Government Agents Arrest Secondo Frank Conti On Charge of Attempting to Extort in Kidnap Case

(By The Associated Press) SALT LAKE CITY, April 16—A 46-year-old Italian waiter was accused today of attempting to extort $25,000 from the family of 12-year-old Peter Levine, held in captivity in the New Rochelle, N. Y., youth to his family by Easter Sunday.

Arrested by agents of the federal bureau of investigation last week, the second Conti, who works at the Hotel Commodore in New York City, admitted writing the letters, agents said, but claimed it was engineered into this story by two other men.

In Washington, the department of justice declared in its first announcement of the arrest that the kidnaping of February 24 was not solved.

Blames Others Conti, well-dressed and quiet-spoken, was taken before U. S. Commissioner Edward D. Dunne, who had read the Conti's complaint charging that on April 11 he mailed a $10,000 demand and "requested" the return of his son, a 12-year-old kidnaped person, named Peter Levine, he said he had not asked for the money, but only wanted to see his son.

Bond was set at $5,000 and Conti, unable to raise the amount, was held in the Salt Lake county jail. Hearing was set for 10 a. m. Wednesday.

On leaving the arraignment Conti told reporters:

"I was engaged in this thing by two other fellows. I don't know the men, except by the names of Chuck and Jack. They claimed to be from the east and changed their names to Peter and John Levine. I only did what they asked me to do. I met them in Denver."

It was in Denver on March 4 that the first extortion letter was mailed, agents said. It was sent to Conti on Page 1, Col. 4.

Agreement Patches Up Three Years' Quarrels

(By The Associated Press) ROME, April 16 (Italy and Great Britain tonight signed an agreement which paved the way for a possible four or five-power peace line-up in Europe.

The accord patched up British and Italian African and Mediterranean quarrels which might have led to war during the last three years.

While it was hailed with satisfaction by British Foreign Minister Ciano and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in an exchange of telegrams, Italy still must carry out the promise to withdraw her troops from Spain, during or after the civil war, before it will become fully operative.

Points in fact fully signed by British Foreign Minister Ciano and the Earl of Perth, the British ambassador, included:

1. Withdrawal of Italian troops from the end of the civil war, if evacuation is not completed earlier.

2. Britain in return agreed to work through the League of Nations toward recognition of Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

3. Italy reassured Britain she had no designs on the Mediterranean.

4. Italy agreed to the 1938 London naval treaty among Great Britain, the United States and France.

5. Both countries reaffirmed their support of the Buez canal which guarantees free use of the Buez canal at all times for all powers.

LEADERS ATTACK SPENDING PLANS

Republicans to Carry Fight to Country Against 'Pump-Priming'

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP)—Republican leaders agreed today to carry a fight to the country against further huge "pump-priming" expenditures by the federal government, but Democratic critics of the president refused in the main to go along with them.

The Roosevelt opposition within the Democratic party determined, however, to join in a vigorous effort to restrict the president's authority over his proposed $4,500,000 program for "pump-priming" and spending to end the depression.

Favor Prolonged Debate Some Republicans said they hoped this effort to "cut across" the president's program would be used to win re-election in 1940.

The Republican national committee announced that John Hamilton, its chairman, would speak over a national (Columbia) radio network at 8 p. m. tonight. Sunday night he will discuss the question "where are we bound?"

Alide said it would be his first address over a national radio network since last November 6.

Vandenberg to Speak There was no advance indication as to what Hamilton might say, but reporters had no doubt the probable trend of another address by Hamilton would be to urge members of Michigan, a 1940 Republican presidential possibility, over another (national) network at 8 p. m. tonight.

Shortly after the president submitted his recovery and relief program to Congress yesterday, Vandenberg commented:

I must reject his removal of a program spending program which is the result and because that is the result, in part, which has brought us where we are today.

Small, Early Season Shipments Called Determining Factor

Small, early-season shipments of Great Northern beans from western Nebraska to consuming territory has become a controlling factor in the bean market, Quinn Wilson, manager of the Charles W. Barlow company, said here yesterday.

