FDR APPEAL MAY IGNORE LEWIS IN MINER WALK-OUT

By FRED BAILEY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Administration leaders in Congress today belied President Roosevelt may appeal soon to the mine workers over John L. Lewis' head to return to the "captivity" pits under a government guarantee of protection.

Mr. Roosevelt, they said, is "about through writing letters" to United Mine Workers President Lewis who called out 53,000 coal miners in steel company owned mines last Saturday night in demands for a union shop. The captive strikers have been joined by increasing numbers of commercial miners.

Lewis' prompt personal rejection of Mr. Roosevelt's second appeal for a negotiated settlement, coming almost simultaneously with acceptance by the United States Steel corporation, largest operator of captive mines, was believed to have exhausted the President's patience so far as further appeals to Lewis are concerned.

Army Ready

The army has been ready for more than a week to move into the coal fields through no responsible official has threatened it. Lewis has said that if the army moves in the miners will "sit peacefully in their homes."

No presidential action to break the strike is expected until after the most southern Idaho Copper mine committee meets here Saturday to act on Lewis' personal rejection of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal. Unusually support of the strike is regarded as certain.

Congressional officials in touch with the White House said Mr. Roosevelt is "banking" on public resentment of the strike threat to defense production and the more direct influence of Lewis' rejection of the strike to open the way for a negotiated settlement.

Sen. Tom Connally, D., who opens hearings tomorrow on the proposed new federal law to regulate the coal industry, said he "thought" Roosevelt might be "about" to "open" the way for a negotiated settlement.

FDR Has 2nd Thanksgiving In Nine Years at White House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—For the second time in the nine years since the first Thanksgiving dinner at the White House, President Roosevelt today will eat Thanksgiving dinner in the White House.

The only other Thanksgiving that Mr. Roosevelt has observed in the White House was in 1937 when an illness forced him to stay in Washington. In 1936 he was en route to South America and last year he spent the holiday at Hyde Park, N. Y. All other years he has been in Warm Springs, Ga.

He had planned to be in Georgia this year but postponed his visit because of the soft coal strike. He may have another Thanksgiving dinner there next week if he is able to leave here by then.

The White House dinner will be in the family dining room at evening.

Russia's Plane Strength Drops

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
United Press Foreign Editor

The war on the eastern front is picking up after a long period of lull due to bad weather and stubborn Russian resistance around Moscow and in the Donets basin.

The Germans said in general terms that they were making progress in greatly improved weather all along the front. That was partly substantiated by Russian reports, which told of a German advance in the vital Kalinin area north of Moscow in daylight for the first time in weeks, indicating the position of the capital was becoming more precarious and that the Russian aerial defenses might be deteriorating.

A big eastward surge by the axis might quickly open the road toward the Caucasus oil fields, even result in the fall of Moscow and the British would like to have successful operations in North Africa to report as a counterbalance.

Triumph Mine Pushes Expansion Program; Tungsten 'Hopeful' but Is Still Limited

By CHARLES O. HUMMER
KIDNEY, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Triumph mine property, located about 12 miles south of Pocatello, is busy with an extensive construction and rebuilding program which will materially rebound to the credit of progressive mining in this state.

This property is the only steady and heavy producer at this time in southeastern Idaho, on a scale of considerable output. The mine has been working since the early 80s, and at this time has taken on the status of expanding production on a wide scale.

British Report Steady Advance

By VIRGIL H. PINKLEY
CINCINNATI, Nov. 20 (AP)—Empire troops, supported by the royal air force and naval concentrations off the coast, were battling the way into Libya to smash a German-Italian army holding ground from the Mediterranean Sea to the Gulf of Sirte.

Cunningham commanded the RAF planes which, at the opening of the offensive, destroyed at least six aircraft and damaged others.

Abandon Self-Righteousness, Thanksgiving Service Hears

By JEAN DINKELACKER

True gratitude is based on an intellectual consideration of God's dealings with mankind. . . To wrap ourselves in proud robes of personal, racial or national self-righteousness and blame others with all the responsibility for the current tragedies, is to ride for a fall. . .

This was the import of the Thanksgiving message delivered by Rev. Roy E. Barnett, Baptist minister at community Thanksgiving services this morning at the First Christian church.

"Only the people who see the universe in its relationship to a divine Father and who realize that with men, can know what gratitude with understanding means," he told the holiday worshippers who assembled in large numbers at the services sponsored by the Twin Falls Ministerial association.

Services at the Christian church and at other churches throughout the city, followed out a custom of thanksgiving and praise which began with the founding fathers in the 17th century. Wording of that first Thanksgiving proclamation, as quoted on the community service program, read:

First Proclamation

"It is ordered that ye 11th day of June throughout this jurisdiction shall be set apart for a day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God for His great and victorious mercies to these native countries comfortable and reasonable supplying us with moderate showers and His mercy in with drawing His afflicting hand from us" (Spelling as in the original copy).

Earlier in the day Catholics at St. Edward's Catholic church, with Father H. E. Heitman as the celebrant.

Simultaneously with the union church services, Thanksgiving rites with holy communion took place at 10:30 a. m. at Ascension Episcopal church. Rev. E. Leslie Rios, vicar, conducted the holiday services.

Rally Underway

Youth and adult members of the Church of the Brethren churches of southern Idaho, assembled at a Thanksgiving rally, which began last night and will continue throughout today, heard an inspiring address on "Youth Leadership" given by Gerald Wallace, Twin Falls high school dean of boys.

At 2 p. m. today, Rev. A. J. Elmhurst, Payette, will speak on "Peace and World Welfare" at the Church of the Brethren, and Rev. E. L. Kenberry, local Brethren pastor, will speak on "Missions in China." A Y. P. D. banquet this evening, with Rev. H. O. Shank, conducted on Free 3, Column 1.

AMERICAN-MADE PLANES, TANKS HELP OFFENSIVE

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the house of commons today that a British army—equal in arms and equipment (including American tanks and planes) to the axis forces—has smashed into Libya on a broad front and gained "positions of marked advantage."

The battle, perhaps already in progress somewhere between the besieged British bastion at Tobruk and the coastal town of Derna, may be the biggest in desert history.

The British naval force, shelling axis units and communications lines along the coast, were aiding the mechanized desert columns and the air force in the attack.

Gain 50 Miles

After the first forward surge of 50 miles, the British have captured definite information regarding the progress of the German offensive, according to plan and that the action was advantageous to their attack.

We have gained positions of marked advantage, an official statement said. "Our offensive was long and elaborately prepared."

We waited nearly six months in order that our army should be well equipped with all the weapons which have made them so effective. The British were well supplied with United States lend-lease equipment. Within the last month has been pouring into Egypt by way of the Red Sea. American equipment was known to include latest type tanks, anti-aircraft guns, and Douglas planes.

We don't know yet whether a trial of strength has yet taken place between heavy armored forces, but it cannot be long delayed, the statement said.

Reason for Speeches

The Japanese Chinese were received with reserve but interest in their speeches. A Japanese source said that British speeches before the Tokyo parliament by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo and Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo were designed to prevent an outbreak by radical, pro-axis elements in the Japanese army who were anxious to sabotage any possibility of rapprochement with the United States.

