AGAINST ADAM AND EVE

Increasingly Complex Conditions of Modern Living Force Search for Scientific "Fountain of Youth"—Fostered by Governments—"Sunless Civilization" Declared Greatest Menace to Human Race—United States Takes Lead as Bureau of Standards Announces the Successful Reproduction of Natural Sunlight From Carbon, Earth's Natural Storehouse for Vital Rays.

HERE always, of course, has been a school of thought which held that the greatest error that can be marked up against Adam and Eve was in acknowledging the friendly overtures of the snake and accepting his apparently generous invitation to try an apple.

Now, however, in the light of a number of the recent findings in scientific research, it appears that a probably equally serious error was made when the original couple left the garden and changed their habits to include the adoption of clothes. Although there have been many in every age since to question their original bliss of nudity, it really was the first step toward our modern, civilized and "sunless" life—the effects of which are one of the prime causes of health and vitality being "lost" throughout the world today.

In other words, while the fabled best may have had its virtues in some directions, the main variety of its divers in favor of more elaborate covering itself well be set aside as a day for international mourning. For, in spite of all the theories, far, they point out, that from that day on instead of being clothed with artificialities—calling them clothes—a better way of life today has covered a large part of the earth's surface with an artificial crust, formed largely of cement, stone, bricks, wood and steel, in which and under which, in works and shops. Covering himself with a multiplicity of garments, he is transported in automobiles cars to buildings from which the sunlight is carefully shut out, or, at least, shut out, at the hottest of his city canyon deep streets.

Fig. 1. Diagram of the wonderful way in which the sun's rays are kept from the "sunless" life of the modern child.

Actually we are moved by the most primal instinct of life, the sense of the more general and, until very recently, unappreciated facts that have been learned about sunlight by those who in laboratory clothes have been quietly and laboriously investigating various phases of the problem concerning sunlight are interesting enough.

Magic Light

We know now, for example, that sunlight has many rays that are invisible to the eye and that it is these invisible rays that contain the vital power. Records have been made of the periods when these invisible rays are strongest. These records have been compared with actual death rates and with the prevalence of sickness and a direct relationship is clearly indicated.

The most pronounced decline in the death-rate during the past few years occurred during the summer months—the time when the vital rays are strongest. Between 1922 and 1923, for instance, industrial plant accidents in this country, the

This, incidentally, is the fundamental fact that the mass of the population of this, as well as many other countries, are ignorant of. The excessive ailments about which the vital rays have been removed from the light and the vital rays which are, as a whole, so natural to it is in the fact of the necessity to eat or drink.

Government Alarmed

Governments, as well as religious and health centers, are fully aware of the seriousness of this problem, and, now that the scientists have been able to measure sunlight and separate its elements, all have recognized that in the production of synthetic sunlight will be found the long-sought "fountain of health and youth."

The British Government may be said to be in the forefront of this movement. It has passed through the process of discovery and production every man through public consciousness that sunlight and separate its elements, all have recognized that in the production of synthetic sunlight will be found the long-sought "fountain of health and youth."

Practical Experiment

In the University of Michigan some months ago an interesting experiment was performed with a group of about 250 chickens. They were all housed in an old greenhouse where the vegetation had been removed so that the food given would be entirely controlled. One group was allowed to run out in the sunlight every day the sun was shining and the other group was kept under the glass all the time and while

Incidentally, it has been proven that the old-fashioned glass-paned window after it had passed through the glass solution was a failure and a waste of money, that it received out the life-rays and admitted nothing more than "dead" light. The artificial experiment showed that the food given would be entirely controlled. One group was allowed to run out in the sunlight every day the sun was shining and the other group was kept under the glass all the time and while

Actual illustrations to find the one which most closely approaches the ultra-violet spectral energy distribution of the sun.

Such a source has been found to exist in the carbon arc. Of all the artificial illuminants tested it is the nearest approach to sunlight. This is fortunate as it will be possible to meet all requirements in light therapy.

