FIR GIVES CONFIDENTIAL REPORT TO CONGRESS LEADERS

NEW FUNDS FOR LEND-LEASE PLAN WILL BE SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt today gave congressional leaders a detailed report of his meeting with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and informed them that "within a few weeks" he will request additional lend-lease funds to finance a bigger flow of material aid to Britain and her allies.

Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., indicated the one concrete development from the 80-minute meeting was the President's plan to request the new lend-lease request.

"The budget bureau is studying the lend-lease question and after it completes its study in all probability there will be a budget message," Barkley said. He added he felt there would be a matter of at least a few weeks before the President is ready to send such a message to congress.

Awake Budget Study

"Nobody at the conference knew how much the new request would involve and nobody will know until the budget bureau completes its study," the majority leader said.

Roosevelt made his report on his historic meeting at sea to Barkley, Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, Chairman Tom Connally, D., Tex., of the senate foreign relations committee, Chairman Walter P. George, D., Ga., of the senate finance committee, Acting Speaker Clifton A. Woodrum, D., Va., and Chairman Bob Bloom, D., N. Y., of the house foreign affairs committee.

"It was very interesting but I can't tell you much about it," Barkley said. "It was a confidential matter and nobody should touch it only casually" on the far eastern situation, where American relations with Japan are severely strained.

Concern Over Japan

The President manifested concern over the situation in the Pacific when he returned to the capital yesterday after his historic meeting with Churchill, going immediately into conference with Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The discussion was reported to have gone far beyond the usual formalities in holding 100 American citizens as virtual hostages. They were reported to have canvassed the light of Mr. Roosevelt's earlier statement that talks with Churchill had brought directly into conference with Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

At the same time, Harry Hopkins, administering the lend-lease program for the President, conferred in the room of the White House with Lord Beaverbrook, British supply minister, presumably on methods of obtaining and transporting supplies which the British need immediately to withstand the lightning pressure of German attack.

SHIFF DEMANDED IN JAP POLICIES

American economic pressure on Japan would become even more intense and that the export licensing system announced by Tokyo would be adopted by the United States.

The foreign office charged meanwhile that Washington had misinterpreted Japan's position in connection with refusal of permission for the President Coolidge to call at a Japanese port to pick up about 100 Americans who desire to leave Japan.

The Japanese action was described as based on a desire to "nationalize" evacuation procedure which might arouse the American people.

No Guarantee

In addition, it was stated, the United States has been unable to guarantee economically profitable voyages for Japanese ships to the United States.

It was understood the foreign office would make a statement explaining the Japanese viewpoint in full connection with the President Coolidge developments.

The government meanwhile required all foreigners to get special permission to leave Japan and the press bitterly attacked American, British and Russian for allegedly attempting to "sneak" Japan.

LEGION SESSIONS OFFICIALLY OPEN

Keynote for the five-day meeting was set by Miss J. Warner, national secretary, in her address in an address in which she declared the United States is in "direct conflict with the Japanese."

He called for all-out cooperation of Americans in the defense program.

"This country must apply itself to defeat the threat of Hitler totalitarianism," Warner declared. "We must give our everything to bring about the total defeat of Hitlerism." At the same time, however, she said that "because Russia is fighting the threat of Hitler, it does not mean that the cause of the Communist party in the United States. We must use whatever means is required to keep Japan spreading in this country. Our course against it must continue adamant and unrelenting."

LUTHERANS HEAR DISTRICT LEADER

Rev. L. Ludwig, president of the northwestern district of the American Lutheran church, and chairman of the district home missions committee, was a speaker at the American Lutheran church here Sunday.

He left this morning for Colorado, where he will serve as chaplain at the biennial convention of the young people's Luther leagues, in session at Greeley, Colo.

The women of the church sponsored a basket dinner Sunday afternoon in the court house at Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lane, attended by 100 guests.

Prayer and community singing opened the program at the informal service on the lawn at the Lane home. Musical numbers were presented by a mixed quartet.

FEDERAL ACTION FACING MAN, 23

Arrested Sunday on non-support claim, a Shoshone and Twin Falls farm laborer will be turned over to federal authorities for violation of U. S. district court probation.

He is Bruce Martin, 23, taken into custody by Sheriff Warren W. Lowery and Deputy John Lester, Martin was sleeping when the officers found him—and they discovered a .38 caliber revolver under his pillow.

Because federal sentence was withheld and probation granted last April 24 by U. S. Judge O. C. Cavannah at Boise, Martin will be turned over to the federal probation officer. The parole, under strict conditions, was granted in a Dyer act complaint accusing the man of driving a stolen car from Twin Falls to Wells, Nev. One term of the probation stipulated that he is to contribute to support of his family.

