train service men, the lower paid employees, a wage increase of five cents an hour, at a cost of about $100,000,000 annually.

Now the train service unions, the highest paid railroad men in the world, threaten to strike if they don't get a 20 per cent increase which would add another $100,000,000 annual operating cost to the railroads.

The current net income is not sufficient to meet these proposed higher operating expenses—even if every nickel of it were applied to them. Where can the lines get the money to meet such increased expenditures? From just one place—higher rates to the consuming public.

The facts speak for themselves and show the seriousness of the situation. It has been repeatedly stated that the stage is being deliberately set to force the railroads into bankruptcy in order that they may be taken over by the government.

And will the people pay when politicians thrust through Congress a bill for $1,600,000,000 deficit for less than two years of government operation of the railroads during the war?

AN AMERICAN PORTRAIT

A quiet evening in the normal routine of the average American. In other words, as Mr. A. B. C. has so aptly remarked, he lives his life in a state of permanent emergency.

The first thing in order of preference is reading the newspaper, or perhaps a magazine. Comfortably seated in his easy chair, your American turns on the radio, expects a football game, or so when he goes to the movies.

In an average year this average American buys a month's supply of one of the Soft drinks, may tempt him a couple of times a week, and maybe once a month he buys a pack of cigarettes, a pipe, or its equivalent in cigars or a chewing tobacco supply.

VERMONT HUMOR

After a descent upon the mountains from all parts of the globe have been taken and named, a college professor comes to the conclusion that the best of Vermont is best when he is teaching in his state.

This is a bold assertion of a sort dear to the hearts of great outdoors who fill the columns for it is controversial without being too contentious, and as hopeless as any comparison between the two.

One may well wonder whether Representative Robert Bailey's outbreak against the current highway study was calculated to help the cause of the highway law.

Mr. Bailey complained the legislature had authorized an audit, not an investigation, and that the highway study was not a study at all, but a mere investigation, and going back to 1932 and forward to 1937.

The public wants to know the facts, however it gets them, and undoubtedly the bulk of the department's report will be in the line of that nature.

One may wonder whether Representative Robert Bailey's outbreak against the current highway study was calculated to help the cause of the highway law.

When Politics Takes The Wheel: A strike of 350,000 men in train service unions is threatened because the railroads have refused to increase pay 20 per cent as demanded.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG (NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS)

WASHINGTON BY RAY TUCKER: SERIOUS. President Roosevelt's family and friends—who take their cues from the chief—were unbelievably bitter against Hugo L. Black for feeling that way.

They suspect that Mr. Roosevelt feels badly about the "black" epithet which he has so tragically adopted. The President privately plans to give the associate justice a check to enable him to leave the country in a hurry.

They expect that Mr. Roosevelt feels badly about the "black" epithet which he has so tragically adopted. The President privately plans to give the associate justice a check to enable him to leave the country in a hurry.

TRAPPED. The Rooseveltians are particularly sore because the sensational exposure of the President's "black" epithet is being so widely publicized.

Black. New Dealers—and other folk—have been running to fashionable economic doctors to get their own medicine prescribed for the street.

Anti-Roosevelt experts offer another reason after pouring over charts describing the market's behavior since the President's election.

My first big-time editor, John A. Vandenberg, said a slip of the pen and no glass was with a broad black ribbon.

Personal nomination for the most plausibly of all newspaper reporters—Frank Ward O'Malley.

O'Malley was the only reporter I ever knew whose writings became generally known without a by-line. He wrote for the New York Times.

It was at least one column-long and half a dozen lines wide, and it was a half a dozen others ranging from a half to a quarter column. Now and then it would appear in the paper.

Diagnoses. Joe Cook is part wren in a middle class and quite often he is a part wren in a neighborhood.

DINNER GIVEN: Mr. and Mrs. Larned gave a delightful dinner party last night at the home of Mrs. Larned.

MANY RUNAWAYS: There has been a runaway almost every day for the past week. Several runaways have occurred in the city.

Wendell Welcomes Returning Pastor: WENDELL, Sept. 17 (By Rev. and Mrs. Carl M. Davidson) received news of the return of the pastor.

