Vengeance, Very Neatly Done

Of course, Capt. Joe Deaver said, "You aren't writing this down!" And of course we said, "No, we aren't writing this down." And we weren't writing it down. Not then. Five minutes later, on Main avenue, we were on our little pad. But we leave it to you, constituents, in order to get the ethics of the thing cleared up before we launch into it. Well, did Capt. Deaver say "You aren't writing this down five minutes later, on Main avenue, he didn't."

Cap'n William Egan Mumpower, arrived in Twin Falls on Tuesday at 3:40 a. m. Tuesday. He got himself a hotel room and then proceeded to telephone his old stick, Capt. Joe, who stood the sleep-out of bed to answer the call. He was glad at sound of the crowing of the rooster from a sound sleep. He retired happily to his own bed at the hotel.

But Capt. Joe up and about at 7 a. m., proceeded to get vengeance by telephoning Capt. Ben, then another vengeance. Ben's voice was very sleepy.

At 10 a. m., while on a downtown business errand, Capt. Joe dropped into the hotel and knocked on the door. "Ice water," he called in his best bellhop voice, and the bellhop and maid came from within the room. "I didn't order ice water," said the bellhop.

"What'll I do with it?" asked Bellhop Seaver.

"More meetings. Finally the door opened. Score another for Capt. Joe. Then, on his way out, he spotted a newspaper on the floor. He picked it up. Inspiration flooded Capt. Joe. Said he to the maid: "I'm through in 22 now—you can clean it up."

It's one of Ripley's and it says like as follows: "John Shell of Greasy Creek, died in 1922 at the age of 134 years—his oldest son was 93—his youngest son was 8—and he survived his brother by 100 years."

"I'm willing to believe Mr. Shell lived to be 134 years old, that is, if he died in 1922. But how does a man who dies at the age of 134 survive a brother 100 years?"

NO MARCHING, PLEASE!

A lady with a cheerful voice called out to the marcher.

She told us about the item appearing in both the Evening and the Times, proclaiming to the high heavens that the "Merry Marchers" of the Baptist church had postponed their meeting.

It was the youngest member of the group in over 30 and the oldest is 87 years of age.

Quoth she: "We would hardly be merry marchers, do you think?"

SERIAL STORY

BRIDE FROM THE SKY

BY HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER II

THERE were four paragraphs on the front page of the newspaper. Four paragraphs encircled in a heavy black line.

Her wide, brown eyes became darker, deeper, lonelier. The story was brief, terse, final. It didn't tell about the string of records Sandy had hung up. It didn't mention the way he had beaten the winds from coast to coast. It didn't even say that he was brave and gallant and had invented a parachute.

It did say, though, that no radio communications with Sandy had been established for 10 hours. It was thought that no time had been given the flyer to radio for help. Somewhere, high over the mountains, he had known his ship was cracking up.

She read again the small head above the single column.

FLYER BELIEVED DEAD; RESCUE SQUAD UNABLE TO FIND MISSING PLANE BELIEVED DEAD. Then nobody knew that he was dead.

Slowly the words began to take clearer meaning. Perhaps Sandy was dead. Or, if not dead, he couldn't be reached. Or, if not reached, she couldn't reach him. The air was filled with traffic noises, radio sounds and static, and away to the west, high white hills resounded with the roar of rivers and cataraacts.

She closed her eyes and sent a message skyward, westward.

She pushed the button and left the bus at 42nd street. She couldn't even wait until she reached the office with its cream carpet and furniture, its rose chintz draperies and crystal chandeliers. Instead she darted into a cigar store, found an empty booth, and dialed Skyways Incorporated. She talked for a long time. Several times she put in nickels.

She knew that she was insisting that a wider search be made for Sandy. She knew, too, that the company was promising to do its best.

"Who are you?" the courteous voice, 10 miles away, asked. "A sister—young Ammerman wasn't married, was he?"

"No, no, he wasn't married. But he had wanted to be. He had asked her half a dozen times. And she wouldn't be engaged. Now he was gone and she would forget her job, she would say, if he would come back and smile at her."

To the person at Skyways Incorporated, she said, "I'm Sandy Ammerman's fiancée."

