FILER FAIR GROUNDS BEST IN THE STATE

J. M. Markel Gives His Endorsement of Twin Falls—Annual Coun- ty Fair

Canyon county is just now contemplating a county fair, with the fair grounds located at Midway, a town out from Nampa a few miles.

The following letter, written by J. M. Markel, of Boise, who for eight years was manager of the Twin Falls county fair at Filer, and for six years of the Corn Palace and Dairy show at Boise, to W. W. Deal, manager of the Idaho State Grange, and appeared in the Idaho Free Press of Nampa on last Friday, and is of interest to people of Twin Falls county because it gives Markel's estimate of the fair held annually at Filer.

That part of the letter referring to the Twin Falls county fair is as follows:

"As to the success of the Twin Falls county fair, I can only be general as I have not the files at hand. Some ten years ago the Filer community became obsessed with the notion of having a fair. An association was formed and stock was sold to the amount of $10,000. With this money ground was bought and very temporary improvements were made. A fair was put on in a small way.

During the first year most of the buildings blew down which necessitated their rebuilding for the second fair. A second fair was given and at the close of the association had some $6000 in debt. The association then proposed to deed the grounds to the county on condition that the county assume the debt and guarantee to put on an agricultural exposition annually in perpetuity. A provision is in the deed that any time the county fails to put on such an exposition, the grounds and all improvements shall revert to the original stockholders.

"The county board levied a tax of five-tenths of a mill for the purpose of maintaining a fair and each succeeding year they have varied the tax from five-tenths to one mill for the same purpose. In the meantime the grounds have been improved until they are assuredly the best fair grounds in the state.

"During the eight years of my administration there has never been a time when all bills were not paid promptly—and satisfied—customers have been the result.

"Fairs blow up mostly because of over-promotion, i. e., contracts are made in excess of actual resources and anticipated receipts. Too many fairs have for their slogan "Bigger and Better," with the stress on the bigger instead of the better.

"Fairs are not money-making enterprises. Neither are schools, churches, harvest festivals, regattas, chautauques and a number of other things that communities feel they need for necessities in agricultural communities. Ever since agriculture and livestock have begun to make advances, fairs have been conducting factors. More than 3600 agricultural exhibitions were held in the United States last year.

"Wishing you success with your efforts in creating a good fair in Canyon county, for every county should have an agricultural and livestock exposition."

"I remain,

"Very truly yours,

J. M. Markel

AMSTERDAM

The first water for irrigation this season came on June 4th, which will run for thirty days. Due to the cold and wet weather which has held away most of the time, crops have done very nicely so far without irrigation.

Mrs. L. V. Dean, who has a fine attending school in Aldon this term, returned home on Wednesday.

L. W. Hinckley, game warden, was a business caller here on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Dean and children were Thursday visitors at the Paul Reed home in Aldon.

Mrs. Gertrude Peers, Mrs. A. E. Kunkel and Mrs. Miss Dietrich were in Hollister on Thursday afternoon, at the Ladies Aid meeting at the Presbyterian church.

Miss Lee Dean, who has been at the grandparents' home the past two months, while his mother was in school at Aldon, is now at home with his parents near Hollister.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holmgren were Thursday evening business in Rogerson.

Miss Fern Lowe spent Thursday afternoon with Miss Rhoda Pohlman.

THE STUBBORN WEATHER

"It's perfectly absurd," held Old Man Weather, "as that I am going to take him."

"I know they're hitting me now. I can tell. I may be stubborn but I'm not stupid."

"I can see that they're craning their heads out of the windows and coming out on porches and looking up at the sky."

"I can see that they're wondering if the clouds mean that it is going to rain or if the little patch of blue sky which I sometimes see, has been mean that it is going to clear off."

"And they're anxious that it should clear off. It is a Saturday and people always like to have it fine on Saturday."

"They're apt to have so many plans for that day."

"If I decide to give Old King of the Clouds a holiday or if he decides to take one it is a matter that is decided in my circles, and not because of suggestions on the parts of the earth-people."

