

THE IDAHO CITIZEN SEMI-WEEKLY For Year, 1929 Successor to the Twin Falls County Independent A semi-weekly newspaper published on Tuesday and Friday of each week...

TWINLAND EMPIRE SET FOR BIGGER THINGS Twin Falls, the commercial metropolis of the Twinland Empire, is attracting new man power and capital.

This means that we have at last witnessed the end of the stagnation period following in the wake of the after-war liquidation. The swifter pace that these new business houses will set in the way of competition for those already established in the field will be more than compensated for by the new man power, energy and capital that is being added to the forces for building a greater community and creating a mammoth volume of new business.

Those who lack the keener business aptitude and punch to adjust themselves to the bigger program and reap benefits and honors will naturally drop back to the minor league business game. It has always worked out that way and always will. A new emergency in a man's career that calls for resources of brain power and genius, never before required, develops super-man qualities in some men and reveals lack of stamina and creative ability in others.

MAYTIME

May, the month of hope, the harbinger of spring, the prophecy of another year, is with us again. The severity of winter, with its forbidding coldness, its indoor seclusion, has passed and now comes sunshine, warm days and the call to the hills, the woodlands, the streams and to God's out-of-doors. Green grass, flowers and leafy trees, with the shady banks of rushing streams, invite every one to the himself forth in forgetfulness of duty to a holiday beneath the canopy of heaven and there to watch the great miracle—the unfolding of Nature.

R. H. PENALIZES TWIN FALLS FOR AIDING CUT OFF

Let us tell you the story of this line. Our people on the Twin Falls tract contributed a considerable sum of money and much work toward the building of the route for the expectation that it would be a benefit.

Instead we are penalized for our effort to help in the development of the resources of Idaho by the refusal of the route for the expectation that it would be a benefit.

Because of this refusal average freight rate to Idaho from California is as heavy as in the vicinity of Chicago against this state.

We have space for only a very few examples but they give a fair average view of the whole freight rate structure between the two states.

We quote rates per 100 lbs. for car load shipments:

Dried beans — San Francisco to Utah, 852 miles, 57 1/2¢; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.05; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.06; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.05.

Canned goods — San Francisco to Utah, 852 miles, 57 1/2¢; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.05; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.06; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.05.

Dried fruit — San Francisco to Utah, 852 miles, 84 1/4¢; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.25; San Francisco to Pocatello, 840 miles, $1.25; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.25.

Prepared roofing — San Francisco to Utah, 852 miles, 62 1/2¢; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.05; San Francisco to Pocatello, 840 miles, $1.05; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.05.

Greases and lemons — San Francisco to Utah, 840 miles, $1.27; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.40; San Francisco to Pocatello, 840 miles, $1.40; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.40.

Edible nuts — San Francisco to Utah, 852 miles, $1.65; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.80; San Francisco to Pocatello, 840 miles, $1.80; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.80.

Alcohol — San Francisco to Utah, 852 miles, 76 1/2¢; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.10; San Francisco to Pocatello, 840 miles, $1.10; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.10.

Coffee — San Francisco to Utah, 842 miles, 97¢; San Francisco to Twin Falls, 731 miles, $1.25; San Francisco to Pocatello, 840 miles, $1.25; San Francisco to Idaho Falls, 840 miles, $1.25.

The mileage given from California to Idaho passes via the Wells-Rogerson route. We are entitled to have this line opened to interstate traffic and to the application of a mileage basis of the same rates to south eastern Idaho that apply to Utah common points.

We are asking for this adjustment by complaint to Interstate Commerce Commission. If successful it will save many thousands of dollars for Idaho people.

PASTOR GIVEN AN AUTOMOBILE

According to the report of President Charles Wesley Tenney, Dr. Theodore Copeland completely won the hearts of folks in the three weeks special evangelistic meetings that closed at the Gooding Methodist church last week.

College professors, high school teachers, representatives from the state school for the deaf and blind, Methodists, Presbyterians, Disciples, Baptists, Nazarenes, and Pentecostals alike vied with each other in loyalty for three full weeks and then came back an extra night to co-operate with Dr. Copeland in providing a new automobile as a thank offering to Pastor H. G. McCallister, to who the 54 new members he received as a result of these meetings.

Besides the local assistance each night brought in delegations from Burley, Rupert, Buhl, Jerome, Shoshone, Wendell, or Richfield, who seemed increasingly hungry to hear the message of love as it was preached from night to night by this Christian gentleman from the Southland.

At the call of Dr. J. D. Gilliland and with only one day's rest, Dr. Copeland started another series of meetings at Piler, May 3, and three weeks later he will move on to Wendell, where Rev. M. G. Fryer is already effecting an organization and paving the way for still another victory.