SHE hung up and walked swiftly out of the shop, lost herself in the crowd that hurried up Fifth avenue. Sandy Ammerman's fiancée. He didn't know it. Probably he never would. But she felt an aching in her chest and the aliped out of the telephone booth.

GOODING

Ootton mattress program in Gooding county will be resumed soon after the arrival of the new mattress building at Gooding and in the Elmhurst building in Wendell. The program, which was carried on last week at the Elmhurst building, was supervised by Mrs. E. J. Palmer, county extension agent, in charge of the project. Trained supervisors will direct the work.

RUSSELL LANE

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Postwaite and daughters returned yesterday from Kansas, where they had been summoned by the death of his father.

The wife of school the first of the week in the primary room at the Russell Lane school on account of the death of her husband, Mrs. Everett Utz and Bruce Clendinning were among the guests who attended the sugar beet company field day at Gooding on the Rogerson hotel last week.

Mrs. Russell, Bodenheimer was in the city on Tuesday, Friday, Saturday by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Tracy.

F. O. McNeelley, Postoffice, was in the city Friday at the Elmhurst Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. John Parks and family have come to California, where they will locate.

The door opened quietly; Phil smiled at her. He was tall, lean, well-built.

"You've seen the morning newspapers?" Phil half-asked, half-stated.

She nodded.

and found him somewhere. Ten minutes he needed at her desk, she was going over the list of probable interviews for that morning.

Life was odd, she mused as she checked names. It changed so quickly. One moment a marching song, the next, a death watch. Life was a ball of worsted, tangled too madly for further use—a painted mask you mustn't take off—a song you couldn't sing any more.

Outside the rain began, and great drops were flung against the window pane. The yellow lamps were pools of brightness that cast lurid shadows on the low shelves of books; the shiny covers of which attested to their newness. The chairs, grouped informally around her long desk, were deep and inviting.

Only three days ago Sandy had sat in the nearest one, long legs tumbling the rough, bright hair, gray eyes trying to see mountains and rivers so he might bring them to her.

"Maybe you're near-sighted and I'm far-sighted," he had said, a little wearily, at last. "You want to see your name on your magazine cover down in the streets, and I want to set my chart for some place that isn't in the least important of the arrangement and disarray of Mrs. Walter Denton and Mary Jane. Perhaps I shouldn't try to change you. It's just that I love you, Judy. But come on, if you can't come by to take you to dinner."

She had gone and they had been gay. Almost too gay. They had danced at a little French place on West 57th street where the food was excellent. They had taken a cab to a rendezvous in the large white building and music and singing played anyone's requests, and boys, with voices deep and thundering, sang for their supper while they danced for and over now and again one of them found a spot in musical comedy and kept climbing higher.

From there Sandy and Judy had walked.

HEYBURN

Thma Lee Alexander and daughter, Thma Lee, left Sunday for Salem, Ore., where they will join Mr. Alexander, who is employed there. Levi McDavitt is spending a few days of this week in Boise on business.

Ned Sorenson, who is stationed with the army at Fort Douglas, Utah, is spending a few days here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sorenson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Morgan and son of Tucson, Ariz., spent a few days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Morgan.

Elizabeth Smith left last week for Wendell where she will teach school this year.

EDSON IN WASHINGTON

By PETRE EDSON
 Evening Times Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The fall and winter show season on Capitol Hill in Washington opened with all the fanfare of a Hollywood premiere Sept. 8 when a sub-committee of the Senate Commerce Committee held a dress rehearsal for what may turn out to be a full-fledged congressional investigation of the monopolistic and propaganda practices of the moving picture industry.

It will undoubtedly be the liveliest since the time of the committee's work in 1938. There's something everyone can understand: so the industry will be the same as at which the senatorial vegetables will be thrown. Wendell Willkie will lead the show as counsel for the Senate. Philip H. Frank, of the National Film Board, Harry Warner, Barney Balaban, Darryl Zanuck et al. Presiding is Sen. Charles McNary, of Oregon. A witness was Sen. Gerald P. Nye of Cooperstown, N. D.

Behind the curtain of these hearings will be a good bit more than meets the eye, but the principal and real reason for these hearings can be summed up in two words: "Nazi Epy."

1. There have been a number of anti-Nazi pictures, such as "Under the Big Boy" and "The Sign of the Cross" which have been shown in the United States.

