The reason for a protective tariff to equalize the difference in production costs between countries of high and low labor cost. As it happens, our colonial sugar produced in Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Philippines comes from some of the lowest labor cost countries in the world; in fact, it is almost equal to that of the United States. The paradox of the tariff comes when the $1.05 per hundred of duty is collected at the port of entry, this figure increases to $1.75 per hundred when the tariff is added to the domestic one without any subsidy on the colonial sugar. Assuming that the full amount of the tariff is added to the domestic one without any subsidy on the colonial sugar, it comes in one and a half times that of the United States. The U. S. and England are the great sugar consumers of the world, the former about twenty per cent and the latter about ten per cent of the world's production. The U. # PROPER TIME TO FATTEEN POULTRY

It is a common mistake to think that the proper time to fatten poultry is in the late autumn or early winter. However, the best time is in the early spring, when the birds are still young and their metabolism is high. This allows them to gain weight more efficiently and produce higher quality meat. Proper nutrition and care during this period are crucial for the success of the operation.

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE?
Back Duane, quick on the draw, hills Cal Blain in self-defense and becomes an outlaw. After adventures on the road he goes to Blain's camp. There he wounds a man named Blossom and kills another named Euchre. He meets Mrs. Blain and also a girl Jennie, held prisoner by Blain, whom he releases after a series of intrigues in which he is forced to deceive Mrs. Blain.

This leads to Duane's killing of Blain, the outlaw leader, and rushing off with Jennie, who is his lost sister. Duane returns for her years as an outlaw, finally going to meet Captain McNally of the Rangers, who had asked to see him. McNally, in turn, asks and offers him a pardon if he will accept an offer to become a ranger and go after Chasidina's gang. McNally had become interested in Duane after a Miss Lee had spoken in his behalf. Duane promises McNally to do his very best to suppress the band. Duane much welcome news.

Duane goes to visit the Miss Lee and introduce her to McNally, who is not sure that Jennie Duane is his sister. He tells her that he was once married to her mother and that she is his daughter. She is commissioning to capture Chasidina and she breaks down and begs him to break his word to McNally.

Duane sets forth on the hunt for Chasidina. At the end of the road of outlawry, he is later, he gives his instructions, Buell, instructions, saying he is going to arrest a man.

"You can go back to her, Jennie," he says, "if possible, but how it's luck. Fight with us from now on—don't let her see you. You will have served the Texas Rangers as no other man has. I'll accept your resignation. You'll be free, I'll be glad to hear it." Mrs. Blain's rich, Duane and she. Duane says, "You'll be glad to hear it." Jennie says, "You'll be glad to hear it."

his hand. Poggin had drawn quicker!
A tearing agonie encompassed his breast. He pulled—pulled—at a snail's pace.
Thunder of booming shot all around him!
Red flashes—jets of smoke—shot all round him!
The end—yes—the end!
With falling sigh he saw Kane go down, then Bobbi! But snatching a letter—a letter that death—Poggin stood, man like a lion's, back with his guns spouting fire, and with the wail sounding.

All faded—darkened. The thunder descended. Duane fell, seemed to faint.
There it drifted, Jennie Lee's sweet face, white, and, with dark, bright eyes, fading, fading—fading.
Light shone before Duane's eyes—bright, strange light that came with dull, soft, booming sound, rushing by, filling all. It was a dream in which there was no darkness—light—sound—movement. Obscene struggling thoughts—visions of lime.

There was darkness and fire, creeping, consuming fire. He was rolled and wrapped in it—and he never carried him breath. He was rolled and wrapped in it—and he never carried him breath. He was rolled and wrapped in it—and he never carried him breath.

He saw then, dimly, a room that was strange, strange people moving. He saw then, dimly, a room that was strange, strange people moving. He saw then, dimly, a room that was strange, strange people moving.

man's name to carry them. And you had three before!"
"Yes, uncle," replied Duane. "Nine and three—that makes twelve. At ten o'clock, You told me that that, my boy, and get away with them. There's Cole Younger—I've seen him. He's got two more with him—a larger man than you—more fresh."

