

SPEECH FESTIVAL TERMED SUCCESS

Judges and Coaches Declare
First South Idaho Event
Outstanding

First annual south Idaho speech festival concluded over the weekend and was declared by judges and coaches as outstanding, especially in the selection of material, in deportment and in management. Under the "They Cannot Return" was the excellent rating for Class B one-act play contests which ended Saturday afternoon. Miss "Willie" "Clement" was judged superior, while "False Witness," presented by Moreland, won a rating of good.

Twin Falls with three excellent and one superior, ranked highest in the contest, while Blackfoot, entering four events too, received three excellent and a good.

Ambeross-Bryans oratory; Dauter Lingenwaller, extemporaneous; and Grant Sawyer, dramatic, won excellent ratings, while Doris Seigenthaler won a superior in the humorous field.

Oratory Outstanding
The judges declared that a whole lot of well selected and well delivered oratory selections were the most outstanding. Beautiful voice, clear enunciation, and interesting interpretation not only marked the dramatic section, but the other divisions as well. The humorous selections were the weakest in the selection of material, according to the judges—but better selections in a dramatic field were made; the material was harder, more literary, and "higher class."

In comparison as a whole with other state and sectional contests that I have judged, I would say that the festival, in my opinion, was better," said Miss Louise Blackwell, College of Idaho. Miss Martha Farrar, Twin Falls, was chairman in charge.

POLITICAL PARADE

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The presidential favor of two outstanding Republican candidates will reach their crisis simultaneously tomorrow in Illinois. Sen. William E. Borah and Frank Knox of Chicago are contesting tomorrow's presidential primary in that state.

Knox appears before the electorate at a Chicagoan by adoption and the publisher of an excellent and successful newspaper. Borah goes before the voters as a home state boy who had good. He was born on an Illinois farm 70 years ago. Both candidates agree the Illinois primary as a fair and searching test of strength.

Knox has been a constant and uniform critic of the New Deal. Borah has voted against many Roosevelt experiments and his senate record shows that he supported more of them than he opposed. The senator considers the publisher to be a representative of conservative Old Guard Republican policies. The publisher doesn't rate the senator as even in the running. Knox recently said the race for the nomination lay between two men, himself and Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas. Various national polls and straw votes have shown Landon a general favorite among Republicans from coast to coast. By the same tests Borah has shown more national strength than Knox.

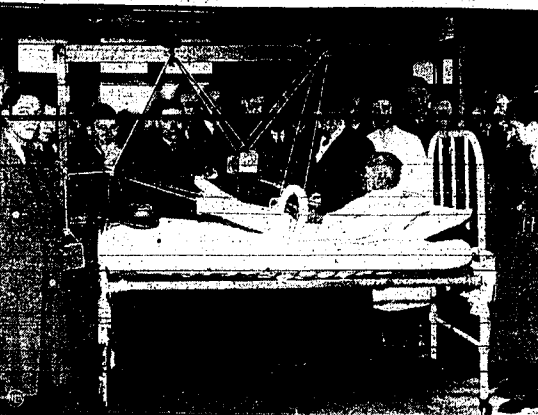

The question of party regularity has been raised among Republican candidates but political uncertainty is turning out to be no handicap to any candidate except Borah whose at-home battle and familiarities are marked indelibly against him by party regulars. Points are that Borah refused to hold any campaign when both Knox and Landon participated in the party's main spectacular walk-out "Dust War" in 1932 when the late Theodore Roosevelt explained the Bull Moose Progressive forces. Borah was Roosevelt's floor manager at the 1912 Republican national convention and managed the attack by which Roosevelt sought to win the nomination from Taft.

Wasn't Bull Moose
Taft and a convention packed with federal troops. Borah was valued and Roosevelt bolted. Borah merely went home. He took no part in the 1912 campaign which split the party and permitted the election of Woodrow Wilson. Knox and Landon were Bull Moose.

Four must go back to 1928 to discover Borah bolting a Republican presidential candidate. That was the first McKinley year when young William Jennings Bryan came out of the west singing of free coinage of silver and 16-20-1. The Republican national convention in 1928 declared for the gold standard and Idaho party leaders bolted. On the Idaho "Silver Republican" ticket was a 30-year-old doctor who sought election to the house of representatives. The house man was William M. Borah and the records show that he lost 2,024 to 13,487. The regular McKinley Republican ran third with 6,054 votes.