It was said that in return for lifting of the American embargo against Japan, Japan would refrain from pressing her southward expansionist policy.

ARMED U.S. MERCHANTMEN TO PLY SEAS IN 10 DAYS

VESSELS PLYING BOTH OCEANS TO BE GIVEN GUNS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said today the first armed U. S. merchant vessels will be plying the seas within a week or 10 days.

He told a press conference it probably would take between three and four months to arm all of the merchant vessels that will carry protective weapons. He said that ships plying both the Atlantic and the Pacific will be armed.

He believed that American-owned vessels now under Panamanian registry probably will be returned to the American flag now that the neutrality act permits American ships to be armed and to sail to belligerent ports.

Knox simultaneously disclosed that the seized German freighter Odenwald was one of a number of German vessels which had been chartered to Japanese interests.

Rear Admiral A. J. Hepburn, head of the navy's public relations division who was at the press conference said, however, that there is no certainty at this time whether the Odenwald was under Japanese charter at the time of its seizure by the U. S. cruiser Omaha. The Odenwald was disguised as an American ship.

RAIDS HALTED ON PIN BALL GAMES

BOISE, Ida., Nov. 20 (UP)—Boise and Ada county peace officers today were bound by a temporary restraining order to prevent them from "setting, destroying or interfering with" pin ball machines.

The order was issued by District Judge C. E. Winstead after R. E. Pepple and R. L. Graves, both of Boise, filed suit asking that a permanent injunction be issued. The city and county officials were ordered to appear in court Nov. 29 to show cause why the order should not be made permanent.

In their complaint, Pepple and Graves held the machines were not violating laws of the state or city and pointed out they had paid federal government taxes and city license fees on the machines.

The suit was filed following seizure of three machines earlier this week.

5 MEN SURVIVE U-BOAT ATTACKS

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Nov. 20 (UP)—Five seamen, only survivors from a crew of 43, were rescued from a torpedoed freighter, said today enemy submarines had begun stalking their vessel only 30 miles off the Canadian coast.

The submarines stalked the convoy for three days before they launched a night attack, the survivors said. Escorting destroyer, began dropping depth charges when the submarines were first detected. They continued it for three days, laying such a barrage that when a torpedo finally struck the doomed vessel its crew failed at first to realize it had been hit.

The vessel was in a convoy bound from Canada to Britain, the seamen revealed. They did not disclose nationality of the escorting warships.

The five men who reached here spent an hour in icy water after their vessel was hit. A sixth died of exposure after he had been rescued.

The men said their vessel was attacked at night. They believed the submarine which torpedoed them was one of a pack of enemy U-boats.

Engineers Commander Offers Work, Housing, Health Facts

Summary of the daily activities of the 116th engineers regiment at Fort Lewis, with explanation of housing and health, is offered to Magic Valley parents of the troops in a letter from Col. H. G. Lauterbach, commanding officer.

The letter is full:

"This regiment, in common with many more, began its present term of active service occupying tents without floors or stoves, but we gradually acquired better accommodations and now the regiment has modern conveniences such as showers, toilets, air conditioned heat, and screens. The mess hall has modern equipment including refrigerators and other necessities. Each man sleeps in a real bed with a mattress and plenty of blankets. Every man has plentiful, substantial, appetizing food.

"In the army we do everything possible to safeguard health, not only for the individual soldier's sake, but also naturally in the interest of military efficiency. Our sickness rate at Fort Lewis is one of the lowest in the corps area. If a man becomes sick, he is attended by a competent medical officer. If necessary, he is admitted to the excellent army hospital on the post. We have in this regiment of 850 men, two doctors and two dentists and some 30 medical detachment men to provide medical and dental care which is furnished at no expense to the men.

"The 116th Engineers is an entirely motorized combat engineer regiment, with modern power equipment. On long moves we can average more than 200 miles per day. The 116th Engineers is one of the five old regiments of the army which saw active service not only in the World War but on the Mexican border and in the Philippines. Every officer and experienced soldier feels that it is a privilege to serve in this organization, and we feel sure that our new men, together with their families, relatives and friends, will come to feel the same way about it.

Varied Training

"The variety of technical training that engineers receive, such as mapping road and bridge building, surveying, water purification, construction of field fortifications, lithography and auto mechanics, as well as training in combat principles, makes life in the engineers a constant and interesting education. The men are given instruction in the operation of power shovels, road graders, bulldozers, air compressors, cement mixers, multi-lithograph press (for map reproductions), etc. and many of them operate this equipment as their regular daily work.

"The training program calls for strenuous, full day's work to harden the men physically and adjust them to active military life. Our men have demonstrated their eagerness to work hard and play the game, in order that they may derive full benefit physically, mentally, and morally from their service with the corps.

Recreation

"An energetic and well planned recreational program is fast getting under way in this division that is providing a variety of entertainment for the men, such as stage and vaudeville shows, and dances sponsored by community service groups.

"We are now open for business in our new location in the old McVey building. Being any kind of body repair work, we are equipped to handle it.

TWO RESERVOIRS GAIN; ONE 'ZERO'

One reservoir serving this irrigated section of Idaho today remained below zero storage while two others showed substantial gains over readings taken 10 days ago, a report received by officials of the Twin Falls Canal company from Lynn Crandall shows.

Remaining at below zero storage was Lake Walcott, according to the report. Showing gains over the 10 day period were Jackson lake and American falls reservoir.

The tabulation compiled by Crandall shows Jackson lake now impounds 282,150 acre feet of water against the previous reading of 274,610 and that American falls reservoir now holds 727,000 acre feet against the former level of 659,770.

Precipitation during the period ending Oct. 17 included 26 of an inch at Moran and 36 of an inch at Island Park. On Nov. 18 there were eight inches of snow at Moran and a like amount at Idaho Falls.

SABOTAGE FOUND FAR BELOW 1917

Through the local FBI agent, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, today announced that in comparison with the amount and extent of sabotage committed in the United States prior to entry into the first World war, "we have had a very definite absence of sabotage during a comparative period in the present world conflict."

The present war is now in its third year and through the Twin Falls FBI agent, Hoover pointed out that during a similar period in the last war a considerable amount of sabotage of a serious nature had been committed in this country by foreign agents, many of whom had been apprehended, convicted, and sentenced to prison for their acts.

Nation Alert
There have been several suggestions as to the reason for this freedom from sabotage in the United States at the present time, but Hoover stated that undoubtedly the most important reason is the fact that America is now sabotage prevention conscious. In explaining this statement, he pointed out that the government has benefited by the experiences of the first World war and the fifth column activities in Europe.

Over two years ago President Roosevelt recognized the seriousness of the situation and directed that the FBI, in cooperation with the intelligence services of the war and navy departments, control and handle all sabotage, espionage, and other matters affecting the internal security of the United States. Since that time considerable effort has been expended to awaken the citizens of the United States to the very serious dangers confronting them at home. Today the potential saboteur realizes the danger of any suspicious activities he might engage in, not only from the representatives of the federal government but also from an alert citizenry.

Survey
One of the most important sabotage preventive tasks assumed by the FBI was to conduct surveys of thousands of industrial factories and other defense facilities engaged in the production of national defense material. In order to insure that they are adequately protected against sabotage. Hundreds of meetings have been held with local law enforcing agencies all over the land to insure their cooperation in preventing sabotage and to exchange ideas and information on how this work can best be done, both on a local and nationwide basis.

