The plane is manufactured from laminated wood and phenolic resin. Thin layers of spruce, laid cross-grain, cemented with the plastic, shaped, and baked.

Timm said it was 20 per cent lighter than a metal plane of the same dimensions, and that its surface was unbroken by rivets, greatly increasing its aerodynamic efficiency.

A 100-horsepower motor drives the low-wing monoplane at a maximum speed of 145 miles an hour.

JAPANESE ENVOY FÊTED ON SECOND VISIT TO MOSCOW

REDS BROADCAST SIGNING OF SLAV PACT FOR PEACE

MOSCOW, April 7 (AP)—Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka arrived today, launching Russian officials and axis powers' diplomats on a four-day round of celebrations only 24 hours after the Russian radio and press had announced the signing of the pact with Germany which is attacking Jugoslavia.

Matsuoka was en route home after visits to Berlin and Rome. News that Russia had signed a treaty of friendship and non-aggression with Jugoslavia had been broadcast all night Saturday over all Russian radio stations, ending about the time the Germans attacked Jugoslavia. It was announced the treaty had been signed at 1 a. m. Saturday in the presence of Josef Stalin, by Molotov and A. V. Vishinsky, vice-commissar for foreign affairs, and by Jugoslav negotiators including the ambassador, Milan Gubralovich.

"Remarkable Document" The newspaper Pravda said the pact with Jugoslavia was "a remarkable document... which like similar documents in Soviet experience have shown that they aren't purely formal, but are actual aids in strengthening peace." It said "efforts of the new Jugoslav government to preserve peace could not but arouse Soviet sympathy, primarily because any act directed at the fortification of peace coincides with the fundamental, unyielding, aspirations of the Soviet Union's foreign policy."

The pact provided for a case either party was attacked, the other would observe a policy of friendship toward the attacked one.

"BEGINNING OF END" Diplomatic sources said today there were indications that Germany's invasion of Jugoslavia had angered the Soviet government much more than was yet realized in most countries.

Unusually well informed sources spoke of the "beginning of the end" of the Russo-German pact which was a world sensation at the start of the war.

Voice of Moscow Heard Behind Jugoslav Defiance of Germany

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON (NEA Service Military Writer) WASHINGTON, April 7—Tucked away amid the clamoring columns from Belgrade is a single paragraph, a still, small voice that after the tumult and the shouting dies, may prove to be the last word clarifying what the upheaval in Jugoslavia really means to the outcome of the war.

This paragraph—duly noted in official Washington quarters—is a dispatch reporting Balkan authorities as saying that when the new anti-Nazi leaders took over Jugoslavia, they knew from Moscow that if Germany visited Jugoslavia's frontiers, Russia would re-examine its relations with Germany as defined in the Russo-German accord.

Meaning that the Russo-German accord might become a Russo-German discord and perhaps even more. Meaning, therefore, that the Balkan ferment may throw up a totally new element in the war.

Now, the Vichy dispatch becomes more important when it is remembered that the Petain government has just lifted its censorship. And it fits in nicely with other recent developments which may make Russia's policy, which still about as clear as the mud of her own steps, not quite such a guessing contest as formerly.

Could Supply Turkey, Jugoslavia This much is official knowledge in Washington diplomatic circles: Russia has rebuked Bulgaria for admitting the Germans, against whom Russia is at war, in Bulgaria, in Rumania and in Poland. Russia has reassured Turkey against such a cutting up as Poland suffered by further encouraging Turkey to defend herself against Germany by relaxing Soviet military measures on the Turkish border.

There have been hints that Russia might do more—that across that border and by the Black Sea the Soviets might supply Turkey with the war equipment she needs, airplanes especially. (Russian equipment in the hands of Turkey is better than Russian staff work). She could almost as easily supply Jugoslavia too. Plus the British help. That might mean that the axis would crack on the Balkan rocks. Or that the axis might just give up its southern European campaign, and try the British line.

Either way, Stalin would chuckle—for those Balkan rocks are for Germany, not for Russia. The Ukraine, Russia's granary for which Hitler has frankly longed and where he now is reported to be recruiting a Fifth Column, Germany has been becoming very strong in the Balkans, which were Russia's Rube Goldberg of importance. Russia not only geographical but racial. Russia was "Uncle Ivan," especially to the Jugoslavs, and it was partly to defend the Serbs against the Austro-Hungarian-German combination that Russia entered World war I.