BELETT BY: "Beledder, my boy," said the elderly woman, "that's what you're not doing."

THE VITAL QUESTION: "They are holding hands and a deathly silence prevailed. He had a feeling, yes, and that feeling was that he should ask the all-important question."

A DROP IN THE PUCKET: Pat was engaged in putting a water main into the workhouse. He had a bucket of water.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE: NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Dairy: Up 1 1/2 c. milk. Butter: Down 1/2 c. short. Eggs: Up 1/2 c. large.

Some moving to New York City: Greenwich to see what is being planned. Big Greek in family reunions. Roosevelt learned to milk a cow.

New York now has so few breads among artists and writers that they are now regarded as an oddity. Twenty years ago every newspaper had at least a half dozen writers.

FIERY CROSS PLAGUES DEMOCRATIC LEADERS

Administration Aware of Political Consequences of Klan Controversy

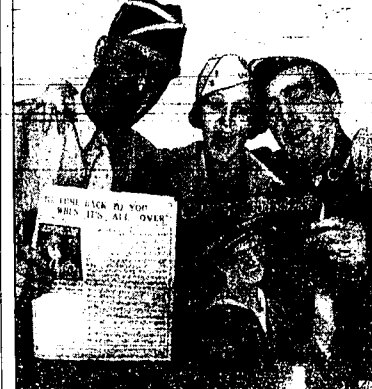

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Out of the far past, the story of an oath taken beneath fiery crosses under a star lit sky arose this week to plague the Roosevelt administration.
It was September 11, 1923. A host of men marched into the city hall of an old lake in a Birmingham park and were sworn into the Ku Klux Klan, hands uplifted in the yellow light of burning crosses.

MOTOR MAKERS REDUCE DELAYS

Shutdowns in Preparation For New Models Short on Record

By DAVID J. WILKIE
DETROIT, Sept. 18.—When the various manufacturing units of the motor car industry announced suspensions for next model re-tooling during the last few weeks, they promised without exception that the shutdown of assembly lines would be the shortest on record.
Without exception every plant has made good this promise, some of them stopping late in 1936 production in less than 10 days after the last 1937 model left the line. Hereafter the peak of new-model re-tooling will close down for from four to six weeks and even then the task of placing new presses, drill and other manufacturing equipment was not always complete.

SENATOR CALLS FOR COALITION

Michigan Solon Declares 'Realignment Already Exists'

BY CITY, Mich., Sept. 18 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) called tonight for a "union of heart and hand regardless of present party lines" as the only form for successful opposition to what he termed "the Roosevelt party."
In an address prepared for delivery at a statewide Republican rally here, Michigan's senior senator proposed, in effect, a coalition of anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans. The speech was broadcast over a radio which was also carried by Senator Vandenberg, said "indeed, Republican and Democratic."
"Republicans and Democrats—and out of congress—have been in repeated coalition against a new party (the Roosevelt-Fairly-LaFollette party) for the preservation of great American fundamentals which transcend normal partisan divisions. Republican and Democratic have elected ranks in common cause for the defense of American individualism."
Vandenberg said this coalition was responsible for the defeat of President Roosevelt's Supreme court reorganization bill.

the dark ships

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, finds his beloved Janet locked in a cabin on Prescott Fanning Smith at Alabaster Harbor. With her are a gun and Fanning's freshly shot body. Neill hires a boatman to take him to the pier, then joins Mark Bonnier, a keen local investigator, to keep tabs on developments. He shows Janet shot the swindler until he learns a man was hiding on the yacht. Then he suspects quarry little Eyster, who hated Fanning. Also in the picture are Kettering, a Patmore lawyer down to earth, and Ira Buckles, a tough who trails Neill. A fisherman finds Scott of Fanning's motor that Neill threw away in anger.

Chapter 28
Searching the ships
"Well," continued Bonnier, "upon the supposition that the packet was thrown or dropped in the river last night, I started figuring the time of the tide and the rate of flow. And my calculations show that it had made a trip down the river and was on the way back again. If I am right, the fugitives are still in the neighborhood and they dropped this packet in the river at a point some distance north of where it was found. What's up there? Nothing but the abandoned ships? I'm getting ready to search them."