The tendency of the trade to price the season with the account which they opened, as long as the quality was equal, Wilson continued, "has also strengthened the Nebraska operators in their objective and position."

CUT IN PROJECT FUNDS FORECAST

Twin Springs Appropriation May Be Slashed by $250,000

By JOHN L. WHEELER
Associated Press Idaho Correspondent
WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP)—Informed persons say that to win house approval it may be necessary for the senate to accept a $250,000 cut in the $1,000,000 it added to the interior department appropriations bill for the state on the Twin Springs supplemental water supply project in the Boise valley.

They agree, however, that such a cut would do no harm, that the important objective is to win congressional approval for the project. Once a star is made, they argue, work will continue.

This approval is generally expected because President Roosevelt recommended the project's construction by asking the budget bureau to send congress a supplemental estimate for inclusion in the big appropriations bill which is now in conference.

Requires Four Years

Twin Springs is a big job despite its relatively small cost—$9,000,000—because of the long distance to be traveled by the water.

Engineers estimate the work will require at least four years—perhaps longer if congress is reluctant to supply adequate annual appropriations.

The project involves a 350-foot dam reaching 700 feet across the north end of the Snake river, above the present Arrowrock dam.

It will store 172,000 acre feet of water for irrigation and generate power for pumping purposes.

Here is a reclamation bureau engineer's description of the project: "It is proposed to supplement the water supply of the existing Boise project which has an irrigated area of 165,000 acres—by constructing a reservoir on the Boise river to store additional water from the spring flows and by pumping from the Snake river."

The stored water would be used to supplement the water in Arrowrock for irrigation in the upper division of the project—115,000 acres which receives water through the main canal from Arrowrock.

Surplus water, over the requirements of the upper division, could be released through the Deer Flat reservoir near Nampa and Caldwell for the lower division of 50,000 acres.

A deficiency in the supply for the lower division would be made up from the Snake river water pumped into the Deer Flat reservoir with power from the Twin Springs dam 70 miles away.

A pumping plant of 200-second-foot capacity would be set up. Water would be pumped into a three-mile-long canal linked with the main canal and the Deer Flat reservoir.

Charles C. Gossett, health officer, feels confident he will be Idaho's next governor.

He said so in an interview here during his recent visit in the capital.

Gossett said he believed his record was good, first as a legislator and secondly as a lieutenant governor. Also, he said he was counting on a wide acquaintance to help him defeat incumbent Barreille V. Clark in the August primaries.

Gossett plans to begin an intensive campaign in about six weeks.

Idaho's proposal to divert water from the Yellowstone river through a tunnel in the continental divide to supplement the irrigation supply in the upper Snake river valley appears about as far from an official blessing as in the beginning.

Despite numerous bills submitted by ardent advocates of the plan, the national park service still "can't see it," informers here say.

Reclamation officials here said they were maintaining "a discreet silence."

Principal objection rated by the park service is that such a project might damage the scenic beauty of Yellowstone park.

Representative Compton T. White, congressman in the navy who has a slight heart ailment and a bad sinus, looks forward to an early return to the house. The doctors permit him to sit up and walk around his room a little each day.

Mrs. Letitia Erb, "Tah" to almost everyone in Lewiston, "rubbed" for Representative White at a recent hearing before the house committee on marine and fisheries committee which was considering a bill to authorize the appropriation of $600,000 for fish hatchery facilities on the Columbia river and its tributaries.

Mrs. Erb came to Washington at the beginning of the year to act as clerk of the house irrigation and reclamation committee, which is headed by White.

Ready for Easter Parade

A SILK DRESS, to be worn with a navy blue cape and a navy blue straw ribbon hat, with a crown of green grass, was selected by Mrs. Frank B. D. Roosevelt as one of the two Easter outfits she will wear this dress, chosen in a New York store, if the day is overcast or rainy.

