TAXPAYER LEADER
CLEARS BOND 'AD'

There was no mystery about the Twin Falls newspaper advertisement paid for by the Idaho Taxpayers' league, opponent of the bond issue, when the Idaho Taxpayers' league, headed by J. W. Porter, was reported to have been the organization, told the Evening Times today.

The ad, which appeared just prior to the recent hospital bond vote in Twin Falls county, had urged voters to vote "no" on all proposed bond issues, no.

He Put It In
The advertisement, Defenbach said, "was inserted by me and paid for out of league funds. My name was on the check and it never occurred to me that there would be any doubt as to where the advertisement came from."

Boosters of the bond issue had expressed indignation at the time because no name was identified with the advertisement. Defenbach said, "We are writing letters from all over the county, both favoring and condemning the attitude of the league. But we seem to think we are specializing on Twin Falls county. As a matter of fact, the advertisement states a general policy of the league, which is to oppose any bond issue tending to increase debt or taxes in any of our communities at this time."

Not Anonymous
Main point of his explanation, he asserted, is "to set aside any idea that the advertisement was anonymous. We have quite a large membership in Twin Falls county; I certainly did not tell the papers to treat it as confidential."

The taxpayer chief declared emphatically that as long as he has any connection with the league, he will continue to fight the issue of the bond issue, which is to oppose any bond issue tending to increase debt or taxes in any of our communities at this time.

Average levy per $1,000 assessed valuation, his figure states, was $40.50 and $44.50 respectively.

For 1941, Twin Falls county shows the lowest total state tax among the three. The figure for the county was $17.80 and $17.35 respectively.

Winter Puts Crimp in German
Attacks on Moscow, Leningrad

By LOUIS F. KEEBLE
of the United Press War Desk
The Germans appear to have abandoned their frontal attacks on Moscow and Leningrad, perhaps for the winter.

Deep snow and icy winds have brought operations against Moscow almost to a standstill, except around Tula, 100 miles to the south. Soviet sources report heavy fighting there, but claim to be holding and making counter-attacks.

If the fighting presages a new German attempt to dig a weak spot in the Russian lines and break through, it may well be the last for this year. If it fails, the Germans may have to dig in for a winter stalemate and concentrate their energies in the south.

Action in Crimea
The theater of action would be the Crimea, with the Germans aiming at Sevastopol and the northern Caucasus through Kerch, and in the eastern Ukraine on a line between Kharkov, which is 400 miles west of Moscow, and Rostov, 230 miles farther south at the mouth of the Don.

Such a drive, if successful, would cut off the Caucasus region from the rest of Russia. It would give the Nazis possession of the northern oil fields and the only pipeline direct into Russia. Soviet supply lines from the outside world would be hard hit and Russia would have lost the industries of the Donets basin and beyond.

Near British Troops
It might also bring the Germans close to contact with British forces, if the latter decide to join the Russians in defending the Caucasus south of the mountains. However, the latter will not be an immediate prospect. If the Germans do move into the Caucasus, they may reasonably be expected to stop at the northern slope of the mountain range which cuts across the isthmus.

This "great barrier" rises to a height of 10,000 feet and its steep slopes are hardly negotiable for a large military expedition, especially in winter. An approach might be attempted along the shores of the Black sea and over water from the Crimea. If the latter fails.

The prospect of British moving into the northern Caucasus to engage the Germans is so remote that it hardly need be taken into consideration. Here, a British-German clash in the Caucasus, which has been the subject of much speculation, is improbable at least before next spring. A German move against the middle east through northern Turkey would be more likely.

'U' OFFERS BOISE
SPECIAL COURSE

MOSCOW, Nov. 11 (Special)—Official engineering instruction will be offered at Boise by the University of Idaho beginning probably this week under the government's engineering science and management training program.

Under this program, tagged alphabetically as ESMT, the college of engineering proposed to offer in Boise a course in engineering mechanics of a general reference nature. It was outlined as a night school class for men now employed who have had some engineering training or its equivalent.

The board of regents approved the university's participation in the venture, and appointed Harry Dewey, an instructor in civil engineering on the campus last year, as resident supervisor and instructor in Boise. Mr. Dewey will handle the course in addition to his regular duties with the U. S. bureau of reclamation.

Mr. Dewey is now registering applicants and making arrangements for the course. He will be assisted by a class of 15 to 25, probably will be held at Boise Junior college.

JUNIOR CHAMBER
SHIFTS MEETINGS

Switching back to its former policy, the Twin Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce today had abandoned Tuesday evening weekly meetings and approved general dinner sessions for the second Tuesday evening of each month.

Hereafter, the board decided last night, directors will meet each Tuesday night at 7:30 p. m. at the Junior Chamber. Committee chairmen will be invited as their projects swing into activity. The monthly membership dinners will be at the Park hotel.