Martin was living in a cabin near Twin Falls at the time of his arrest.

JAPAN TAKES GRAVE VIEW OF PLANNED MOSCOW MEET

NIPPONESE FEAR 'CRAFTY SCHEME' WILL BE BREWED

By ROBERT BELLAIRE
 TOKYO, Aug. 18 (Special)—United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and Foreign Minister Admiral Tajiro Toyoda were reported to have discussed subjects of utmost importance at a long conference today. The Japanese press took a grave view of the impending American-British-Russian war conferences at Moscow and charged that the American plans to send war supplies to Russia by way of Vladivostok were a "crafty scheme" directed against Japan. Japan will not remain silent in event of "any disturbance" of the sea of Japan as a result of shipments of Vladivostok, the newspaper Miyako said.

Grew met with the Japanese Foreign Minister Lee this morning to discuss the subject of which was not disclosed officially. At the same time Eugene Dooman of the United States embassy conferred with Foreign Vice-Minister Eiji Amano.

Study Refusal
 The foreign office was said to be giving serious study to the American state department statement regarding refusal of Japan to permit the U. S. President Coolidge to pick up about 100 Americans desiring to leave Japan. (The state department said the action was tantamount to holding the Americans as hostages). Foreign diplomatic and consular officers were ordered to report to the foreign office before attempting to leave the country "in order to avoid any misunderstanding." The foreign office, promulgating the orders in its official gazette, said the government was authorized to order foreigners wishing to leave the country to delay their departure or to leave from designated ports. No Decision
 Both the government and the American embassy declined to discuss the incident of the American President Coolidge.

They started to pass a truck loaded with wood and were unable to get around the machine safely. An approaching car appeared at the crest of the hill so Bucher darted in front of the truck, which struck him from the rear, according to State Patrolman V. K. Barron, who investigated the accident. The Bucher machine traveled about 150 feet before flipping over.

Soldier Mail Needed, Army Tells Parents

Although word from home is important to new soldiers, the army complained today that "little if any" mail is received by draftees and volunteers during their stay at the induction station at Fort Douglas.

So Col. H. P. Kayser, commanding officer of the reception center to which Magie Valley selectees are sent, advised parents of the new soldiers that they shouldn't delay too long in writing to their sons.

Colonel Kayser, in a communication from Fort Douglas, said that letters arriving after youths have been transferred will be forwarded at once. He indicated there isn't any reason for parents to wait until sons are sent on to their "permanent" stations.

LEINHOIS MAN RAPS IDAHO'S SENATOR CLARK

Editor, Times:
 I note that the senator Idaho senator is still distinguishing himself as a heckler. This time he popped off after an announcement was given of the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting, that "it is very significant to me that our foreign policy is released from London on the radio rather than from the United States."

Now it so happens that 24 hours before the announcement was made the press and radio in this country repeatedly stated that the report on this subject would be released simultaneously in Washington and London. Apparently nearly everyone in this country knew that the announcement was to be given out in Washington and London at the same time—that is all except Senator Clark.

Why don't some of his constituents keep him informed so he won't continue to make himself appear ridiculous in the eyes of the rest of the nation?

Rural Routes to Remain Separate

PAUL, Aug. 18 (Special)—Paul has received word that there will be no consolidation of the rural route of Paul and that of Rupert, accompanied by a telegram received by Henry T. Brezcek, president of Rupert Chamber of Commerce, from Sen. D. Worth Clark.

The change, contemplated by the postoffice department, would have caused Paul rural mail to be delivered from the Rupert post office.

When the proposed change was brought to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce, it immediately sent in protests, urging that the present mail system be retained. In his telegram Sen. Clark said: "Know you will be pleased to learn post office department has reached decision to retain present arrangement of rural routes at Rupert and Paul, Idaho. Peace Without Victory

There was a point during the first World War when Woodrow Wilson advanced the suggestion that the best outcome of that war would be a "peace without victory." Only a little more than two months before he came to the American congress asking a declaration of war on Germany, he came to the senate to propose peace.

Since it has been proposed by several sources, most recently by John Cudahy, former U. S. diplomat, that the United States ought to take the lead in making some kind of peace proposal, let's review the Wilson proposal.

Wilson argued that no worthwhile peace could be arranged without the United States and other American nations taking part. "First of all," he went on, "it must be a peace without victory. . . . Victory would mean peace forced upon the loser, a victor's terms imposed upon the vanquished. Only a peace between equals can last. . . ."