CONFLICT TURNS CHINA INTO LAND OF TRAGEDY

By JAMES A. MILLS

HANKOW, (Correspondent of The Associated Press)—China in war-time is a land of woe and weeping.

The once good-natured, jovial people no longer smile. The war has desolated their hearts and seared their souls.

Japan's "unofficial" war has inflicted incalculable suffering and misery on millions of peasants.

The government estimates that at least 100,000,000 people, or one-fourth the entire population of the country, are affected by the war.

Since the outbreak of the conflict which is now in its eighth month, 600,000 Chinese soldiers have been killed or wounded.

The number of civilians slain or injured by Japanese air-bombings, attacks on villages, bombardment of residential areas, and the burning of homes, according to the government, runs into tens of thousands.

Whole villages and towns have been laid waste.

Scores of universities, colleges, high schools, libraries and cultural institutions have been demolished.

In several instances Chinese hospitals, missions and other charitable and relief institutions have been burned, causing considerable loss of life and property.

Here in China, where I have witnessed the war from its beginning and have traveled from one end of the vast republic to the other, farmers are being driven from their lands, their cattle, and the plows and animals with which they tilled the good earth.

Merchants have lost their shops and merchandise. Laborers have lost their jobs.

Women have lost their children. Thousands of women and girls, the Chinese government authorities assert, have been outraged.

At least one-tenth of China's war-ridden masses have evacuated or lost their homes; the government estimates while the remainder have stayed behind to face whatever fate awaits them in the Japanese-occupied areas.

Of the ten million war-sufferers at least one-half, according to official estimates, are orphans and perishing during their long journeys in search of places of safety and shelter.

The slender finances of the Chinese government, drained by the war, are inadequate to meet the gigantic problem of providing shelter, food, clothing, medicines and heat for these millions of war-déolated, naive and forlorn relief organizations have helped. Contributions of the American Red Cross and of individual Americans and business firms have been a godsend to China's war victims.

Deaths of hardships and dangers, most of China's war-refugees, driven like frightened animals from their homes, walked hundreds of miles over badly-rutted roads, in freezing cold weather and scantily clad, in search of cover and protection.

Perish by Wayside
The old, the sick and the weak unable to bear the hardships of the long pilgrimage, perished by the wayside.

Starved, starved, exhausted and deprived of all means of livelihood, these hordes of homeless humanity poured into the cities and towns under the war-zones like a great maelstrom of human misery and despair on the sea of life.

Working other facilities the municipal authorities lodged the army of refugees, hungry and footsore, in warehouses, temples, open fields, and even in cemeteries the living mingling with the dead.

There is no such thing as a real bed in these places, so the war-refugees have been obliged to sleep on the bare earth or stone floors, some of them without a stitch of covering.

Regardless of sex, all are thrown together like frightened, hunted animals. Babies are born in the night, without a son to ease the agony of the mother. Fear-stricken children cry for lost parents who already beside the living.

The sick and the exhausted die all around them.

It is a spectacle of concentrated human misery.

War!

MANEUVERS TEST PACIFIC DEFENSE

Gigantic Sham Battle for Possession of Coast May Change Plans

HONOLULU, April 16 (AP)—Concluding the fleet's most rigorous and costly maneuvers, the vanguard of the United States navy will depart Monday to assume positions for a theoretical defense of the California coast. The fleet's operations, including at least one aircraft carrier, is expected to leave by Thursday.

These two forces will stage a gigantic sham battle for tactical possession of the coast in the final phases of far-ranging war games, which may change the navy's plans for defense of the Pacific region in war-time.

Observers believe that aviation divers which cost 11 lives and $500,000 in equipment will force the navy to abandon the theory that new, long-range patrol planes can supersede destroyers as the fleet's eyes.

The navy's official secret inquiry into two crashes and seven forced landings of the coast in the final phases of the fleet's exercises, therefore are incapable of assuming major scouting duties.