World Conference

Because of the spread of medical interest in the therapeutic value of sunlight and discoveries of ways in which the sun's rays can be reproduced, the first international conference on light has been called to meet in Lonsanne, Switzerland, to face the end of the year.

Illustrious physicians and scientists from all parts of the world will attend to report and compare experiences in this most modern department of healing. Virtually all of the names whose names have been appearing in the newspapers in the recent times in connection with the various modern advances that have been made in this field will be present in this unprecedented gathering.

Two years ago it was shown almost simultaneously by Dr. Albert H. Ross of New York and Dr. Abraham J. Myerson of the University of Wisconsin that the vital rays affect not only the animal body but also the plants and the soil. This discovery was made in one of those cases where the food is exposed to the sun, or to the rays of the sun, in a laboratory, and the plants are overgrown. A specific substance becomes active and often in minutes causes a plant to die. This is called, present of cure rickets.

This is but one of the phases of the subject accounting for the deep interest of physicians, particularly those who are child specialists. This interest will across the world, for the sun's rays are the cause of all the changes brought about by light have all become suddenly aware of the importance of this new therapeutic method.

One of the interesting features of the program for this scientific gathering will be the display of a few hours from Lonsanne, where it is shown the well-known exhibition of Dr. W. G. Cole, which has become the landmark of modern medicine. It was here that Rollie Meigs, a student of the University of California, as well as the group, are credited with having gradually succeeded in withdrawing the sun's rays from the body of a child suffering from rickets. This was done by the simple treatment of exposure to the rays of the sun. This demonstration is being held in the city of Lonsanne, where it is the center of all the activities of the world.

Personal Welfare

Probably the most important of the interest among medical and scientific men in the present is the fact that the sun's rays are the cause of all the changes brought about by light have all become suddenly aware of the importance of this new therapeutic method.

As a consequence of this is the increased emphasis which is being placed on the sun's rays, particularly by parents who are interested in the health of their children. It is this fact that is the cause of all the changes brought about by light have all become suddenly aware of the importance of this new therapeutic method.

We live in the shade. Not only in our homes, but our workhouses, offices, schools and places of entertainment are conducted indoors and behind windows that deprive us of the life-giving rays of sunlight. The result, aside from the obvious ailments, is what is described as "licked disease." Feeling the need of sunlight all the more actively because of the enormous under world we live, we are willing, periodically, to pay money before to actually live in the sun. We get into and we need a change of scenery, and, depending upon our circumstances and position, we go to the beach, to the mountains, to the back of Europe and to the Orient. Usually, but rarely, we get, because we feel "like a new

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE
Duce Duane, quick on the draw, kills Cal Bain in self-defense and finds himself an outlaw. Fleeing from pursuit, he meets Joe Lyle Stevens, another outlaw, and the two become pals. Lyle arranges a lynch-party capture and Duane is allowed to find his brother outlaws severely wounded.

Duane buries Stevens. Then he goes to the Blain's camp, where he is called into a flight, and he gets into a fight with the man he calls Bismore and wounds the latter. He makes a friend of an outlaw named Jennie and she tells him of Mrs. Blain and the girl Jennie.

Duane meets Jennie and promises to try his utmost to get away from Blain's camp. To avert suspicion, it is planned that he pretend to be Jennie's brother. Eueche introduces him to the latter and she engages in conversation with her.

It was a pale face and darker, more wonderful eyes. The eyes seemed to be entrancing him to hurry, that time was flying, that soon it might be too late.

Then there was another meaning in them—a light—a strange fire wholly inexpressible to Duane. It was his wish and the pain remained. In the depths of his mind, his soul, there was chaos. He felt something dying in him. He suffered. Joe sneered. Far away, Duane had sensed upon his mind was driving him into reckless mood when he thought of Jennie.

He had forgotten her. He had forgotten that he had promised to save her. He had forgotten that

Hobbies and Habits of Hoover and Coolidge Differ but Slightly

Our next President, Herbert Hoover, has always been known as a man of action. He devotes about sixteen hours a day to work, and never sleeps less than eight hours. One of his chief recreations is fishing, at which he is a great expert—another amusement is watching sports events, at which he is always seen with a bag of pennies in his hand. Pennies seem to him one of the chief treasures of life. He is tremendously fond of them.

