THEATERS

A PROBLEM ROXY, SATURDAY

Clark Gable looks quite thoughtful... he needs to be in his latest picture, "Viva... Secretary," coming to the Orpheum Sunday, as he has Myrna Loy appearing as his wife and Jean Harlow as the secretary. "Viva... Secretary" is not a problem play, but a highly amusing comedy romance. There is hardly a genuine serious moment in its entirety. "The Story of Louis Pasteur," starring Paul Muni, the current program at the Orpheum, will be shown up to and including tomorrow night.

Featured at Idaho

Beginning today, the Idaho theater presents "Too Many Parents" by Frances Farmer, Lester Matthews, Foster Hall, Buster Phelps and Billy Lee. This is the story of four boys, typical of hundreds of thousands of the country over, who, for one reason or another, have been deprived of the most precious birthright of all children—the love and guidance, the affection and instruction of their parents. The program is completed with "Rox and Rinky" No. 8, cartoon, and latest news events. Beginning Sunday at the Idaho is George O'Brien in "O'Malley of the Mounted," with Irene Ward and Stanley Fields.

English mines now employ 2000 more miners than a year ago.

Warner Brothers Wants New Hearing Over Cagney's Contract

(Copyright, 1936, United Press) HOLLYWOOD, April 24 (U.P.).—Superior Judge Charles L. Bogue today had under advisement the plea of Warner Brothers studio for a new trial of the recent suit in which Jimmy Cagney, screen star, had his contract annulled.

The judge indicated he expected to hand down his decision within a day or two. The ruling was awaited with interest by every major player and studio in Hollywood.

The court, upon Cagney's contention at the trial that the studio violated his contract by billing another actor above him, Cagney held his name deliberately was placed below that of Pat O'Brien after he had disagreed with the studio over the number of pictures he should make annually.

The studio denied the billing of O'Brien above Cagney was deliberate and charged Cagney previously had defaulted his contract by refusing to work when called for a picture last December.

Jimmy Cagney, 11-year-old screen actor, today had judicial approval of a six-year contract with a major studio that will bring him from $15 a week to $50 a week during the closing year.

WAILING WALL

According to Republican orators the people might just as well throw up the sponge. The country is going to the dogs, chaos impends, war is near.

It's a dismal picture they paint to a country once more getting a thrill out of a revival of business and industry. This is especially true in Idaho where the prophets of despair would have the people believe that all is at a standstill, that there really is some public interest in the national election.

Fact is, President Roosevelt is gaining in favor every day and his reelection will be forecasted even more safely than was the case with the election four years ago this fall. With the present indications of prosperity which loom larger than at any time since the depression commenced under the previous administration, the people as a whole are too busy to listen to the mournful wailings of those suffering from acute attacks of political despondency.

The sad eye should give way to the sparkle of an ambitious citizenry successfully fighting its way back to overcome the blight of the depression years. Most everyone but the G. O. P. leadership has caught the spirit of the new day. While these few futility beat their breasts wailing with alarm, the country is marching onward to the music of the hammer and saw, the lathe and the motor, leaving at the wailing wall those who find comfort at this stage in having a good cry.

FAILURE OF ATHLETICS

Dr. Charles J. Turck, president of Centre College, told a group of educators the other day that the worst thing that ever happened to his school was the famous victory of the "Praying Colonels" over Harvard's football team in 1921.

"That victory upset the whole town's judgment of college values," the educator pointed out, adding that only 32 of the 124 freshmen attracted to the college after the great victory remained to be graduated four years later.

And so, urges Dr. Turck, we ought to get rid of this "octopus" and let commercial agencies of the sporting world provide for the public these gladiatorial shows. Looking back at the swift decline of that 1922 freshman class, it's easy to see why he feels that way. It's about time our colleges distinguished between athletic spectacles and the real purpose of an educational institution.

"CONSERVATION" IN FAIT

Secretary Jekes has renewed his appeal to Congress to change the name of his department from that of "Interior" to "Conservation." The secretary, an ardent conservationist, argues that it is time to reverse the intimation of "exploitation" heretofore associated with his office.

After all those years, it is doubtful if Congress will break tradition to change the title of the cabinet post, and that doesn't seem to be important, so long as the department remains on the right track.

Mr. Jekes is directing a vast personnel toward protection of American resources. If that duty is performed well, the Department of the Interior can lay claim to a great contribution. The name of the department doesn't mean much—the vital thing is the "spirit of conservation" that prevails there.

SHORT-SIGHTED ECONOMICS

There is a neat lesson in economics in the current Senate battle to cut appropriations of the United States Department of Justice. It is just this—nothing can be construed as a saving that will cost the public a great deal in the future.

