FARMERS WIN VICTORY IN U. S. SUPREME COURT

Three million farmers of this country won a victory of tremendous importance to them in the United States supreme court the other day when a decision was handed down upholding the legality of the principle of co-operative marketing.

This decision is not only of immense value to the 3,000,000 farmers now organized in co-operative marketing associations; but also to those who have held back from joining such organizations up to this time awaiting this decision from the highest court in the land.

On a case taken up through regular channels from Kentucky the decision, written by Justice McReynolds, the co-operative marketing act is declared to be constitutional; that contracts between co-operative marketing associations; (organized for non-profit purposes), and the individual producer of the commodity, are declared to be binding.

In the particular case that went up from Kentucky a grower of tobacco broke his contract with the association and sold his crop through other channels. Suit was brought against him and the case was fought all the way to the top. The decision of the supreme court places the stamp of approval on co-operative marketing laws in 42 of the states.

It is asserted that co-operative marketing associations now in existence handle products valued at $2,500,000,000 and have a membership of approximately 3,000,000 producers.

These figures will be increased enormously within the next few years under the stimulus of this decision, and with the rapidly spreading conviction that farmers and other producers must band together to control the marketing of their output if they are to survive.

IMPORTANT HEARING

The hearing scheduled to take place today in Twin Falls before a representative of the Interstate Commerce Commission is fraught with great possibilities for the good of the Twinland Empire.

It promises to result in reduced freight rates over the Rogerson-Wells cut-off and from California points, a hope that has been held out ever since the construction of this road.

Justice, it appears, demands that this section be given rates, to the Bay district at least as favorable as those now being enjoyed by Utah points.

The state public utilities commission is taking up the cudgel for southern Idaho; the railroads will be here with legal talent endeavoring to prevent the lowering of the rates as asked for, and the investigator for the Interstate Commerce Commission will receive the testimony.

The results cannot help but be of extreme benefit to us.

NO FACTS ON HAND!

The current belief is that crime conditions are known to authorities, and that careful statistics are available. The National Crime Commission, however, through Loyd Mc. H. Howe, assistant to the chairman, has let it be known that there is no way of telling how much crime there is in the country and how this crime is divided among the various states and communities.

The commission therefore is sponsoring a bill, to be introduced in the various legislatures, asking that all crimes be promptly reported by local police officers.

It is a queer fact, and few are cognizant of it, that most of the crimes committed in the United States are not reported or recorded.

All estimates on crime conditions are mere guess-work, reliable agencies unite in declaring. Statistics are altogether inadequate.

There has been talk of a crime wave for three years. When the National Crime Commission was formed, it determined to find out if there really was a crime wave. A reliable statistical bureau was engaged to collect the figures on crime, and reported that there was no general collection of figures.

The statistics had never been gathered together by localities.

The statistical bureau said it would cost about one million dollars and take about six months, to collect data that would probably be incorrect at that!

Thus it was demonstrated that imaginary figures on crime matter are just as good as printed ones.

If crime is greater in the cities than in the smaller centers, then the herding together of large populations is a cause of crime; if crimes are just as prevalent in the country as in the city, then there must be another prime cause; nobody knows.

And until facts about crime become known facts, no sane, responsible study of crime conditions, with a view to reducing criminality, can be made. Therefore it seems best compelling all local police officers to report every crime that occurs within their ken might prove very helpful and satisfactory if it becomes a law.

WE SEE by the PAPERS

By J. H. S.

Glen R. Maxwell, publisher of the Shebocon Journal has gone mad—mad—mad—mad. The brilliant wit of the editor of the Journal and the event took place March 24.

This column joins the state press in extending congratulations to Mr. Maxwell.

 I remember many years ago when I was a little lad, grandpas was very prone to say "The world will be a better place when they're used to be." Then father got the habit in his latter years: "None, the world ain't what she used to be," which made me doubt at times just how bad the world could get, and how long she could last at the first pace she was slipping.

But many years have passed and the old world looks just the same and the people are very much the same. Adm very likely remarked when he was driven from the Garden of Eden, "What's the world coming to?" but here she is today!

To the younger generation, I wish to say don't let me worry you with such talk, it's merely conversation. When your hair is white, and your beard is tough, you will say what the world coming to? I know because one of my favorite sayings is: "What's the world coming to?" Yes, I am getting up in years!