After this prophetic warning, Wilson then envisioned his peace. An international organization to create and jointly administer peace. Disarmament. Territorial adjustment based on national needs and rights. Freedom of the seas. Equal rights for all nations, small and weak, great and strong. . . . Neither side seriously considered Wilson's proposals.

Would such proposals, made now, have any influence in Europe? Is either side in any mood to listen to them? Could the peoples to whom they might be addressed be reached at all? Would a German government which has won an uninterrupted string of victories for two years be inclined to listen to any terms which implied giving freedom back to peoples from whom they have stolen it, and whom they have declared unworthy to possess it? Could terms be devised which would make the British peoples feel secure, or any peoples in the world feel secure, as long as so terrible a military force as that developed by the Nazis remains?

And, most important of all, does either side want peace badly enough to make sacrifices to get it? Would either side be willing to embrace a formula of "peace without victory"?

The obstacles which balked Wilson's proposal in 1917 are doubled and redoubled today. Yet if some leader were able to put before the peoples of the world a project for workable peace, who knows what response he might arouse?

Those "Contact Men"

Manufacturing circles are carefully considering the "contact man."

Theoretically, he's unnecessary, and shouldn't exist. The government needs vast amounts of all kinds of defense work done. Thousands of small manufacturing plants have facilities to do it, much of it idle or about to be idle because of lack of materials. Surely the two ought to get together. But sometimes it isn't easy. Certain "contact men" are reported doing a lucrative business in Washington.

No single snap judgment can be pronounced on this set of "middlemen." In some cases they may be peddling fictitious "influence" and "contacts," and be sheer fakery. In others they may perform a genuine service in dovetailing defense needs with unused productive facilities, a service valuable both to the manufacturer and to the government.

In general, however, the relationships between the government and manufacturers ought to be direct, without any necessity for paying out commissions to middlemen. Working through such "commission men" could produce great abuses.

More Jobs Than Ever Before

Right at the time when everybody is worried about men being laid off in small plants producing non-defense items, comes word that more men are holding jobs today than ever before. Employment reached its highest peak in history in June, the national industrial conference board estimating that 63,120,000 held jobs.

If that estimate is correct, it is 5,000,000 above the average for 1929, the year hitherto set up as the summit of good times.

All our former records of production are being shattered. It's a bigger country than ever before, and the record of the past mean little or nothing. They must be broken again and again. It's a bigger country every day. Our job is to make it also a better one every day.

Pot Shots wants his constituents to know that he prints these remarks despite threat of mayhem, manslaughter, simple assault, assault and battery and arsenic in his soup.

These are indeed grave matters but nothing can deter us from doing our duty to our constituents. Besides, by quoting the threats in our figure County Persecutor Vay Swecley and Deputy Persecutor Ray Agee will know the guilty party if Pot Shots turns up in battered physical condition. Of course Messrs. Vay and Agee might give the culprit a medal, but let's ignore that possibility.

So here goes:

Mike Stronk says he doesn't live in the country any more. What with those big new homes going up for Doc Dean Affleck and Fred Hoops, Addison avenue and one-mile road is no longer rural but is now becoming Stronk Heights, an elite suburban area.

SECRET VOYAGE

BY JOSEPH L. CHADWICK

PRIVATE AND PERSONAL
CHAPTER VI

JIM MALLORY snapped alert. He cupped his cigarette in his hands to hide the glow, then turned in his chair to look across the parlor. It was too dark to make out the faces of the two men who Eric Forbes and Jim Mallory were sitting on the patio toward the rear of the house. Their voices died away, but Jim had caught this much: Eric Forbes was afraid Mary Larsen would tell him, Mallory, something.

Jim stepped on his cigarette and looked at the man. Forbes' eyes just stood there staring across the dark patio. He wanted a look at Forbes' moving, a look at the rear corner of the big house he possessed. He wanted to see if the man was trembling, and he wanted to see if the man was afraid Mary Larsen would tell him, Mallory, something.

"There was water all about, but the Hammonds had a pool, Jim went down for an early-morning plunge, and found Mary there before he was sitting on the edge at the far end, and he dove in and swam to her. He grasped her ankles and gave her a little shove. He said, 'I'll raise you down and back.' Her eyes examined him in a remote impersonal way, and she put her feet against his chest and gave him a stout push. He went under, and when he came up she was going up to go to the house. He climbed out and said, 'Wait a minute, I want to talk.' She hesitated. He sank down on the edge of the pool and said, 'Come on, Mary, I promise not to lay a hand within a mile of you.' She came and sat down near him, but not too near. He looked at her for a long moment, liking her smooth brown color, her remote impersonal way, and she put her feet against his chest and gave him a stout push. He went under, and when he came up she was going up to go to the house. He climbed out and said, 'Wait a minute, I want to talk.' She hesitated. Sports Writer Explains How to Be Grid Prophet

BY HARRY FERGUSON
NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—You must hurry, hurry, hurry. There are only about three weeks left in which to become a pigskin prophet—a guy who sits down on Wednesday of each week and decides who is going to win the college football games on the coming Saturday.