Efficiently in his leisure in every department of life—to save time, he orders his clothing in large quantities. He purchases as many as half a dozen suits at one time in order to avoid frequent visits to the store.

Evidently the outlaw's wife liked Eueche, for her keen glance rested with amusement upon him. "Are you Jen, I'll never tell a story some day," went on the woman. "It's a common enough story along this river. Eueche here is a tender-hearted fellow, and Jen has taken him in."

When Eueche had shifted into the house Mrs. Blain turned to Duane with curiosity and interest in her gaze.

"I'll tell you, Duane," she said earnestly. "I'm sure that you mean to bite a while. I'm an outlaw's wife, and I hate him and the life I'm led to lead."

"I'm a good fellow, and of a good family in Brownsville. I never knew Blain was an outlaw. I never knew after he married me. We were married at times and I imagined he was away on business. But the truth came out. Blain said my own cousin, who told me. My family came out, and I had to flee with him."

"I was only eighteen, then. I've lived here since. I'm not a decent woman or man. I never hear anything about my old home or folks or friends. I'm buried here—buried alive with a lot of thieves and murderers. Can you blame me for being glad to see a young fellow as gentlemanly as like the boys I used to know?"

"I'll tell you it makes me feel full—I want to cry. I'm sick for somebody to talk to. I have no children, thank God. If I had I'd stay here. I'm sick of this hole. I'm lonely."

"I prepared to be no doubt about the truth of all this. Genuine emotion checked—then halted—she smiled. She drew down and cried. It seemed strange to Duane that an outlaw's wife—and a woman who fitted her conduct as she would expect of an outlaw's—should have weaknesses enough to be loved. "You're Blain's wife? I called on you occasionally?" inquired Duane.

"No, he wouldn't. He likes me to have friends. Ask him yourself when he comes back. The trouble has been that two or three of his men fell in love with me, and when half drunk got to fighting. You're not going to get half drunk, that's certain," replied Duane.

Without any solicitation or encouragement from Duane, the blond woman fell passionately in love with him. Her husband never troubled about the beginning of his affair. She launched it herself. It took no great pretense on his part to be in love. He was playing a game of love. Playing with life and death. Sometimes she trembled, and then he feared Blain or Alloway, or any man, but at the depths of life he had come to see into. He was content of his life as it was.

Not once since this daring moment had stirred him had he been haunted by fancies of Blain being able to find his brother. He had been haunted by Jennie's sad face—her wistful smile—her eyes.

"Do you speak a word to her. What little communication had with her was through Eueche, who carried short messages. But he had no thought of her every time he went to the Blain house. She contrived somehow to pass through the window to give him a look when chance afforded.

"And Duane discovered with surprise that these messages were more thrilling to him than any with Mrs. Blain. Often Duane knew Jennie was sitting just inside the window, and that he had inquired in his talk, and it was all made for her. So at least she came to know him while as yet she was almost a stranger.

Jennie had been instructed by Eueche to listen, to understand that this was Duane's wish, to choose to help her mind from constant worry, to gather the import of every word which had a double meaning.

Eueche said that the girl had begun to wicker under the strain, to burn up with intense hope, which had flamed with the thought of all the difference Duane could and reached their decision in two hours.

"Neither the Bowen's nor the Porter were present when the verdict was given except Tharp himself. He sat alone with his counsel and showed no sign of the effect on him. He was as motionless and stolid as a statue. He meant that the speaking only in low tones afterwards to his attorneys.

The address of Mr. Porter and Mr. Taylor to the jury were vigorous and earnest, while those of Judge Dettwiler and Mr. Witham were among the most vigorous and dramatic ever given to a jury in Twin Falls county.

I. E. Finney of Piler was foreman of the jury, the other members being as follows: Gene Marshall, Herbert Jamison, Peter Mulder of Hansen; D. W. Hunter, S. G. Mackley and W. A. Holloway of Twin Falls; Charles Holmstrom of Kimberly and S. D. Ferguson of Twin Falls were alternates but were not used.