"If we should lean down to ask them what they thought we'd not please them."

"Old King of the Clouds might lean down too far and laugh and joke and then the rain would begin and they might not like that so well."

"Mr. Sun might lean down so far that they could hardly stand the heat and they wouldn't like that so well."

"Or the Wind might blow right in their faces—even more than he sometimes does."

"Certainly I wouldn't ask for any advice for them. With all the ideas I have on weather I don't need any help from anyone."

"Why, I can think of the most interesting varieties of weather."

"I can give surprises. I can give warm weather when it is the cold season."

"I can give cold weather in the warm season."

"When it is the month for showers I can save them over until the next month."

"People will go to a place that has a reputation for fogs and I'll give them nothing but fine days, and they'll say the weather was really most unusual."

"They will go to a place that is supposed to always be warm and sunny and I'll give them cool, raw days."

"They'll say the weather was most unusual."

"Of course it was that Old Man Weather with his many ideas."

"People are always finding unusual weather and they speak of it as though it were so interesting—little they know the fact of how much Old Man Weather has to do with it."

"It's my ability to have so many ideas. That is the reason why I don't have to make mistakes."

"But it is, funny now to see them hitting to me to be nice."

"As though they could change the weather by looking out of their windows."

"As though they could make it a fine, sunny day just by looking at the star patch of blue sky and hoping it would be nice!"

"Well, they're keeping on hitting. But I'm not going to let that do anything. I'm going to do what I planned to do."

"I hear there are going to be lots of picnics today and long walks and baseball games and tennis and peeps for flowers."

"It's not that I'm taking their hints—but I think I'll have a nice day."

"Yes, Old Man Weather decides it will be nice!"

So the sun and the blue sky and the soft breezes all agreed.

WATER RIGHTS.

Strangers stopping in Twin Falls in recent weeks would undoubtedly be impressed with the comparatively large number of cases that have been brought in the district court here for the purpose of straightening out the tangles of various water rights.

Litigation of the sort that is being conducted just now is inevitable in a section that is developing rapidly and has promise for those looking for the most productive land with plenty of water for irrigation.

Water rights are perhaps the most valuable assets that can be owned in an irrigated section, and it is very necessary that these rights be determined by the courts and established beyond any question for the sake of the future development of the country.

The greatest complaint that is made in irrigated sections of the west is that there is not enough water to supply the land under the ditches with the amount of moisture that is needed. Especially is this true of the land that is irrigated from the waters of the Arkansas river in Colorado.

There is seemingly an abundance of water in this part of the state of Idaho, to irrigate all the land that may be opened. But of course, this is not true. There is a great amount that may still be used, but it is not inexhaustible, and both the Federal government and the State should guard zealously every second foot of water that is permitted to be taken from the Snake river. Not every foot of arid land in Idaho can hope to be placed under cultivation and irrigated from the Snake river; or other rivers; and while all the water available should be used, there needs to be a careful reckoning made and a careful accounting throughout southern Idaho of every second foot of water that has already been granted to different water companies, so that southern Idaho may not suffer the same calamity that eastern Colorado suffers because of the fact that perhaps twice as much land in under ditches as can be safely provided with the amount of water that is available for irrigation purposes.

Water rights are valuable only if they guarantee to deliver a certain amount of water. Southern Idaho could do nothing that would more materially benefit the state, than to maintain scrupulously a reputation for having the most valuable water rights in existence, because each one not only guarantees but actually delivers the amount of water specified therein.

SAVING THIS NATION FROM ITS PROSPERITY.

The question, "Whither are we going?" has been frequently asked and attempted answers made by speakers and publicists of this country for many years, but the seriousness of it was never more aptly suggested than when Prof. T. M. Carter of Harvard, recently only we have succeeded in making "the grave danger which is seen in America's great wealth," in which he called attention to the fact that "no considerable body of human beings has ever avoided being extinguished after attaining prosperity."

