Gas Mileage, Heating, Wear

The modern car, depending on its weight, size of its engine, and speed and regularity of driving, averages between 14 and 22 miles to a gallon of gas, William Harrigan, of Detroit, Michigan, "road boss" of a 14-ton test fleet, premises—has the Texas company said here yesterday.

Harrigan, conveying his fleet of test cars, arrived in Twin Falls yesterday morning in a one-ton motor-scooper, before moving out sometime today for Portland.

"The fleet has gone far enough with the fleet," Harrigan said, "to tell accurately what the consumption of each car is. I have made a note of the mileage each car has made to date, driving at an average of 65 miles per hour. I believe the fleet is averaging about correct."

No figures on oil consumption were given.

The fleet includes cars representing almost all popular makes, and all price classes.

$2000 Per Day

Manned by a crew of 30 men—all of them trained mechanics or auto drivers—the fleet will average approximately 124,000, or about $200 a day, to operate over a 30,000-mile tour.

"These cars are supplied to us by the manufacturers," Harrigan said. "We in turn supply the men and fuel."

This test—our second annual affair—provides one of the few known means of getting a general picture on car reactions and performance under conditions such as would be encountered on them by the driving public.

"It is true that in our Detroit laboratories, we have been breaking down automobiles, to test

Testco weather observer, Ben Harp, reports a clear, mild day, with no rain in daily reports.

Ordinary gasoline—not kerosene—will be used, and the cars will stop only at service stations gone into crankshafts.

All moving parts of all cars were accurately measured before the cars left Detroit some time ago.

When the tour is completed, these parts will be measured again, and the results compared with those under other conditions, to provide an accurate estimate of the cars' performance under ordinary driving conditions.

reactions of gasoline and oils, to watch action and wear on moving parts, and make other checks. The automobile manufacturers also are breaking down sample cars daily to find out what is wrong.

These tests, however, do not present a true picture. True, the cars are broken down, are run over testing roads, and subjected to other proving-ground strains.

"But, before they go into these tests, the machines are 'tuned up' to exactly the proper shape and tuning, and have expert and trained mechanical attendants at all times

PEIPING KEY TO CHINA'S AFFAIRS

Former Capital, Frequently Fought-Over, Always Center of Interest

WASHINGTON—Fighting in the Peiping area has again thrown a world spotlight on the frequently fought-over city, former capital of China and always a center of international interests.

"Peiping is still a key to China's foreign affairs," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Its geographic location brings it into contact with Japanese-controlled Manchukuo, the northern, semi-independent Peking provinces on the west, and Russian-controlled Mongolian republics on the northeast. Foreign consulates and branch offices of foreign business firms give it the greatest international importance north of the Yangtze river. As a center of the Hopen-Chahar council, it is a focus for the independence movement which has weakened ties between North China and the central government at Nanking.

Occidental Goals
In national affairs Peiping is a stronghold of tradition. Contrasting with the present Chinese capital at Nanking, the northern metropolis has had many reincarnations as seat of China's government under such names as Peking, Beijing, Peking, Cambius, and Purple Imperial City. Its Mandarin dialect, the Parisian French of Chinese speech, comes closer than any other to being generally understood throughout the nation.

Peiping was the focus of perhaps the most widespread international tension on Chinese record during the anti-foreigner Boxer uprising in 1900, when troops of several nations, including the United States, were landed and marched inland to rescue all Peiping's foreign residents who had been besieged for two months in the British embassy.

Since that time the western sector of the Chinese city has been the high-square-mile of occidental oasis on the oriental desert—the "Peking" quarter, with its foreign guard gateways. Three and four-story buildings form the legation quarter, skyline, protected by the radio tower of the U. S. marines.

"China's ghost-town-in-chief lies at the very heart of Peiping's walled rectangle, the Forbidden City. This realm of fabulous imperial splendor began to totter when invaded by foreign troops quelling the Boxer uprising, was supplanted by Chinese republicanism, and when the White House was moved to Nanking in 1928, the imperial palace became a haunt for sightseers.