"Puggin, wasn't it, about the doctor's only cat?" one bullet out of you—then one in your breast bone? It was a forty-one calibre, and unusual calibre."
"There was no bullet in it," Poggin's gun, and it was the same kind as the one cut out. By gum! But, that bullet would have killed you if it hadn't stayed there."

"It would, indeed," said Duane, and the old hunting, somewhat returned.
But Jennie was with him most of the time, and when she was there was a deep, quiet joy such as Duane never felt in your breast bone? It was a forty-one calibre, and unusual calibre."

THE SALMON SAGA

If you have heard of hoppers it attempts to be "all things to all people." And we know that usually such an attempt ends in failure. But there is one living example which was attempted the impossible and succeeded. It is the salmon.

Scientist, dietician, canner, housewife—all have a well-earned interest in this well-known fish. For the fishery of this fish is a mystery about the salmon, for it is the history which is partly mystery. Once in its lifetime, the salmon comes from the ocean with thousands of the following eggs to the fresh-water streams and spawns at the close of its life.

But the caterer knows one thing—the fish will be in the river probably. There has been disaster years before returning to its birthplace to spawn and die. What the fish do during their years in the ocean, where they live and how they get back to the fresh-water streams are unknown to the scientist interested in fish.

The Pacific. The total Alaska catches, exclusive of fall fishery, is estimated at $70,188 cases. The Bristol Bay pack was about 60 per cent over last year. However, other sections such as the Columbia River station, the average catch is down 10 per cent.

Lasch Red Sandwich: Scrape or peel one small bunch of carrots and run through the food chopper, using the finest attachment; this should produce a cup of coarse pulp. Mix with a large cup of salmon, add one cup of boiled salad dressing. Season to taste. Slice whole wheat bread, and butter. Spread liberally with the salmon, and put together. This sandwich is especially good for the school child's lunch.

Selected Recipes:
Salmon Croquette: Mix thoroughly one cup of salmon, juice of one lemon, one egg, three minced crackers, one small pulverized onion, and season to taste. Roll in cracker crumbs, dip in slightly beaten egg, dip in crumbs again and fry in deep fat. Serve with white sauce containing one tablespoon of minced pimientos to a cup of sauce.

Salmon Casserole: Pick one can of salmon in six large pieces as possible; add six small dried potatoes, one parboiled and sliced green pepper, two canned tomatoes, and season to taste. Roll in cracker crumbs, dip in slightly beaten egg, dip in crumbs again and fry in deep fat. Serve with white sauce containing one tablespoon of minced pimientos to a cup of sauce.

Don't Skate on Thin Ice!

WHEN you spend every cent of the money you earn, you are skating on thin ice.

At any moment it may give way.

The only way to keep above water is to put aside a regular amount of $3 each week.

We welcome new accounts—One dollar is enough to start one.

Begin to save today! You can't realize how much it will mean to you to have a little nest-egg stored away that can be used in any emergency.

OUR SILVER ANNIVERSARY

This is the Silver anniversary year of the Twinland Empire.

A quarter of a century ago the great Twin Falls tract became a reality. Whether its birth dates from the spring of 1903 when the first drawing was held at Shoshone; a year later when the development program gave assurance of the establishment of the project, or a year later, when the railroad arrived, present-day knowledge dictates that the birthday of the tract dates from 1904.

Surely this important anniversary will not go uncelebrated. It might well be the occasion for a local exposition, schools, churches and civic organizations will doubtless revive the memory of what has taken place between then and now.

A quarter of a century is no short span in the history of an empire. We are now out of our swaddling clothes. We are confronted with the duty and the pleasure of celebrating our silver anniversary.

Let's make the most of it!

