SERIAL STORY MURDER IN CONVOY BY A. W. O'BRIEN

YESTERDAY's newspaper had reported the capture of the murderer of the woman in the... Captain de Witt, medical officer, testified that he had been summoned to "A" deck about 4 o'clock that morning.

LIEUTENANT BOLLENS LIES CHAPTER V THE COURT OF INVESTIGATION got underway in "B" lounge at 9 o'clock the morning of Captain de Witt's testimony.

"I found Captain de Witt lying face down under a corridor light. I was awakened by the order to get up. I saw the captain... The body was cold, quite cold. The armpits warmly, in view of the body's general condition, told me the deceased had been dead quite some time, less than four hours. The total absence of post-mortem lividity made the opinion definite.

"I was speaking to the late Captain de Witt about 11:30 last night, right?" the tough colonel spoke with astonishing gentleness.

"Yes, Sir. I was getting a breath of air at the deck after playing in the bridge tournament and Captain de Witt came along, jokingly asking whether I had ever heard of Lieut. Bolpens and together to the nearest door and stood inside chatting for a couple of minutes before I left him."

"Please describe that test, Doctor." Captain de Witt shifted his position and began to describe in minute detail the pathological test he conducted to determine whether the victim had been drugged.
