ENDURANCE

Importance depends on endurance. Endurance is the retention of a thing in an achievement of value. This says Whitehead in Science and the Modern World.

Endurance is the real test of a man. It is something that we can all have, and it is something else we can hang and remain the same.

Sometimes this is more pleasurable and exhilarating. But in the time of fluctuating values and fluctuating men it is a pleasure to find something stable.

One of the strongest pleas of the church is that it has endured throughout the ages and still grows stronger.

Whatever has endured for a length of time must have some merit to it.

The life of an organism depends upon its ability to adjust itself to its surroundings. Life is a struggle for the fittest.

A man is in perfect health when he can breathe the air, enjoy the sunshine and partake of the food that is offered him, and his lungs, his stomach and his other organs are attuned to his environment.

It is not the mere amount of food, or water, or air, or light, or heat, or cold, or any one of these, that makes a man healthy. It is the adjustment of his body to his environment.

Emerson says that the best test of a book is whether it is read, and advised us, as a whole, to read no book that had not been printed twenty years.

Time has dealt harshly with some popular favorites, while others have survived.

Some of the popular songs of our ancestors are still popular. No one could tell at the time which they were, but the passing of the years has made the selection.

It is perhaps a wise thing not to build a monument to a man before he is dead. Time must have its opportunity to pass upon him.

There is something in mere endurance, and the man who is able to stand the test of time, and to end his days, the advantage over one who is constantly changing.

Do not stick to a thing simply because you have chosen it, but after choosing it wisely keep your feet firm and do not vacillate.

LATE POTATO SITUATION'S GIVEN REVIEW

Wendell Gallohn at Idaho Falls Reports on Week's Developments in Spuds

A brisk demand and a rather sharp advance in prices featured the Idaho potato market last week, according to the weekly review compiled by Wendell Gallohn, market news representative of the Federal Department of Agriculture at Idaho Falls. The price advance generally amounted to about 15c per cwt., and in some cases the price of U. S. No. 1, early, King of the Hill, rose to 70c per cwt. for the best stock. During the week the market was very active, and a fifteen cent advance would hardly have been considered worthy of notice, but this season after several months of a steady market and a continuously low price, such an advance is quite an event.

Local cash prices at the close of the week for loaded cars of Russets were mostly 90c to 95c for U. S. No. 1, compared with 75c to 80c a week before, while No. 2s were scarce at 55c. Just a time higher than the previous week were mixed stock for storage. A practice of loading and grading in the growers' cellars, and loading directly on the trucks by the holders from Saturday. This cannot be done with shipments destined west or south, but it is more than sufficient to account for the higher prices.

Prices paid to growers varied considerably according to the basis of the sales and the quality of the potatoes. U. S. No. 1 Russets were 120c per cwt. for the best stock, or 80c to 90c per cwt. for the best stock for storage.

Ashton Derby Looks Big For 1928 Dog Race

All eyes are turned toward Ashton as the annual dog derby derby draws near. The Washington birthday, February 22, has been the date of this great Idaho event for a number of years. The Ashton race is recognized as the national dog derby event and the winning of first place brings with it the most coveted trophy in the country.

The 1928 races may attract as many as 20 dog teams from the principal sections of the country. The Ashton derby has reached the pinnacle of popularity because of the persistent efforts of some of the nation's greatest breeders, headed by D. W. Harris, Earl Kimball, Kent Fuller, Walter Day, Bill Trent, and others. The Ashton race is held at the Ashton track, near Morefield, Harry Kennedy and a number of other popular men.

Dean Iddings Addresses Jerome Creamery Group at Association Meeting

The annual meeting of the Jerome Cooperative Creamery Association was held at Jerome Tuesday. Dean E. Iddings, director of the state bureau of dairying, addressed the group at the meeting. He discussed the current situation of the dairy industry and the importance of cooperative marketing. He also discussed the need for better organization and management within the creamery industry. The meeting was held in the Jerome town hall and was attended by a large number of creamery members and their families.

Business of Concern Shows Big Advance Over 1926—Nearly 500 Persons Attend All-day Sessions Tuesday.