CROP ESTIMATE PROBLEM

A Burley produce dealer has accumulated information from all parts of the country which tends to contradict the government estimates on potato production last year, with their consequent effect on the market. While these reports show the heaviest production in history, the Burley man's information, if correct, reveals a production much less than had been announced, with the result that prices are being maintained on the basis of a large production rather than on actual facts.

Several of the states announced smaller outputs than had been governmentally reported. The yield in Michigan is given as about 75 bushels per acre compared with 150 to 200 bushels normally. The Wolverine state will not ship more than ten or twenty thousand cars this season. Minnesota will ship 80,000 cars less than last season and Wisconsin will ship about the same number as before.

Conditions are a little different in Washington, Yakima reporting a strong market. In Maine, as in Idaho, only U. S. No. 1's are being exported; culls being held in Maine to use for starch.

The Burley man, Lincoln Wilder, received a copy of a resolution from the Minnesota Potato Growers' and Dealers' association condemning the government estimates as misleading, being based on acreage production, whereas it frequently happens that a small acreage may produce an abundant crop, while a greater acreage may produce a smaller yield. He considers this was the case last year.

Since potatoes are an underground crop and unable to be estimated during the growing season at what the production actually will be, some foreign countries have abandoned pre-season forecasts as inaccurate.

Instead of the present acreage production reports issued by the government, there is said to be a growing disposition on the part of potato dealers to have only the acreage reports given, with statements on growing conditions during the season, together with yields after the harvest. This, they assert, would be based on more concrete circumstances and would eliminate the inaccuracies of pre-season calculations.

As a result of the estimates on the 1928 potato crop as published by the government, city and country dealers alike are buying only according to current needs; on the theory that if there are so many potatoes the prices will not likely go higher.

This is not the first time government crop reports have been seriously questioned. It was only a year ago that Idaho attempted to disprove the U. S. statistics with paid advertising in the east.

Idaho can well afford to seriously concern itself with this crop estimate problem.

HAIL AND FAREWELL

Another milestone in the history of Twin Falls county has been reached with the induction into office of a new set of county officials.

There is no one but what will wish for the new officials the best of success in their new administrations, for they are our public servants and we, their constituents, profit under wise, careful and prudent administrations.

We congratulate the new officials and wish them well—and we also express high appreciation for the services of outgoing officials. In this instance, this included Messrs. O. W. Witham, M. E. Finch, James L. Harper and P. J. Grossman. They have the thanks of all Twin Falls county for their conscientious loyalty and service and sacrifices they have made.

Women Want To Know

WOMEN really want to know just how commercial canning is done. They are interested in efforts made by manufacturers to grow better and better products, to pick them at the moment of full maturity and in the time without delay. Women are interested in knowing how to use the canned foods in the most economical and delicious ways.

Lecturers Suggested: Part of the proof of this interest is shown by the popularity of the Canned Foods Lecture Bureau, organized and managed by the business secretary John L. Lee, of the Western Canners Association, Chicago. At the end of September, shortly before Mr. Lee's death, the bureau had on hand more than a hundred invitations from women's clubs in all parts of the country to deliver lectures on canned foods this fall and winter and many other offers have been secured if the bureau had had sufficient funds to pay the expenses of the lecturers who made the talks.

Big Men from Small Towns

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH is one of the biggest men in that great American industry, the motion picture. More than that, he is one of the pioneers in the development of better, more artistic American films. At the time when Griffith produced his first super-pictures like "The Birth of a Nation" these spectacles surpassed anything that had yet been done in the motion picture field both in bigness and power and in sheer artistic merit. Through Griffith's aid and inspiration, many famous film stars of today came to their eminence. Griffith in many ways may be called the father of the artistic motion picture in America—the picture that is made with an eye to scenic beauty, photographic artistry, delicacy and shows all the inclusion of a certain spiritual quality. At the same time Griffith introduced a new note of realism to the motion pictures, making no expense to make complex scenes involving places difficult to access and large casts, real and convincing.

