DARING MEN TEST U. S. WARPLANES

Picked Fliers Risk Necks to Help Maintain Air Superiority

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP)—Two dozen picked men are taking their necks winter and summer to help maintain the United States superiority in military flying among the world's powers.

They are the best pilots who strap on parachutes and open the throttles on new-type airplanes to find out how they behave and why. Some are civilians, hired by commercial factories, a man has joined the army and navy officers. Their jobs are among the most hazardous in the scheme of national defense.

Here in Buffalo, at municipal airport, Lloyd Childs pulls on his flying suit and buckles his chute.

Plane Drops A mile away, at a height of 4,000 feet, Childs' silver wings catch the sunlight.

He's peeling off, someone remarks. Almost imperceptibly at first, then with the momentum of a plummet, they plane drops earthward.

Now he concentrates on the black-paneled instrument board. He drops a thousand, two thousand, three thousand feet. The sudden change of air pressure between the outer and inner ear deafens him to the wail of the dive.

He eases back on the wheel. The plane responds, flattening the dive until it becomes a glide.

Phonones Machine O. K. Childs circles to drift down into the wind and put his wheels on the runway. As he cuts his switch and climbs from the cockpit he steps a moment to wiggle the ailerons and rudder.

"Okay," he remarks. He is satisfied that the navy will find the machine perfect that it will accomplish its purpose—dive and climb.

YOUTH AGENCY SEEKS TRAINING

Work Projects to Make Idaho's Boys and Girls 'Employable'

By EARLE L. JESTER BOISE, Sept. 11 (AP)—To make Idaho's boys and girls "employable" not merely to give them jobs when they are out of school, but to make them self-sufficient in the community, the National Youth Administration is sponsoring a series of work projects.

Work projects for 700 boys and girls, Curtis said, will be set up in 15 counties. The projects will be carried out in vocational courses at the University of Idaho Southern Branch at Pocatello, and the local high schools.

Project Purpose "The purpose of these projects," Curtis said, "is to give the boys and girls jobs that will give them an opportunity to gain practical training and to become employable and self-sufficient in their own way in the future."

At the end of the year, the boys and girls will be given a final examination to determine their progress.

Vocational courses at Moscow will be composed primarily of agricultural, mechanical, and electrical work.

At Pocatello courses will include carpentry, masonry, farm mechanics, automobile mechanics and plumbing.

Work courses for girls will be primarily in sewing, millinery, and in a restaurant.

Boys' projects will be set up at Moscow and Pocatello, and girls' projects will be set up at Moscow and Pocatello.

The work projects will be carried out in the summer months, and will be completed by the end of the year.

PLANNERS SCAN SCHOOL TAXES

Simons Points Out Law's Pitfalls Making for Inequalities

BOISE, Sept. 11 (AP)—Idaho statutes, Planning Board Chairman W. Simons pointed out today, require the state's public schools to use last year's property assessment figures in computing tax levies that will provide funds for next year's operation.

"If the school district trustees have made an honest attempt to fix a rate which, although based on the previous year's valuation, should return just enough money to properly maintain the school district and the assessed valuations are later reduced through equalization, the resulting shortage of funds is obvious," Simons said.

"If equalization results in a net increase in the current year's assessments over those of the preceding year, the rates which have been fixed will bring about an increase in the amount of money available to the school districts.

Present plans of many districts to increase the rate of the 1,000 school districts are able, in practice, to temper illogical features of the tax laws, but this does not alter the fact that these laws induce the existence of tax inequalities."

The planning board is conducting a year-long study of Idaho tax structures.

With farm returns up and interest down, northwest farmers are planning to make 1937 a debt clean-up year and in many cases get ahead of schedule on their mortgage payments.

Except where drought has been serious, the outlook for the Northwest farmers has prospects of receiving the largest returns in six years, or approximately $40,000,000 in the bank's four-state-district of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

Through a special provision of the newly enacted farm credit act of 1937, the Land Bank offers a practical plan of encouragement for borrowers to pay extra amounts in good years in protection of their crops.