SUIT TO CANCEL
George M. Harding and Edna W. Harding filed a suit in district court on Saturday to cancel a promissory note and real estate mortgage executed in April, 1925, and a second note of $1150 and extension agreement with the Home Investment Company and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The plaintiffs have signified their willingness to discharge both the note and the mortgage.

DRY FARMERS HAPPY
The dry farmers of this section are wearing a long smile today, with the magnificent prospects there are for a crop this year, following the rain of Friday and Saturday, that wet the ground for nearly six inches. Though there was a slight snow Saturday no damage is reported to the fruit.

CAREFUL USE OF WATER ADVISED

Careful use of irrigation water is necessary this year, as it is every year, says Dr. E. Lewis, agricultural engineer at the University of Idaho. It is evident to every one that when the water supply is inadequate or is barely sufficient care must be exercised in order to make the limited supply produce the best possible crop. It is not so obvious that in cases where an excess of water is available careless use of water may lead to serious trouble. Nevertheless a very brief study will show that in cases where an excess of water is available careless use of water may lead to serious trouble. Nevertheless a very brief study will show that in cases where an excess of water is available careless use of water may lead to serious trouble.

GOOD NEWS FOR RADIO FANS

Beginning May 15th according to an order recently issued by the Commission. This not only affords a check on stations but aids listeners in the identification of stations.

Farmer Probably Fatally Gored

Meeting a bull in the middle of the road and attempting to go around him, so enraged the animal, that a farmer by the name of Robert Crum, living near Pocatello, was charged by the animal, knocked down and probably fatally gored on Thursday night. The bull had been debred which perhaps accounts for the fact that Mr. Crum was not instantly killed.

TINGWALL STORES ADD TWIN FALLS TO IDAHO CHAIN

Big White Store To Be Home of Magic City's Fourth Modern Department Store. Advent of New Concern Into Metropolis of Twinland Empire High Peak in Merchandising Career of A. W. Tingwall

The value of modern methods of advertising and intensive publicity are vividly exemplified in the opening of the Tingwall Department Store in Twin Falls next Monday. Thus is added another invincible argument substantiating the prediction of conservative observers of business conditions that Idaho in general is set for a period of advancement and prosperity.

The announcement of the opening of the largest store, to date, of the Tingwall system, in the Magic City, is of interest to the public in general not only as one of the "signs of the times" but because of the human interest story surrounding the life of the man "behind the gun."

A. W. Tingwall chose St. Paul, Minnesota as the place and the year 1885 as the time of his birth. That matter of fact detail attended to, the young Swede was ready to tackle the problems of life as they presented themselves. The record of the subsequent forty-two years gives ample evidence of fact that these problems were not a bit unprofitable about claiming the attention of the lad who was destined to break into the big merchandising game in Idaho, in later years.

At the age of eleven he was obliged to go to work to assist supporting his younger brothers and sisters. It was about this time that he began working in a country store at $5.00 per month and at the end of the first three years, was drawing the magnificent sum of twelve dollars per month.

Young Tingwall next tackled a clerkship in a St. Paul grocery store where he earned his first spurs as a successful salesman. When he left this job to accept a position in the dry goods department of Field, Schick Co.'s department store, his first employer offered him a half interest in his return, which was declined.

Then followed eleven years with the "bookish" concern where the real foundations for merchandising were laid in the career of the leading characters of this story.

The year 1908 brought a stern respect to the whole situation, with a problem that was not to be as easily solved as had been many of the previous ones.

A break in health drew from the lips of attending physicians the verdict that it was a higher altitude and the big out of doors for the young man then in his early twenties.

A. W. Tingwall turned his back on the blasted hopes of a career as a merchant and "emulated" the "honest" and "trans-continental" train for the land "out where the west begins."

After first visiting Denver and Salt Lake City where he found much snow and cold weather, the traveler arrived at Glenns Ferry on Dec. 18, 1908, and found no snow and warm sunshine, both of which had a decided effect on him.

It did not require a great deal of capital to negotiate for a homestead relinquishment in the sage brush desert nearby. Here a tent was pitched and the battle for life began in earnest.

The mild winter weather of sunny Idaho made a fitting back ground for the first round of the fight back to health. The ease of the wonderful Idaho air furnished the better sparring partner that soon gave evidence of a punch that would delight the heart of any pugilist with championship notions.

On April 10th, 1909 he took as a life partner a young lady also from St. Paul, Miss Esther Cederblende, who came to Mountain Home where the couple were quietly married at a friend's home, and left immediately thereafter for the ranch where a 1912 board shack had taken the place of the tent.