The local FBI agent also pointed out that the unit has investigated a large number of cases in which sabotage was suspected. It is known that labor unions have organized committees to police their own membership in order to prevent any activities which would be against the welfare of the United States. The workers in the factories, according to Hoover, are aware of the dangers of sabotage both to themselves, their families and their country, and this attitude has undoubtedly been a great sabotage preventive.

AGED IN THE BARN
DANVILLE, Va.—Even the auctioneer looked puzzled at the pile of tobacco which E. M. Gunn brought in. It was knocked down for $130.00 or $5.00 a hundred pounds. It is declared to be in good condition although Gunn said it had been hanging in a barn since 1932, when buyers refused to bid on it.

Tax Yields Exceed Treasury Estimates

WASHINGTON—Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) of the senate finance committee, said that tax revenues for the calendar year 1941 will approximate $16,000,000,000—$3,000,000,000 above original treasury estimates.

Increased business has "greatly stepped-up" revenue raising resources, George told reporters. He pointed out that a larger volume of business automatically brings greater tax yields.

Despite the increased estimates of the tax yield, additional revenue will have to be found, he said, unless "borrowings are higher than we now hope they can be." He said the national debt is approximately $67,000,000,000 before the year ends.

The senate finance committee and the house ways and means committee "probably will hold some hearings before the Christmas holidays," he said, to discuss suggestions by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau to impose a 15 per cent "withholding tax, George said. The two congressional groups will "in all likelihood" be ready to present proposals shortly after the next session convenes in January, he added.

He stressed that Morgenthau's proposal was "merely a suggestion

SAILOR SAVED BY CRUDE SURGERY

LIVERPOOL, Eng.—How the mate of a vessel torpedoed in the Atlantic performed a clasp-knife operation in a drifting lifeboat and saved the life of a steward, was described when the survivors reached Liverpool.

The steward was Joe Wilkinson, 18, of Liverpool. His right arm was shattered; shell splinters were in the other; his foot was injured, and pieces of shrapnel were embedded in his back.

The men in the lifeboat, 17 of them, held a conference to decide how to save his life and the second mate made the decision.

Made Without Fuss
"Some of that shrapnel in his back was pressing on the lung," he said. "We must get it out."

The operation was made without fuss.

There was an oil stove in the lifeboat and it was turned up. The second mate drew his knife and cauterized the blade in the flame.

"Get started," said Wilkinson grinning.

The amateur surgeon slid the knife into the wound; probed and found the hidden metal, and with a few deft strokes, recovered the shrapnel.

"It didn't hurt a bit," said the youth later. That was because the flesh was numb from exposure.

Make Bandages
Then his pals set out to nurse him as well as they could. They tore their shirts to make bandages to stop the bleeding and to dress his other injuries.

They held on to him constantly to stop the heavy seas from sweeping him overboard. This continued for four and a half days.

The lifeboat was sighted by another ship and the survivors landed in Iceland. A doctor extracted the other splinters from Wilkinson's arms. He said the youth's life had been saved by the prompt operation.

Wilkinson still is an out-patient at a Liverpool hospital, but he is going to sea again.

The next time, however, he said, "I am going as a merchant navy gunner."

and set vast areas of wooden-houses aflame, Maj. Gen. K. Sato, chief of the war office military affairs bureau, told a parliamentary committee today in appealing for a "fighting spirit" among the Japanese people.

Tojo said that because of the gravity of the crisis Japan was keeping "a large amount of reserve funds on hand."

Revenue miles flown during the first quarter of 1941 by the United States domestic airlines showed a gain of 28.66 per cent.

Stalin's Toast: "God Help Roosevelt in His War Task"

By WALLACE CARROLL (Copyright by United Press) MANILA, P. I. (Unassociated) Nov. 20.—Jose V. Stalin stood at head of a banquet table around which American and British guests were gathered in the Kremlin one night last month and raised his glass for a toast to President Roosevelt.

"May God help him in his task," said Stalin, the leader of God-less Russia.

The words—uttered in Russian—were the big moment of an extraordinary evening in the Kremlin, where Stalin for seven hours was host to the members of the American and British commissions that had successfully concluded arrangements for sending supplies to the Red army.

They had heard of Stalin in a "man of steel" and a ruthless dictator but under the great chandeliers of the old fortress he impressed one American official as "a nice old gentleman."

His toast invoking God's blessing startled some of the guests.

Constantin Oumalsky, former ambassador to Washington, translated the toast into English. Some of the delegates checked the translation with their Russian neighbors and were told it was correct.

Stalin was educated in the Orthodox priesthood and frequently lapses into Biblical phraseology; even more frequently than did Lenin. But the delegates agreed a man like Stalin had not made a mere slip of the tongue.

They pointed out a controversy had broken out in the United States regarding the Soviet attitude toward religion. President Roosevelt had been under fire for saying the Soviet constitution guaranteed freedom of religion.

The delegates believed, therefore, Stalin's toast was aimed at the United States, but at the United States President instead of the American public. Stalin knew it would be repeated by the delegates in their report to Mr. Roosevelt, and it was surmised by the delegates he wanted to let Mr. Roosevelt know what he had said.

POLICE CHIEF SAYS NAY TO REVIVING HORROR. DENVER—Police Chief August Hanenbuth lists five reasons why he rejected a recent suggestion to re-establish "Denver's" pictureless mounted state police:

1. Badly manufactured don't build saddles with radio sets built into them.

2. One man on a motorcycle can handle the work of half a dozen men on horseback.

3. It costs too much to feed, equip, care for and stable horses.

4. The horse and buggy age is history.

5. Horses generally go lame after a year on hard pavement.

North Carolina, Virginia
Meet in Day's Top Game

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Only a score of games are on today's Thanksgiving day No. 1 football program and none is expected to cause any major alterations of conference standings or the bowl picture.

North Carolina and Virginia meet at Chapel Hill in a game which will find all eyes on Billy Dudley, Virginia's triple threat star who is bidding for All-American recognition. Denver and Colorado play at Denver in a game packed with tradition but with little bearing on the Big Seven conference race. Utah, co-leader of the Big Seven with Brigham Young, is heavily favored over Utah State.

In the east, Brown and Rutgers tangle in a tilt that means a lot in their own backyard. Manhattan meets Georgetown in what should be a thriller.

GAS BUGS CHART MEETING DEC. 2

Next session for members of the Gas Valley Gas Bugs, a model home and car organization with headquarters here, will be held Tuesday, Dec. 2, it had been announced.

Last meeting was staged here Tuesday night with Karl Brown and Dale Clark as speakers. They discussed the new type model hydroplanes and the U-controlled gasoline models. Also speaking in attendance was George Hammer, Murtaugh, who displayed his model gasoline car which he said attained a speed of 80 miles an hour during a recent Chicago contest.

Bob Holt is club president with Gail Poulton as vice-president. Present at the session were representatives from Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hansen and Buhl.

ALUMNI HEAR OF "U" GRID PLANS

Over 150 University of Idaho alumni and supporters gathered at the Twin Falls high school here last night to see pictures of Vandal football games of this season, hear the University of Idaho pep band and listen to talks by "U" officials on the grid prospects for the coming season.

