TIGERS SWING BACK TO STRIDE AS HURLERS REGAIN FORM

BRIDGES HALTS

MINX OF DEFEAT
Tommy Comes Through to Win After Two Losses; Tigers Pull Triple Play

By LESLIE AVERY
NEW YORK, April 25 (U.P.)—The world champion Detroit Tigers appear to have shaken off that early season malady which has plagued them for the last two years and have won more quickly this year than they did in 1934 and 1935.

Schoolboy Rowe, usually the last member of the Tiger hurling staff to hit his stride, won his first two starts in the Detroit rotation. He gave up only nine hits in 18 innings.

Manager Mickey Cochrane's principle worry was Tommy Bridges, ace fireballer. Tommy was shelved from most of his first two starts. Eddi Auer and General At-Crowder, the other two mainstays of the staff, also collapsed in their initial starts. But Auer broke through with a shutout victory today and Bridges came over into the third column, yesterday by pitching the Tigers to a 2-1 decision over the St. Louis Browns.

Triple Play
Although he gave up 10 hits to the Browns, Bridges scattered them so well he never was in danger after the Tigers' six run burst in the second inning, chalked by Charley Gehring's three-bagger with the bases loaded. Gehring, who is matting 472, has no peer on the keystone corner, was the man to start the triple play which killed a Brown rally in the fourth inning.

Charley snared Bottomley's line drive and tossed to Rogell Wright, who was waiting in the bag and then threw to Greenberg before Solters could scramble back to first. Yesterday's victory enabled the Tigers to tie the league Washington from fifth place in American league play.

Cleveland Fighters Hold
The rampaging Cleveland Indians took a better hold on Detroit place with a 6 to 2 decision over the Chicago White Sox. Although outlast 11 to 10 the Indians took advantage of four Sox errors and home runs by Truisky and Averil.

New York's Yankees moved into third place with a 10 to 2 victory over Washington. Vernon Gomez limited the Senators to seven hits while his bats were collecting 17 off Ed Lince.

St. Louis became a cellar tenant once again when Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics cleaned up their two game series by defeating the Boston Red Sox 3 to 1. The Athletics won the first game, 10 to 1, after a three-run lead in the first inning. After the game, Mack issued a statement on behalf of the Athletics, saying that the team was "not in the mood to play."

In the National League the champion Chicago Cubs took a 6 to 1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies and moved into third place. The Philadelphia Phillies, who lost 4 to 1 to Boston were the only team to lose in the National League.

Brooklyn Dodgers romped on the Giants 8 to 2 and moved into first place. The Dodgers' victory was a surprise, as they had been considered the least likely team to win the National League.

St. Louis and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

TAMED TIGER

Pretty tame and dejected is this tiger of Detroit, Mickey Cochrane. An infected eye and an injured thumb has forced him out of the lineup, and here he is showing wearying dark glasses while, from the dugout, he watches his team perform. He expects, however, to be back in there, claws bared, before long.

Penn Relays Overshadowed For Few Hours by Speculation Over Peacock

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (U.P.)—The Penn Relays, world's most famous athletic carnival, was overshadowed for a few brief hours today by the physical condition of one athlete—Eulace Peacock, Temple University's star sprinter.

Peacock, who is the national champion in the 100-yard dash, was the favorite to win the 100-yard dash, but he was unable to compete due to an injury to his right leg.

The race in which Peacock hurt his leg was the 100-yard dash, which he won in 1935. He was the favorite to win it again, but his injury prevented him from competing.

Peacock's injury was a disappointment for the Penn Relays, which were held in Philadelphia. The race was one of the highlights of the event.

Peacock's injury was a setback for the Penn Relays, but the event was still a success. The other races were well attended and the athletes performed well.

You Are Cordially Invited
To Inspect The "House of Today"

The idea of building a model house at the site of the Twin Falls power plant originated with the need for an operator's cottage at that plant. So many people are building new homes and remodeling old homes that public attention is focused again, upon new types of architecture, design, building materials, appliances and furnishings.

The "House of Today" was built to provide further incentive to modernization, and after it has been utilized to the fullest extent for this purpose, it will be occupied by the plant operator and his family.

The "House of Today" presents a complete use of modern materials, furnishings and appliances. Utility, labor-saving, comfort and beauty are its fundamental qualities. You will want to examine every room and corner to discover the modern features which have been built into the "House of Today."

We call it the "House of Today" because all materials, furnishings and appliances are obtainable through local dealers. In fact, local contractors and dealers built and furnished the house.

Three up stairs rooms are being used for displays of modern furniture from the stores of Twin Falls' furniture dealers.

Naturally you will be interested in the all-electric kitchen. You will note that this kitchen saves many steps for the housewife by its compact, convenient arrangement. Throughout the "House of Today" electric servants have been installed to show the effectiveness of their proper use.