Getting their mortgage notes marked "paid in full" was the happy experience of 655 farm and ranch owners during the past fiscal year ending July 1, 1937.

the dark ships

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: When Flashy Prescott Fanning-abducts Janet from her home on his yacht, she goes to Nell, a young federal agent who loves her. Dashing to her rescue, he finds her on a yacht and finds, in a locked cabin, Fanning's motor boat and Janet in a cabin. He rescues her. Nell hires her nearly in a dived line, then John Mark Boulanger, keen local investigator, keeps tabs on developments. Returning from a trip to the ship, Nell is overpowered by a lanky brute who blinds him, taking his eyes and mouth, and carries him off.

Chapter 22
A Brutal Grilling
 When he was ready, he man turned Nell over on his face and cut the bonds on his wrists. He turned Nell again and, smothering him with his full weight, pulled his arms forward and tied them in front. He tied a second rope to the first one and standing Nell on his feet, shaking with nervousness, Nell turned to take a look at his prison. He had no light but he felt he could have embraced the little man then.

The minutes later the two of them dropped to the salubre. Eyster was shaking with nervousness. Nell turned to take a look at his prison. He had no light but he felt he could have embraced the little man then. (Copyright, 1937, Hulbert Footner)

When he then came close and with his foul breath in Nell's face started going through his pockets and through his clothes, for the first time he entered his boots, and felt inside his socks. He took out Nell's wallet, examined it and put it back. This was no ordinary jobber. He was after some particular thing. When he failed to find it he turned low, saying to himself, "Where is the stuff?" he muttered.

"You damn fool," Nell said, knowing that meaningless grunts were the only sounds he could make. The tapes were pulled off his lips. Nell instantly shouted with his full voice. The man laughed. "Shoot! Four links, that's the rest. Nell shut his mouth.

"Where's the stuff?" he asked. "What stuff?" answered Nell. "I don't know what your talking about. The man's reply was a blow that almost jerked Nell's arms out at his wrists. He spun around helplessly. "Where's the stuff?" growled the man. Nell knew he had been watered from the beginning. Evidently it was something valuable on the yacht. Some loot of Fanning's. It was useless to protest that he didn't have it. He stilled for time.

"Loose me and I'll talk to you about it," Nell said. "What kind of a fool do you think I am?" "No, you don't! You tell me where it is and I'll let you go. If I don't find it, I'll come back and kill you with my fist!"

 Nell thought: If I had an hour, I could release myself. His worth. He said: "I'll try to get the wooden bracon that stands on Absalom Point."

The man growled in pretended indifference. "Which direction?" He's silent. Nell thought, and went on. "Stand with your back against the beam and face the big beam that goes in the field. Take six full steps toward the beam and dig in the sand. It's not buried deep. I don't have time." The man was silent, and Nell held himself tense for the outcome. "All right," he said at last, "and help you if you're lying!"

What happened? For an instant he was filled with misgivings. There was a sense of "What shall I do?" the voice quavered. "I don't know! I couldn't get out of your grip if I had the commandments!"

Eyster finally lowered himself over the edge of the hatch and legs. Nell's captor leaped up. He could have embraced the little man then.

The minutes later the two of them dropped to the salubre. Eyster was shaking with nervousness. Nell turned to take a look at his prison. He had no light but he felt he could have embraced the little man then.

AIR STEWARDESS DIES SUDDENLY

Body of Miss Cecelia Gilligan Found in Hollywood Hotel Room

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Sept. 11 (AP)—The body of Miss Cecelia Gilligan, chief stewardess of Western Air Express, was found today in her room at the Hollywood Plaza hotel, where she registered early Friday morning as Patricia McGuire.

Police inclined to the belief that she died of natural causes, probably a heart attack, but an autopsy was ordered for Monday morning.

Detective Lt. Jack Dwight said preliminary examination of the body and room disclosed no evidence that Miss Gilligan had been slain or ended her own life. He denied rumors that a note had been found clenching in her hand.

Soon after Miss Gilligan arrived at the hotel with an overnight bag, she placed a "do not disturb" sign on her room door. Today, because the sign still remained and a maid had been unable to gain entrance, hotel management ordered a bell boy to force his way in.

He found the body, clad only in a pair of shorts.

Raulo Golig

Mrs. Doris R. Steins, proprietress of the rooming house in Burbank where Miss Gilligan was found, told police the radio in the girl's room was going until after 3 a. m. Friday. The registry showed she arrived at 3:40 a. m.