When the Forbidden City lost its potency, Peiping was crippled but not killed. For the northern metropolis, the city of the future, the nests of lacquer boxes on shelves of its own curio shops. The ancient walled city of Peiping today exists as a Chinese city in its southern part, in the north the Tartar city in the northern section is set apart. Within that, and with the Imperial City, within which nestles the once most exclusive area of all, the purple-walled Forbidden City, that section of the latter is the international enclosure.

Commerce with the north preserved Peiping's importance, when imperial prestige faded. Seven main highways for camel caravans, passable for some distances by auto, radiate from the city. Nomadic Mongol herders of Genghis Khan from north of the great wall of China come by their routes to exchange goods, livestock, hides and furs for winter supplies of brick tea and salt. A thriving fur trade is administered by key winds from frozen northern deserts, giving Peiping some zero winter weather, although it is south of Philadelphia's latitude. Summer winds bring blighting dust storms, for which Peiping is as notorious as London is for fog.

Railroad systems link the northern city with Kalgan, Hankow, Suifu, Nanking and Mukden. As a rail junction, Fengtai, just outside the walls, has acquired strategic importance. A canal and a river connect with the Grand Canal at Tientsin, still navigable, although built to bring ancient Ming treasures, their rice tribute from green southern provinces. Nan Yuan, an extensive park seven miles south, has become a communication center with its airfield and wireless station in addition to Chinese barracks.

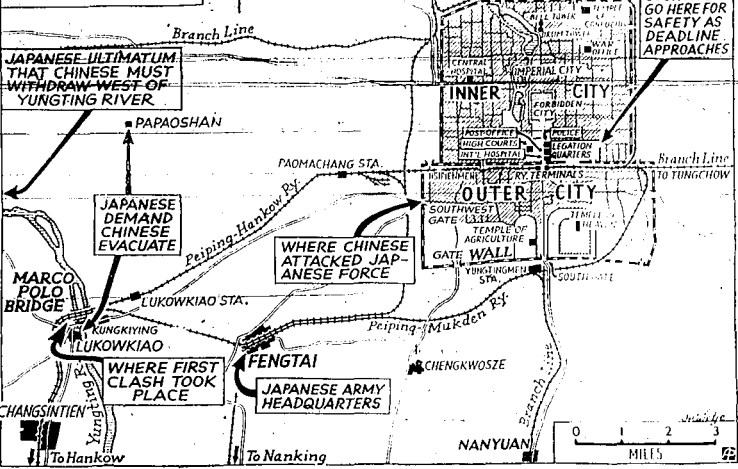

As commercial and cultural centers of China's northern plain, Peiping is the country's second largest city, being surpassed only by Shanghai. In location it has no natural advantages over the thousands of nearby villages, few of them containing more than a dozen cottages with thatched roofs. Yet Peiping is renowned for its spacious paved streets, imposing gates, and its crumbling palaces and temples.

"Peking, lakes, and a five-downed hill exemplify Peiping's love of spacious landscaping. A single mile, the Temple of Heaven, occupies about three times as much space as the entire legation quarter, is surrounded by three miles of wall, and focuses its marble terrace upon an altar covering an acre.

"Adjacent is the Temple of Agriculture, dedicated to the emperor who reputedly harvested the grain, the symbol of North-China's chief occupation, and kneeling also the emperor who traditionally started the culture of silkworms. Among Peiping's antiquities are possibly the oldest bronze pan-and-holes and the oldest astronomical observatory in the world."

BROUGHT TO NTH DEGREE
NANKING, China (AP)—Weddings and funerals, most elaborate of Chinese festivals, will be held at late in Kwangchow Province. The government has prohibited the making of rice wine in the province to conserve the stocks of rice for drought relief.

PEIPING AND VICINITY

CITIZENS of various nations fled to safety of legation headquarters in Peiping, China, as Japanese and Chinese troops met in armed conflict in the latest series of incidents in North China.

DRAFT

One of the tragic things of life is the fact that so many dear people are going along with the mistaken idea that nothing can be done to help them. This is absolutely not true. It is a matter of fact that there are very few cases of deafness that do not satisfactorily respond to the NEW SODEN AUDIOLOGICAL. We will prove this statement without cost, to any deafened person who will take the trouble to invest in it. If you want help, write today and we will do the rest.