2. Since these pictures have, consciously or not, a propaganda motif which might be used to incite the young people of these United States to go to war to wipe out Nazism, certain senators would like to know whether or not the people to see the pictures are being misled by the propaganda.

SOLONS WANT TO USE OTHER SIDE

It is well understood that this show is being run by senators who believe very strongly and sincerely that the United States should not become involved in the present European war. It is their contention that the movies are being used to incite the people to war, hence senators are much of the point that so far no movies have been produced to present the other side of the argument—screen stories which would be based on plots wherein screen heroes would win the girl for the final clutch of keeping their country out of war.

It must also be borne in mind that the investigation is not purely a dress rehearsal to determine whether a formal investigation should be held later on. This preliminary investigation is only because of the peculiar senate rules of procedure.

The first place, Sen. Bennett has called on the committee. He is the Champ Clark of St. Louis. Mo., for himself and for Senator Nye introduced a resolution directing the introduction of a sub-committee to investigate and report to the senate on any propaganda disseminated by the motion picture industry.

NO WITCH HUNT, THEY SAY

The resolution has not been passed by the senate, but was referred to the investigate commerce committee for investigation. The reason Clark and Nye specified that the investigation be conducted by the senate committee is to influence public sentiment in the direction of participation in the present European war.

It is believed that the investigation will be conducted by the senate committee, but it is believed that the chairman of the committee is Burton K. Wheeler of Butte, Mont., who as everyone knows is a spokesman for those who believe the United States should stay out of the war.

Old Dream Becomes a Nightmare

It would be easy to greet the Open-Big-Nation-for-All-Europe plan of Hitler and Mussolini with a loud horse-laugh. Too easy.

The wild-sounding plan announced in Mussolini's private newspaper will not be dismissed with a single loud snort.

It can never come true, but that is not quite a good enough reason for dismissing it utterly. Back of it lies an age-old longing of Europe for some kind of order to take the place of the weary generations of economic and political anarchy which have racked that tired continent again and again.

Thousands, both in Europe and here, will be tempted to say, "There's something in that!" That's the insidious part of it, there IS something in it.

Europe is never going to be made into a single "state" in the sense Hitler and Mussolini mean. That is, it is never going to submit to domination of all its peoples from Berlin where a self-appointed "master race" sits in a rigid saddle, wielding a unified whip over "lesser peoples" whose role in the "united state" is meted out to them at the end of a lash.

It will never work. There are too many millions of people in Europe still who love freedom for there to be the slightest chance of the Hitler plan succeeding.

But it won't do to dismiss it, for all that. For a hundred years, Europe has cried for deliverance from its fatal Balkanization. To restore their freedom to peoples robbed of it is a necessary first aim. But it is only a beginning. There is no hope for the world in returning to a condition of international anarchy in which the big-headed ruler of any local Ruritania can juggle the peace of Europe; a condition in which every small country is a pawn on a chessboard, moved about or captured at will by the big players at the edge of the board.

The axis partners hold up before the world a picture that is a nightmare version of an old European dream. The insidious part of it is that it bears just enough faint resemblance to the dream that some may be unthinkingly drawn toward it. It has, further, the virtue of concreteness; the forces of freedom have not yet drawn their dream of a free Europe in sufficiently definite lines.

The Nazi proposal cannot be laughed off; it must be studied, first to reveal the naked horror of its cold impudence; second, to bring home the stark necessity of something better.

Cafelite—More Wolf Soup

The old story of the fellow who got tired of seeing the wolf at his door, went out, whacked him, and made wolf soup out of him, is one that has an ever-recurring moral.

Brazil is the latest country to turn a disadvantage into an advantage. For years it has been plagued by a coffee surplus; the smoke of burning coffee has drifted across the state of Sao Paulo each season, coffee burned to be rid of surpluses.

Now a young North American has devised a process of making a new plastic—appropriately named cafelite—out of coffee beans. Brazil is going into the production of cafelite from its surplus coffee, thus at one time reducing its surplus and marketing one of the world's cheapest plastics.

Cafelite will undoubtedly compete with North American plastics of various kinds. If it comes up to its advance notices, it is one more example of the changes that must be expected in the post-war world.