Dr. W. A. Barton, head of the psychology department at the university, told the assemblage that "we need football players whose parents are Idaho taxpayers and who show a real personal interest in the state as a whole."

Other speakers on the program included Athletic Director George Greene; William A. Olson, alumni secretary; and Bob Leight, editor of the Argonaut, student newspaper. To finish off the evening's entertainment, pictures of the Williamette-Idaho and Utah-Idaho games were shown.

Thanksgiving Assembly Hears Vandal Pep Band

University of Idaho pep band, now on its annual southern Idaho "good will" tour, was featured at a Thanksgiving assembly at Twin Falls high school yesterday afternoon, and members of the Girls' league and choir presented talks and musical numbers.

The pep band, under the direction of Jack Leishman, began their program with playing the University's fight song, "Go, Vandals, Go." "My Hero," from "Chocolate Soldier," and "Trilliana," an old swing tune, preceded "Fighting Idaho," school song at the "U."

Yell King on Hand

Ozzie Walsh, of Seattle, yell king, led the student body in yells for Twin Falls high school and for the Bruins, then introduced Don Singer, of Kellogg, base drummer of the band, who played "Dark Eyes" as an accordion solo; encore number was "Twelfth Street Rag." Fred Latham, graduate of the local high school, urged the student body to attend the Montana State-University of Idaho football game at Boise, Saturday, Nov. 22.

Sweet and soft version of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," played by the band and featuring a trombone solo by Bill Overbaugh, Buhl, broke into "swing" with solos taken by Dean Huston, Coeur d'Alene, and Bob Carlson, Fort Hall, saxophone, and trombone trio by Charles Luke, Moscow; Jarvis Palmer, Preston, and Overbaugh.

More Swing

"Jumpin' at the Wood Side" also swung, featured Overbaugh, Carlson and Huston with trombone, sax and trumpet solos, and preceded the final number, the Alma Mater song, "Here We Have Idaho," which was sung by the entire student body.

Margaret Detweiler took over the remainder of the program, by the Girls' league, gave a poem of Thanksgiving, written by LaDean Stokes, former student of the high school, and introduced Norma Dickey, who recalled the Pilgrim's first Thanksgiving and stressed a

Budget Buying Rules Meet Farmers' Needs

Amendment for the benefit of farmers recently was inserted into the new regulation on installment buying by the board of governors of the federal reserve system.

The board of governors recognized that farmers, because of the seasonal nature of their income, might have difficulty meeting "minimum" substantially equal payments at approximately equal intervals not exceeding one month.

Hence, the board declared that the provision covering installment credit for farmers permits any schedule of payments, if the down payment and maturity requirements of the regulation are complied with, and if one-half of the balance is paid within the first half of the maximum maturity.

Retail buyers not engaged in farming, however, still are required to make "equal" payments monthly, in order to retire the balance due within a maximum of 18 months.

51,000 Names, Credit Ratings on File Here

Twin Falls merchants feel that the new federal regulations on consumer credit will further the establishment of sound principles of credit, in the opinion of Mrs. J. J. Hughes, manager of the Twin Falls Credit association.

Every person in the Twin Falls area who transacts retail business on credit is listed in the files of the local credit association. There are approximately 51,000 names and credit ratings on file now.

The third of the total retail business transacted annually is done on some form of credit, explained Mrs. Hughes, either by means of the monthly charge account or the installment account.

When a person applies for credit at a Twin Falls store, the merchant requests certain information from the customer in order to establish a credit rating.

The credit association immediately makes a check to determine whether the applicant has a reputation for paying his bills in Twin Falls. If the applicant is newly-arrived in this area, it is still possible to investigate.

The Twin Falls association is affiliated with the National Retail Credit Men's association and the Associated Credit Bureau of the Pacific Northwest, said Mrs. Hughes.

Records in All Cities
This opens to Twin Falls investigators the files of similar associations covering every city in this country, and Alaska, Canada, Cuba, Hawaii and England.

"During the past three months local merchants called for credit ratings on 2,154 applicants," pointed out Mrs. Hughes. "In August, a peak month, 800 credit ratings were furnished after investigation in the purchase of any heating equipment, a Times survey of Twin Falls merchants showed."

Under the new federal regulations, after the 15 per cent has been paid by the customer, the balance of the purchase price can be paid for in payments ranging over a period of three years to 18 months.

However, regulations forbid any contract to be entered into which does not call for complete payment of the balance within a period of 36 months.

The items include:

1) Full name and middle initial, including whether he is a "Jr." or "Sr."

2) Name of wife or husband.

3) Present address and former address.

4) Name and address of nearest relative.

5) Age of applicant.

6) Number of dependents.

RENO'S DIVORCE SEEKERS LONELY

By SAM JACKSON

RENO—Most every man who arrives in Reno would secretly like to step out with one of the divorcees for which the place is famous, for as a class they have a reputation for being beautiful, sophisticated and out for a good time.

It was in a strictly confidential spirit that I opened the divorcee's files along this line with some friends who knew a girl who worked for a lawyer. The action was surprisingly swift. I was soon informed that I had made the grade—that one of these fair lovers would become mine with her presence that very evening and at the early hour of 7 o'clock.

The celerity with which my divorcee had dropped her lasso or shooting iron or whatever they use on a dude named and had dashed into town to accept a blind date gave me misgivings. Plainly something was wrong—probably with her nose or her chin or both.

But Alice, for such was her name, would belong in the front line of anybody's chorus. When we were comfortably settled and had ordered a bit of something in the Town club, she made it clear that back in St. Louis it was no such easy matter to enjoy her company.

But this was Reno, and like many of her sister divorce seekers she was often desperately lonely. At first she'd pooled, then had tried to be aloof and exclusive, and finally had broken down and wangled a little companionship and mild life in any self-respectful way that she could. Tonight Alice was completing her fourth week of "residence" and was in a mood for her fourth major celebration.

Where to Live
The legal machinery of divorce in Nevada is just a formality. The problem of the divorcee—you call her that in Reno even before the decree is granted—is to find the right place to live and make her six weeks' stay as pleasant as possible.

Barbara Hutton Reventlow had her attorney's comfortable home turned over to her. Willis Moody went to a Lake Tahoe resort. Certain movie queens were sequestered in the most remote cow towns that afforded room-and-bath, so the news of their unhappiness could be withheld until exactly the right box-office moment.

As for Alice, she found certain hotels attractive enough, but being pretty much a home girl she was afraid she'd be on the defensive against chance acquaintances, traveling men and roving Saturday night drunks. Later she decided this had been a bit prudish. The motor courts, apartments and plain room houses had looked rather lonely to her. Finally, tired out and impressed by the wide veranda and chromium plated bar, she had let the strong, silent owner of the Bar-Z dude ranch sign her up for the duration.

The ranch was somewhat on the hot and dusty side and like all Nevada was short of foliage. For amusement there were riding, shuffleboard, pingpong, the ever-present slot machines, and a public swimming pool was not far away. The setting gave a good excuse to wear a cowboy shirt and sombrero, and, if you cared to invest in them, chaps and high-heeled boots.

At Mercy of Cowhands
"It's sort of like a masquerade party," Alice explained.