Tharp sat on the witness stand in his own defense, Friday

The very remembrance shrank of his marital indiscretion. She made a difference. How strange for him to realize that! He felt grateful to her. He had been afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and continued during the night session. Questioning by his counsel, A. W. Porter, brought out many events in Tharp's life, dating back to the time of his birth in Indiana, and proceeding through years of residence in Kentucky, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Iowa again, and Idaho. All these events were narrated in an effort to prove the persecution Tharp claimed to have suffered and because of which he was therefore not responsible for the killing of Mrs. Bowen September 26.

Tharp said he had never gone to school until he was 11 years old, and then for only three terms. He told of several business deals in Iowa in which his elder brother John wronged him and made him to appear dishonest. John, he said, had continued to write letters to people in Kansas, Iowa and Idaho, wherever he moved, telling them that Ward Tharp was dishonest, mean and otherwise a bad man.

On the witness stand Ward Tharp declared that while he had never been able to locate these letters or see any of them in reality, he knew who wrote them. He said his brother had been wronged many times at life. He told of a number of times when he had been arrested and convicted when he was not guilty, but that he was being persecuted for an entire year, they were all after him, Tharp said, he got out of his car and the Bowen's grappled with him. During the struggle the Bowen's got hold of his gun and did the shooting, injuring him as well as killing Mrs. Bowen.

Tharp's wife and a number of his relatives and neighbors were on the witness stand, occupying several days. The Tharp family history was related, showing that the head 10 of his near relatives and at one time or another became insane and had been in the Indian insane asylum. Different witnesses testified during the trial that Tharp had acted in a peculiar manner for years and was mentally abnormal. He was subject to spells of anger and insanity, they said, with the illusion of thinking people were threatening him, fleeing from him and persecuting him.

All this, Mr. Porter and Mr. Taylor, the defense lawyers argued, had created in Tharp an "insane delusion of being persecuted," to such an extent that he was not responsible for killing Mrs. Bowen.

The court room was crowded during each session of the trial, particularly the night sessions.

The murder trial has created much interest and curiosity here. The sensational events related in regard to Tharp's family and his life.

IDAHO TURKEY THANKSGIVINGS

Thousands of homes throughout the nation on Thanksgiving day will be paying tribute to the lowly Idaho turkey piece of resistance of the holiday table. No better morsel of food could be asked for except maybe it be Idaho baked potatoes, along with Idaho beans, Idaho honey and other Gem State products.

The turkey industry is a comparatively new one in Idaho, but a most profitable one, chiefly because the product is in great demand, and because of the high quality of the birds.

Hail to Thanksgiving Day!
Hail to the Turkey!
Hail to Idaho!

APPROACHING

Advertisements are beginning to appear with decorations of holy and smiling faces of Santa Claus. To the observant these ad messages tell their own story, give their own warning, hint at the important business from which space is barred and in which sooner or later everybody will be engaged.

In other words, Christmas shopping. The holiday is little less than a month ahead, fewer shopping days than that by a good deal. In no time these days will pass. The natural procrastinator will wait until Christmas Eve when store clerks will be jammed by other procrastinators, stocks picked out, clerks weary, customers in a flutter, clocks ticking time's rapid pace, all because the reminders of today have been neglected.

Every year more sensible persons do their Christmas shopping early. They reap all the advantages in variety of selection and leisure of choice and when Christmas Eves comes they can proceed about their last-minute holiday tasks orderly, while the other fume and sputter.

American are a great people never to do today what can be done tomorrow. The postmaster has urged early posting of Christmas mail, but the last days will probably be bigger than ever. The train leaves at 6:00 but the cars do not fill until 4:55. We get there even if we are a last-minute patron, but it is at a tremendous cost of physical energy and mental upssets. The Christmas shopping season is merely one phase of a national temperament.

