BRITAIN HALLS, GERMANY BLASTS HULL, KNOX SPEECHES

CONVOY TO SHIPS SEEN AS INITIAL STEP IN PROGRAM

LONDON, April 25 (AP)—Great Britain hailed with enthusiasm today the speeches of Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox pledging that the United States would not only aid Britain but see that the aid got to it.

"It is a clear rebuff to the axis and obvious encouragement to us," an authoritative informant said of Hull's speech, which Britons regarded as even stronger than that of Knox.

Even above the question of the possibility of convoys for American goods, there was the plain intention to Britons that their reverses in the Balkans due to their aid to Greece, had inspired Americans to envisage greater support of Britain in its fight, instead of frightening them into greater caution as Germany and Italy had hoped.

BLAME ROOSEVELT

BERLIN, April 25 (AP)—The German press today violently attacked President Roosevelt, charging that he has set loose "a flood of lying phrases" designed to obscure "the warring tracks of the Balkan adventure."

German spokesmen and newspapers ridiculed charges that Germany constituted any menace to the United States, asserting that "only a 150 per cent lunatic could imagine that Germany really intends to attack the United States."

Excerpts from the addresses of Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Secretary of Navy Frank Knox were published prominently in the newspapers in contrast to the frequent practice of ignoring speeches of American officials.

The press declared the speeches the product of "Roosevelt's agitation machine."

USE OF CONVOYS LOOMS FOR U.S.

(From Page One)
Britain of more coast guard of navy ships.

Secretaries Hull and Knox spoke last night before the American Society of International Law here, Knox to the advertising bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers Association in New York.

Knox told his audience: "We can no longer assume the immediate convening position of our officers to make all the sacrifices for this victory which we recognize as so essential to us."

Just Share Burden
"Our manhood and our self-respect demand that we assume our part of the burden of this war."

Hull, whose words could be an official statement of United States foreign policy, said: "The world is now on international law."

"The world be conquerors . . . propose to make the people of each country its own gods. It is high time that the remaining free countries should rise to the fullest extent in the brief time humanity possible and act for their preservation."

Administration supporters in congress and abroad, senators, isolationists denounced them.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D-Mont., charged that the speeches were "a world-wide state of mind for the right to convoy merchant ships." "And what it really means is a declaration of war."

Sen. Joseph Lee, D-Okla., speaking for the President's supporters, said: "We are not in a state of war. America's interest makes it absolutely necessary that the United States take the lead in this matter, and we are not going to do it."

"To the publishers, in New York, who are attempting to back down now, England would go down to catastrophic defeat and we would have a world-wide victory. All of this is needed for our own safety and our future security. This is our fight."

"There is no retreating our steps now. If we should attempt to back down now, England would go down to catastrophic defeat and we would have a world-wide victory. All of this is needed for our own safety and our future security. This is our fight."

Sen. Standley
Hull took similar stand in challenging those who raise the question: "What difference does it make to America?" which side wins.

"I am not in a state of war," he said. "After the military movements and official acts and utterances of the Axis powers have confirmed the knowledge that we too are included in their plans for world domination. Our freedom and our way of life are in jeopardy. We must inevitably make use of the magnets for their machine of force."

"Yes, it makes a difference who wins. The difference is whether we stand with our backs to the wall with the other four continents against us, or whether we stand alone defending the high seas, our air or earth—or whether we keep our place in an orderly world."

The Gentleman in the Third Row

HERE'S A GROUP YOU'LL WANT TO SEE!

Obby, Polso:

Can you peepers on this gem from the Twineas, all about the Zenobians and Daughters of the Nile?

Since I assume the Daughters of the Nile are of the feminine gender, I believe we've got something here. Said the Twineas:

Members of the Zenobia club, at their meeting yesterday, sewed on the Nile at their party here. Instead of the customary clothing for the crippled children's hospital, Obby, tests instead of customary clothing! That's gonna be a party!

—Saidie Seat 1

Now Let's Work Together

Irrespective of the individual voter's preferences in the city election, it is encouraging to know all members of the new administration have indicated a willingness to forget past grievances so they can better work together for the general benefit of Twin Falls during the next two years.