Another Calendar Plan

Another effort to revise the calendar, so as to make each month contain exactly four weeks, is being made by the League of Nations. Several plans have been suggested, but one proposed by M. B. Cotter, director of the League of Nations, appears to be the most practical. It would require the insertion of a leap day into the month of February every four years. This would result in a calendar where each month would have exactly four weeks, except for the month of February, which would have five weeks every four years. This plan is being considered by the League of Nations as a way to simplify the calendar and make it easier to use.

Take Census of Livestock in Gem State

There were 3,267,000 head of livestock on Idaho farms January 1, 1928, in comparison with 3,126,000 in 1927, an increase of 141,000, or 4.5 per cent. The annual estimate of livestock numbers. This represents an increase of 4.2 per cent. The total value of these animals, based on January 1 prices, is $68,771,900, compared with $64,000,000 a year ago, or an increase of 7.4 per cent.

Horses, mules and all other livestock, including swine, are included in the census. The total value of these animals, based on January 1 prices, is $68,771,900, compared with $64,000,000 a year ago, or an increase of 7.4 per cent.

NEW THEATRE FOR TWIN FALLS

Louis Marcus Enterprises announces the determination to spend $250,000 here in Twin Falls to build a new theatre. The new structure will be a two-story building, 100 feet long and 50 feet wide. It will have a seating capacity of 1,500 people. The theatre is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The new theatre will be a major addition to the Twin Falls community and will provide a new venue for theatrical performances and other cultural events.

Marcus Waro Is Slated For Commissionership

Indications from Idaho are to the effect that Marcus Waro, well-known Twin Falls man, is in line for appointment as county commissioner. Mr. Waro is a prominent citizen and has served in various public offices. He is expected to be appointed to the position of county commissioner for the next term. His appointment would be a significant addition to the Twin Falls community and would provide a new leader for the county government.

Keenan Again Secretary of County Fair

Frank J. Keenan has been re-elected secretary of the Twin Falls county fair for the year 1928. Mr. Keenan has served in this position for several years and has been instrumental in the successful operation of the fair. He is expected to continue his work as secretary for the next year. The Twin Falls county fair is a major event in the community and provides a venue for agricultural and cultural activities.

Grange Broadcasting Station

The Grange Broadcasting Station is a project of the National Grange. It is a radio station that provides a platform for the dissemination of information and the promotion of agricultural interests. The station is expected to be a valuable resource for the farming community and will provide a means of communication for farmers and their families. The station is currently in the planning stages and is expected to be operational in the near future.

AN AUCTION BLOCK

Big league baseball teams are said to be paying $100,000, and other players are being purchased from other teams. This is a significant development in the world of professional sports and indicates the high value placed on top talent. The auction block is a common feature of the sports industry and provides a means of transferring players between teams. This year's auction is expected to be one of the most competitive in recent years.

WHAT'S NEW

A new British intelligence machine, entirely automatic in operation, can make a million tapes in a week. This is a significant advancement in the field of intelligence gathering and will provide a more efficient means of collecting and processing information. The machine is expected to be widely used by intelligence agencies around the world.

GRANGE A MASON

More than 500 Masons were assembled recently at Wheaton, Ill., to witness the conferring of the Master Mason degree on "Red" Grange, famed football star. This is a significant event in the life of the Grange family and represents a major achievement for the young man. The ceremony was held in a grand hall and was attended by a large number of guests.

WOLVES AT DOOR

When the massive management in Santander, Spain, the inhabitants of 16 villages have been prohibited to destroy the beasts. This is a concerning development for the communities affected and highlights the need for effective wildlife management. The presence of wolves is a threat to the safety and well-being of the people and their livestock.

ANTHROPOLOGICAL

A race of negro pygmies recently discovered in Africa are believed to be the lowest form of human life existing in the world. This discovery is a significant contribution to the field of anthropology and provides new insights into the evolution of the human race. The pygmies are a small, primitive people who live in a remote area of Africa.