Out of the Dust Bowl

The Dust bowl, which monopolized headlines a few years ago, needn't be a permanent feature of the national picture. This is one of the things man helped to create, and, with intelligence and will, man can remedy.

There are signs that progress has been made. The shelter belt, target of the unthinking whorl that was projected, exhibits modest success. Now from South Dakota comes word that 3,100 farms were sold in that state in the first six months of this year; that 87 per cent of the buyers planned to operate the farms themselves, and that 814 were bought by tenants already owning them. Many of these farmers, taught in the school of the dust bowl, are turning from wheat to corn, to diversified farming.

What shows which way a real wind is blowing is the fact that the land is now laden with dust.

Impressive Variety Displayed In School Exhibits at Fiker

By EDNA CHILDS
FILER FAIRGROUNDS, Sept. 10 (Special) — Twin Falls county schools are displaying an impressive variety of unusual exhibits at the 1941 fair.

Outstanding for fine workmanship is the display presented by the Deep Creek school which carries out a Mexican theme. It includes Mexican crackle trays, hammered copper work on book covers, crepe paper mats and vases, plaster plaques and tom-tom drums.

Filer rural high school presents a unique display of pictures made by the typewriting department of the school. Especially fine are pictures of a Scotty dog, an Indian and a man's face, and a variety of book covers.

American Flag
 Primary pupils of Lincoln school of Twin Falls have in their display an unusual American flag made of paper rings in red and white and a blue paper background on which are cut out stars in white. Sixth grade pupils of the school display a musical theme called "Aloe in Orchestra," and the first grade a playhouse complete in every detail. District 11 display features posters on hygiene and safety.

Melton Valley pupils show some very fine maps of Idaho in color and carry out a patriotic theme. Rogerson school has patriotic and good health posters.

Superior school shows a fine display of hand-painted pictures, posters and plaques.

Excelsior school features raffie work and posters of different flags. Shamrock school features a display of hooked rugs, knitted bags, hand work, which includes trays, miniature wagons, book ends and an airplane.

Waxed Candles
 Mountain View pupils present a display of waxed candles in pastel shades, waste paper baskets, a crayoned tapestry of linen toweling, garden stickers and hand-made decorated wooden buttons.

Locrine school shows a fine group of hand-painted Idaho scenes and other school displays.

Union school takes a patriotic theme, heading its exhibit with a beautiful wooden plaque with the quotation, "Americanism is an Unfailing Love of Country, Loyalty to Institutions and Ideals, Eagerness to Defend it Against All Enemies, Undivided Allegiance to the Flag, and a Desire to Secure the Blessings of Liberty to Ourselves and Posterity." The display of wood work is especially fine.

Plaques
 Castleford displays plaster painted plaques, painted scenes in pastel colors, spatter work, charcoal, crayon, fresco, payon and tempera work. The group of pillows artistically decorated with hooked flowers is particularly pleasing.

Outstanding in the Park Lane display is a table depicting New York harbor with imports and exports.

Hansen school, with drawings, tells the time line of explorers and South American map with key is shown.

Marathon school display includes a quilt top embroidered with state birds and flowers, the blocks being put together with red, white and blue. The quilt was made by the fifth grade girls.

Maros school has among its exhibits a sand area in which is placed a garden filled with flowers and vegetables.

Review of Stars

Tonight, each star will rise in the east almost four minutes earlier than it did last night. At the same hour, it will be one degree farther west. Thus, as the season passes, all the stars pass in review across the evening sky.

KIWANIANS HAVE PRE-FAIR DINNER

FILER, Sept. 10 (Special) — Special entertainment by the performers who are being featured at the county fair was a highlight of the Filer Kiwanis club's annual dinner Monday evening at the dairy palace for the fair board, county commissioners, rodeo officials and others.

The county fair entertainers included the two Stuart sisters, who gave tap dancing, and Betty and Jack Nord, versatile musical entertainers. The musical numbers included a piano and guitar number, "I Want a Buddy, Not a Sweetheart," accordion and guitar selection, "Riding Down the Canyon," a vocal solo, "I Want a Mechanical Man" by Betty Nord, playing her own accordion accompaniment; a novelty guitar and ukelele number, "Where Do You Work, John?" with Betty Nord doing the solo work.