Neill felt as if all the ground had suddenly been cut from under his feet. He had to say something, and quickly. "It's a job."

"You're right. That's what I have brought in the police for. I'm going to take him a dozen of the steeplemen in the village also. Kettering will be with us. And I'm counting on you, of course."

Neill could not refuse to go. He drew a long breath to steady his voice. "I will soon be dark. You should wait until morning."

"It's dark anyhow inside the ships. We can search them as well by night as by day."

Neill could say nothing more. He had to be arranged to have his party of 16 men carried up the road in three cars at intervals of five minutes in order not to attract too much attention in the village. Bonnier himself and Neill went in the first car. Neill, taken by surprise and having no time to plan anything, rode like a man who had received a blow on the head.

All my own fault, he thought. If I had not pitched that movie overboard, my wife would still be safe.

The Skiff Gone, Too
Captain Bickel, who had been notified by telephone of their intentions, was waiting on the shore. He said: "I borrowed an additional skiff from the farmer up the beach to come time."

This was another setback for Neill. If he was able to take a canoe for himself for the party, he counted on using that skiff himself.

Bonnier and Neill were rowed to the Montpelier. Gradually the whole party assembled on the forward deck. Vigil, leather faced and bright eyed, was there chewing his cigar, also Kettering, going about as usual, and Neill, whose body, it made Neill sore to see how all these men were enjoying the attempt at a man-hunt.

"A man-hunt is the greatest sport of all boys," Neill proceeded to point his men at salient points about the ships. A guard was stationed on the forward bridge of each vessel and another on the after bridge. From these positions they overlooked the lower deck. He also placed a man on each of the three gangways that connected the vessels. Everybody was provided with a powerful flashlight. Bickel and his three men brought the force up to 20. While they waited for Bonnier to complete these arrangements, Kettering approached Neill. "Have any luck today?"

"None whatever," said Neill.

"Kettering lowered his voice. "Clark I chased for you in this situation, Wheatley. The strain must be awful."

"I'll have Neill a hasty start. No Kettering knew, too. How many apies were there around him? Keeping his voice he said: "I don't get you, Mr. Kettering."

"Oh, you don't have to keep up with me," said Kettering. "I'm on your side. If there's any trick we could pull off together, you have to say the word."

Neill solemnly replied: "I don't know what you are shiving at."

"Well, I am sorry you won't trust me," said Kettering. "I will help you if I could."

The men being packed, the leaders of the party went into Captain Bickel's cabin to study the plans of the ships. Bonnier said: "We'll start searching on this ship."

"Is it likely they would hide an ape to me?" asked Bickel.

"The ladder is on this ship," said Bonnier. "How else could they get aboard or leave?"

Neill breathed easier. This gave him a little time.

Each The Good A Plan
Bonnier agreed out the cabin plans of the Montpelier. In addition to the public rooms, they had a couple of hundred sleeping cabins strung along the five decks.

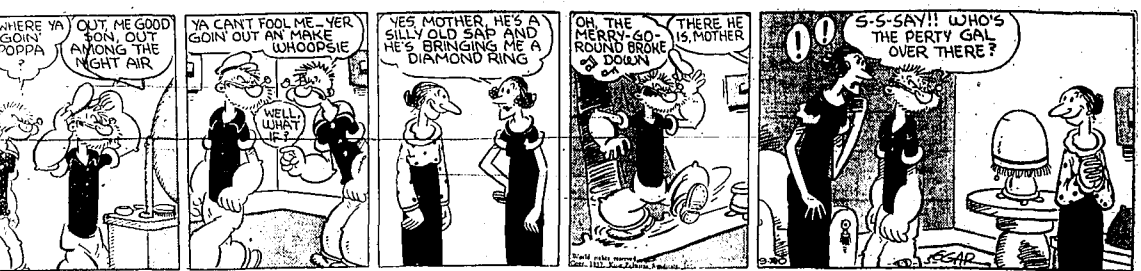

"We need 20 men to do this right," reminded Wilson. "It's worse than mine galleries."

"We'll do with what we have," said Bonnier. "We'll start at the top and work down. Notice that there are no galleys on this ship. They must be put on each so that while we are going down our stairs we can keep tabs on them."