The pigskin prophets are off to a flying start this year. Already there have fallen on this battered desk 14 prophecies from all over the country from gentlemen—and one lady—who claim to have an infallible system for picking winners.

There 14 prophecies want to sell me this information so that I, in turn, can pass it along to you and all of us can get rich by betting with our friends on whether Blippery Norm Normal will defeat Prooductivity Techyevy college. In case one of your friends happens to buy information from a prophet, then he'll be a case of the irresistible force meeting the immovable object.

"Autumn Madness" The emergency of the pigskin prophets is only one manifestation of what sports writers call "the autumn madness"—the desire of the great American public to bet on football games. But before you purchase the prophecies of any prophet, please remember that you, too, can be a prophet. All you need is a schedule, a pencil and some paper on which to record your prophecies.

Of course, you are going to be wrong a hell of a lot of times, but don't let that stop you. If you're a prophet, you'll find out to your sorrow when the season sets under way that pigskin prophecies are lucky if they have an average of 50%.

But in case you want to climb up to around 99.9 here are a few simple rules:

1. Make prophecies on as many games as possible and by all means don't confine your predictions to the closest 20 games in the country. The more games you pick, the more so-called "pushover" you are going to get.

2. Be able to tell on Wednesday the exact weather conditions on every major gridiron in the country for the following Saturday. Then you will be able to apply the principle that a heavy team with a good ground attack has the advantage in the mud over a light team that depends on passing.

3. Have every football coach in the country telegraph you on Wednesday the exact physical condition of his squad.

4. Demand from each coach in the country a list right now of the games he is pointing for. That's important because Yale, for instance is satisfied to lose every game on the schedule so long as they can beat Harvard.

5. Have the faculty committee of each university supply you weekly with the academic standing of the football heroes. Then you can tell whether a star is about to be disqualified for low grades.

6. Have all local draft boards advise you daily as to which players are likely to be inducted.

7. Possessing all this information, you have a good chance to compile an average of 99.9. A margin of error is left because a blocked kick sometimes invalidates the best of prophecies. In case you have a bad Saturday sit down and write all your friends and tell them the "wave of upsets" that swept college gridirons.

8. Have your friends and family advise you daily as to which players are likely to be inducted.

Idaho Entry Loses in Semi-Pro Meet

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 18 (AP)—The national semi-pro baseball tournament settled down to a steady grind today with 36 teams still in the running for the championship.

In yesterday's games the defending champions, the Enid, Okla., Champlains, buried the Windsor, N.J., Comets under a 10-0 score.

A multi-team between two aircraft plant squads found the Northrup Bombers of Hawthorne, Calif., too strong at first pits for the Stearman Trainers, Wichita. The bombers won 6-4.

The Elmer, Mo., Panthers defeated Adel, Iowa, 3-1.

The Buford, Ga., Bona Allens defeated the Desmet, Ind., Indians, 12 to 4.

AUTOGRAPHS

When Howard Allen sees a major league baseball star, he has the players sign on the dotted line.

In other words, the Twin Falls youth has returned from a mid-western trip today with autographs of seven members of the St. Louis Cardinal squad.

Howard and his parents and his sisters carried a box above the Cardinal dugout at games with the Chicago Cubs—and the autograph-collector gathered these signatures: Johnny Mize, Lon Warneke, Gus Mancuso, Johnny Hopp, Martin Marion, Terry Moore and Ernie White.

By JOHN CLINTON
I saw one of the circus the other day, a colossal cat with pink skin and blue eyes. When he purred he sounded like a Hudson bomber. I want one.

And at that same circus I saw a well advertised for Tilton and his high-wire walkers—you know those guys who skim back and forth on a clothes-line a couple of hundred feet above the ring?

They carry long poles in their hands to balance themselves. And if those poles aren't exactly balanced, they have to hire new acrobats. Well, the engineers at Union Oil may laugh at me, but that's the way it is with the motor in your car.

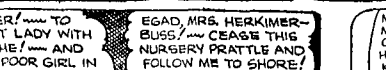

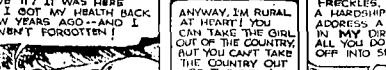

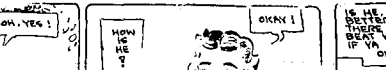

When it comes from the factory, it's perfectly balanced, it has the very oil of an inch. Its power, its smoothness, its efficiency all depend on that balance being maintained.