This was followed by Ray Berwick, who is a trick roper with Greter's rodeo, doing some exhibition tap dancing and acrobatic stunts with the use of the lasso. Cy Tallion, rodeo announcer, accompanied at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Stehrand, of the shows which are at the fairgrounds, were guests.

During the dinner hour, Tom Speedy, field man for the Jerome Cooperative Creamery, again introduced the cows taking part in the demonstration.

Relics of Prehistoric Indians Of Southwest Displayed at Fair

FILER, Sept. 10 (Special)—An exhibit of implements or artifacts of prehistoric peoples of the southwest is on display at the antique building, File fairgrounds, and is part of the collection of Harry Hellers. The stone axes, metates, (stones used for grinding corn or other grains raised by these people) and the pottery (cooking utensils) came from land owned by the Hellers near Florence, Ariz.

The ancient axes of several types were dug from pit houses of a tribe long extinct now known as the Hohokem. These people tilled the soil, raising squash, corn and some other small grain and beans. They also used the beans borne by the mesquite tree for flour making and the present-day Indians also use these mesquite beans ground into flour for food.

Archeological Waterways

Today, near where the Coolidge dam takes the water from the Gila river for irrigation, can be plainly seen traces of a prehistoric irrigation system. The ancient canals are also the ditches which can be traced where these people delivered the water to their fields. It is said that when government engineers surveyed for the canals from the Coolidge dam their recommended courses for the delivery of water followed those ancient canals almost exactly.

The fate of those people is not known and there is not even a legend among the present Indians regarding them.

The homes of these people were built half under the ground on a wall three feet high and 12 inches thick which was made of cañote or as we think of concrete and this material they obtained by digging up the hard pan and grinding in water and molding with their hands to form a wall where it dried so hard these walls were now so strong they were not broken except with a heavy hammer.

On top of these walls were placed pots of mesquite or some other desirable tree, then branching and a topping of soil. The room or house was about 12 feet wide and this single room or dwelling a family lived in. However, houses were built adjoining each other so that one wall served two rooms adjoining and in many instances several dozen houses were built in a row and the rows were built by the Apaches today in exactly the same manner as those several hundred years ago.

A Kitchen of Yesterday

Here is Mrs. Emma Blodgett in the "Cape Cod" kitchen, end of four rooms of early American design, arranged in the antique building at the Twin Falls county fair. At left is an old churn. The kitchen articles handed on the fireplace are from the top of the mantel date back to the 17th century and earlier. Mrs. Blodgett is holding an old bread board made in Arkansas between 1750 and 1800. She and Mrs. Everett J. Hayes are co-superintendents of the antique department, which is attracting throngs at the annual fair this week at Filer. (Times Photo and Engraving)

Indiana Girl Marries Stanley Mining Man

Miss Marjorie Richardson, Anderson, Ind., and Martin Pollock, Stanley, a mining engineer, were united in marriage Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Immanuel Lutheran church. Rev. M. H. Zagal officiating.

A small wedding reception followed at the home of Mrs. Lenora B. Wilson and Mrs. Margaret Peck, eighth avenue north.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Peck played a medley of romantic selections, and also played the wedding march.

Bride Wears Blue

The couple was unattended. The bride wore a floor length model of blue and chiffon, the molded bodice being attached to a tiered skirt.

The groom wore a pink gladiolus arranged in a low bowl to form the centerpiece for the refreshment table at the reception.

A faint figurine stood guard over the flowers, and the centerpiece was flanked by white tapers.

The decorative wedding calls were placed at one end of the refreshment table.

To Live in Stanley

Following a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Pollock will be at home in Stanley.

Mrs. Pollock has been an instructor in the junior high school in Anderson.

Townsend Club to Honor Founder at Sunday Program

Twin Falls Townsend club No. 4 will honor Dr. Francis E. Townsend, head of the Townsend movement, with a special program next Sunday evening, according to Albert Esling, president of the local group. Townsend clubs throughout the nation will pay tribute to their leader next Sunday, which has been designated as the organization's Founder's Day.

The group met last evening to hear Rev. H. J. Reynolds, retired Christian church pastor, tell of the Townsend program. Mr. Reynolds read a paper by Dr. Townsend on the movement, in which he stated that 10 per cent of the voters in the United States are members of the Townsend clubs.