PROSECUTION

Fire did about $100,000 damage at Ellensburg, Tenn., while a new fire engine remained on a railroad car in the yards awaiting unloading. This is a significant loss for the community and highlights the need for improved fire safety measures. The fire was caused by a malfunctioning engine and resulted in the destruction of several buildings.

SENTENCED TO CHURCH

The prison sentence of Howard Harter, convicted of burglary at Huntington, W. Va., has been suspended on condition that he must attend church every Sunday. This is a unique punishment and reflects the community's emphasis on religious observance. Harter is expected to continue his attendance at church for the remainder of his sentence.

LOSING PROPOSITION

A. P. Pierce and W. D. Bryan of Kootenai, Cal., who have been arrested in a series of highway robberies, got only 15 cents from the man they held up. This is a disappointing result for the robbers and highlights the risks involved in such activities. The man was a well-known figure in the community and was targeted for his wealth.

SPURNS COIN

Olaf E. Wierch has been named editor-in-chief of McCall's Magazine at the age of 22, but will not accept the increasing salary due to his promotion from assistant editor until he has demonstrated that he can make good. This is a bold move by the magazine and reflects the high standards of the publication. Wierch is a young man with a bright future in the field of journalism.

PROFLOCCONTROL

Following the vigorous recommendations of National Master Farmer looking toward flood control, the National Grange has adopted a policy as a part of a national program. This is a significant step in the fight against flooding and will provide a means of protecting the farming community from the devastating effects of floodwaters. The program is expected to be implemented in the near future.

LAWS ENFORCEMENT

It is said that a post of the Canadian Mounted Police is to be established on the Yukon peninsula, only about 600 miles from the North Pole. This is a significant development in the field of law enforcement and will provide a more effective means of maintaining order in the remote region. The post is expected to be operational in the near future.

MUCH HERE TO THINK ABOUT

Grange Suggests Prompting Tax Equalization Plan. A statement of Grange tax policy was contained in a vote to policy, and a resolution was adopted. This is a significant development in the field of taxation and will provide a means of ensuring that all citizens are treated fairly. The plan is expected to be implemented in the near future.

ANDY SWATS FREAK FARMING

Why 9-10 of all the farmers in Idaho don't die of starvation is more than I can tell. It may be all right to call Idaho the Gem state from the standpoint of mineral varieties; but from the standpoint of agriculture it should be called the freak state. Uncle "P. T." Barnum, if he were alive today, could throw a few regiments of soldiers from Uncle Sam & come out to Idaho & capture enough freak farmers to stak up a "chain" circus aggregation of a 1,000 circles, with 10 hippodrome rings each and make a million dollars a month out of freaking the freakiest exhibitions ever captured on earth.

It would take every page in this issue of the Idaho Citizen to start, begin, commence, 2 enumerate the wild-eyed, skin-limit, excess baggage, hi-powered, split-second, up-2-the-minute, conglomeration of freak farm myths used by the Idaho sons of the soil sweat and toll.

Just dig around in the memory department of your belfry and step back 50 years when lots of us had less teeth than we have now, and not a button on our clothes and compare the farm methods of those good old days to the shipper-efficiency equipment that takes up about half of the standing room on the average Idaho farm.

Let's compare the difference in the 2 methods by starting in at milking time.

In the good old days we went out in the barn lot in the morning 2 hours before zero daylight, kicked a milk-stalk-lass with the copper protected top of our adamant leather boot, that still pinched our heel because of the battle with the bootjack the night before, this weapon tuned up for operation, consisted of a stick of hickory wood about 18 inches long, on top of which was spiked a stick of 2x4 scantling about 6 inches long. This substantial life lasting implement with seating capacity for one had doubtless been doing duty in the same cow yard for the past 20 years. Then in a three gallon milk bucket the thrifty operator could collect all of the milk from 1-2 dozen big cows that looked like something compared to the wedge-shaped light weight super-stered pper producing pink tea dairy cows of to-day, but what is the use? Go on and make the comparison for yourself and then you will be just as anxious to go back to the good old methods as I am.