Now if you go and use an oil that's full of carbon, it actually changes the compression ratio and balance of your motor. And you get less and less power and fun out of it.

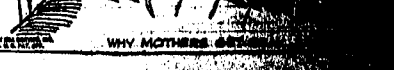

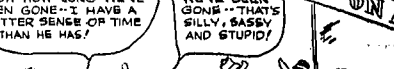

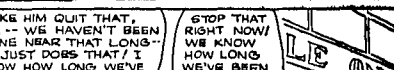

On the other hand, if you use a very little carbon of any kind, you'll find that your motor runs smoother, it's more efficient, it's more powerful. It's made by Union's patented Solvent Process. It's 100% pure petroleum-based. It's the best kind of lubricant money can buy. It's the only one that keeps that in mind when you need oil, or if you're going to walk right up. All Union Oil dealers and dealers carry Tilton. Try it, you'll love it!

ALLIES DEMAND IRAN FORCE OUT GERMAN AGENTS

4,000 NAZIS ARE REPORTED IN KEY POSTS OF NATION

LONDON, Aug. 18 (Special)—Britain and Russia have determined to force thousands of German agents out of Iran, many of them reported to be in key posts of the nation.

Iran is understood to be well aware as it is emphatically put here, that both Britain and Russia now have strong military forces in position for action. If action is necessary to safeguard their interests against the German danger.

Ask "Effective Action"

Authoritative sources made it known yesterday that Britain and Russia, through their envoys at Tehran, had requested the Iranian government to take "effective action" to end what is called a menace.

It is understood the new representations were polished rather than blunt, due only to the desire of the British government to make them as easy as possible for Iran to accept. There seemed to be no objection from Russia and Britain in respect that the Germans get out.

Under Office Replacements

Britain and Russia want at least 80 per cent of some 4,000 German agents and they have offered to replace all German technicians whose services Iran needs.

The longer the Germans continue to attack Russia and British along the Black sea coast, the more important Iran's position becomes. In the Iranian east, in the British and Russian view, provides a potentially dangerous base for German raids across the Caspian sea on the Caucasian oil fields. Iran is now the only serious danger spot in the near east.

BURLEY, Aug. 18 (Special)—President O. S. B. and Secretary Lester McKean of the Burley Merchants' association, sent a communication to Gov. Chase A. Clark representing that organization as favoring the construction of a short-cut road from Paul to Kimama and Kikura, connect the Wood river bridge with the main central Idaho, thus saving a number of miles of travel.

Work of oiling five miles south from Albion to the Howell creek road will start in the near future, and early action is also hoped for the oiling of the Albion-Elba-Almo road. The Birch creek road south of Oakley is also slated for improvements.

BURLEY, Aug. 18 (Special)—A general meeting of the Burley Chamber of Commerce is set for Wednesday evening, Aug. 27, in conjunction with the dance and jamboree to advertise the Cassia county fair and stampede, according to announcement made by officials this week.

The date to be held that evening will feature cowboy and cowgirl costumes, and will be held at the Y-dell ballroom, at which time Barbara Boden, fair queen, and her three attendants, Edna Mathews, Amy Lou Skiles and Rozel Sohm, will be honored. Orr Keen and O. E. McMahon are in charge of the dance.

The Chamber of Commerce named Horace Hall, Harold Dearford, W. W. Williams, Clarence Phillips and Rodney Webster to assist with helping the residents in securing the wild west regalia of colored shirts, scarfs, boots and cowboy hats.

The chamber donated $25 to the advertising fund for the fair, to be used on the ballyhoo trip on Friday, Aug. 29, when about 50 cars will tour cities in southern Idaho to advertise the fair.

President H. L. Harpster appointed a committee to work with Gano on a project to secure three lots upon which the new Gano potato manufacturing plant may be located. Gano told the chamber that when the plant gets into operation it will employ 125 people during eight months of the year, and will use about 50,000 pounds of potatoes every 24 hours.

CARS STRANDED BY SUNDAY RAIN

BOISE, Ida., Aug. 18 (Special)—Scores of week-end vacationers were stranded in mountainous areas here last night when cloud bursts washed out roads in the Boise and Payette national forests.

Walter Berry of the Boise national forest estimated 200 cars were marooned at Idaho City for several hours when heavy rains washed out a section of the road to Boise.

On the south fork of the Payette river, about 30 cars were stranded for a time until the road between Lowman and Garden Valley was opened. The heavy rains also damaged the road between Boise and Atlanta and washed out the road and bridge near Rocky Bar.