The divorcees, Alice soon learned, were somewhat at the mercy of the cow hands, who were rather good looking and about the only men on the place anyway. They'd bring you a horse but didn't have to ride with you. While you sat on the porch, they'd hang around the corral swapping stories. They'd drive you into town in the station wagon, but if you asked them to come in and relax over a highball they had to meditate as to whether it was worth their valuable time.

So, like other new "residents" of the great state of Nevada, Alice would drift in and out of the gambling houses. It was all quite decent and safe, even if you played most of the night, and it was something to do. Alice even had the satisfaction of being a winner.

Soldiers Equipped For Cold Climate

PORT MASON, Calif.—An example of how the quartermaster corps literally equips the American soldier "from head to toe" in any climate is illustrated by recent quartermaster development of cold weather equipment. New types of soldiers' headgear which have been standardized by the quartermaster corps include an olive drab knitted cap, a knitted issue stocking cap, and a cloth hood, all designed for the protection of the head and neck during cold weather. "Army and Navy Register" notes that "results of experiments on cold climate clothing were made by the Quartermaster Corps during the Byrd Antarctic expeditions were used in the design of the new headgear."

EXPORTS declare that they were not for the retractable landing gear in airplane could reach a speed in excess of 300 miles an hour.

NEW YORK—Once a year for the last 23, Robert S. McCormack has received a letter of praise from Harry D. Parker, of Los Angeles. On November 4, 1918, on Hill 378, near the village of Consenvoye, France, the then Sergeant Major McCormack disobeyed orders to retire himself and protected the life of his superior, Major Parker. Although the two men have not seen each other only twice since then, the deed has never been forgotten.

RENO'S DIVORCE SEEKERS LONELY
By SAM JACKSON

RENO—Most every man who arrives in Reno would secretly like to step out with one of the divorcees for which the place is famous, for as a class they have a reputation for being beautiful, sophisticated and out for a good time.

It was in a strictly confidential spirit that I opened the divorcee's files along this line with some friends who knew a girl who worked for a lawyer. The action was surprisingly swift. I was soon informed that I had made the grade—that one of these fair lovers would become mine with her presence that very evening and at the early hour of 7 o'clock.

The celerity with which my divorcee had dropped her lasso or shooting iron or whatever they use on a dude named and had dashed into town to accept a blind date gave me misgivings. Plainly something was wrong—probably with her nose or her chin or both.

But Alice, for such was her name, would belong in the front line of anybody's chorus. When we were comfortably settled and had ordered a bit of something in the Town club, she made it clear that back in St. Louis it was no such easy matter to enjoy her company.

But this was Reno, and like many of her sister divorce seekers she was often desperately lonely. At first she'd pooled, then had tried to be aloof and exclusive, and finally had broken down and wangled a little companionship and mild life in any self-respectful way that she could. Tonight Alice was completing her fourth week of "residence" and was in a mood for her fourth major celebration.

Where to Live
The legal machinery of divorce in Nevada is just a formality. The problem of the divorcee—you call her that in Reno even before the decree is granted—is to find the right place to live and make her six weeks' stay as pleasant as possible.

Barbara Hutton Reventlow had her attorney's comfortable home turned over to her. Willis Moody went to a Lake Tahoe resort. Certain movie queens were sequestered in the most remote cow towns that afforded room-and-bath, so the news of their unhappiness could be withheld until exactly the right box-office moment.

As for Alice, she found certain hotels attractive enough, but being pretty much a home girl she was afraid she'd be on the defensive against chance acquaintances, traveling men and roving Saturday night drunks. Later she decided this had been a bit prudish. The motor courts, apartments and plain room houses had looked rather lonely to her. Finally, tired out and impressed by the wide veranda and chromium plated bar, she had let the strong, silent owner of the Bar-Z dude ranch sign her up for the duration.

The ranch was somewhat on the hot and dusty side and like all Nevada was short of foliage. For amusement there were riding, shuffleboard, pingpong, the ever-present slot machines, and a public swimming pool was not far away. The setting gave a good excuse to wear a cowboy shirt and sombrero, and, if you cared to invest in them, chaps and high-heeled boots.

At Mercy of Cowhands
"It's sort of like a masquerade party," Alice explained.

The divorcees, Alice soon learned, were somewhat at the mercy of the cow hands, who were rather good looking and about the only men on the place anyway. They'd bring you a horse but didn't have to ride with you. While you sat on the porch, they'd hang around the corral swapping stories. They'd drive you into town in the station wagon, but if you asked them to come in and relax over a highball they had to meditate as to whether it was worth their valuable time.

So, like other new "residents" of the great state of Nevada, Alice would drift in and out of the gambling houses. It was all quite decent and safe, even if you played most of the night, and it was something to do. Alice even had the satisfaction of being a winner.

Appliance Dealers See Benefits for Buyers

An initial deposit, household appliance dealers emphasize, will be sufficient to reserve any article, such as a refrigerator or a radio, until the purchaser is ready to buy the item on the installment plan.

"In this way," said a spokesman, "the buyer is protected against a price-rise predicted for 1942. An appliance reserved now will cost exactly what it will cost today."

However, if the appliance is not reserved now the buyer may have to contend with the price at that time he wishes to begin the budget plan.

EXHIBITION HELD ON CERAMIC ART

Certain metals are being diverted from manufacture of household appliances into the national defense industries. As the supply of metals becomes less available for normal household goods, the cost per unit will go higher," he explained.

Thus the expectation of appliance dealers for higher prices in 1942, and the advice to "make your deposit now."

Appliances may be purchased with down-payments of 15 per cent, although certain articles now require a 20 per cent down-payment, under the federal regulation.

Commercial refrigerators and store fixtures, it was pointed out, are not affected by the regulation.

Under-Inflated

Tires Expensive

DETROIT—It costs a moderate real money to drive with even slightly under-inflated tires, according to an engineering study.

A certain amount of the car's power necessarily must be expended in driving the tires themselves, the report points out. The power consumption of tires at proper pressures varies according to speed—the faster the car is being driven the more power is necessary to drive the tires. As tire pressure is lowered below that recommended this power consumption is increased sharply.

For instance, at 20 per cent under-inflation which is quite common, the increase of power consumption of the tires amounts to 13 per cent. At 30 per cent under-inflation (about 19 pounds) the increase in power consumption by the tires is 25 per cent.

Besides actual power loss, other better known results of under-inflation are cracked sidewalls, increased overall wear, hard steering and uneven brake adjustments.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The first contemporary exhibition of ceramics of the western hemisphere has opened at the Syracuse museum of fine arts. The exhibition, organized to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the national ceramic exhibition, includes work of artists from United States, Canada, Ireland and 15 South and Central American countries.

More than 200 United States artists submitted displays for an exhibition. These were inspected by a national jury headed by Richard W. B. de la, dean of education and extension at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, and prizes were awarded.

B. de la, dean of education and extension at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, and prizes were awarded.

New Show

The western hemisphere exhibition was organized in place of an international show, long-planned as an anniversary celebration for the 10th National Ceramic exhibition, founded by Miss Anna Wetherill, founded in 1932 as a memorial for the late Adelaide, Alton Robinson, famous Syracuse ceramicist.