Mrs. Steins said she entered Miss Gilligan's room at 11:30 a. m. and found it in great disorder—something very unusual, as Miss Gilligan was usually tidy.

Miss Gilligan joined Western Air Express in 1934 and was one of the company's first stewardesses. Her home was in Panama, Iowa.

A year ago her name was linked romantically with that of LeRoy Kling of Cedar Rapids, Iowa's most eligible bachelor, whose she most likely was flying to to be the guest of Mae West after winning a "Go West, Young Man" contest.

His line officials and friends were unable to say why Miss Gilligan registered at the hotel.

No Companion

So far as could be learned, she was not seen at the hotel with any companion, man or woman. She was seen in the hotel lobby alone yesterday afternoon, but apparently returned to her room, because the "do not disturb" sign was noticed on her door again this morning.

She was scheduled to have started on a plane flight to San Diego at 8:45 a. m. today, but whether she did was disputed. Her place when she was assigned, Mrs. Gilligan's name were between Los Angeles and San Diego and Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

She has been cast a principal in various supposed spy romances, but always said "nothing to it."

G. O. P. CONCERNED OVER PENNSYLVANIA CONTEST

Choice of State Chairman May Have Vital Bearing on Party's Course

NEW YORK WHIRLWIND
By James McMillin

KEYSTONE. The State Republican Committee of Pennsylvania will meet to elect a new chairman on the 25th of this month. There is a fierce contest behind the scenes between conservative and liberal factions for control. The outcome of this contest may have a bearing on the future course to be steered by the G. O. P. nationally, and New York leaders are watching it closely from that angle.

Two points should be borne in mind when the names of candidates for Pennsylvania are discussed: Pennsylvania is an indispensable keystone of any general Republican comeback. If the G. O. P. cannot win in the future course to be steered by the G. O. P. nationally, and New York leaders are watching it closely from that angle.

CANDIDATES. With this background, the principals and their records are as follows—the seconds being considerably more important.

In the liberal corner is S. Stephen Stankester, former campaign manager for ex-governor George Meade. His chief second is Mr. Pinchot himself, who is seeking to stage a personal comeback of his own here.

The conservative candidate is Edward Green, acting chairman of the state committee. He fronts for Sun Oil magnate Joseph Pew. Mr. Pew is an English-born oil baron and director of the Pennsylvania Republican organization in 1936. His aims to remain the power behind the throne. E. T. Weir of National Steel works closely with him in political activities.

Mr. Weir sees any sense in applying the Democrats by "costing" to have. Both feel that the Republican party solution lies in fortifying conservatism. If Green wins on September 25, as is probable, it will mean that the Pennsylvania G. O. P. is committed to a definite and uncompromising right wing attitude.

LEVITT. People who know him well predict that Albert Levitt will crash the limelight this fall—and that New Yorkers will wish they had never heard of him before he gets through. Mr. Levitt is the New York lawyer who has filed a motion with the supreme court—which will hear it next term—to slay the "Fugate" in the constitution. This motion has caused a hide-bound right winger. It is anything but. His colorful career includes being the instructor of Dwight D. Stoddieville Theological Seminary, instructor of Arts from Columbia, instructor of jurisprudence from Yale. He has taught law and philosophy

One of the tragic things of life is the fact that so many deafened persons are going along with the mistaken idea that nothing can be done to help them. INSURANCE CHIEF WELCOMES TEST

Action to Determine Death Benefit Associations' Powers Failed

Current court actions to test legal powers of death benefit associations are "an excellent thing," State Insurance Director W. H. Baker told Twin Falls life underwriters at a meeting here yesterday.

The meeting was the first of the current session for the local group. As principal speaker on the short luncheon program, Baker described reasons for actions of Attorney General J. W. Taylor in bringing suit to test extent of powers of the death benefit groups.

The actions are based on actuarial technicalities in relation to collection of dues by the associations. "I believe it is a good thing to determine at this time exactly what powers these groups have, and what actions are permissible to them under our state laws," Baker said.

"Their actions should rest entirely on the law as it stands on the statute books," he said.

A. T. Watson, local underwriter, made a brief report on the national convention of life underwriters, held at Denver in August.