Two of them crashed on March 10, with 11 deaths; another sank and seven made successful forced landings when mist and rain obscured their base.

Although officers generally have declined to comment on whether aircraft engine battlements, Rear Admiral Joseph B. Tassell, commander of cruisers, scouting force, voiced his opinion that destroyers were capable of restoring an aeromarine assault.

The fleet's final problem, the Hawaii assault upon California, will find forces divided into the defending "green" and attacking purple forces. The former will be commanded by Vice Admiral William T. Tamm, scouting force commander. Admiral Edward C. Kalous will command the "attackers."

Southern Branch Gives Guinea Pigs Fine Names

POCAHELLO, April 16 — While Canadian officials attempt to determine a stork derby winner, and Mama and Papa Dionne announce the birth of a 13th heir, Andy and Alley, the Southern Branch's pair of guinea pigs, continue adding to the list of names with alarming regularity, pharmacy students report.

The latest blessed events—three of them—arrived March 30 at Mrs. and Mr. G. P. Pig's greenhouse home, west of Tupper hall.

A trio of pharmacy students, Mrs. Annie Austin, Ph.D., R. V. Daniels, M.A.; and Dick McGehee, Logan, Utah, has been selected to name the new arrivals.

Andy and Alley, whose full names are Andrew and Allegra, were brought to the campus last November by Professor E. E. Hoxce to be used in black widow spider toxin experiments.

DRIVE ON APPLE SURPLUS STARTS

Producer-Consumer Campaign Seeks Market for 12,000 Bushels

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The nation-wide "Eat-an-Apple-a-Day" drive moved 7,487,000 bushels of last year's gigantic crop out of storage during March, but even greater results in the first five weeks of this year were foreseen here by Carol R. Miller, of Manhattan, W. Va., chairman of the Apple Growers' National Committee.

Despite the "excellent results" of the attack on the surplus of the 1937 apple crop—the second largest in the country's history—12,000 bushels remained in storage, April 1, according to Mr. Miller. He said he received those figures from U. S. Department of Agriculture today. He added, representing an amount 43 per cent above the five-year average of apples normally in storage on that date.

The apple-marketing drive already proved the biggest and most successful enterprise of the sort ever undertaken and the end is not yet in sight, Mr. Miller said. Producers in 12 states have co-operated in the campaign—working largely through chain stores, although they have been helped by many independents. The chains, however, through their high-speed distribution systems have been especially effective.

It is difficult to measure the results. Of course, the drive has cost hundreds of thousands of dollars in savings to apple growers. But the consumers have been directly benefited too. Apples are one of the most economical and healthful of foods. If everybody would just eat an apple a day...

The present drive, the sixth week's attempt this year to clear storage of the surplus, is being led by the kind ever engineered by the apple growers. Mr. Miller said that it was launched co-operatively through the national apple association. He is the head of the Appalachian group, embracing West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Apples Lead
"Growers have tried to move surplus crops through chain stores before, and great results were obtained in promotion of sales of grapefruit and canned peaches, but the apple campaign has proved to be the most effective and successful," Mr. Miller continued.

The apple crop last year totaled 211,000,000 bushels, or 10 per cent above the 1937 average. The surplus of 12,000 bushels is more than average. Mr. Miller said only one year of the surplus has been in storage. Production that year the crop was 8,000,000 bushels larger than in 1937, but the problem of moving the surplus market was not so difficult, Mr. Miller said.

Industrial conditions were better in 1937, he said, and the public bought more freely.

REPUBLICANS MAP CAMPAIGN PLANS

Idaho Leaders Discuss Methods of Finance and Policy

BOISE, April 16 (AP)—Methods of finance, publicity and campaign policy were discussed by the Idaho Republican party executive committee at a session here today.

C. A. Boffelsof of Blackfoot, state chairman, presided.

Other members of the committee who attended were R. P. Parry of Twin Falls, former state chairman; Stephen W. Whitten of Idaho City; Robert E. Letch of Payette and Ralph Breshers of Boise.