PRACTICAL WAY OF HELPING FARMERS

Twelve years ago J. F. Bruhn quit his government job because of ill health, acquired forty irrigated acres in the Boise Valley of Idaho and became a farmer. Today he has a nice home, twenty cows, a valuable farm, a wife and three children. And for all of these blessings he awards the major share of the credit to the abundant use of cheap electric current on his farm.

He tells the story entertainingly in the Reclamation Era, the monthly published by Uncle Sam for his Reclamation Service settlers. For seven years Mr. Bruhn struggled along in the dark, doing his chores, including the milking, by hand alone and by the dim light of an oil lamp. His string had grown to seven cows, and they kept him busy. Then he tapped a power line a mile away. At once bright light came into barn and house. The hand-pumping of water was done away with; that saved him an hour a day. A motor-driven separator saved as much as a feed-grinder cut down labor time and enabled the owner to add three cows. These increased his income to such an extent that he could afford to marry, especially as he could hold out the prospect of electrical household conveniences to the girl of his heart.

Now the Bruhns have an electric range, washing machine, iron, toaster, vacuum cleaner, fan, parolator, waffle iron, solder iron, curling iron, gas, glow heater and other conveniences in the house, while in the barn electricity does most of the work, including the milking of twenty cows and the pumping of irrigation water in dry seasons.

Most assuredly cheap and abundant electric power on the Western farm will be a greater and more practical help to the owner than all the theories about farm relief put together.

While thinking about Christmas presents, do not forget how most acceptable a year's subscription to The Idaho Citizen would be to that friend or relative far or near.

Sugar beet enthusiasts are smiling broadly as they see the mercury dropping steadily as winter approaches. They know it means death to the white flies, and that a good beet year in 1929 can be expected.

There are only about five more weeks left in Old 1928.

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING EARLY.

Big Men from Small Towns

HERBERT HOOVER
Early the "biggest man" from a small town at the moment. At present Hoover, who has been elected by the people of America to the highest office in the land by the largest popular vote ever cast. Our next president's career is exceedingly interesting, for it shows very clearly the various opportunities open to the small towns.

Hoover was born at West Branch, Ia., in 1874, the son of a blacksmith. He was educated at the college, then worked his way through college, beginning his industrial career as a laborer with a pick in the mines. Today he is the chosen leader of a nation.

Hoover's progress in engineering and mine work was rapid, and it became the head of varied mining enterprises in various parts of the world. His ascent to the high office in the republic.

WEEKLY POTATO MARKET REVIEW
Shipments and prices covered period Nov. 14-20, inclusive. Snow trading in both markets characterized the potato situation throughout the country last week. Potato shipments in the United States amounted to 4,446 cars and against 4,389 for the corresponding week of last year. Six principal lots stated, namely Idaho, Colorado, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, with quantities of 469, 565, 895, 288, 365, and 200 cars, respectively, furnished nearly two-thirds of the total movement. Shipments from the two late districts in Idaho were nearly equal; the Idaho Falls section moving 223 cars, and the Burley-Twin Falls section 214 cars.

Offerings of potatoes for immediate shipment continued limited in the Idaho Falls districts as some stock was being loaded on previous orders and some was consigned. The local demand proved to be sufficient to take care of all offerings at a slightly lower price than at any previous time.

then prevailed the previous week. Cash track sales of warehouse ranged 80-95, with an occasional car higher. The wheat and corn offerings of Rural feed buyers at 65-80, cash track basis. A fairly good local demand for U. S. No. 2 Russets existed around 40, but reports from terminal markets indicated that competition from cheaper stock was sufficient to practically eliminate the demand for Idaho tops in many sections and in other parts of the grain territory to result in returns of less than cost plus freight.

Warehouses averaged around 62c per cwt. bulk of Russets ranging out U. S. No. 2 with a range of 60-70 prevailing, according to quality. The volume of direct buying from growers for cash shipment almost equalled the stock available from warehouses. In some cases, buyers reported that it was possible to obtain larger stocks direct from growers than was offered by warehouses, and accordingly paid a premium over U. S. No. 2 prices for growers' grain, U. S. No. 1 Russets, with the buyer finding the sacks ranged from 70-80.

