Drawing Closer to Canada

Thirty years ago, when William Howard Taft was president, reciprocity was offered to Canada, but re-fused on the ground that it seemed to weaken that country's ties with the motherland. Yet today some-thing very like it is readily accepted because it will en-able Canada to implement more effectively her loytwo yes Vandala able Canada to implement more effectively her loy-alty to the same motherland. Partial lowering of tariff barriers and other re-strictions on trade between the United States and Can-ada is readily accepted today by both countries in the name of furthering their joint defense. It is simply one more step in the drawing together of the two North American countries. Pooling of productive fa-ultities are that rack counter move and whet it are cilities so that each country may produce what it can best produce, without duplicating or overlapping in the effort, is certainly a sensible approach to a com-mon problem. . .

It has been said often, and it may be noted once more that the United States and Canada are drawing closer together these days, and that whatever the outcome of the war they are destined to march in a very close ca-dence in the future. England belatedly tried to conclude a union with France in those last hours of France's downfall, recog-nizing the possible strength that lay in establishing a common monetary system and in trading freely with one another unvexed by customs barriers and formali-ties. But it was too late to set up any such a thing in that last hour. In more unhurried and untroubled fashion, Canada and the United States may well be working toward such understandings today for the future "after the war."

New techniques of the relations between countries will have to be devised anyway—techniques by which countries can pool economic resources and function freely in natural trade territories without so scrupu-lous a regard for national boundaries as formerly. Without sacrificing political independence and politic-al self-rule, nations are going to find ways to step over barriers. Thus what is being done in the way of eco-nomic cooperation with Canada as a war measure may well be pointing the way to a later and more per-manent cooperation_ manent cooperation.

Talking and Voting

Talking and Voting Practically everyone is for hemisphere defense and closer relations with Latin America. The average legislator will sing the praises of such work to the skies one moment, and then turn and vote against this accepted national policy by supporting some measure which actually hampers trade with those countries. Many of the Latin countries are in a precarious state economically these days, with the normal Euro-pean market cut off. Their political stability may not last unless means are found to increase their sales in the United States. We can't eat our cake of hemisphere defense and have it, too, in the form of tariff or other barriers against South American products. Yet some of the loudest shoutters for improving such trade rela-tions are the first to vote barriers to restrict it, blind to the woods of hemisphere defense because of the trees of some local or special interest.

Cracked Mirrors

It is a melancholy sight to Americans traveling abroad to pick up newspapers and magazines and see the writings of American nonentities paraded as rep-resenting American thought.

the writings of American nonentilies paraded as rep-resenting American thought. Axis countries, and countries in which there is an active press favorable to the axis, seize on any writ-ing appearing in the United States which supports their cause, and translate and reproduce it with the greatest display. It gives foreigners a completely wrong impression of what goes on in American minds. Newest such trash to be reproduced abroad is a book by William Dudley Pelley, the Silver Shirt fuehrer, with which the Japanese are now being re-galed. No doubt the introduction to the book fails to mention that Pelley has no standing or following what-ever in the United States and that he could not be elected dog-catcher of a whistle-stop tank town. Yet hs words are paraded before trusting Japanese, who are no doubt told that here is some foam from the American wave of the future. If other countries choose to delude themselves with such bunk, that is, one suppose, their business. But it would be tragic if any form from it conclusions as in America in action. Never Has General's Quality Cost So Little ... Never Has it Meant So Much

In the face of rising raw material and manufactur costs-uncertain conditions-General has met this challenge of price vs. quality. Greater factory capacity -still higher production efficiency-beginning today, these permit us to offer a General Tire of even finer General Quality at a ...