Mrs. Tingwall has ever since been a real partner both in the difficult days on the ranch and after in the development of the store business. She has done her full share in building the Tingwall Stores Co. and is now vice president of the corporation, taking an active part in the buying and management.

The next four years witnessed the clearing of the sage brush from the ground, the long bitter fight for water, in which the Tingwalls took the lead and the King Hill irrigation system became a government project.

The bronzed faced, well-muscled district farmer showed ample evidence of the potency of the healing power of the Idaho climate.

The year 1914 furnished the proper setting for the opening of a general store by Glenns Ferry and streams of recovered health and business opportunities came true.

"Tingwall's 100 per cent Idaho Concern" added its first branch store at King Hill in 1917 and in 1922 Fairfield and Hagerman stores were opened. Caldwell was added in 1925, while Filer and Twin Falls have already headed the 1927 list.

The Twinland Empire is glad to welcome "Tingwalls" along with all the other wide-awake business institutions, that have chosen this favored territory in which to demonstrate their ability to put over big things.

JACK NUNEMAKER WINNER - Jack Nunemaker, typist in the first year division in typewriting, won first place in the state commercial center-held at Postville Friday, writing 63 words per minute. The Twin Falls team, consisting of Jack Nunemaker, Grace Domrose and Beasley Weyers, placed third in the contest. Grace Domrose carried off first honors in the essay contest on the merits of the Royal machine and was awarded a fountain pen.

SCHOOL EXHIBITS GREATLY ADMIRRED

The practical value of work done in the home, manual training and domestic science departments was demonstrated to fully a thousand visitors at the high school on Friday night.

Students of the school, who are following their natural bent in the realm of art, even though the high school does not have an art department showed some splendid exhibits in oil, water colors, and pen and ink, white cartoons, silhouettes, stencil work, plaques made of sealing wax and lettering, created with surprise and admiration at the artistic ability that was revealed. The art exhibit was held in the library room.

The exhibits in the domestic science room consisted of creations of ladies' wearing apparel. Commencement made by making an art of graduating class furnished the feature, while a variety of gowns made from wool and cotton fabrics, re-embroidered in the most interesting, but a close following of the latest in feminine wear.

In the manual training rooms were beautiful cedar chests made from materials costing from $15 to $17, which would be priced at a furniture store at three or four times the cost of their making. R. V. Jones is the instructor of the boys in this craft. The high school orchestra furnished music from 8 until 9 o'clock, under the direction of the leader, J. T. Banninger.

Thomas, called attention to National Forest Week and Charles A. North gave some inside information on American-Canadian relations.

LOUISE SMITH CIRCUIT HITTER

The upper class girls' basketball team demonstrated the value of their more matured experience in playing the great National game, when they ran up a score of 38 to 20 on the Lincoln field on Friday afternoon in a spectacular game with the lower class team before a large crowd of student spectators. Louise Smith proved to be the Babe Ruth for the upper class, with three circuit drives, while Fern Worth was the star for the lower class. Good fielding and heavy hitting won the game for the upper class girls.

WITHDRAWS HIS APPLICATION

Rather than incur the displeasure of friends among whom he expects to live and do business in the future, Eugene E. Ostrander, manager of the local Texaco Oil company, has withdrawn his application to appear before the city council, for a permit to construct a service station on Shoshone street east, opposite the Red apartment. A strong protest was made by citizens of that community against the proposed station being established at that point.

The principal speaker at the session Thursday night was J. N. C. Currier. Rev. A. Leaver of Jerome, also addressed the meeting on the subject of "The Communion."

At the session Thursday afternoon, Rev. Judson Brown, pastor of the Christian church of Jerome, presented an address that created considerable comment on "The Plan of the Christian Church Lost Its Power?" Rev. J. S. Don't Burn the Sprouts off of your potatoes with caustic disinfectants. Common sense tells you that to do so will weaken germination and plant vitality and the result must be a lighter yield.

Du Pont Semesan Bel

never kills the sprouts but increases vitality, promotes better and more rapid germination. The result is good stands of vigorous healthy plants and increased yields. SEMESAN BEL controls all seed borne diseases, moulds and fungi and controls them better. Other disinfectants control only partially one or two diseases.

SEMESAN BEL is a scientific preparation produced by a great chemist for control of seed and plant. Other potato disinfectants are merely natural products used in the past for the reason that there was nothing better at hand.

Which Is Most Likely to Bring You Best Results?

SEMESAN BEL TREATED POTATOES KEEP BETTER IN STORAGE due to the fact that it controls Blackleg and Spindle Top, the diseases that cause rot in storage, and which other disinfectants do not control. It's worth its cost on this score alone.

We prove all our claims by the testimony of users.