Ceramics, of the art of making things of baked clay, such as pottery and tiles, is considered one of the oldest branches of human industry. Believed to have had its home in Egypt about the 30th century B. C., the art spread over the ancient world, reaching its highest level of artistic development in Greece during the 4th century B. C.

Special Arts

The art of the aborigines in the western hemisphere consisted of crude earthenware vessels of coarse clay, molded by hand and extremely unattractive. However, the Incas of Peru and the Mayas of Mexico have left the most beautiful and ingenious specimens, showing that among these tribes the art had known great development.

The exhibition closes in Syracuse Nov. 18, and the displays then will be sent on circuit to important museums.

CREDIT PURCHASE RULES MODIFIED

Liberalization of several "rough spots" in its installment credit regulations has been announced by the federal reserve board and the amendments to them then will become effective Dec. 1.

Down payments will no longer be required if they amount to $2 or less. A requirement effective Jan. 1, that monthly installments be not less than $5, has been eliminated. More leeway is permitted in arranging installment contracts with farmers.

There has been revision of regulations respecting and only of consultations of new with current obligations.

Petty Rows Lead To Many Killings

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—Of the 96 murders in West Virginia during the first nine months of 1941, officers found that in many instances the motive was "nothing more serious than a family quarrel," according to State Police Superintendent John W. Bosworth. He pointed out that one of the "bloodiest murders of the year resulted from a dispute over the best place to set a case of beer."

"People kill each other over petty trifles, and the majority of them are flavored with jealousy," he commented. One man was killed in an argument over house rent, another died in a dispute over Biblical quotations, while a third met death in a debate over a labor union.

NEW RULES OMIT CLOTHING, SHOES

Under terms of government regulations "soft" lines are not included so far as requirement of a specified down payment with the balance paid in so many months is concerned.

This was revealed today by a Times survey of Twin Falls "soft" lines dealers—soft lines being clothing, dry goods, shoes, and so forth. Such lines are not included under the credit law and for this reason the required down payment in the purchase of clothing as well as the length of time the payments will be extended is up to agreement between the merchant and the customer, the survey showed.

Merchants Adapt Policies to New Federal Regulation of Installment Buying Explain Benefits

Twin Falls merchants, interviewed to determine how they feel about the new federal regulation on installment credit, indicate they believe it is an opportunity to place credit on a "safe and sound" basis.

Spokesmen for the various lines of business in Twin Falls say that they have adapted themselves and their credit policies to fit the new regulations. They said the regulations required in the interests of national defense.

Merchants have discovered, however, that some doubt exists among the buying public as to the exact meaning of the regulation on installment credit.

In brief, the regulation lists certain articles, states that a minimum down-payment is required, and rules that the balance must be paid in not more than 18 months," it was explained.

Dealers point out that a 10 per cent down payment is required, while 18-month terms may be allowed on the 80 per cent balance when purchasing new household furniture.

"New household furniture includes ice refrigerators, bed springs and mattresses, mirrors, unpainted furniture, stoves, kitchen or breakfast room sets, porch tables, chairs, swings and kitchen cabinets," it was said.

Plans and household electric organs may also be purchased with a down-payment of 10 per cent and a maximum of 18 months to pay. One music dealer described the new regulations as "good" for his business.

Household appliance dealers are stressing the fact that installment plans can be worked out beginning with a 15 per cent down-payment and the 85 per cent balance in a maximum period of 18 months.

Articles listed for this low classification include household furnaces and heating units for furnaces (including oil burners, gas conversion burners and stokers), water heaters designed for household use, and water pumps designed for household use.

The 85 per cent maximum credit value bracket also includes plumbing and sanitary fixtures designed for household use, home air conditioning systems and attic ventilating fans.

"However, durable goods such as in this airplane-boat group.

Passenger automobiles, under the new regulation, are being sold on the installment plan. Cash down-payment of 33 1/3 per cent is required, and the balance of more than 66 per cent may be paid within 18 months.

One automobile dealer said he believed this regulation would stabilize credit in his business, without having less problems of repossession.

Dealers in automobile accessories pointed out that they expect the public will become "safe and sound buyers," which was an opinion expressed by many of the men interviewed.

TAMPA, Fla.—Sheriff's deputies made the routine search of a hobo brought to the jail. They found in his shirt, a jar of sugar, a jar of jam, a live chicken.

RULES LISTED ON APPLIANCE SALES

All electrical appliances come under federal regulations governing the use of credit, the Times found today in contacting several Twin Falls dealers in this line.

The dealers pointed out that under the recently adopted regulations, electrical appliance dealers doing a credit business must get a cash payment of 20 per cent of the article sold, and the balance must then be paid out over a period not to exceed 18 months.

Actual length the payments shall continue can be by agreement between merchant and buyer, but in no case can the period be extended over 18 months.

Inscription Dates Back to 1200 B. C.

NEW YORK—The earliest known Greek inscription, says Dr. John P. Daniel, probably appeared on the rim of a big pot in a buried city in Cyprus, and read:

"Put the lid on." Dr. Daniel, assistant curator of the university museum at Pennsylvania university, announced his findings at a meeting of the Archaeological Institute of America.

The inscription dates back to 1200 B.C., he said, and the pot was probably used for oil.

His findings in the buried city, he related, brought forth much many questions on Greek colonization.

IDAHO LEADS IN DEFENSE MEETS

BOISE—The State of Idaho today leads the entire United States in the presentation of a series of community mass meetings entitled "America Speaks" for the national defense savings program. It was announced here by John R. Wiley, state administrator.

"America Speaks," Mr. Wiley said, "is a program intended to identify and powerfully bring before the American people the dangers which confront the American way of life during this emergency and the ready ways which must be applied."

John Churchill, deputy state administrator, who is the author of "America Speaks," opened the community mass meetings in northern Idaho, beginning with Armaida day in Moscow.

Special meetings for school children will be held in the high schools in these communities, followed by public mass meetings at night.

Presentation of "America Speaks" will follow in other Idaho cities following the northern tour.

Instructions for local participation in these programs have been mailed to all committee members.

John A. Schoonover, state chairman of the defense savings committee, in commenting upon "America Speaks," said: "The success of the defense savings program rests squarely on the shoulders of every citizen in every community in the state. It is their responsibility entirely."

The twentieth century began on Jan. 1, 1901, not 1900, as sometimes stated.

New Rules Put Auto Deal on Sound Basis

New federal regulations of installment buying will not seriously affect the purchase of automobiles, but, on the contrary, the new rules may work largely to the advantage of both buyer and dealer, is the opinion among Twin Falls automobile dealers.

Under the new rules a cash payment of 13 1/3 per cent of the total price is to be paid when the dealer makes the deal. Credit, of course, is allowed for the car, if it is a trade-in deal. And, 18 months is allowed for payment of the remaining 86 2/3 per cent of the purchase price.

One local automobile dealer expressed opinion that the new rules tend to stabilize credit in his business, and reduce the problem of repossessions.

Cruiser Becomes Matrimonial Ship

LONDON—An Australian auxiliary cruiser has earned the nickname "M. A. S. Honeymoon." Its crew are called the "love-at-first-sight boys."

During three calls the cruiser made at British ports at the end of patrol, 110 members of the crew were married. Story got married the first time, 30 the second, and 30 the third. "I was conducting marriages for these Australian sailors almost every day," said the registrar at one of the ports. "One morning I married seven of them within an hour or two."