"We confined ourselves to finance, publicity and policy," Boffelsof said. "Under a period of relative inactivity in Idaho, we are going forward vigorously, and the outlook is optimistic."

Once during the day the committee called Harry Harn, Clark county senator and chairman of the party's program committee, before it.

Senator Harn said he reported progress in accumulating information and suggestions as to what recommendations should be made to the party's state convention, which follows the primary election August 7.

In the lobby of the hotel in which the executive committee met, Republicans gathered from many parts of the state to discuss campaign plans.

All expressed optimism over party prospects in Idaho next November.

All state offices are filled by Democrats, who swept into power in 1932.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The Story So Far: Loving couple one day, the pretty Judith goes to marry Reuben Oliver—self-made man and outsider—for his money, only to discover that his fortune is lost. With different backgrounds, different codes, a clash is inevitable. Judith refuses to help Reuben make a fresh start with money he gave her family, but she will stick to her marriage. Forced to take a mining job in Nevada, Reuben brings her to dismal Fordney's Gulch.

Chapter 23
Repressed Hatred
—Like a flash upon a screen Judith saw her life as she had planned it with Gary—from this distance achingly beautiful. She forgot Gary's waverings, his irresponsibility and remembered only his perfection as one remembers only the good qualities of the dead. She tried to shut him from her vision, but he invaded the little room like an actual physical presence. Somewhere in the world was Gary!

Morning did not brighten the outlook of life in Fordney's Gulch. Not a word to be heard in town. The women of the place uttered bedridden, did their own work in seclusion of their own work. There was good-natured rivalry among them.

She saved all day and every day in a futile effort to make the little house clean and attractive. Her endeavors to have something to eat in the evening were pathetic. The house reeked of burnt fumes, of scorched aluminum wares and smoke. Judith always had a cut or burnt finger. When Reuben came home he kissed the injured member, and set about preparing more food.

When the meal was eaten he helped her wash the dishes. Then they set about trying to bring a semblance of beauty and order to the impetuous little house. It was a hopeless task. Judith's rug covered the floor completely and she had not turned under round the sides. Dick Hockett's table—it had belonged to an ancestor—painted with the faded, yellow and like mellow gold, upon the wall behind it look more muddy by contrast. The lamp with the white shade and green shade made an incongruous blob of color and the Sevres vase stood out like a lily in a field of candlesticks.

Dreams of Home
"It's no use," Judith sighed disconsolately. "Our things are all wrong somehow."
Reuben agreed, puzzled because they couldn't make things look right. The rest of the evening he viewed the effect were frank in their comments.
"Your carpet's too big, Miss Oliver."
"I know it, Mrs. Kravis. I didn't realize it was so mammoth." Not for worlds would she have blurted that the room was small. Casper Street braced about the size of its living room as compared to that of Newman Street.

"It's old and kinda faded anyway," Mrs. Kravis criticized Casper's gorgeous gift critically. "Throw it out and get yourself a couple of those Wilton scatterers down at the Emporium."

And he went on. An endless procession of dirty dishes, dirty clothes, Wood, Splinters, Chopped bands, burnt fingers, Rain, Mud, Loneliness.

"Thanksgiving came to Fordney's Gulch. Judith knew it because every woman in the town appreciated the greater part of the day cooking a turkey. Judith didn't cook a turkey. Reuben was called to the mine right in the middle of Thanksgiving.