What is the financial and economic condition in which the people of the United States now find themselves? With the limiting of foreigners from this country, through stringent immigration laws, not only do we have a steady stream of millions in this country, but the middle class is today living in comfort and enjoying increasing leisure and many luxuries, such as were only known to the very rich a generation ago, while the laboring class finds itself earning good wages, fast accumulating savings in banks, besides enjoying homes having every modern convenience by which to live.

No longer is poverty the urge that requires discipline of body and mind, but the urge to provide a daily bread in this life. On the other hand, prosperity has become so general, and wages so high, conveniences so helpful and time for leisure so abundant that, as Prof. Carver says, it is what this country now needs is a new "discipline," and "a big task," in which everybody may participate, if this country is to avoid going the way of all others that have become rich.

American people, no longer under any necessity to limit themselves to the necessities of life, are now being tempted to give themselves over to dissipation, such as to alcoholism, which Prof. Carver mentions; and to golf, baseball, moving pictures and autoing. The nation has no great work that commands its thought and interest by day and by night, such as sculpturing did the ancient Greeks and architecture the ancient Romans.

Prof. Carver suggests that there is a tendency today, along certain lines in this country, to erect fine public buildings, to develop science and to improve modern conveniences by mechanical devices, but finds that there is no inherited instinct along these lines which would make them racial characteristics. He suggests that the nation should apply itself to some worthy task that would enlist every individual, and thereby not only "discipline" the people as a whole and keep them from going to "perdition," but build up a magnificent civilization in this country as well.

It is naturally suggested that this task, to which the nation might worthily set itself, should be the improvement of our schools. But strange to say, he has only their architectural construction in mind. This seems rather strange, in view of the fact that the beauty of the American school buildings is making such great strides.

What would have been a greater task to have been put forward, and one in which every American would be taken a just pride, would have been to attempt to establish a moral conscience in this country with regard to right or wrong, by providing a system of moral teaching that would develop a strength of character in the life of every American boy and girl, and the further task of reshaping our entire public school system so as to make it of practical value in the selection, by every child, and its direction from a very early age, of a certain determined program, based upon "characteristic" and established by statute, the fitting each child in his life, instead of turning out into the world absolutely helpless. Such a "task" would be one more worthy the thought and the efforts of this nation, one which it seems must be given more and more attention in the future, and one which would meet Prof. Carver's demand of a job big enough to engage the attention of the whole nation and thus save it from being "extinguished by its prosperity."

Secretary Jardine Outlines Law Against Dumping Produce

Law Against Dumping Produce

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine has issued regulations covering the administration of the Produce Act, which is intended to be passed by Congress. Administration of the act, which deals with the marketing of perishable agricultural products, is in charge of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture.

Lloyd S. Tenny, Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, declared in a supplementary statement accompanying the regulations that "the act makes it a misdemeanor for any one receiving perishable farm products in interstate commerce, or on behalf of another to dump, abandon, or destroy the products so received with good and sufficient cause therefor; that it is a misdemeanor for anyone receiving such products for or on behalf of another in interstate commerce to fail, wilfully and with intent to defraud, to account truly and correctly therefor, and a misdemeanor for anyone receiving such products in interstate commerce, for or on behalf of another, knowingly and with intent to defraud, to make any false statement concerning the handling, condition, quality, quantity, sale, or disposition thereof."

Application of Act
"In considering the act and the regulations thereunder, numerous questions will arise in the minds of the handlers of perishable farm products as to when and under what circumstances the act is applicable. It is not possible for the department to answer all such questions in advance of the instances in which the act may apply. In its enforcement, the department necessarily must consider each case on its merits, and the application of the act will depend upon the facts relating thereto. In general, it may be stated, however, that all persons, firms, associations or corporations receiving produce for or on behalf of another in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, whether at point of origin or at destination or elsewhere, are subject to all of the provisions of the Act. Obviously the act applies, therefore, not only to commission merchants but also to distributors, brokers, and others who receive produce in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia to be handled for or on behalf of another."