There were 2,565 airports, seaplane bases and landing fields in the United States and Canada on Jan. 1, 1941.

OPM Holds Up Own Metal Order

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The OPM, whose priorities division is limiting metals to manufacturers of civilian goods, has cracked down on itself.

William A. Dunlop, works manager of the Corry-Jamestown Manufacturing company, Corry, Pa., said the OPM "has told us to hold up" an order for 750 metal letter files for the OPM Washington office "because it could have no priority rating on metal for its own use."

TWO-BIT OPERA OPENS ROAD TOUR

NEW YORK—Opera with a maximum of nine singers, an orchestra of 30 players, a performance lasting one-and-three-quarters hours and an admission price of 25 cents is on the road. A man Reed Laxton dreamed it up.

"People today like everything streamlined and fast," he says. "So we have cut out the frills—the choral work—the recitative that repeats itself. We have done away with antique, slow-moving operas."

Laxton got together a gang of young Americans, hired a bus to travel in, a bunch of school auditoriums for one-night stands, and took to the road. His American Civic Opera company is a dignified name for a gang that travels like a football team.

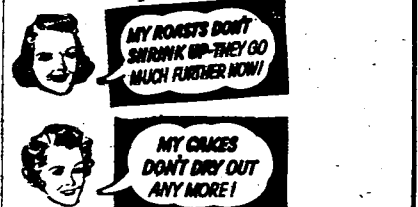

The company will play from New York to Tennessee this season. Their repertoire includes "Carmen," "Barber of Seville," "Rigoletto" and "Traviata." For better audience understanding, some operas are given in English. A narrator, appearing between scenes, explains the story so even the most uninitiated can follow the action.

CARROTS PROVE BOON TO VISION

BERKELEY, Calif.—By munching raw carrots, motorists will greatly reduce the danger of night blindness as a result of vitamin A deficiency, research findings indicate. The disclosure was made in 12 years of close experiments in which it was found that a deficiency in vitamin A for a single day is sufficient to entail night blindness.

The experiments were conducted at the University of California by Dr. C. W. Brown, professor of physiology, to test the time required to recover from glare of night blindness in the average individual. For this, an apparatus specially designed was used for the timing.

For the experiment, Dr. Brown took two groups of 10 students each. For 13 days, he fed one group on a diet rich in vitamin A. As it is found in vegetables, milk, butter and other foods. The other group was placed on a diet notably lacking in vitamin A. Then the procedure was reversed on the two groups.

During the period that the diet was changed, tests were made for the time required for the eye to recover after blinding. This was done by flashing a light in front of the students' eyes for a short time, then measuring the time required for recovery of vision under conditions of low illumination.

When one group was switched from an excess to a deficient vitamin A diet, most of the increase in recovery time was noted just one day after the change.

When the other group was placed on a deficiency diet, the increase was gradual over a period of five days after which the recovery remained at a high level for the remainder of the 12 days.

Dr. Brown reported that the average time of recovery from glare simulated on the deficient diet was 22.70 seconds, while the average on the excess vitamin A diet was 14.03 seconds, a difference of 8.67 seconds.

This time interval, he said, while seemingly small is very important from a statistical point of view and furnishes a definite basis for further and broader experiments.

ESSENTIALS FOR BEAUTY LISTED

NEW YORK—"As women go, so goes the nation," state John Powers, dean of models, at a recent fashion group luncheon in New York City. A talk before 100 of New York's leading fashion creators and editors, Mr. Powers spoke of the "fashions in Faces," illustrating his talk with 10 of his most popular hand-picked models and with lantern slides of models of previous eras. Four essentials for an attractive woman, states Mr. Powers, are (1) intelligence, (2) responsiveness, (3) poise, (4) good grooming; and the woman who has not the first mentioned three should develop good grooming, because without that she can never hope to achieve the other three. "Naturalness" and "femininity" are two of the greatest and best qualities a woman can have, says Mr. Powers. He believes that any dress from a simple gingham to the latest Bergdorf Goodman creation can do more for a woman than the best looking pair of slacks; "leave those for the men" says the model, mogul.

"Fashion in Faces" for 1942 will be of individual design, continued Mr. Powers, with hair of greatest importance. Hair may be long, short, curly or straight, stated Mary Sue Miller, enviable exponent of Mr. Powers' theories, who answered all questions on the subject of beauty fashions put to her by a leading stylist of one of Fifth Avenue's smart shops. The best way to improve your looks, she answered to one query, is to change your habits; this can do more for any woman than the most simple or dramatic make-up.

Just so long as they are not telling us that the aquiline nose this season will be a fashion "must," we can all put our hopes high and go after our dresses with a good stiff brush and a dependable shampoo.

Hair that "stays put" and spells "good grooming" is our first line of defense, Mr. Powers, you remember, cited good grooming as a requisite for a passing mark before we could obtain the other three. And for a patriotic cue—Mr. Powers went on to say that the presence or lack of beauty in women is reflected in the national morale, that spirits are high or low accordingly. History proves him right, for there was once a "face that launched a thousand ships."

If You Think It's Tough Now—

In 1918, America's consumers were asked to put up with these restrictions:

There were Meatless Thursdays and Wheatless Wednesdays for homes, hotels and restaurants.

The country was put on a "war bread" ration to conserve white flour. By decree, the height of women's heels came down.

Use of wool in robes and steel in corsets was restricted.

Although rationing was not involved, many families went without sauerkraut, German coffee cake and other German foods because of frowns from patriotic neighbors. Some who continued to eat sauerkraut re-named it "Liberty Cabbage."

Brazilian Weed Helps Swimmers

NEWBRIGHT, N. Y.—The patent office granted a patent to Albert L. Sommers and Robert Block for a form-fitting non-sinking bathing suit.

The suit has long, narrow pockets stuffed with Pina Decata, a Brazilian weed said to be six times as buoyant as cork. The palm-tree weed is so buoyant that the suit will keep the bather afloat.

Common Courtesy To Say Yes or No

"Some people appear to be rude because they cannot say 'No.' Or even 'Yes.'"

If you invite them to come to dinner, they answer, "I'm not sure" or "I think I can," which is worse. It sounds as if they don't want to come. Or as if they are wishy-washy personalities.

Not many excuses are sufficiently legitimate to let you get away with an evasive answer. It puts your host on a spot. If numbers are limited at his party, it means he holds up

And often you answer him too late for him to ask other guests. It is a waste of time, and "don't know" will cost him money.

If you receive visiting invitations, be sure to answer them today, or at latest, tomorrow. That should go for business invitations as well as social, wherever possible. It gives evidence of a well organized life and of immediate courtesy to the inviter. No matter how many invitations you get to join organizations, answer them. And word your replies politely. If you just don't join things, say so with courtesy. That recognizes that fact that other people do, but don't make the other people sound like goats.

ARRIVES 62 YEARS LATER

IRONDALE, Ohio—Eighty-six-year-old William McIntosh returned home to visit his sister, after 62 years of absence. He started out for school in 1879, but found traveling more interesting. He visited 25 states, working at many trades, and panned gold for the past 10 years. His relatives give him up for dead 50 years ago.