Other matters at the board passed last night at the residence of J. W. Porter, 100 Lincoln street, were the last night of the Christmas toy collection. First pickup of toys is scheduled next Sunday.

"Christian Home"
Topic for Guild

BURLEY, Nov. 11 (Special)—About 60 members of the local Christian Home Guild met together Thursday night for a Christmas carol to hear a talk given by Mrs. Mark C. Cronquist, Twin Falls, on "The Christian Home."

Mrs. Cronquist left a challenge with the women to something about the world as it is today. She gave a study of the Nazi youth movement and how powerful it is in Germany and told of the great influence the church would have if it would reach all young people in America.

Mrs. Ernest Steelant left the devotional service and Mrs. Paul Zillger, accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Schuch, played a piano solo. Mrs. Alvin Kleinfelt and Mrs. Lloyd Cox sang a duet number.

Gray Background,
Blue Numerals on
'42 Idaho License

BOISE, Nov. 11 (UP)—The state department of law enforcement has announced 1942 Idaho auto license plates will have a gray background and blue numerals.

The plates will be made of steel but in 1943 some plastic material may be substituted because of the shortage of steel. J. L. Halderman, law enforcement commissioner, reported.

Another reason for the introduction of plastic plate is because of lower production costs. Halderman said, Steel plates cost 1 cent a pair, while plastic license could be purchased for six cents a pair.

Spud Marketing Bill Designed To Regulate Supply, Says Solon

BOISE, Nov. 11 (UP)—The proposed federal potato marketing bill was not designed to establish a potato price system, but was intended to regulate the supply of potatoes by acreage allotments and diversion of surplus to other uses.

The potato bill, on which hearings were conducted by the house agriculture committee, was sponsored by the department of agriculture. The department indicated Dvorski reported, that the bill proposed to regulate the supply of potatoes moving to market from commercial farms by protecting growers against disastrous surpluses.

The measure would also protect consumers' needs and would establish one or more agencies to which excess potatoes could be delivered for diversion outside of normal trade channels, the Idaho representative explained.

The summary of the bill shows that it provides for proclamation of a national marketing quota for commercial farms, those raising more than three acres, not later than Sept. 15 of each year for potatoes of the crop to be harvested in the next succeeding year. It stated.

"These quotas would be converted to acreage allotments on the basis of average yields. Not later than Sept. 30 of each calendar year, the secretary is required to conduct a referendum of commercial growers and the quota call becomes effective only if approved by two-thirds or more farmers. If a referendum approves quotas, the vote will apply to the crops of the three succeeding years."

The bill also would provide for a national commercial acreage allotment apportioned among states on the basis of the acreage of potatoes harvested in the past five years.

Potatoes for marketing purposes in excess of quotas would amount to 10 cents per pound but payment would not be required if excess potatoes were diverted outside of normal trade channels, Dvorski said.

86 Special Trappers Expect
Rich Dividends This Winter

BOISE, Nov. 11 (UP)—Eighty-six special trappers in Idaho are looking forward to rich dividends this winter for killing coyotes and other predatory animals.

The trappers are hired on a cooperative basis by the work project administration, the U. S. fish and wildlife service, the Idaho fish and game commission, and county predatory animal control boards.

In addition to a regular salary of about $50 per month, the trappers receive $2 bounty for each coyote killed in most counties.

This year the trappers will also do a great deal of work on the part of the federal government. The trappers are selling for a minimum of $5 and a maximum of $7. By December, they expect the market price will be boosted to $11 or $12 per fur.

Each year between 15,000 and 18,000 coyotes are eliminated in the annual drive conducted by the cooperative agencies. Cougar and bobcat are also targets of the trappers. Cougars bring a state bounty of $15 and in some areas, county boards pay an additional bounty which is sometimes as high as $25.

Bobcat draws a bounty of $2. J. S. Dade, inspector in charge of the state commission predatory animal control board, and the trappers have developed several methods of catching the animals. Some catch trap fish, leave it to rot, and then scatter it around traps. The odor brings coyotes from miles around.

Monitors are busy every day in trapping the coyotes. The meat is placed in a circle of traps and balls of fat, laced with poison, are placed near the traps. If the animal falls to step into the trap, the poison usually kills it. Dr. Dade reported.

Fines Imposed
For Overload
On River Span

Fines totaling $75 had been imposed today against a truck driver and his employer after they pleaded guilty to driving a vehicle of excessive weight onto Hansen bridge.

The employer, Hough Construction company, was fined $50 and the driver, Richard Wilson, Twin Falls, drew a fine of $25.