LEWIS BUILDING POLITICAL POWER

Associates Say He Hopes To Choose Country's Next President

WASHINGTON, July 31.—John Lewis has 30 votes to build a political machine, which associates say will make him the dominant force in the choice of the next president of the United States.

Lewis, 46, a native of Kentucky, returned to the United States after a year in England, where he was a member of the House of Commons. He is now in the Lewis Building in Washington, D. C., where he is building up a political machine.

Lewis is a member of the House of Representatives, and he is now in the Lewis Building in Washington, D. C., where he is building up a political machine.

SIGNIFICANT MATTERS

This move followed two other developments, that Lewis' associates consider politically significant. The first was the statement of Lewis' country and national colleagues, of America and the United States, that Lewis' associates consider politically significant.

Lewis is known to feel that political strength in the form of a union would tend to lead many times their number to the C. I. O. in a political sense.

THE SECOND DEVELOPMENT

The second development was the affiliation of the Lewis' associates with the C. I. O. Lewis hopes to enroll hundreds of thousands of farm hands into this union and thus build up a C. I. O. political strength in the form of a union would tend to lead many times their number to the C. I. O. in a political sense.

These associates said Lewis definitely doesn't want to do a third party in 1940, but that he expects an attractive offer from the Republican in the way of a labor reform. They added that he expects this offer, combined with his own strength to result in a better offer from the Democrats to bring him into the Democratic camp at election time. But he is making no commitments now. He feels that much could happen to change the entire situation in three years.

Idaho established a wild life department in 1911, and since that time it has been actively engaged in the preservation of the state's natural resources. DIVIDED LOYALTY

If there are really organizations in this country that engage in military drill, give the Nazi salute, "hell" Hitler, fly the Swastika alongside of the Stars and Stripes, wear uniforms resembling those of the Nazi Storm Troops, use titles like those of the German Nazi party, and maintain camps in which Nazi principles are taught to American children, it is to be hoped that the government will take prompt action to suppress such organizations.

A congressional committee headed by Representative McCormack of Massachusetts has been appointed to investigate such organizations, and to report to the House of Representatives.

VIRILE WOMANHOOD

American business and professional women, as we used to say of spirited horses, "feel their oats." Their national federation at Atlantic City broke into a wild demonstration as delegates, who were not only virile, but also virile, were granted by a men's government, and to fight for "strict equality of the sexes under law."

They wanted an amendment to the federal Constitution binding Congress and the governing bodies of all states, counties and cities to draw laws or ordinances applying only to women.

CUP DEFENDER OUTCLASSES BRITISH YACHT

America's Sloop Routs Challenger In Opening Race

Harold "Mike" Vanderbilt Pilots Ranger to Easy Victory Over Endeavour II; Four Straight Victories Predicted

By ALAN GOULD

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31 (AP)—It was Ranger by the proverbial mile today, and just about double that distance by the nautical measurement as the first race for the America's cup unexpectedly assumed all the proportions of a seagoing rout for Thomas O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II, sixteenth challenger for the classic emblem of international yachting supremacy.

The snob-nosed white-hulled American defender, Ranger, sailed with consummate skill by Harold Stirling (Mike) Vanderbilt, led all the way in light streaky breezes over a 30 mile ocean course, fifteen miles to windward and return. She came home in solitary splendor, her huge spinnaker billowing against a foxy background and her British rival far behind as she was scarcely discernible.

Worst Defeat in 50 Years
Victory by the overwhelming margin of 17 minutes, 5 seconds, Ranger and Vanderbilt established their combined supremacy for the time being, by handing the challenger the worst shelling in the past half century of America's cup history.

Back in 1890, Sir Thomas Lipton's fourth Shamrock led the fifth and final race to Resolute by a margin of 19 minutes, 45 seconds on corrected time, but the actual elapsed time between the boats was 13 minutes.

Not since the defender, Volunteer, whipped the Scottish challenger, Endeavour II, in today's opening race of an international series to a shift in the breeze, had any contender for the cup been so badly beaten as was Sopwith's sloop today, in a race where both boats crossed the finish line.