Contract Liens Take Precedence

Contract liens on Carey set irrigation projects are superior to mortgage liens, at least in Idaho, according to a decision handed down by the supreme court Tuesday in the case of the Postman-Mary Valley Canal company vs. Howard W. Brown and John R. Chapin, declares the Idaho Stateman. The latter brought suit for foreclosure of deed of trust, of which they are trustees. The lower court decided in favor of the irrigation company, holding maintenance liens were superior to contract liens, but this decision was reversed by the circuit court of appeal for the Ninth circuit, and the supreme court affirms the decision of the circuit court.

The court points out that the Foreman project did not flourish; neither fell down in their construction.

tion payments and the construction company defaulted in payment of interest on its bonds. This led to the suit to foreclose the water rights and the canal company claimed the condition that its lien was superior to that of the bondholders, who had supplied money to build the project.

The court shows that in point of time contract liens take precedence over maintenance liens, but also cited the Idaho law for enforcement of the Carey act, which provides that any company (including the contractor) whose lien shall remain in full effect until the last deferred payment for water right is fully paid.

Want to save money? We'll tell you how. Our coal is down—you should BUY NOW!

Effective at once, and subject to change without notice, we are pleased to announce very attractive storage rates on coal. Our mines have made us liberal expressions on coal for our customers, but owing to strike conditions in the East, they are not able to guarantee the reduced prices for any specific length of time; so accordingly we cannot guarantee the present storage prices for any definite period.

In buying storage, there are a number of things which should be taken into consideration. In the first place, you want a coal that will not go slack in your bin; second, you want a coal that is not apt to heat and catch fire, as some coals have a tendency to do. You also want a coal that will not clinker when it burns, and that is as free from SOOT as possible.

We have THE coal that measures up to these qualifications 100 per cent.

UTAH GRAND COAL is absolutely CLINKERLESS and free of STRINGY SOOT. It is the HARDEST coal mined in the West, absolutely does not SLACK or HEAT in storage. It lasts longer, is cleaner to handle and by far, the most economical coal to use.

Many of our customers save from 10 per cent to 25 per cent on their coal bills; WHY NOT YOU?

We have a size and preparation for every need and purpose!

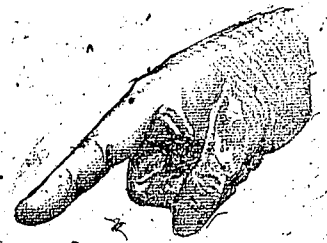

Phone us TODAY and we will have our experienced representative call and assist you in selecting the coal best adapted to your individual needs.

IMPROVE THEIR BUTTER PACK

Danish Dairywomen Are Told That Their Butter Moulds

A delegation of dairy farmers from Denmark who visited the United States some time ago took back a report that buyers of Danish quality butter in the American market had complained of mold resulting probably from unscientific packing. American farmers had advised them to use a packing prepared with paraffin, which would prevent the mold from working its way to the butter through the outer packing. Experts of the laboratory which is maintained by the Danish Co-operative Farmers Organization at once went to work on experiments with a view to eliminate future causes of complaint, says the National Farm News.

Experiments were made in four different dairies. To obtain sufficient material upon which to predicate results it was decided to use smaller packages than the usual cases and therefore a number of cases holding from about 5 to 10 pounds were made of dry unfinished beechwood. For the purposes of the experiments the cases were treated as follows: 1. Part was left as it was. 2. Part was washed, scalded, steamed and paraffined. 3. Part was paraffined. 4. Part was washed, scalded, steamed and paraffined. The sealing was done by applying a preparation of brine thick enough to adhere to the wood. All cases were lined with parchment which had first been dipped in sterilized water. All cases had been packed about seven days before the beginning of the experiments. In the final experiment infected and non-infected packages were compared and were used for salted as well as unsalted butter.