To Head Farm Loan

As a step toward new relief measures for farmers, President Coolidge completed a reorganization of the Federal Farm Loan Bureau. Mr. Eugene Meyer, Jr. of the War Finance Corporation will be named Farm Loan Commissioner and will be entrusted with developing the Administration farm plan.

Who's who in the city?

Grinstead, called "the pirate," a millionaire, is stranded when his car breaks down on a California mountainside.

Grinstead, his daughter, is with him. She is "spoiled" and not overly pleased because he is not a millionaire.

Ross Gardner, Grinstead's "second in command," a young man of ability, whom Burton suspects her father is throwing at her way.

Davenport, a youth, comes by accident when he is trying to buy his small car runs on electricity, so he has no "gas" to give them, and he is being taken in by Ross Gardner by predicting a rainstorm. The stranger makes another bet with Gardner, and then he is being taken in by Gardner.

"I want to know more about these gifts of yours," demanded Burton after a time. "I want to know how you know so accurately about the rain?"

"I don't know very clearly myself," Larry answered. "I've never tried to express it. I've only mentioned it when speaking of an opening."

POLITICS AND POTATOES

We so often hear folks lament because so many of the most important matters pertaining to the business and welfare of the people are used as "political footballs."

When you come to think it over, there does not seem to be any way out of just being very practice under our present manner of administering our municipal, county, state and government affairs. Those who are elected to public office are the business executives and managers who are entrusted with the sole power and responsibility of transacting the business of the public.

Their election to office and their continuance therein depends upon their ability to please the people who have the vote to put them in office or take the office away from them. Politics is the science of government.

Now please step up and tell us just how you can manage to keep the administration of the public's business out of politics, or to prevent the most vital problems of business from becoming "political footballs?" Perhaps some well-meaning person of unusual personal heroism, may unhesitatingly hurl back the answer, that public officials should have the backbone to decide every matter entirely upon its cold-blooded business merits regardless of who likes it or who doesn't.

We admit that sounds interesting, but no one so far as we have been able to learn has been able to literally do this and stay in office long enough to get very far.

It must be remembered that public business has many difficult problems to face that a private business concern does not have to contend with, owing to the fact that the entire public has to be considered and served with many attending conflicting situations arising which immediately arouse antagonism from one or more sources that are suffering loss while some one else may profit from certain policies.

Take the state of Idaho for instance; there is such a diversity of natural resources and production that it is impossible to please all of them at the same time. In the northern part of the state the timber and mining interests far out-strip the agricultural interests. This immediately brings about open warfare between the timber and mining interests on the one hand and the agricultural interests of the entire state on the other hand in matters of tax distribution. Each side of the controversy naturally gets out and tries to elect the men to public office who see things as they see them in order to escape as much as possible of what they term "unfair tax discrimination."

You can go ahead and multiply this situation by scores of similar ones of more or less magnitude, including the grading and branding of potatoes, all of which are part of the warp and woof of the business of administering public business affairs. No official can please everybody, no official can be keen enough to know always what is the wise and expedient thing to do under the circumstances.

The leaders of all political parties will tell you that even this handicapped, that the affairs of the people are safest in the hands of their particular party; and solemnly by present that "a piece of a loaf is better than no bread at all" and steadfastly study to please the greatest number of voters with least offense possible to the various opposing elements.

The theory of politicians is that they cannot serve the people unless they are in power, and that it is better to use all possible strategy and wisdom in conducting the business of the people, even though they dare not always "how to the line and let the chips fall where they may."

Just as long as we continue to select our managers of public business by ballot, just that long will public officials have to consider every decision in the light of the effect it will have at the ballot box at election time. It was thus intended in our unobtainable form of government, which came into existence with the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

BUSINESS AND ELECTIONS

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, a noted business commentator, believes it is a myth that election years are bad years for business. He shows that in six of the twelve years since 1880 in which Presidential elections have taken place business has been better than normal, that in one year it was normal, and in only five years below normal.

On the whole, Col. Ayres points out, business in years of Presidential elections has been slightly better than normal. It is no doubt true that business fluctuations in Presidential election years are due to economic rather than political causes.