Under conditions and circumstances as gloomy as the finish for the challenger as they were, Sopwith's sloop was the only one of the biggest seagoing galleries since the cup races were started in 1820 to Newport, Ranger negotiated the course in 4 hours, 41 minutes, 15 seconds.

The challenger, approximately 2 miles behind after a final and full hunt for more wind, was timed in 4:59:10.

There was not the slightest doubt about the outcome, having occurred to the defender, after the first 15 minutes of the race, which was 45 minutes late getting underway because of the coast guard's difficulty in getting the immense spinnaker hoisted, "numbering upward 500" of all sizes, under control.

Ranger took an early and commanding lead, jibbed around the outer mark with a lead of 6 minutes, 13 seconds, and nearly tripled this lead coming home close, her spinnaker billowing against a foxy background and her British rival far behind as she was scarcely discernible.

No starting was Ranger's superiority on all points, including the fact that the American sloop, 2 1/2 miles behind, was 45 minutes late getting underway because of the coast guard's difficulty in getting the immense spinnaker hoisted, "numbering upward 500" of all sizes, under control.

The next race is scheduled Monday, at which Sopwith has a day off in which to try to improve his position, but he is expected to be back in the water by Tuesday.

RANGER ESTABLISHES SUPREMACY

DEFENDER of the historic America's cup, the sleek yacht Ranger owned and piloted by Harold S. Vanderbilt left T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II far behind yesterday in winning the first race of the challenge series. Following the one-sided victory experts predicted four straight triumphs over the British challenger.

Former King Of Amateur Golfers Shoots In Front

Lawson Little Shatters Par To Take Lead Over Famed Rivals in $5,000 Open Tournament

ST. PAUL, July 31 (AP)—Lawson Little, the former amateur king from San Francisco, shot into the lead of St. Paul's $5,000 open golf tournament today with a halfway mark total of 140 strokes—but once again it was "Lefty" Harry Cooper of Chicago, who furnished the drama.

Little, whose triumphs have not been too frequent since he abdicated the amateur throne last year after winning the American and British titles twice each, shot a thoroughly workmanlike round to finish with a great 35-34, 69, three strokes better than par for the Keller course.

Cooper, with a record of 23-23, 68, beat Little from St. Paul's opening round, superiorly had blown this chance of finishing the second day any better than three or four strokes back of Little, waving dual but first time hole for a most uncooperative 49, four strokes over par on a course he usually plays to death, but he came up with a 35-34, 71, to win by one stroke.

His last round, which dropped him into a tie with Sam Snead, the year's amateur from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who raced in with a scorching 33-33, 66, and Ed Roth, stable professional from Fort Worth, Tex., who checked in with a 35-34, 71, to win by one stroke.

Ray Mansburg, the thin man from Dayton, Ohio, who shot the third 69 of the day, returning with a 35-34, 71, after leading par 36 for the first half of the round, to tie with Pat Sawyer of Minneapolis, at 142, Sawyer, whose 69 crowded Cooper yesterday, cooled off to a one-over-par 35-36, 71, Mansburg added a 72.

Sopwith Blames Shift in Breeze

British Sportsman 'Hopes' to Do Better in the Other Races

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31 (AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, making his second bid for the America's cup, tonight attributed defeat of his challenger, Endeavour II, in today's opening race of an international series to a shift in the breeze.

"It was very pretty," he said. "The wind headed us and it gave Mr. Vanderbilt that very valuable lead, and while we did the shift in the breeze, it was too late. I want to congratulate Mr. Vanderbilt for his very best work. We hope to do better in the other races."

Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper-owner of the defender, Ranger, which applied a very thick coat of shellac to Mr. Sopwith's challenger, had chiefly praise for an old main-sail he used in the contest. That piece of canvas, he said, had been found in the breeze 75 times.

Under conditions and circumstances as gloomy as the finish for the challenger as they were, Sopwith's sloop was the only one of the biggest seagoing galleries since the cup races were started in 1820 to Newport, Ranger negotiated the course in 4 hours, 41 minutes, 15 seconds.