Judge J. W. Porter imposed the sentences in probate court Monday afternoon. He said checking showed that Ered Hough and William Hough, heads of the construction firm, had given orders that heavy equipment was to cross the Snake river via the Hansen bridge. The latter was in Boise last Friday when Wilson's truck was loaded with equipment for the Hansen span.

The state has not yet given any indication as to whether it will sue for damages in a civil suit.

WRECK'S DEATH
TOTAL STILL 12

DUNKIRK, Nov. 11 (UP)—One of the 12 persons killed in the derailment of a Pennsylvania passenger train Sunday night remained unidentified today.

The body of a woman had been identified at an Ad funeral home.

Railroad officials planned an official investigation of the wreck tomorrow at Port Wayne, Ind. The derailment was caused by the passenger train striking a half ton cylinder head three feet in diameter which had been blown off a freight train on the next track.

A check showed that 45 passengers and crew members were injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment.

Pioneer League Official Bat Averages for 1941 Season

The Cowboys, as everybody in the intermountain area knows, finished deep in the cellar of the Pioneer league in the 1941 season.

But official averages released today from the Elbow News bureau show that despite some players who were more fit for strictly amateur baseball, the Twin Falls bosses kept trying and trying.

Proof this is seen in the fact that the record shows 37 players were signed at one time or another during the season on the Twin Falls club—topping all other entries in the league.

Of this number 27 participated in 10 or more games, and 11 others just "came for the ride."

Charles E. Henson of Salt Lake City, who divided his time between first base and the outfield, followed a slow start with a strong finish, making the batting title with a mark of .339. Henson made more hits than any other player in the league, 170, and totaled most bases, 223.

Mervin Benninger of Pocatello, walked off with runs in three different parts of the game, scored with 27, two-base hits with 30 and bases on balls with 103.

Steve Andrade of Pocatello, went to bat most times, 333.

William Enos of Salt Lake City, garnered the run-batted-in honors with 120 to his credit.

There seemed to be scarcity of home runs in the league during the past season, therefore Joseph Egan of Boise had little difficulty taking that title with a low number of 16. Egan also whiffed most times, 6. Jack Causen of Ogden, made most bases, 43. Frank Shome of

PUC MEET SEEMS CUT IN PRICE ON FARM SHIPMENTS

EXPERT LEADERS FROM 3 STATES CONFER AT BOISE

BOISE, Nov. 11 (AP)—Public utilities commission representatives of Idaho, Oregon and Washington today were preparing to take preliminary steps toward outlining grain freight rate reductions after a meeting here attended by more than 40 conferees.

Three proposals were drafted at the meeting for joint presentation to the Idaho public utility commission. The proposals were drafted by the west, M. Reese Hattabaugh, president of the Idaho public utilities commission, said. The program will be discussed in greater detail at a meeting in Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 24 and 25 when northwest flour mill executives, grain growers, farm organization leaders and railroad representatives gather for annual sessions of the tri-state grain league.

The three-point rate program proposed for cooperative action includes: a blanket reduction of three cents per hundredweight on grain and grain products shipped from northern Idaho, Oregon, and Washington to Pacific coast destinations, reductions by three cents per hundredweight of all existing rates on products shipped from Idaho, Oregon and Washington to California, and establishment of rates from eastern Idaho to Los Angeles at the same rate as for shipment to San Francisco by way of Ogden, Utah.

A committee was named to act upon the proposals before the Walla Walla meeting. If railroads refuse the reductions, then a joint committee will be formed to study the state commerce commission to obtain the lower rates, J. G. Bruce, chief of the Idaho, P.U.C. traffic division, declared.

Bevin Is Dictator in Handling of British Labor; Strikes Are Rare

By PAUL MANNING
NEA SERVICE

LONDON—A small typewritten document in the large mahogany desk, lower right-hand drawer, of British labor boss Ernest Bevin, makes him a manpower dictator.

He has stepped into any 5-15 community special and order every mass to report for labor work the following morning. And he can march into any strikeable factory, take over the plant with an armed force, and send every man who refuses to work to prison for upwards of two years.

These he can do and more, too, but his whole idea of labor-control, but to carry a big stick and speak softly.

No Force

"I don't like force in my labor relations," he says today. "I like arbitration, a blanket reduction of three cents per hundredweight on grain and grain products shipped from northern Idaho, Oregon, and Washington to Pacific coast destinations, reductions by three cents per hundredweight of all existing rates on products shipped from Idaho, Oregon and Washington to California, and establishment of rates from eastern Idaho to Los Angeles at the same rate as for shipment to San Francisco by way of Ogden, Utah.

A committee was named to act upon the proposals before the Walla Walla meeting. If railroads refuse the reductions, then a joint committee will be formed to study the state commerce commission to obtain the lower rates, J. G. Bruce, chief of the Idaho, P.U.C. traffic division, declared.