Not having to cook dinner gave Judith a margin of time to go to visit her aunt and uncle. She had to sit by the front window and look out at the street, nearby, near the little street, with its gas station, its third rate moving picture house, its five and ten—

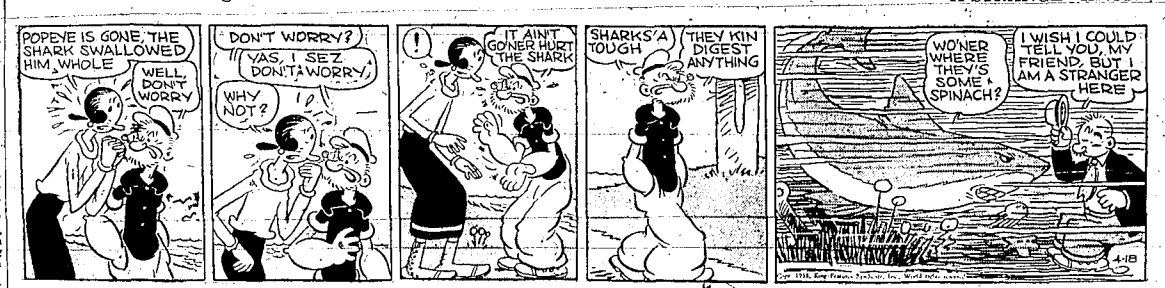

Thanksgiving! Judith had nothing to be thankful for. At issue this morning there had been the Monk Breakfast, a blushing Beverly here in the dining room. Amos and Jess, passing coffee, had rolls, browned pieces of fried chicken.

Afterwards the pair of old sis, John's followed by a run across frosty fields—dog baying—calling—

HORRIBLE INCIDENT
Sunday's rent wailed to Judith's eyes making the lights of the gas station wink and sputter. If she could only go home and see the old house, the little house that was her marriage!
"I'm over at Goddard's office now. And tonight, at the house, all the old crowd would dance in pink coats—and festive frocks. It should be a grand affair. She had even been clean, fresh, most temperate, well grounded."
In such moments of introspection, Judith hated Reuben with a bitter, repressed hatred. He was meddling and nobody and all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't make him his own. He was a failure in a business man, too. He couldn't stay in the place he had made for himself. Couldn't climb any higher at the mine—

If she had given him back the money he asked her, she would have all her heart and soul in the bargain between them would have ended. Now because she believed in such things as honor and decency as long as that hedge about life in Fordney's Gulch—life in hell were synonymous to Judith.

KITCHEN NOISES

Clattering in Home Tops Motor Traffic on City Streets

ST. LOUIS, April 16 (AP)—A noise expert offers husbands this excuse for staying out at night—the wife makes more racket in the kitchen than motor traffic on busy city streets.

A discovery was made by Waco Glasgow of Washington University, technical adviser to the chamber of commerce and noise committee, when he took his noise meter into a "typical home"—the woman's building at the college—for the test.

The "wives" were dramatic students, and they went through all the acts of preparing a meal, washing dishes and cleaning house. One of the most interesting results came from the fan-like clanging of a dishpan against the radiator or other metal object. The loudest sound recorded was a wooden mallet carried on quite unobtrusively until it recorded the noise at 103 decibels.

The highest street noise in recent tests was 105 decibels. The meter did establish, however, how much noise a husband makes when he walks out and slams the door behind him. This is a mere 98 decibels, but louder than the average auto horn.

And banging the tea kettle down on the stove is no way to end a quarrel; for it fills the room with decibels—in fact.

The noise abates to 78 during the dish washing process. Then friends drop in for bridge, and up it goes to 85—or higher.

Land Hikes

Lake Front Rents

BOISE, April 16 (AP)—The state land board adopted today a resolution presented by Secretary of State Ira H. Masters one of its members, calling for an increase in rentals on state-owned, lake front properties in Idaho.

The board instructed State Park Commissioner Conrad to make a survey of all such lands and report to the board, which then will take action.

It also passed another resolution presented by State Auditor Harry C. Jones, directing the state engineer to withdraw from sale at all state lands now being used for summer dwellings.

The resolution recommended that it be preserved and used for recreation purposes.

The board approved land, timber sales and mining leases and voted to accept payments from several school districts, including $4,000 from Twin Falls county.