And from Bow's "Dug-Out" column in the Allargogue (N. M.) Journal via George Byrns' Gully Walk, comes this advice to editors which is assigned to this week's home reading work for the Beginners' Class in English As She Is:

U. N. Hated, who writes occasional squibs for Dug Out, rises to a point of order and suggests the following advice to all columnists in the press of the country. The suggestions will be continued from time to time as space and pertinent ink permit:
 In promulgating your esoteric cogitations, or articulating your superficial sentimentalities and remarkable philosophical or psychological observations; beware of platitudinous ponderosities.

Eschew all circumlocutions, statuten parallelisms, adjectival embellishment, and adverbial affections.
 Correctly consider all clandestine coarctations with conclusive consistency and concentrated cogency.

Let your extemporaneous despatches and unpremeditated repartitions have voracious vivacity without redemptive or throat-cutting bonnets.

Sedulously avoid polysyllabic profundity, prudent jocosity, perspicacious vacuity, apparent or otherwise.

April this year will not only have that one beautiful day, All Fools, but if we are very cleverly correct on this sitting, it also has Friday the thirteenth, which is worse.

WRITES LOCAL HISTORY.
 J. W. Trego, editor of the Blackfoot Republican for the past 26 years, has compiled a series of ten articles under the title: "Fifty Years of Local History," which will be published serially in his newspaper.

Illustrations for the articles have been furnished by Jo Martin of Arco.
 Mr. Trego announces that the history will not be published in book form, and urges those interested to secure and keep the copies of the newspaper in which it will appear, beginning this week.

"Among My Souvenirs" was played on a violin solo at the funeral of a prominent business man in Twin Falls recently. The fact is unusual enough to be news, and sensible enough to be commended.

With The State Press

FUTURE OF PROGRESSIVE PARTY

(Nampa Leader-herald)

The Progressive party leaders of Ada county protest against recent newspaper articles saying the party was disintegrating and the members of it would join one of the old parties. It is of small consequence what the leaders in Ada county say or the leaders in a dozen counties say. It seems almost certain that there will be no national ticket of that party. There is nothing whatever at the present time to indicate that there will be. Without a national ticket it must be obvious to any one that a state ticket would be a waste of energy, time and money. In a state where the party has made a vigorous campaign for the past three elections and met with defeat by a growing majority against it, the hopefulness of a ticket without the aid of a national ticket is, in all probability, a waste of time. It is possible that for the leaves and flock there may be county Progressive tickets in Canyon county and two or three others, and they may win, but the party has had its day so far as putting over political principles is concerned.

BEETS LOOK MORE FAVORABLE

(Malden County News)

Prospects for a greater acreage of beets brightened the past week with the change of weather and many who had been hesitating as to whether to take a chance on beet crops in the face of the Carter white fly report, are now preparing the ground and getting ready to sow beet seed.

The storms of the past week, with considerable moisture in the shape of rain and snow have proved beneficial for the beet outlook, and should this weather keep up for periods during April and May which many farmers expect, it would seem that farmers in most districts in Minidoka county stand a good chance to get fair yields of beets. Farmers on the west side, however, where the fly is always worse, due to the proximity to the river, should not be too keen to plant beets this year. Sub-land, on the other hand, should prove good beet land.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way has been busy as she has been out of school and is now ready to take her place in the world.

The storms this late in the season are not expected to lessen the fly to any noticeable extent, but will make the foliage on the beet more prolific with the result that the pest should remain longer in the wide open spaces, giving the beets a better chance to develop.

Those planting beets should be prepared to plant to other crops should the beets not do so well as expected by the middle of May. The land will be in good shape for potatoes, beans, oats, or barley and there will still be plenty of time to get good yields. In case the beets are plowed up there will be no cost for seed, the company states.

At present it looks like only one factory in this part of Idaho will operate next fall and the Paul factory may yet be that one. Something over 1200 acres of beets have been contracted here Monday and it is expected that about 2000 acres will be procured before planting time is far advanced.

SUPPOSE HE REFUSES IT

(Nampa Star News)

The Senate does not enjoy a personal acquaintance with one Harry F. Sinclair to whom Senator William E. Borah proposes to return $100,000. We say "return" advisedly, the term, of course, implying that Mr. Sinclair at one time had $100,000 and then parted with it. Senator Borah is endeavoring to raise this money by popular subscription.

as his published neighbors indicate he is, he will refuse to accept this money if it is ever intended to him. In fact such an attitude on his part would be the logical course for him to pursue in this matter. He is not obliged to accept it—he may save the senator and the $100,000 while refusing the tender and walk away.