Whether the so-called "opposition" we heard so much about during the campaign was actually real or imaginary, or nothing more than the inability of the council to function as a unit, is something that may now be forgotten.

Now that the election is over, an opportunity again presents itself for a new city administration to work for a record of accomplishments. And if each member of the council, including the mayor, will recognize his responsibilities in that connection, great possibilities are in store for Twin Falls.

Foremost among the city's present needs is a modern airport. It is gratifying that all members of the new administration are in favor of such a development. The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce also has adopted the airport as its principal objective during the year 1941. With these two forces working together there is every reason to believe that Twin Falls will soon overcome its reputation of having the poorest airport facilities in the state.

It is significant that all candidates running for office in the city election were generally agreed on a similar platform. The same needs were recognized and improvements advocated. That in itself should leave little doubt as to what shape a constructive pattern should take.

Let's hope that during the next two years our mayor, city council, various civic organizations and all concerned will be able to work together for our common good. We were never confronted with greater opportunities, and now is the time to take advantage of them.

Saving the Escutcheon of Mister McMahon

Dear Pot Shots:

I am a good friend of Delmo McMahon. For the past couple of days your Pot Shots contribute have been arguing over the picture which was taken in the sportsman's picture gallery Tuesday by the Evening News. One claim said the couldn't have been reaching for the cream, because the coffee hadn't been served when the photographer took the picture. All guff which you don't believe absolutely unimpeachable information. I am near Delmo and you can repeat this in your own words, seeing all previous depositions by whosoever made.

1. The coffee LEAD been served when the picture was taken. Go back and look at the camera which was turned upside down. That's always done at banquets so the waitress who is in charge of the coffee doesn't want it. The upside-down cup is proof that coffee had passed that point in time you don't believe my statement. Furthermore, over Morris in the picture is caught in the act of stirring his coffee.

2. So, since coffee had been served, Delmo could have been reaching for the cream and NOT the bottle of beer as your contributors hint.

3. The clincher—I saw what Delmo was really reaching for. He got it the moment after the camera was clicked. IT WAS THE SUGAR BOWL. Study the picture again and you'll see the edge of the sugar bowl behind the cream pitcher.

I believe this preserves spotless the escutcheon of the Gentleman From Jerome.

Signs of a Newer 'New Europe'

The picture of Hitler's "New order in Europe" being at the moment just a little blurred because of Yugoslavian spots before the eyes, Greek fire, British steam, and Italian nearsightedness, it is worth while to peer at the image of a still newer "new Europe" that is beginning to take shape.

They are talking in "free Norway" now of a "security bloc" of nations with common interests bordering on the North Atlantic, Norwegian, Dutch, Belgian and perhaps Danish leaders now in London are beginning to talk of getting those countries together after the war, perhaps with Sweden and Finland, in political and economic co-operation.

At the same time, refugees from the Polish and Czechoslovakian republics are getting together and discussing their fatal failure to co-operate. They are undoubtedly remembering those October days in 1938 when, as Czechoslovakia lay on the Nazi chopping block, Poland merely laughed and busied herself in amputating the Teschen areas for her own benefit. Remembering this, there were probably few Czech tears when Poland itself was overrun.

But remembering all of 1938 and 1939, it is likely that representatives of both countries can now see how "divided they fell," whereas united, they might have stood. Such a Czech-Polish federation would have 50,000,000 people to start with, and might add many more if the Rumanians, Austrians, Hungarians, Bulgarians, Croats and Serbs, might be induced to co-operate.

Such units as the North Atlantic group, and the Central European group, if some kind of political and economic federalism could be contrived, might possibly avoid the supernationalism which wrecked the settlement after World War I.

They are undoubtedly remembering those October days in 1938 when, as Czechoslovakia lay on the Nazi chopping block, Poland merely laughed and busied herself in amputating the Teschen areas for her own benefit. Remembering this, there were probably few Czech tears when Poland itself was overrun.

But remembering all of 1938 and 1939, it is likely that representatives of both countries can now see how "divided they fell," whereas united, they might have stood. Such a Czech-Polish federation would have 50,000,000 people to start with, and might add many more if the Rumanians, Austrians, Hungarians, Bulgarians, Croats and Serbs, might be induced to co-operate.