As a result of all the tests and experiments made the conclusion was reached that the best means for the prevention of mold on butter is a strong brine of the packing both for cases and cases. The paraffining of the packing used in the Danish experiments has not been able to prevent traces of mold in the butter from spreading to the parchment and it was likewise demonstrated that the paraffined paper could not prevent the mold from reaching the parchment and the butter. Whether paraffined paper can be produced which will resist the humidity of the brine is a technical question which does not touch the question of salted butter, as here ordinary kozo parchment will serve the purpose. It has also been ascertained by the experiments made that the dark color which appears on unsalted butter when it has been standing for some time may be prevented by using heavy paraffined paper.

BURLEY PEOPLE DIVIDED ON FAIR

Grange Favors Admission to Exhibit Free—C. of C. Objects

The people of Burley are divided as to the advisability of having a fair this year, and how it shall be conducted. The Grange is unambiguously in favor of providing free admission to all exhibits this year, holding that as the taxpayers have already paid for the installation of the exhibits, the rent, the care of the grounds, the printing of the premium lists, as well as for a large share of the repairs of the livestock buildings, that they are entitled to view the exhibits free.

The members of the Burley Chamber of Commerce are unanimously against a free fair, and have so declared themselves to the majority of commissioners. If the majority of the people favor free exhibits, the commissioners are willing to not divide a small sum of money for the erection of a fence to separate the exhibits from the sports and the other attractions of the fair. L. H. Sweetser, in a signed article in the Burley Bulletin, declares that if the exhibits are made free it will bring the fair.

Tuesday, June 14, at 1 o'clock for a hearing of the controversy, when it is expected that some settlement of the difficulty will be made.

MAGAZINES NOT BEST MEDIUM

Newspaper Advertising Jumps Business 100 Per Cent

A 100 per cent increase in business for the United Fruit Company's fleet in three years followed a switch from magazine to newspaper advertising. W. L. Harris, vice-president of the S. A. Donovan Company, Boston advertising agency in charge of the account, declared in a recent address before the advertising staff of the New York Times.

"A few years ago," he explained, "our people were wedded to magazine advertising and we spent several-eighths of our appropriation in newspapers and about one-eighth in newspapers. We did a very fair business, business of about $2,500,000 a year. And then we decided that the idea was all wrong, that transportation could be better sold in newspapers than in magazines. And so we tried newspaper advertising and today we are spending about nine-tenths of our appropriation in newspapers and one-tenth in magazines. Our business last year was $4,850,000. In other words, it shows a 100 per cent increase in a period of three years."

"I do not think it is necessary for me to say anything else. We haven't any more ships; the population of the Caribbean hasn't increased. Let us assume that the cause for this growth has been the desire for people to travel, which, we will all have to admit, has grown to incredible bounds within the last five years, but after making all sorts of mental and business reservations money in magazines, we do business of two and a quarter millions; we turn around and spend the same amount of money and do a business of $4,850,000. If there is any easier way to increase sales than that, I don't know it."

Whippet Six Speeds Better Than a Mile A Minute on Track

Stock Car Covers 23 Miles in 22 Minutes in Atlantic City

In one of the most spectacular speed trials ever staged in the east, a Whippet Six roadster recently set a high mark when it maintained a speed of faster than a mile a minute over a 23-mile course. The test was staged on the board automobile race track operated by the Atlantic City Motor Speedway.

William G. Braddon, of Audubon, N. J., piloted the Whippet six during the thrilling 23-mile test which was made under the most adverse weather conditions. The car Braddon drove in the test was a strictly stock model; the first stock automobile ever driven on the world's longest, board race track.

As the Whippet was started off on the first lap, conditions were fair but after a few minutes a heavy mist began to fall and shortly thereafter the board track became slippery making the going extremely hazardous especially at the high rate of speed maintained. Because of this perilous condition of the track Braddon slackened the pace of the Whippet Six during the remainder of the test.

Jury Acquits Three Men in Tire Case

The third jury in the tire burglary case, brought in a verdict of acquittal for Robert Anny, Charles B. Corcoran and William A. Lefur, charged with burglary in connection with the theft of an automobile tire from the G. W. Tarr automobile wrecking establishment here April 20. The case went to the jury Saturday evening and the verdict was returned until after midnight. Mrs. J. T. Corcoran, of Portland, Oregon, mother of Charles B. Corcoran, testified at the trial that the tire was two spare tires on Anny's car when the three men left Portland, last April bound for Weepah, Nevada, which is believed to have had much to do with the acquittal.