Garib's Balkan Policy Garib's policy has also been revived by the Soviets in the Baltic. Lately they show signs of reviving it in the Balkans. Also, they have been more friendly with Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's leftish ambassador at Moscow.

It still holds that who scratches a Russian will find a Tartar—an Asiatic wily and inscrutable until he strikes—but the paragraph from Vichy is not right in the picture drawn by most authorities on the fundamental Russian policy, which is: "We will manage so that neither side in this war becomes strong enough to win until both sides are exhausted. Then Communism walks in on Europe."

Boy Hurt, Another Faces Court in Auto "Tag" on Steep Canyon Road

One youth was in the county general hospital today and another had been charged with reckless driving as a result of a spectacular accident which occurred yesterday afternoon on the grade leading from the rim down to Shoshone Falls in the Snake river canyon, State Policeman V. K. Barron said this afternoon.

In "tag" condition at the county general hospital is Kenneth R. Hazleton, 16, Hazelton. Exact extent of his injuries was not announced.

Charged with reckless driving, and scheduled to appear in probate court for arraignment either late this afternoon or tomorrow is Robert R. Clinkingbeard, 16, Hazelton.

The mishap was investigated by Barron and Deputy Sheriff Virgil Jordan.

The officers said that they were informed that Clinkingbeard was driving a machine carrying four other youths, two of them lying on the front fenders. Inside the car, in addition to the driver, were William Johnson, 14, Murtaugh, and Kenneth Blewens, 16, Hazelton.

The accident occurred about 4:10 p. m., according to records of the state police.

Police said that they were informed that Clinkingbeard was driving another car which was being driven by Duard Blewens, Hansen, and which had Shirley Christensen and an unidentified girl as passengers. Immediately after the wreck, officers were informed that everyone in the Clinkingbeard car excepting the driver and the injured youth got into the Blewens car and drove away before the officers arrived.

According to the report, Clinkingbeard drove his car into a large rock while chasing Blewens. The impact tore the wheel (right front) from the machine and threw Taylor into the air. The car bounced high and then landed on Taylor, pinning him under it. It started down a 60-foot embankment into the canyon but caught on large boulders, preventing the rest of the occupants from death or serious injury.

A passing motorist rushed Taylor to the hospital. At that time he was in a semi-conscious condition. He is being treated by a Hazelton physician.

WILKES-BARRE KEVSTONE STATE

WILKES-BARRE, Penn., April 7 (UP)—The rain-driven Susquehanna river today flooded low-lying sections and residences in a half-dozen counties in northeastern Pennsylvania communities.

American Red Cross emergency stations went into action when the river raised the flood stage and swept through the homes of more than 100 families at Hanover township. Many persons in other towns evacuated their homes as the flood waters smashed over the banks of the Susquehanna north branch. Refugees were quartered in cool units under Red Cross supervision or at the homes of friends and relatives.

An official said the situation was "not alarming" at present. There was no indication that mass evacuations would be necessary as during the 1930-31 season. About 100,000 people claimed 12 lives and made 25,000 persons homeless.

WASHINGTON, April 7 (UP)—John D. Biggers, director of the OPA production division, said today that the United States has the 100 days of "real mass production" of some of the most vital war materials and that the nation's future "may depend on what we all do in those 100 days."

Biggers appeared before the house military affairs committee. Biggers said the defense program had been impeded to some extent by the action on the part of both workers and employers.

During 1940 domestic air transport shipments reached the million mark for the first time.

HAROLD B. LEE NAMED TO LDS COUNCIL OF TWELVE

ASSISTANTS FOR LEADERS CHOSEN FOR FIRST TIME

By MURRAY MOER
SALT LAKE CITY, April 7 (Special)—Harold B. Lee, who guided the Mormon welfare program since it was started five years ago, today took his place as the news and youngest member of the ruling quorum of twelve apostles of the Latter Day Saints church.

Lee was sustained as a member of the council of twelve at the closing sessions of the 11th general conference held in Salt Lake City, Utah, last week, a conference marked by pleas for tolerance, for more faith in God and for closer adherence to the commandments to the teachings of Christ.