In the Twin Falls area, carload sales of Russets by growers ranged from 80-90, mostly 80-85, covering most of the week, with a slow demand, and the volume of cash sales day proved to be too light to warrant quoting. No other shipping points, 5c per cwt. was the maximum change from the previous week. U. S. Grades and grades 5c lower, Maine and Wisconsin advanced an equal amount. Chicago reported arrivals of 64 cars of which 122 originated in Idaho. The wheat's trading was at a range of $1.40-1.75 for Idaho Russets, $1.65-1.75 for No. 2, and $1.65-1.75 for No. 1 Russets, and $1.65-1.75 for No. 1 Russets, and $1.65-1.75 for No. 1 Russets.

BOUNTIES FOR ANIMALS CEASE
Bounties on predatory animals are being stopped for the present in Jerome and other counties of Idaho because the prevailing high prices for pelts make the business impractical. The Bureau for the fur has for the bounties. Another reason is that a poisoning campaign is being planned, the funds hereafter used for paying bounties to be used for that purpose.

The Northwest Canal company is still urging boys of other projects to carry on their campaign against muskrats along the ditches and canals in that territory. The fur sells for a good price and in addition, bounties of 20 cents are paid for each muskrat caught. As much as $10 has been earned in one day by some of the muskrat trappers, the Canal company reports.

What's the matter? he asked, in surprise.
"Look at your tail!" shouted Butler bluntly.
"Circular?" exclaimed Br'er Rabbit. "I wanted to make my tail like Mrs. Squirell's so I tied it up as Br'er Jay Bird told me."
"You knew Br'er Jay Bird was a joker!" laughed Mrs. Rabbit. "I think he's your own secret name. He's your better. Now cast the blame!"

CATTLEFORD GRANGE ELECTIONS
Ray Pettibone was elected master of Cattleford grange at the regular meeting Tuesday evening held in the grange hall. Officers for the coming year will be Howard Barrow, worthy secretary; Miss Murray, Thomas, worthy secretary, and Mrs. E. C. Davis, worthy lecturer.

It was a beautiful Thanksgiving morning when Br'er Rabbit started out for a walk before he had the wonderful dinner which his wife was preparing for him and the bunnies.

Dye and dye he came to where Br'er Jay Bird was seated on the limb of a hickory tree and he sat down for a few moments to talk to the bird.

"Do you know," began Br'er Jay Bird, "I can't see why I haven't a tall like Mrs. Squirell. With those lovely ears of yours and a large, bushy tail, you'd be the handsomest animal in the forest."

"I really think so myself," replied the rabbit.
"I tell you what you can do," said the bird. "You take some parapey bark and tie up your tail right. You're going to have Thanksgiving dinner, aren't you?"
"Yes," answered Br'er Rabbit. "Well, by the time you are ready to eat, your tail will be large and bushy as Mrs. Squirell's."

It will take longer than that, won't it?" inquired Br'er Rabbit, anxiously.
"No; it only takes a short while, that is, if you tie your tail tight enough. But be sure to take the bark off before you get home."
Br'er Rabbit disappeared and soon was winding his tail with a piece of parapey bark. He wound it as tight as he could and then took a little nap, waking up when the sun had started down hill.

"Merry me!" exclaimed Br'er Rabbit, when he awoke. "I'll be late for dinner." It rushed to hear all the bunnies snickering.

Bruins Take Measure of Utah Farmers

The Twin Falls Bruins received themselves sufficiently on Lincoln field last Friday to hand the Granite Farmers of Utah a 25-0 defeat in the last game of the year before the big title contest in Twin Falls on Thanksgiving day to determine the state champion.

Granite high school came from Utah prepared to fight hard to break the ice created last year when the Farmers pushed over a touchdown in the last few minutes of play to tie the score at 6-6. The fans were not disappointed, for both Bruins and Farmers were fighting from beginning to end of the game. The heat team won Twin Falls showing up as a form as in any game this season. They had advantage of several breaks in the game which helped to pile up the score.