Chargings that J. Edgar Hoover's branch of the department has "gone wild" with its spending, the Senate appropriations committee threatens to lop a quarter million dollars off its budget. Mr. Hoover warns that such action will promptly bring a new "wave of kidnapping," and place a premium on lawlessness.

And so he asks for $4,025,000. It is a question whether reducing the sum materially might not prove a very late taken sort of economy.

YOUTH FINDS ITS PLACE

Certainly, one of the beautiful signs of these times is the growing importance of youth in the nation's affairs. Back in the smug, pre-depression era, youth took little or no interest in public affairs, because the ship was preoccupied with holding an even keel.

But now, after five years of hardship and struggle and search for the way out, youth is taking the wheel and it may be going places.

The colleges, for instance, are turning more and more to an intelligent and earnest interest in public affairs, and in every town and city "Young Republicans," "Young Democrats," and so on are concerning themselves about the future.

This is a wholesome trend. In the past, youth has made great contributions to the art of government; witness the case of Pitt, British prime minister at 21; and our own Hamilton, a power in his twenties. This is not to argue, of course, that all youths are Pitts and Hamiltons. But whatever they are, they have a place to fill.

5 MEALS URGED FOR EFFICIENCY

Snack in Morning and Late in Afternoon Reduces "Lag," Scientist Says

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (U.P.)—Increase your efficiency by eating five meals a day, suggests a theoretical W. H. Haggard, Yale professor of applied psychology who supports his suggestions with proof from three years of experimentation.

Europeans understand the value of multiple meals and only in America and the United States are three meals or less the custom, he points out.

Cites Results. Haggard recently outlined the experiments from which he drew his conclusions. Among them was an experiment in which 317 girls employed at a shoe factory were tested by the applied psychology laboratory at Yale.

Efficiency lags during mid-morning and mid-afternoon had been noted and it was determined that the body was burning less fuel during the slack periods.

Those girls who went to work at 8 a. m. were given a mid-morning meal of bananas and milk at 10:30. They ate their regular luncheon at noon and at 3:30 p. m. received bananas and milk.

The experiment promptly ended the mid-morning and mid-afternoon lags in efficiency, experimenters found. Final results showed a 10 per cent increase in efficiency.

Bananas were chosen because of their sugar content and because of their natural covering, the workers could eat them most conveniently.

"The objection has been raised that five meals a day constitute overeating and overloading the stomach," Haggard said. "But the fact is that the workers consumed no more food in the meals than they did ordinarily in three. It is not the frequency of eating which overloads the stomach. Patients with weak stomachs because of gastric ailments are sometimes fed every two hours."

RUNAWAY GIRLS ARE HELD HERE

Three Salt Lake City runaway girls are guests of Sheriff M. F. Frater, awaiting arrival of officers from the Utah metropolis. On way from Hollister last night they were picked up at midnight on the highway south of Rogersburg, when they flagged down a car carrying Traffic Officers P. M. Kingsbury and Hubert Smith, who were searching for them.

The girls, Jane Croner, Anna Rothwell and Mary Riley, are said to range from 16 to 17 years of age.

Love Flies Skyways—Pretty Young Stewardesses Marry in Two Years

By MARY McBRIDE (NPA Service)

NEW YORK—Stewardesses and pilots on American Airline planes are not supposed to hold any unnecessary conversation with each other. They must not be seen in public together even off duty.

These rules are meant, of course, by the practical company to discourage romance. But pilots and stewardesses go right on marrying each other.

American Airline stewardesses also marry airport officials. And some passengers. So in the stewards of United and all the other airlines.

In fact, judging from records, airline stewardesses are about the marryingest young women in the whole country. At least, American Airline officials estimate that with all precautions, their stewardesses still serve only an average of a year and two months before succumbing to Cupid. United does a little better with a staying average of two years. The other airlines, which have had stewardesses only a short time, report terrifying symptoms of getting-engaged tendencies among their female employees.

Fixing the Blame. Of course, some right down to it, it's the airline's own fault. They require that a stewardess shall be only on the eyes, tactful, charming and the possessor of bits of lip.

A lot, promptly ended the mid-morning and mid-afternoon lags in efficiency, experimenters found. Final results showed a 10 per cent increase in efficiency.

Bananas were chosen because of their sugar content and because of their natural covering, the workers could eat them most conveniently.