In such a contingency, what is to happen. This opens a field for quite unlimited speculation. One thing, however—there are the decision poor. We always have them with us.

Tributes Paid by Notables to the Late Tom Blodgett

It is with a deep feeling of pride that The Citizen prints herewith a synopsis of some of the tributes paid to the late Tom Blodgett, who was killed by a train to the time of his death in this city Wednesday, March 21.

William Allen White, author and Editor of the "Common Sense," writes of Tom's death as one of its most poignant and beloved misdeeds. Mrs. White and I send you our affectionate sympathy.

From Elton, Arkansas, former home of Mr. Blodgett, where he was mayor for two terms, and where there is a park named in his honor, came a telegram from that community expressing their deep sympathy when they heard of his death.

Honoring the memory of young Tom Blodgett, who was a college student brought particular care to holding out hope at Hickham, Ill., a contractor there was named Blodgett, and continues to be designated.

Congressman Addison T. Smith, "Tom Blodgett was indeed one of God's noblest and best loved sons of the American people."

Senator Arthur Capper, "I had great admiration for Tom Blodgett. When he was in Kansas I found that more than thirty in common."

A special dispatch to the Twin Falls Times, under date of March 29, Dan Montpelier, Vermont, is reproduced here in full, through the courtesy of The Times Publishing company.

Governor Weeks with other prominent citizens of the state will join with civic and religious organizations today in the great memorial service held at Stowe in honor of the late Tom Blodgett, who died at Twin Falls, Idaho, after a remarkable and brilliant career in the service of the state.

Grange Broadcasting Station

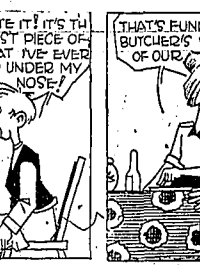

A striking example of successful cooperation among farmers is furnished by the Grange Broadcasters, who are operating a project of large magnitude, greatly to the benefit of the farmers of this section. During 1927 the company paid to Farmers $22,000 for better feed, $12,000 for eggs, and $15,000 for poultry. This year the company is expected to pay to the farmer $20,000 for better feed and $15,000 for eggs. The company is owned by 120 individual Grange members in this section. The company has been paid several thousand dollars in the last few weeks. Grange membership has followed.

In one of the suburban townships of Hartford, Connecticut, the Grange has organized a number of its members and put in a local day's work building a good road. It is a fine example of the Grange's ability to improve the appearance of the streets of the town. Their work is done in behalf of the public good.

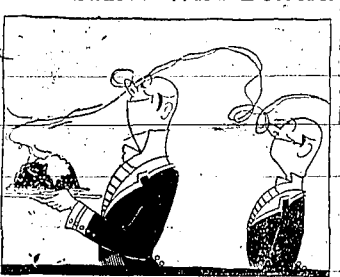

Many granges throughout the country are joining in a vigorous protest against the mischievous plan of a national association in Washington and are making their views felt in no uncertain tones. Some of the Grange's "hearing from home" in a way that proves the effectiveness of Grange agitation when thoroughly aroused.

In the last few weeks several Granges have been organized in the state of Virginia, much preliminary work has been done in other fields and it is now certain that Virginia is a State Grange organization will be reorganized. The next National Grange convention, which meets in Washington, will be held in the city of Washington.

PARROT OWNED BY PRESIDENT HARRISON

Omaha, Neb., - Polly, 10-year-old African parrot, was presented to John A. Moffatt of Omaha, belonged to President Benjamin Harrison when he occupied the White House. At that time the bird was said to be at least thirty years old. Polly still remembers many of her presidential master's sayings and other White House lore. The President is one of the old bird's frequent outbursts, as "that's the way that boy looks" and "that's the way that boy looks." When a certain Russian called on him, he would call him "that Russian."

Before applying polish to furniture, wipe each piece with diluted vinegar, adding 1 cup of white distilled vinegar to a quart of water. After drying, apply polish. After you will find the furniture takes on a finer, more lasting lustre.

War Started on Cooperatives

Proof that the cooperative movement in agriculture is making the success that has been hoped for by its sponsors, is evidenced by the fact that a huge combine is attempting to be formed to fight the cooperatives. It is known as the "Federated Agricultural Trades of America."

This evil influence must be combatted with all possible vigor by those sympathetic to cooperation. New members give added strength; loyalty of old members is just as necessary at this time. In this war, producers should ENLIST WITH THE COOPERATIVES!