One of the outstanding plays happened in the second quarter when Brownie Wade broke away from a perfect interference and ran 55 yards for a touchdown. The whole team played together better than they did against the Bruins in the Armistice day game when the Bruins defeated the Bruins 12-0. Granite had only one or two players who played on the main team last year, the rest being less experienced.

Coach H. V. Jones and Coach Herb Berthelund both used plenty of substitutes, shifting other players about frequently in an effort to bolster up the weak spots. Granite threatened to score only when six or seven linemen scored string players were sent in during the quarter. Kuykendahl and Streifus, substituting for Berthelund and Davis in the main line, up played good football.

NEW OFFICERS TO BE ELECTED

The American Falls Irrigation district No. 2 of Gooding and Shoshone will hold an election December 8 when three directors will be elected to fill the places now held by Roy and Fred W. Gooding, deceased. The terms are for three years. A meeting was held last week when the election judges were named.

Secretary D. H. Sutphen reported that specifications for the completion of an additional 20 miles of the 70-mile canal from Blaine to the head under consideration by the federal department of reclamation and that bids would be advertised for. Work on the first portion of the canal is going ahead satisfactorily, the Derbon Construction company of Seattle having awarded a contract about a month ago to start work. The Winton Brothers Construction company of Minneapolis has let at work on the first portion of the canal for about two months. About 300,000 acres under cultivation when the work is finished, the Gooding sector expecting to have water in the spring of 1930.

Commissioners in Session Monday Issue Warning

The board of county commissioners, sitting as a board of health, Monday afternoon unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"In compliance with an order from the State Department of Public Welfare, State of Idaho, we hereby request that all social gatherings in private homes, churches, lodges, schools, theaters, conventions, dance halls, pool halls (in fact as well as concerning eating there), howling alleys, public libraries, shall be discontinued until further notice, and that no assembly in stores, or at games or gatherings of any nature. No funeral services shall be held except at the grave.

"The above order applies within in the borders of Twin Falls county, Idaho, and is in effect until further notice."

CASSIA FEEDS CULLS TO STOCK

Burley stockmen are feeding cull potatoes with other culls in the following ratios: for 1,000-pound steers, 20 pounds of culls and ground alfalfa; for hay with syrup, long alfalfa hay and chopped barley. The potatoes fed raw, the stockmen consider it better than alfalfa, as recommended by specialists would constitute an excellent ration. The expense is not offset by the advantage of feeding the culls raw which the stockmen report.

The potatoes are cut into small pieces about the size of corn sh, although individual culls vary in size. C. of C. Clubs to Aid Farmers

All chambers of commerce in Idaho together with other organizations concerned with civic advancement, will be invited to join the movement sponsored by the State of Idaho, which is designed to study the production, marketing and distribution system for Idaho livestock. It is an effort which the economic situation upon as stable a basis as can be done. Since the Gen. State of Idaho, which is designed to study the production, marketing and distribution system for Idaho livestock. It is an effort which the economic situation upon as stable a basis as can be done.

The Pocatello organization conducted a meeting last Friday with Delos E. James, assistant manager of the United States chamber of commerce agricultural department, outlining the work. The meeting was held in the Pocatello chamber of commerce building. A meeting will be held December 15 with Mr. James again present to hear what these committees have done and to further advance the work.

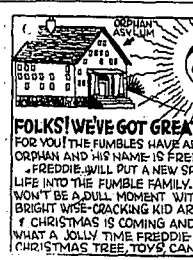

It is the purpose of those behind the movement to gather data which will show type and value of all Idaho products and to give them the same treatment as given to other commodities. A study will also be made of the distribution system used in marketing farm products with the idea of substituting only efficient methods that might exist.

Notices of the Friday meeting will be sent to all chambers of commerce in Idaho and to the state chamber of commerce in order to stimulate the work as cooperative and efficient as possible.