Committee to handle the Founder's day activities includes Rev. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Munroe, H. C. Erickson, Harold C. Edwards, Ed Vance, Mrs. Gertrude Ring and Mrs. William Ward.

Shortage of Nurses Topic for Convention

How to meet the shortage of nurses caused by the increased demands being made by the army and navy, will be one of the principal topics of the Idaho Nurses' association convention in Twin Falls Oct. 13 and 14.

Between 150 and 200 nurses will attend the convention, Mrs. Leslie G. McCabe, Boise, the First District association. Thems of the convention will be "Nursing and National Defense."

Speakers expected to address the convention are Ruth Kahn, nursing consultant; Marguerite Jacobson, assistant director at the headquarters of the American Nurses' association in New York, and Alice Bader, director of nursing for the American Red Cross in this area.

Officials of the State Nurses' association, other than Mrs. McCabe, are Jean Thompson, Twin Falls; Helen Engler, Boise, second vice-president; Mabel Anderson, Pocatello; Garnett Gilbertson, Lewiston; Elmer Mary Alphonso, Nampa; and Ernestine Amick, Coeur d'Alene, members of the board.

BUEL MISSION GROUP ENTERTAINED

Buhl Young Matrons Missionary society of the Christian church attended a meeting in Twin Falls last week, arranged by the Twin Falls Young Matrons group. The program and tea took place in the Christian church parlors here.

Mrs. Horace Turner directed devotions; Mrs. Wayne Hancock, Mrs. Irving Wood, Mrs. Anne Bead and Mrs. R. D. McKinney sang two numbers; Mrs. Peter Carlson, president of the Women's Missionary society of the Twin Falls church, spoke on "Liberty and Justice for All"; Mrs. Louie Adamson spoke on "The Crucial Test of Democracy"; Mrs. Leslie Buhkhalter discussed "Home Missions Meeting the Test," and Mrs. William Pultzer played two violin solos.

Jerome Lions to Hear Whiteman

JEROME, Sept. 10 (Special)—The Jerome Lions club members decided in favor Monday of having ladies' night on Sept. 18, during their business session Monday of this week. They also favored this plan to have dinner at the hotel in Twin Falls and later attend the dance at Radio Rodeo in Twin Falls, when Paul Whiteman will appear with his dance band. The date and plans were tentatively arranged during the meeting. It was understood. Suggestion for the event was made by program arrangements chairman, Kenneth Childster.

Gummy Stewart became a new member at the Monday luncheon meeting.

Discussion was held concerning a membership drive for the Jerome Lions club, and it was decided to have the drive toward obtaining new members in conjunction with the 100 per cent attendance week, which is from Sept. 15-22.

AMBER FOR FAL

The rich browns and mahogany tones of amber would seem to have been created especially to harmonize with the brown coloring so much in vogue for the coming fall. There is a surprising range of shades to suit every color scheme. Those who like fine jewelry will be delighted with the many novel creations carried out in amber. Some of the most ensembles, besides, have gained unexpected fire and brilliancy by faceting the familiar gem. Jewel come as a welcome surprise to discover that these pieces are priced so moderately and are so beautiful. And when the lower-bracket budgets. They actually cost little more than a piece of ordinary costume jewelry.

Bainbridges Are Here for Visit

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Bainbridge, who were among the first residents of Twin Falls, arrived Monday from Clackamas, Ore., where they now live, to spend a few days visiting old acquaintances and friends.

Both were active in early-day music circles in Twin Falls, and Mr. Bainbridge held the position of band and orchestra leader of the Twin Falls high school for a number of years.

Mr. Bainbridge also was manager of the Idaho Department store many years ago.

Next meeting in October will be in the evening at the home of Mrs. W. Wight. Mrs. O. Iven Price conducted a contest on sites of Idaho.

VARIETY OF INTERESTS

If the children sometimes balk at the morning cereal, perhaps there is too much sweetness about the breakfast. Let your provision shelf hold as many different kinds of cereals as possible. And vary your ways of serving. Use brown sugar, New Orleans molasses or honey for sweetening, and substitute of white sugar. And when fruits that combine well with cereals are added, both food value and taste appeal are added.