Such units as the North Atlantic group, and the Central European group, if some kind of political and economic federalism could be contrived, might possibly avoid the supernationalism which wrecked the settlement after World War I.

YESTERDAY'S Despite the widespread derision caused by the explosion, only a few lives are lost. Police Officer Carolyn says that Robert at the laboratory was working on a bomb which was half of the previous time. He was a bit of a scientist, and he was a bit of a scientist. Carolyn is angry with Lena about her behavior.

LEANA PLANS FUGUE

CHAPTER VIII

IN Bob Hale's office the telephone rang. Carolyn, as his secretary, arose to answer it, but plainly Bob was not used to having a secretary yet. He reached for the handpiece himself.

"Hello talking," said he.

"This is Ken Palmer, Dr. Hale," came the voice. "Um, you are all right if I inquired about Miss Tyler? Carolyn? Fact is, I'd like to talk to her, if it won't be too much trouble."

"She's right here," he murmured to Carolyn. "It's Mr. Palmer."

"Ken, I developed, wanted mainly to know where she had been keeping herself, and did she go out with the explosion yesterday and was the trying to dodge him and could he have a date tonight?"

"Ken, you're an old darling," she said, with some fervor. "The truth is, I have been quite busy. This is a new job, you know. And Ken—I think I'd better not"—she glanced at her employer, who was teigning no interest in the matter.

"You are distressed to death, Bob," she said, "but I have actually produced a quantity of it. You say you don't dare experiment on it here because of danger, and what a tragedy occurred when you tried to move a part of it. Now look—wouldn't it be feasible—"

"The telephone rang again and this time it was long distance wanting Bob himself. She waited. But the conversation turned out to be a one on one concerning the matter at hand.

Presently, she retired to the small anteroom of his office, which was now empty. She had been sitting there scanning her shorthand notes, waiting for him to finish. The connecting door had opened and she saw Bob nor his desk. She could just hear him. And she liked to hear him. She liked his distinct enunciation. She liked the base profundo hint to his voice, a deep rumble which could rise much higher in moments of stress. He had come to the same stress in the past 48 hours.

She was hurriedly reviewing a study manual, but Bob Hale entered and had left off. "And so we cannot admit having caused the explosion, Carolyn, or admit having come to the laboratory. If we do the news will bring all manner of cranks, foreign agents, and such."

"And yet, it is my fault," she said, "I ought to tell the police."

"There is no fault," as you call it. I keep repeating that. This is a new job, you know. And Ken—I think I'd better not"—she glanced at her employer, who was teigning no interest in the matter.

LOVE POWER

"But Lena—"

"You have power in your grasp. Robert! That explosion merely proves it."

"I cannot even go see the strike on families. I must keep the secret. I have sent them money, considerable money, anonymously. Later, we will send you a thing as you have done. It is tragedy because of us."

"You are a scientist, not a sobbing preacher!" She was out of patience with him already. Carolyn discerned. In spite of herself, Carolyn had to listen.

"Lena, you don't mean that. Not that way."

"I mean you have infinite power now in your hands—you and I together."

Lena's tone suddenly softened, grew more intimate and insinuating. "Don't you understand? Robert Hale, you can become the greatest man alive!"

"You can have no end of achievement and greatness. Every one of these cities marvels. Think of it! Barely a teaspoonful, and whole factories wiped out. Who would dare cross you if you could control the world? You can use X-999 for either civil or military action."

"Only two people know of this, Robert, you and I. Together we can be man and woman of the ages!"

She said it so dramatically that she cast a veritable spell. Carolyn, overhearing, was herself impressed, not so much with what Lena said as with the sound of her intensity of feeling. It amounted almost to vehemence.

Robert barely murmured in reply. "Obviously she had started him."

"You and I are young, Robert. Young! The future beckons us. We have come to know each other well. There is a bond, between us."

"You and I know that what we have here will render all other power sources obsolete. Within a year, two years, five years at most, all of America's electric plants, all its steam and diesel and gasoline engines, every phase of industry must be revolutionized, as you and I direct! Have you got that?"

"Don't you see, Robert, dear, how far-reaching it is!—Almost at once, we can control a copy of the world. And then—then—then—"

In her little room Carolyn could almost hear the wheels of fate turning. As usual, when one eavesdrops, intentionally or otherwise, the things she heard here were exceedingly interesting.