DEATHS

HUNGERFORD - Funeral services were set for Tuesday afternoon for John Wesley Hungerford, 72, who died at the county hospital last Thursday following a paralytic stroke which he had not recover consciousness. The stroke happened Wednesday. Mr. Hungerford had lived in Twin Falls four years, coming from Colorado where he had been a pioneer. He is survived by two sisters: Mrs. M. C. Mason, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Bert Hill, Kirland, Washington; a brother, E. W. Hungerford of Hollister; a niece, Mrs. D. Harvey Cook of Twin Falls, a nephew in Oregon and relatives in the east.

Hog Production Is Advocated

With the comparatively small number of hogs in Twin Falls this year, a good opportunity is before the farmers to grow more swine, according to Mr. W. A. Sullivan, federal veterinarian who visited the county last week investigating tuberculosis of hogs and cattle. No signs of the disease were found, he reported.

It is recommended that every farm should have pipes for the utilization of waste products of potatoes and beans, which make an excellent food when cooked. Grated hogs are being shipped to Caldwell where they are used in the food tests for livestock conducted by the extension department of the state university. Dr. Sullivan conferred with Mrs. H. R. Groome and F. T. Harbo, health commissioner, and with Dr. W. B. Swiger of Tula regarding the condition of cattle shipped from the county.

CASSIA CLOVER SEED CROP GOOD

Good seed reports are being dropping in the production of alfalfa seed this year, although yields of red clover and white clover are not so numerous. One alfalfa seed grower received this year less than a hundred dollars from the same piece of ground that brought him $1000 last year. The price ranges from 18 cents machine run to 25 cents machine run, with prospects going high in all states except Montana. Red clover seed from unclipped plants has brought as high as 27 cents, though the quality was lower than that of seed produced on unclipped areas, the yield also being lighter. Prices range from 24 to 28 cents a pound. Alfalfa clover has yielded heavy with a price ranging from 22 to 29 cents, machine run. Of the 20 carloads of clover seed shipped from Burley this fall, most of it was red clover, the profits liquidating many farmer loans.

Barley-14 loads of turkeys shipped through local mail station. Total returns to growers amount to over $10,000.

Schools Reopen as Health Conditions Improve Locally

With the flu having been to show signs of wearing itself out, school was resumed Monday on a scheduled basis. The additional cases of influenza, spinal meningitis and scarlet fever that were reported in the latter part of the week were not such as to indicate new developments, but were merely the usual level that were reported already existing and caused the health authorities no concern. The spinal meningitis was traced to the Jacob Museum family which is believed to have spread the disease in Twin Falls and Jefferson counties last spring. Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, school health nurse for Twin Falls, reported that this family had been in the Golden Rule addition in Twin Falls several weeks ago. Dr. W. F. Almond of Boise treated several cases in Idaho Falls and had them promptly quarantined. The 1909, Cardwell children and

ANNUAL HUNT ON LIONS BEGINS

The state of Idaho is beginning its annual hunt for lions, three to five lions are being shot and taken into the woods and others to be dispatched if the lions appear on the ground. The hunt is being more hunters necessary. Veteran lion hunters say the king of beasts will seldom attack a human being, but will invariably find its way into the woods and there to be dispatched if the lions appear on the ground. THE BOY FRIEND
H. Sweetheart had turned him down. And then a gay beauty from the big city appeared on the scene.

What happened then makes the most hilarious tangle of love and flirtation you've ever read about! The most interesting of the small-town boy who learns, almost too late, that cave-man methods are worth more in winning a girl than a whole library on how to make love!

Every girl friend and every boy friend will adore this picture applied on the construction and maintenance of rural roads. A. E. Cook, Seattle, master of the Washington state grange, declared that had the war not interfered the material would have been used for road construction and that it is the logical thing to do to apply it for that purpose now.

Two other resolutions asked for the publication of the sources of revenue of all lobbyists who seek to control or influence legislation, and placing of all better suitcases except oleomargarine under similar regulations as apply to butter.

Senator McNary of Oregon, co-author of the McNary Hagen bill, told the grange he was working on another bill which he hoped to introduce at the beginning of the December session of congress. Rates on barrel post are not to be increased, the grange was told.