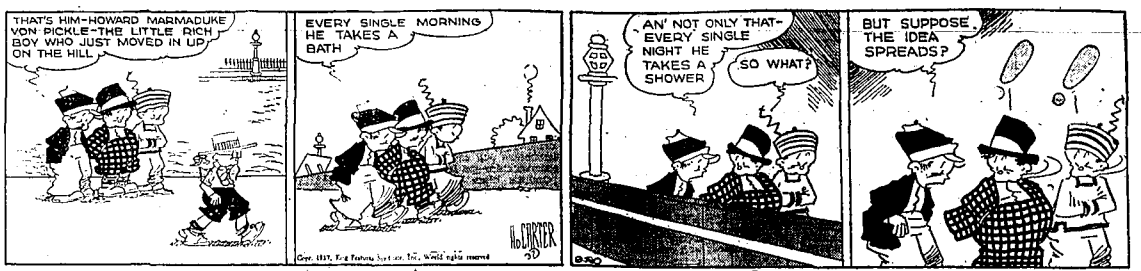

Wilson, Bonnier, Wheatley and I will do the actual search on the lower decks. We'll divide orders and our men take the starboard cabins, the other part. As we finish each deck, I'll blow a whistle and everybody will move one flight down the stairs together. Thus if the men about this ship we are bound to trip them on the lowest deck."

Everybody approved this plan. Neill, it quizzed his difficulties. However, his mind had begun to work again, and a sudden way of beginning to take shape. Before they left, Bickel's cabin he took a look at the plan of the Alabaster. The little veranda of Janet's cabin, he saw, was under the fourth window of the promenade

LAWMAKERS TREK TO IDAHO HOMES

All Four Members of Idaho's Congressional Delegation Return

By WALTER R. BOTCHER

They spent 18 (Idaho's congressional delegation of four soon will all be home.

The members of the quartet—William E. Borah, dean of the senate, where he has served continuously for 20 years; the new senator, Tom H. Hays, who was elected for a six-year term in 1936, despite a Democratic landslide—the homeward journey will be a reminder of the trip that brought him to Nampa, Idaho, as a young lawyer, on the plains of Kansas 47 years ago this fall.

He and Mrs. Borah will take an apartment at a downtown hotel. The senator's secretary, Mrs. Cora Rubin, already has established offices.

Borah usually remains in Idaho until in November.

Senator James F. (Smiling Jim) Hays, who will be a candidate for reelection for a second six-year term in 1938, is established in a downtown hotel and preparing to attend a series of conferences throughout the west on the crop insurance and extraordinary grants bills which he is sponsoring in congress.

Clark in Demand
Congressman C. W. Young, clerk of the second district, handsome, diplomatic and law trained at Notre Dame, is in demand as a prospective opponent for the senior Pope in the Democratic primary Aug. 8, 1938—is in demand as a speaker at various celebrations.

Congressman Clement J. White of the first district, returns to his home town at Clark Fork, in the north, talked of for a fourth consecutive term in 1938.

White has kept his offices in the east.

All of the four, but Borah, are Democrats.

And all but Borah came up for reelection—if they choose to run again next year.

The terms of two members of Idaho's five-man congressional delegation expire at the close of 1939. They are those of Chief Justice William M. Morgan and Justice Edwin M. Holden.

If they elect to run again, they must be nominated by the non-partisan primary next August.

Mrs. Margaret Holton, Borah's lovely popular daughter of justice, dean of the Idaho supreme court, wife of Paul Henry, assistant state commissioner of reclamation, in Washington, D. C., listing on the side of a secretary in the department of state for a few months.

"I'll get to missing you pretty soon and be back as usual. I'll do to Washington myself," says husband's.

Chief Brand of C. A. Hoffmann, publisher of the Asco Advertiser and managing editor of the Blackfoot Bulletin, says he "positively" will be a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1938. He has mentioned.

March in 1940, they say.

The team, which is now in the midst of its training, is expected to be one of the best in the state.

There is only one catch to it—namely, one of the dozen lettermen at Albion.

But with a few stragglers and the other side of the coin, the team is expected to be one of the best in the state. The team is now in the midst of its training, and is expected to be one of the best in the state.