The KITCAEN CABINE TABLES

I do not think all failures understood. And all success is merely some factor. Some men are down because they were unprepared. And some are up because they kept their backs. Some men are down because they chose to shrink. Some men are up because they did their work.

During the long winter evenings the whole family enjoy a dish of homemade candied... Chocolate Fudge... Peanut Brittle...

PROFITABLE SHEEP RAISING

Demonstration at Dubois Reveals Advantage of Cross Breeding

One of the most profitable demonstrations in sheep raising that has ever been held under the supervision of the United States Department of Agriculture, was held at Dubois, Idaho, on May 31, at which time representatives from eight western states and the District of Columbia were present and profited by the program which was arranged by W. A. Dencker, Director of the U. S. Sheep Experiment Station at Dubois.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS LAW

Leaving Fire Near Federal Forest Considered Criminal Offense

The supreme court of the United States has just decided that carelessness with fire need not be confined to federal forest lands, in order to constitute a criminal offense under section 53 of the United States criminal code. Leaving a fire near a federal forest without totally extinguishing it, even though the fire is started on private land, is a criminal offense in the eyes of the court, and punishable by fine or imprisonment for their many miles of boundary are subject to the grave danger of fires that originate on adjacent private lands outside and may sweep into National forest land.

Collecting Clothing For Flood Victims

Staff-Captain Sydney Cook, division commander of the Salvation Army has just received an account of the work which the Salvation Army is accomplishing in the flooded areas of the Mississippi Valley. From Major McCree, an officer working in Vicksburg, Miss., a report comes that during the past week over 25,000 garments were given to destitute people, and over 1,000 meals were served in The Salvation Army lunch room. The Major accounted for Adjutant Thos. Pearl, visited Natchez, just to the south of which there was a break in the levee. As the waters flooded Vidalia and vicinity people and cattle were driven to the high spots for safety. In Natchez the Adjutant opened another clothing distribution warehouse.

OIL PROGRAM OREGON TRAIL

Commissioner Will Begin It At Once - Markers Also

Novell S. Wright, secretary of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, while in Boise last week, was assured by Joe D. Wood, commissioner of highways, that the oil program on the Oregon Trail would be completed within the next two weeks. This will include the Bliss Hill and sections between Bliss and Buhl and between Buhl and Filer. The oiling will be done on one side of the road at a time so as to interfere with traffic as little as possible.

YOUNG MAN IS DROWNED

Found Lying in Ditch Face Down - Had Probably Fainted

Royce Bevington, 36, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bevington, former residents of Gooding, but now of Tuttle, was found dead last Thursday morning, his face buried in the water and mud of a newly irrigated field. The young man, when a boy had been kicked by a horse in the field and ever since had been subject to fainting spells. It is believed that one of these came on while he was in the field irrigating and that he had drowned in the water of the ditch.

News Maxwell

Famous Bank's Nickname - The origin of the Old Lady of Threadneedle street, the nickname of the Bank of England, never has been definitely established, according to the "Kansas City Star," but the London Economist traces the appellation back as far as May 22, 1797, when William Pitt induced parliament to suspend coin payments at the bank. This novel device led to the famous cartoon which shows an old lady, seated on a chest labeled "Bank of England," being savagely attacked by Pitt.

FILES DEMURRER

F. J. Myers, attorney for the Twin Falls lodge of the Elks, has filed a demurrer, similar to the one filed by Mr. Myers upon behalf of the city library, to the complaint made by C. A. Duane to have a lease contract for space in the Elks' building for library purposes set aside because certain of the members of the city council are members of the Elks lodge. The demurrer states that the complaint in question does not reveal that the city officials have any personal interest in the contract by reason of their membership in the Elks lodge.