As junior member of the council and thus 12th in line for succession to the church presidency, Lee succeeded Reed Smoot, former United States senator and an apostle for 40 years in the church, who is now 80 years of age.

Lee's appointment was announced to 20,000 persons who crowded the Salt Lake tabernacle and Temple Square for the final sessions and to countless thousands listening by radio to J. Reuben Clark, Jr., church first counselor who actively presided at all sessions to save the waiting strength of Heber J. Grant, 84-year-old LDS president.

Clark also announced the creation of a new group of church officers to be known as the twelve apostles. The twelve apostles will have the rank of high priests and will "act under the direction of the president in performance of such work as the first president and the twelve may place on them."

Lee is the first to be named as an apostle as the first five assistants, who will devote their full time to the new duties, were:

Wesley C. Miller, president of the Cache state.

Marion G. Romney, president of the Nevada state.

Thomas E. McKay, former president of the Ogden state and now president of the European mission.

Clifford E. Young, president of the Colorado state.

Nicholas G. Smith, president of the Northwestern states mission.

President Grant, his voice weak and choked with tears, performed the ceremony of the first five assistants, who will devote their full time to the new duties, were:

Wesley C. Miller, president of the Cache state.

Marion G. Romney, president of the Nevada state.

Thomas E. McKay, former president of the Ogden state and now president of the European mission.

Clifford E. Young, president of the Colorado state.

Nicholas G. Smith, president of the Northwestern states mission.

W. I. SACKETT ON SPUD BROADCAST

Idaho potatoes, figuratively speaking, will be "on the air" throughout western America April 22.

W. I. Sackett, Twin Falls spud grower, has accepted an invitation to appear on the "western agriculture" radio program at 8 a. m. that day in Spokane. One other Idaho potato man, I. J. Longteig, Orington, will also be on the program.

Sackett and Longteig will participate in a radio discussion linking the importance of a soil-building program to potato production. The broadcast will be heard in Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Arizona, Nevada and Wyoming through linking of many local and several powerful central stations.

Sackett grows 15 to 20 acres of potatoes yearly. He supplements these with beans, and with dairy and feeder cattle to which he feeds clover and alfalfa rotation crops as well as cull spuds. He is also feeding No. 2 potatoes dried under the federal livestock diversion program.

Longteig, who is the northern Idaho advertising consultant, is a Lewis county farmer. He will speak for the seed potato growers.

ENGINEER FINDS NEW TYPE FLOUR

WASHINGTON, April 7 (Special)—Government health officers today were told of a new type of whole wheat flour, developed accidentally by a mining engineer and expected to increase substantially the nutritive value of bread.

The flour is produced by a process involving the use of mining machinery, which removes the rough, silty outer layer of the wheat without sacrificing any of its rich natural elements. M. Lee Marshall, president of the Continental Baking Co., who announced it here today, said the flour is richer in minerals, phosphorus, iron, protein and vitamin B-1 than ordinary white flour.

An experimental plant at Kansas City is producing 1,000 barrels daily. A mill at Missoula, Mont., will start production of 1,000 barrels a day on April 21.

Discovery of the process was made by Theodore Earle, Los Angeles mining engineer.

ODD WILL

An eastern bachelor willed all of his property to the three women who had rejected his proposals, with the words, "to them I owe all my earthly happiness."

TO THE PUBLIC:

I, the undersigned independent candidate for City Councilman at the recent City Election, desire to take this opportunity of thanking each and all of my loyal supporters for their untiring endeavors and votes. I feel the people of this city understand that I was not tied to any group, clique, or faction, but was pledged only to carry out a policy of REAL PROGRESSIVE government for the city as a whole.

And now that there are some remaining independent candidates... Mr. Koehler, Mr. Coleman and Mr. Greenhalgh... in the field more successful than I, and carrying on more nearly a program of real progressiveness for our city; I earnestly recommend to my supporters that you seriously consider their candidacy before casting your vote on the 22nd day of April, at which time the run-off election will be held.

Again, I thank you all for your past loyalty, and hereby express my appreciation of the confidence you have placed in me as evidenced at the polls, and trust you will carry on.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) HAMER ADAMS