We--The Women

By RUTH MILLETT (NEA SERVICE)

Young men drafted into the army are at least 21 years old. They're men—not carefree, thoughtless boys.

So they should not be encouraged to shrug off all responsibility to their families just because they are away from home in army camps.

Yet that is what is being done in one town. Springfield, Mo., is the site of a machinery company president there, who is also mayor of Springfield, persuaded her husband's company to pay for and give to each mother of a son going to camp a book containing twelve telegrams, already addressed to the mother and dated at two-week intervals.

Free Telegram Service
All the soldier has to do is check whether he wants to send "I am fine. Everything going well and have a nice crowd of fellows in the unit" or "Thanks a lot for the present. Boys all had a swell treat and send thanks. Couldn't feel better myself"—or any other of a series of twelve pre-printed messages if he is asking for money, although he can make the form himself. He may use up to five if he wants to. All he needs to do is check: "Everything's fine. Sure glad to hear from you. Write me about a small loan until next pay day? Love to all!"

American mothers haven't done very much to bring up their sons if there is any necessity for this "canned" telegram scheme.

Reflections on Training
There's something lacking in the training and upbringing of any young man who thinks of his family that he will let them worry over him merely because it is too much trouble to sit down and write a letter home.

Going away to an army camp is the most important experience most young men have. If they don't want to share that experience with their families, through letters home, their families can't mean very much to them.

Young men should be made to write a letter home. Best of all, pre-paid, pre-addressed, pre-dated telegrams to send back to the folks at home.

SHIPMENTS HIT 2,625-CAR TOTAL

Carload shipments forwarded from Magic Valley during the week ended March 26, 21, it was announced today by L. M. Beerrup, Union Pacific traveling freight and passenger division.

The 2,625 cars represents a decrease of 302 compared with March of 1940. Marketing conditions which held a considerable quantity of potatoes out of sales channels accounted for the variation. Despite these conditions, spuds represented by far the largest total in carload shipments—1,500 for the month.

Beans ranked second with 217 cars and the sheep aggregate of 213 cars was third. Grand total of all types of livestock reached 461 cars, Mr. Beerrup said.

Burley held a narrow lead among the 14 major stations reporting for the month. The Coasta, metropolitan showed 47 cars forward as compared with 400 from Twin Falls. Other rankings in March were: Buhl 260; Jerome 267; Rupert 233; Kimberly 208; Hansen 186; Piler 123; Gooding 124; Shoshone 108; Hamilton 85; Paul 84; Eden 84; Bliss 2.

BRITISH HEAR RUMORS OF NEW GERMAN ATTACK PLAN

DRIVE ON ROCK, LANDING FORCES IN AFRICA LOOM

By FREDERICK KUH
LONDON, April 25 (UPI)—Adolf Hitler's plans for grand scale action against the British empire include an attack on the Mediterranean fleet from new Balkan air bases, a drive against Gibraltar, and the dispatch of land forces to French Syria, Tunisia and Algeria, foreign diplomats reported today.

A usually trustworthy diplomatic source asserted that Hitler had finally obtained the consent of the Spanish government for the passage of several German divisions through Spain to Gibraltar and possibly also to Spanish Morocco.

The informant expressed the belief, on the basis of his information, that the German troops would move within the next few weeks at most and possibly within the next few days.

No Official Information
British official quarters were said to have received no information to substantiate this report.

The informant is especially well informed and, as a diplomat, is truthful. His idea was that Generalissimo Francisco Franco had consented with reluctance to the German march.

Another embassy received a report, sent from Madrid before the outbreak of the war in Europe, that as long ago as last June Franco had promised Hitler that Spain would enter the war in Germany and Italy took the view that the success would prolong Spain's indecision.

It would isolate Gibraltar. Some military and naval experts here expressed belief that if Hitler marched into Spain he would try to isolate Gibraltar and make the straits untenable rather than attack the "rock" direct.

There seemed a feeling that before any move against Gibraltar there would come a big attack by German planes on the British eastern Mediterranean base, from new bases in Greece. Such an attack might be synchronous with the pressure against Egypt from Libya.