That youthful indiscretion is not held against Borah by contemporary Republicans. Few know of it. Borah's party sin has been to bolt in off-years. There were few harsher critics of the Coolidge administration than Borah. The senator and Herbert C. Hoover were political pals during the 1928 campaign but within three months after the inauguration Borah was a leader in the Progressive Republican bolt from the Hoover administration. He took part in the 1932 campaign. His silence duplicated the Hoover-Curtis ticket; many thousands of votes.

VISIT TO HOSPITAL LESSON TO RECKLESS DRIVERS

Maneuvering lesson in safety to reckless drivers. Municipal Judge John Gutknecht, shown at left of the nurse, conducted 30 youthful speedsters to the Chicago hospital building of John Meany, a traffic victim, shown with his injured limbs strapped up and elevated. Following that, the party visited the morgue, and the offenders could strap a fund of about $100 to aid victims of careless driving.

W.M. A. TAYLOR

Final tribute was paid William A. Taylor, 87, by neighbors, friends and relatives at the funeral services at the White mortuary chapel in Twin Falls Saturday afternoon. He died Friday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Hopewell.

Mr. Taylor, who had been ill for some time, was a well-known resident of Twin Falls. He was born in 1851 and spent most of his life in Idaho. He was a member of the local church and was highly respected in the community.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt today issued a proclamation designating May 1 as Child Health Day.

He urged all agencies, public and private, concerned with the health and welfare of children "to study the plans for federal, state and local cooperation in promoting the health and security of children, to note the extent to which those plans have been put into effect and to have arrangements for carrying their benefits to the children in every county in the United States."

PARSONS REPLIES TO TWO SOLONS

Declares He Is Carrying Out
His Duty in Enforcing
Statute

BOISE, April 13 (Special)—Statements by Sen. George Donart and Rep. E. W. Horner, both of Washington county, in their letters of resignation to Gov. C. Ben Ross today had brought a reply from Harry Parsons, state auditor.

The legislators wrote that they submitted their resignations "as a result of the attitude of the auditor and attorney general."

To this remark, Parsons made the following statement:

"From the statement of Senator

George Donart in his letter to the governor, that the resignations of E. W. Horner, representative, and himself, were submitted solely on account of the attitude of State Auditor Harry C. Parsons and Attorney General Bert H. Miller, it would appear that we are the obstruction in the path of legislators who wish to enjoy the privilege from business done with the state.

It is the law

The law which forbids legislators to sell goods, wares and money at the public hotel or tavern today, is a product of the Idaho Twin Falls chamber of commerce. The association is not responsible for the passage of this law. I am responsible. Four committees named at the time of the law's passage, and under my oath of office, have been working for the prevention of infractions. These committees with the aid of this, as well as other business of each county, have been returning to the state the law.

"I don't want to make it appear that in this case the officers are Henry M. Hall, Jerome, and Capt. J. W. Foster, Twin Falls."

Dr. Royce, Post Specialist, Office of C. C. Anderson, P.O. 558-C-Adm., Twin Falls, Idaho.

THOMAS JEFFERSON

The Democracy of Idaho gathers here tonight to pay tribute to Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States, born April 13, 1743, nearly 200 years ago, and by tradition, the founder of the Democratic party.

Jefferson was a lawyer, a writer, but not an orator, and in the Continental Congress served with Washington, he drafted and signed the Declaration of Independence, was governor of Virginia, was secretary of state under Washington, and was elected vice president under John Adams.

His most famous statement of American life, the Declaration of Independence, is the epitaph he penned himself.

"He was third, Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of American Independence, of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom, and Father of the University of Virginia."

For nearly 50 years this county has had a club which annually has commemorated this noted leader.

The citizens who thus join in paying tribute to such a statesman do themselves honor also and help to keep the party and the government in the paths laid down 130 years ago by Thomas Jefferson, whose men and women of all political faiths admire and respect along with the Washingtons, the Jacksons and the Lincolns.