Difference Between East and West Explained by Author

NEW YORK—There is a difference between the east and west, Agnes M. Cleveland has decided, and it has nothing to do with dialects or clothing or directions. It has to do with a peculiar standard of life.

In her part of the west, which is Carson county, N. M., it is a rule of life never to offer help unless it is asked for, and a rule never to ask for it until it is absolutely necessary.

"A man, or a woman, is presumed to be able to take care of himself," says the author of the highly successful "No Life for a Lady." This sometimes is carried pretty far, too.

"A couple of years ago I saw a man standing on a street, waving off the heavy rain of a storm. I thought he had done it, but I did take hold of the trench and pull. There were several people about and everybody but myself knew perfectly well that from the time I came off, it would hit me on the head."

No Warning

"It did hit me, and knock me out. And not a soul warned me. I thought they all assumed that I was intelligent enough to take care of myself."

It is not good form in Carson county for a man to insist on doing whatever chore a woman starts—that is meddling, and an aspersion on the woman's ability.

This all grows out of a free life. Mrs. Cleveland thinks she not only thinks these things are true, but she knows it. She has quietly taken herself out of the first Houghton Mifflin "Life in America" book, a distinction which brought her a preliminary award of $2,500, and probably more.

Having Wonderful Time

Being honest, she admits she is having the time of her life. She is talking almost daily before one or another audience; she has been heard in Philadelphia, Washington, New York and Boston recently, and has 12 dates in a row in Los Angeles. She also has a system—the system talking about a good deal, and plays her ten-cent harmonica.

Her home county is 180 miles square. It has no incorporated town in its limits, no railroad, no telephone, and only one telephone line. This breaks down a good deal, Mrs. Cleveland explains.

But Mrs. Cleveland and her son are the only mother-and-son combination to have won the Standard "Block B." Mrs. Cleveland got hers in 1939 for producing a play, and her son won his in football.

Mrs. Cleveland had a little traveling desk out of the first Houghton Mifflin "Life in America" book, a distinction which brought her a preliminary award of $2,500, and probably more.

MILLIONS READ IDAHO'S SPUD ADS

BOISE—2,327,491 American families were subjected to a barrage from the opening guns of the 1942 Idaho potato advertising campaign, announced James B. Newport, commissioner of agriculture and chairman of the Idaho Advertising Commission.

Twenty newspapers in seventeen states and the District of Columbia carried the first advertisement of the Russet season, in the three-year-old program designed to widen distribution and create greater consumer demand for the famous Idaho tuber.

The ad in four newspaper columns wide and twelve inches deep illustrates a man, a woman and a child eating potatoes, the latter being shown with an appetizing Idaho onion. Recipes for each dish are included and the copy emphasizes the vitamin content, economy and superior flavor of Idaho.

Currently with the opening board, Idaho "shock troops" plastered grocery stores and markets with Idaho banners and cards. Nineteen special men, under the direction of C. G. Rice, veteran Idaho dealer service man, assist in completing the selling job that starts when the housewife sees the advertisement in her newspaper and ends when she sees the remaining Idaho banner in her grocery store and buys a sack of Idaho spuds.

Newport remarked that inquiries received by the advertising commission office indicate a continued widening of distribution.

"When the commission first started to function," he said, "it was news to receive a letter from Florida, Georgia or the Carolina. Nowadays they are almost as common as those from Iowa, Kansas or Missouri, the longer established Idaho markets.

Since 1908 there have been more than 4,000 different makes of motor cars.

ANCIENT CRIMEAN CITY DESTROYED

WASHINGTON, — Theodolia (Peodolia), destroyed by fire in the wake of the Russian retreat, has survived wars for 2,500 years. The very site even has been plowed over. Today Theodolia ranks ahead of Sevastopol as the commercial center on the Crimean peninsula.

The feature of Theodolia that has been important in its recovery from calamity has been its harbor of some 36 acres with an average depth of about 24 feet to a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. "It has never frozen over. When ice blocks Acropolis, Theodolia continues the winter export of South Russia's grain. The grain trade has built 26 warehouses for its wines. Though pressed from the products of extensive vineyards near by, the vines have an international flavor. Vines had been imported from France, Spain, and other places as far away as America, more than a century ago. The birthplace of the vine names the wine.

"Bathing—water and mud—has long featured Theodolian life. The city has fine bathing beaches, the most popular of the Crimea from mid-May to October. Close by, its mud lake has succeeded thousands of health seekers.

"The heyday of Theodolia was under the Genoese, from the 13th to the 16th centuries. The city then developed a rich trade with the orient, and had a population of 100,000. It rivalled Genoa itself in wealth and power, and controlled all the important harbors on the south coast of the Black Sea. It was called a second Constantinople.

"The city had another revival in the 18th century, largely because of its slave trade. It specialized in Armenian girls noted for their beauty, and became the great slave market for captives of the Tartars in Little Russia. At times as many as 10,000 male and female slaves were available for sale.

"This city, surrounding a broad bay, rises like an amphitheater to ruined medieval walls and towers on all surrounding hills. It had open plazas and some broad streets, but its most striking feature was its architecture. Heavy, medieval stone work survived in its bridges. A seventeenth-century mosque was a Catholic church; another held a Lutheran congregation. The foundations of a synagogue have withstood ten centuries.

"Theodolia had the largest of Crimean tobacco factories. Its canning plant had prospered with the agricultural progress of the Crimea. Its industrial activities varied from brewing to nail-making in supporting a population of about 30,000.

"Theodolia is Peodolia to the Russians. It was Kefe to the Turks, and under the Genoese was called Capka or Kaffa. The early Greek settlement was Arabada or Arada."

FINANCIERS FLY TO WALL STREET

NEW YORK—The trouble with having country estates (if perchance you can afford one) is that you live so far from your office. That is particularly true if that office is on Wall street.

Most Wall Streeters must catch the 8:15 train and complete the trip by subway, or ride in with a chauffeur, or make the trip by private yacht. But any of these methods usually takes a good hour and a half each day.

About a dozen wealthy commuters from Long Island's North Shore have cut the time to 15 to 20 minutes. Their aerial chauffeurs drop their private or chartered planes down on the East River right at the foot of Wall street. The financiers debark at the "Downtown Skyport" operated by an air company.

The chauffeur then returns to the Port Washington terminus. While waiting to call for his boss, the chauffeur usually brings the boss's wife in to a 23rd street floor near the shopping district. And sometimes he drops off youngsters of the family at a 83rd street floor near the city school district.

A few of these aerial commuters to Wall street are Philip Lehman and Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., of the Lehman Brothers banking firm, Robert L. Clarkston of American Express, Herbert G. Pales of International Nickel, and Henson Williams (yes, Henson of Mrs. Harrison Williams). Two other commuters recently turned over their planes to the British.

THE WEAKER SEX

SUMTER, S. C.—Sumter policemen were hitting the old target on the practice range but the best any of them could do was a score of 179 out of a possible 200. Then pretty Miss Sarah Kilvren, 13-year-old daughter of Chief W. C. Kilvren, stepped up—and blasted out a 191.

Because many persons throughout Magic Valley have wondered what effect Federal Regulations would have on their holiday buying, we reprint here our original statement—made at the time we opened our store—on Budget Accounts.