If you cannot visit the "House of Today" on its opening day, Sunday, April 26, plan to come some afternoon or evening soon. It will be open for inspection for several weeks, and a social welcome awaits you.

We hope that your visit to the "House of Today" will provide you with some new ideas in connection with your own building or re-modeling plans, thereby rewarding you for your trip.

Small houses and large buildings have one thing in common... they're worth only as much as the quality of the material that goes into them. NECROLOGICAL PARENTS

The oldest arrow in the quiver of the experienced criminal lawyer is the picture of a gray-haired mother weeping over the waywardness of her unfortunate son.

Any reporter who has covered very many criminal court trials can tell you all about it. The thing which is being tried will sit at the trial table, doing his level best to wear an innocent, more subdued against than shining look; and his advocate, with quivering voice, will tell the jury about the mother of "this poor boy" and will beg them to send some back to her so that her pure motherhood may be redeemed, ennobled.

It is all very pretty and inspiring, of course. But it is about time that someone spoke up and inquired why mother or isn't right there in the dock along with sonny boy, facing trial on her own account.

J. Edgar Hoover, renowned head of the G-Men, told the New York Round Table Forum the other day that among the many of the crimes charged to our underworld, these days should really be charged to the underworldings' parents.

Some 20 per cent of all our crime, said Mr. Hoover, is committed by lads who are not yet old enough to vote. Many of these youngsters are still of high school age. Practically all of them come from homes where papa and mama just couldn't be bothered to enforce discipline, set up high moral standards and, in general, see to it that Junior set his feet in the way that he should go.

Worse yet, continued Mr. Hoover, when one of these wayward boys does get into a jam with the law, his parents come down to court with only one thought in mind—to get him out of trouble. That he may need a swift rap over the knuckles to straighten him out never seems to enter their heads.

They weep over him and cuddle up to him and save him, if they can, from paying the penalty for his misdeeds; and, by the same token, they leave him feeling that it is all right if he goes out and steals another car or sticks up another filling station, as long as the law doesn't catch him.

The attack on crime, then, Mr. Hoover concludes, must begin with "a reconstruction of the American viewpoint toward better parental discipline and a greater sense of law abidingness beginning in the home."

This is so undeniably true as to be self-evident. Yet it is the one step we usually overlook when we talk about whipping out the underworld.

The police courts, jails, penitentiaries, and death chambers of our land tell an unsparsingly tragic story; and it is a story which, in the vast majority of cases, begins back in some American home in which the father and the mother made a terrible mess of their most important job.

Back of almost every criminal stands a parent who failed.

SUSPECTED SERVANT

The city of Cleveland has been exercised recently by the discovery that a veteran police captain, who has drawn a total of $60,000 in salary from the city during his period of service, has been able in that same time to put away more than $100,000 in the bank.

So exercised has the city become, in fact, that the county grand jury has indicted the officer, and machinery has been set in motion to throw him off the police force. And his lawyer, meanwhile, is declaring loudly that it was all perfectly innocent, and that a wrong construction has been put on everything.

That is quite possible. But the case is instructive, nevertheless. The public servant who lets his savings exceed his total income can hardly complain if a suspicious public decides that there has been something decidedly fishy somewhere in his career.

HARDLY AN EXAMPLE

Charles M. Schwab, sailing for Europe, advises young Americans not to go after riches, because it doesn't pay.

"There is nothing to it," says Mr. Schwab. "I have worked hard all my life. I have made good money and attained good things. But what does it all amount to?"

He concluded by remarking that honest work, peace, and contentment are the best part of life.

This is excellent advice, and ambitious young men may properly listen to it. But one suspects that Mr. Schwab himself would have turned deaf ears to it, if it had been given to him when he was 20.

Mr. Schwab has had a long and uncommonly active and useful career. He attained this career by going after riches in the traditional way.

And considering the amount of driving force that was built into his makeup, and it's a good guess is that he would do the same thing if he were starting all over again.

According to a New York physician, stutterers avoid a life of crime. Police would probably arrive before one reached the word, "so stick-k-um."

A reader wants to know how to avoid puffs under the eyes, noticeable upon arising. One idea is to take off the shoes when entering the house late.

STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, April 23.—Prices firmed in light turnover of the stock exchange in the short trading today. Other markets also were dull with bonds mixed in a narrow range, grains steady, and cotton firm.

Some buying was generated by the move on the stock exchange in lowering its requirements on maintenance-of-margin.

Chrysler was the favorite on the stock board. It reached 10 1/4 in the early trading, up 1 1/4 points from the previous close. Oldsmobiles followed with General Motors touching 87, up a point—a small amount of the gains was Yosemite National park is a scenic masterpiece of more than 1100 square miles, but Yosemite valley is only a glacier-carved crack, seven miles long. Prior to the ice age, it was a V-shaped canyon more than 2000 feet deep, but glaciers ground it into a broad U-shaped valley.