DRUNK DRIVER MENACE

The most dangerous man in America, these days, is the man who gets behind the steering wheel of an automobile while playing host to a skunkful of liquor. And the most difficult thing is to devise some foolproof way to take such a man out from behind the steering wheel and put him behind the bars.

The smartest idea along this line comes from a commission recently appointed by Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, to study the matter. This commission suggests that all we need to do is to change our traffic codes so that, instead of penalizing the man who drives while intoxicated, they penalize the man who drives while under the influence of liquor.

That change may seem unimportant. Actually, it might be the solution to the whole problem because it gets entirely around that vexing and unanswerable old question, "When is a man drunk?"

As things stand now, before a drunken driver can be punished, the police have to prove that he was, in fact, drunk; and if you have ever had your nose inside a court of law, you will understand that this can be a remarkably difficult thing to do.

That is why statistics about auto traffic accidents fail to reveal the real extent of the menace of the drunken driver. For instance, Charles A. Hartnett, motor vehicle commissioner for New York State, points out that less than 1 percent of the state's serious auto accidents last year involved drunken drivers. Yet Commissioner Hartnett firmly insists that the drunken driver is the most serious menace on the road today.

The driver who causes an accident may have been as stiff as a plank at the time; but unless the police can prove that he was stiff, he is finally charged with speeding, or careless driving, or some other traffic infraction, and his drunkenness never appears on the record at all.

Hence the suggested change. Don't require the police to prove that the man was drunk; let them prove, simply, that he was under the influence of liquor. Then the hate-hatred citizen who insists on taking the wheel after imbibing half a dozen highballs could be made to pay the penalty.

For unless a man was actually unable to stand up, it is almost impossible for you to prove that he was drunk. You can prove that he had a lot of liquor in him; you can prove that his eyes were goggling, that his breath was strong, that his legs were unsteady, that his speech was slurred; but his lawyer will contend that he was merely under the influence, not actually drunk—and in nine cases out of 10 the jury will swing along.

Let the law once recognize the indisputable fact that a driver under the influence of liquor is as dangerous as a man who is drunk, and we might have some chance of whittling the menace down to its proper size.

COLLEGE FOR PARENTS

At Harvard recently, fathers and mothers of 60 to 70 students spent two days learning what their sons' college life was like.

While the students went on vacation, their parents moved into Harvard Hall, a house at the foot of the Harvard campus. Their program included sleeping in their dormitories, eating in the same dining hall and relaxing in Harvard's new indoor athletic building nearby. Two lectures a day by faculty members, visits to classrooms and meetings on the campus, and a general repetition of the daily routine of their boys, filled out the unique education.

Up to a point that should be copied by other colleges. Too often there is a breach between parents and children simply because the elders haven't taken the time to meet their boys and girls on the youngsters' home ground.

WELL, A LOT of things happened to Little Jasper in our Pot Shots contest last week, and most of them seemed to run up with Jasper receiving physical agitation on the matter. Which is all right with us. We don't think so much of Jasper, either.

WINNER FOR THE WEEK was Mary Gourd, although we had to call in our board of directors to award the prize. Personally, we wanted to give four first places but the Pot Shots treasure put his foot down and squelched us. Anyway, here are the runners-up: honoree, Little Jasper, who took a pinky, like the one in the picture. We trust they'll get into the fun again.

THE 50 CENTS for Mary Gourd, our Pot Shots secretary, who has never got her address. When she does, we'll forward the 50 cents. Or, if Mary can collect it at the Evening Times office, we'll prefer.

AND HERE'S THE contest tale for this week:

Little Jasper loved to experiment.

And so, when he saw the fudge mixture his mother was cooking for the bridge club meeting, he slipped into the kitchen, poured vinegar into the hot mixture and there beat the fudge with a spoon so his mamma couldn't tell the difference.

Jasper cut the fudge and put it in a box. And presently the ladies came to play bridge.

THERE YOU ARE. See what you can do with Jasper this time.

YIP! PROBABLY FEEL LIKE 20 BOUNDS TO YOU!

Dear Sir:

Where the headline said "Picture of a short man trying to get a very hot lady in his picture house."

Try to peer over him. He's too short to see over her. Ties to peer under her. Don't want to get into a fight with her. Ties to peer under her. Don't want to get into a fight with her.