FRICK WITH GRACEFUL "SWING SKIRT" PATTERN 4733
by Anne Adams
The most enchanting frock ever designed by Anne Adams is this delightful little model that even a beginner will find easy to make! When you go a-partying, leaning, or hitting you'll receive many compliments on the daintiness of your open sleeves, becoming yoke, cut bodice, and pretty touches of grosgrain ribbon. Of course you know that a graceful swing skirt suits at this "newest thing out." Any number of the new Summer silhouettes would prove appropriate for this simple model, but Anne Adams specially recommends flowered synthol or silk crepe. PLANS LAID FOR HISTORIC FLIGHT

Scores File Letters for First Airmail Trip From Twin Falls

Airmail covers containing letters to be sent on the first flight of mail out of Twin Falls, scheduled May 19, have begun to find their way to the Chamber of Commerce office. It was announced yesterday by J. Edward Warner, chairman of the special committee for National Airmail week, May 15-21. More than a score of the parcels have already been received and each day brings increasing numbers.

The flight will be made from the city by Lionel A. Dean, local transport pilot, as the highlight of local participation in the week of national observance. Dean will fly the mail to Boise where it will be placed on one of the regular transcontinental planes.

Warner announced yesterday that the Twin Falls cachet, of "first flight sent" would probably be chosen from the list of the week from a number of samples submitted to the local committee.

Warner announced a list of instructions for those who wish to have letters mailed on the historical flight. He said that letters should be franked with any type of stamp desired, six cents an ounce or fraction thereof is required for all letters. The entire left half of the envelope should be left free for the placing of the cachet.

"This cover service and cachet service is absolutely free," Warner said, "and there is no limit to the number of covers which can be sent. It is possible that before the first flight, special stamps commemorating the week will be issued by the postoffice department."

Warner also announced that local stamp collectors would have a chance to make a valuable addition to their own files in May by acquisition of another special airmail week cachet.

During the week, May 15-21, a special flight in honor of the Wright brothers, will be made from Kitty Hawk, N. C. to Dayton, Ohio, an official cachet will be furnished and the usual treatment of "philatelic mail" will be authorized. Airmail covers to receive this special cachet should be forwarded to the postmaster at Kitty Hawk under cover. In order that he may make the proper discrimination between business and philatelic mail, a letter of authorization to hold for the flight should accompany the covers. They should be received before May 19.

$50,000,000 IN USED CAR SALES IN ONE WEEK!

There was a Big selling job to do and NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING DID IT

Early in 1938 the automotive industry had a major problem on its hands. Production was off. New car sales were low. Prospects for Spring, normally the peak season in automobile sales, were discouraging.

The underlying cause of all this was that the automobile dealers had too many used cars in stock... for dealers can't sell new cars when they are overburdened with used cars.

The problem, therefore, was to sell the used cars—and to sell them fast.

To solve the problem the automobile manufacturers of the United States called upon the selling power of newspaper advertising. They instituted a National Used Car Exchange Week, March 5 to 12. They appropriated $1,250,000 for one week's advertising. They invested the bulk of this money in newspaper space throughout the country. They enlisted the active cooperation of the automobile dealers.

And what happened? In one week's time $50,000,000 worth of used cars were sold. Dealers' used car stocks were greatly reduced. In some cities the week ended with a shortage... and dealers began to advertise in their local newspapers that they wanted to buy used cars.

And that's not all. The used car campaign in newspapers caused an immediate increase in new car sales; cleared the way for still greater sales for Spring; pointed to a definite upturn in car production; put new life in the automotive industry; brought millions of dollars into circulation.

What does it all mean? It means one more dramatic and convincing proof of what has been proven so many times before: when there is a real selling job to be done, newspaper advertising can be counted upon to do it... quickly, tangibly, directly, economically... for automobile advertisers, or for any other advertiser.

Auto Dealers In Twin Falls made this great campaign a success by their use of the Idaho Evening Times and the Twin Falls News. Over 750 inches of local advertising in these two papers guided used car buyers to Twin Falls dealers to chalk up a new high in used car sales!