"The objection has been raised that five meals a day constitute overeating and overloading the stomach," Haggard said. "But the fact is that the workers consumed no more food in the meals than they did ordinarily in three. It is not the frequency of eating which overloads the stomach. Patients with weak stomachs because of gastric ailments are sometimes fed every two hours."

RUNAWAY GIRLS ARE HELD HERE

Three Salt Lake City runaway girls are guests of Sheriff M. F. Frater, awaiting arrival of officers from the Utah metropolis. On way from Hollister last night they were picked up at midnight on the highway south of Rogersburg, when they flagged down a car carrying Traffic Officers P. M. Kingsbury and Hubert Smith, who were searching for them.

The girls, Jane Croner, Anna Rothwell and Mary Riley, are said to range from 16 to 17 years of age.

ways been about nurses! So that requirement means just another hazard for the company.

Four of the original six who innovated stewardesses service with one airline have married, and the other two are engaged. Ruth Laurence married the chief radio operator of her line in Chicago.

W. T. Bishop, and someone at the company into letting her keep her job. She has a four-room apartment in Chicago, where she spends her days off each week.

Signe Jacobson, a particularly lovely-looking stewardess, married Gerard Beniger, a New York insurance official, whom she met in the air. Jack Reade and Agnes Mohr are engaged to civilians.

Cupid Gets Them All but one of the original stewardesses employed by another airline in May, 1936, have since been married. Charlotte Gerlach married George Backhaus, a Chicago broker, whom she met in the air. Darylene Olive married Pilot Harry Blumstein, also a pilot.

Another of the girls is the wife of a San Francisco lumber executive who travelled over her line until he persuaded her to say yes.

"Blondy" Ryan, former stop of the New York Giant, met Kathryn Barry while flying between New York and Chicago. They were married within a few months.

Band of Dancers Another stewardess-passenger romance culminated in the wedding of Elma Rothblatt to Elmer Southam, New York certified public accountant. Stewardess Emily Disler was assigned to the Chicago-New York division one day, met Dr. Francis McGrath, a Cheyenne doctor, in the next month, and they were married quickly.

Miss Margaret Moore, formerly on a Chicago-to-New York air route, selected as "Flying Diana" last year, recently married James Moser, of another airline. They live in Newark.

"Many men passengers flying for the first time are scared, and they hide this by talking to the stewardess," one stewardess explained with a blush (she's just announced her engagement to a one-time passenger). "Once they have landed, they somehow feel grateful to the stewardess; or feel maybe, that they two have shared a great danger. Thus romance begins—and ends at the altar."

CHINA ACCLAIMS OWN 'MAE WEST'

Theater Addicts Thrilled By News That Favorite Will Enter Movies

SHANGHAI (U.P.)—China's theater addicts, who correspond to the drama fans of America, are showing relative numbers and enthusiasm, have received their greatest thrill in years by the announcement that their Mae West, otherwise known as Miss White Jade Frost, soon is to become a movie queen.

Miss White Jade Frost has been appealing to China's equivalent of the "bald-headed row" for several years, and her popularity has reached the proportions of a national craze. Star of innumerable "jump and jump" dramas, considered by the Chinese intelligentsia as the most vulgar variety of dramatic fare and on par with a street burlesque shows in the west, she has followed the example of an American counterpart by transferring her talent from stage to screen. Her success in Chinese talking films is expected to be phenomenal.

Style in Shanghai "Jump and Jump" plays, so called because the male character is invariably an aristocrat who sports "baldy" as the title, have been the staple of the Shanghai theater since 1920, after they had been virtually banished from Peking.

The higher types of Chinese drama are in the Mandarin language which is conceded to be the purest form of the Chinese tongue, while "Jump and Jump" plays are presented in vernacular dialect, said to place much less restraint on the actions of the players as they speak or sing. White Jade Frost has no peer in the field of jump and jump. Critics say she "puts her whole heart and body into her art."

A few years ago the actress and her fellow jump and jumpers held a session with officials of the bureau of education for a discussion on decency. It was reported that White Jade Frost appeared at the inquiry, looking like the wife of a pious official and that a representative of her jump and jump troupe, assured officials that although her actions sometimes seemed improper from a moral standpoint, she was a true artist whose singing and acting were in accordance with the text of the play, and therefore should not be judged to severely.

The runs Goliath frog of West Africa, grows as large as a terrier dog.

Ruth Laurence (above) kept her job as air hostess even after she had married the chief radio operator of her line in Chicago.

Clouds cut off a good deal of the sunlight that otherwise would reach us, since they have a reflecting power of 75 per cent, and about one-half of the earth is covered with clouds all the time. However, they do form an atmospheric blanket which helps prevent the earth from undue cooling at night.