Few have done as much for the American motion picture as Griffith. This leader hails from a small town in Kentucky, LaGrange, where he was born in 1875; he began life with no special advantages, getting a public school education. For two years he was an actor, and since 1908 has been identified with motion pictures, first as an actor, then as a director for the Biograph Co. His work for the Biograph won him national fame, and soon he became an independent producer whose early new features made film history. His pictures are now released through United Artists, Inc. The rise to fame and fortune of David Wark Griffith is the natural result of his genius and initiative.

De Laval Golden Anniversary Series New! Beautiful! Easy Running! Efficient! Durable!

The new 1928 De Laval separators which we have on display are without question the finest that have ever been made, and we believe that you will agree with this statement when you see one.

They are available in gold and black colors, which are beautiful, durable and practical. They are nice enough to put in the parlor, but thoroughly practical in the barn. All gears on these separators De Laval are completely enclosed and protected, insuring maximum durability. A wide eye opening cover over the shafts allows a flow of milk from the supply can of the separator in a smooth, even stream, without spluttering. You will appreciate the durable supply can, which permits bowl and covers to be removed or put in place without lifting the supply can from its position. The "Golden Series" are also easy to start and turn, and require less power to operate, for the work they do, than any other separator now made. Looking through the oil window you can see at a glance just how much oil your separator has, and what condition it is in. And of course, the "Golden Series" De Laval have the wonderful floating bowl—the finest ever made. It is self-cleaning, runs smoothly without vibration, yields the best power, and delivers a smooth, rich cream. But the best way to appreciate the "Golden Series" is to see and try one, which we will gladly arrange for you.

THIRTY-THREE HEADS TESTED

Two Bull Men and One of Hansen Have Best Dairy Groups for Last Month

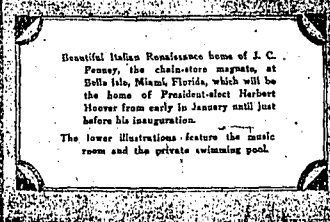

The December report of the Pioneer Dairy Herd Improvement association, submitted by W. J. Byrne, veter, shows 33 heads tested, including 477 cows. The average pounds of milk was 615, the average pounds of butterfat 25.8, the number of cows producing more than 40 pounds of butterfat was 17, and the number of heads fed grain was 29.

The high herd for from one to ten cows is credited to Roy Durr of Hansen, 15 3 registered Holsteins producing 1340 pounds of milk and 118 pounds of butterfat. In the 10-20 herd class, 11 head of registered and grade Holsteins owned by J. B. Crawford of Hild produced an average of 1002 pounds of milk and 39 pounds of butterfat. For more than 20 cows, 25 heads owned by Arnold Tander of Hild averaged 633 pounds of milk and 36 pounds of butterfat, the stock being registered and grade Jerseys.

The following 26 dairymen were on the honor roll with cows producing more than 40 pounds of butterfat:

COCCIDIOSIS CAN BE CONTROLLED

Injure no matter how imperative their needs, are of no value in controlling coccidiosis, chick disease that is fully as bad as scurvy.

The poultrymen who regularly every night has chicks from this disease might better put their faith in inexpensive sanitation methods and the feeding of milk in control coccidiosis, according to extension poultry specialists at the Ohio State university.

Scientists at the University of California tried these medicines to control coccidiosis. Hydrochloric acid, catechu, a mixture of bicarbonate of magnesium and aluminum sulfate, potassium chlorate, sodium iodide, ipecac and bismuth subnitrate. None of the drugs was effective.

"The disease can be controlled," the Ohio specialists say, "by sanitation and by liberal feeding of milk. The milk helps to protect the chick from the disease and by stimulating the milk glands. The milk recommended by the University of California is this: Partly skimmed dry-skim milk; 10 pounds of whole bran; 20 pounds of yellow corn meal; 20 pounds of coarse oats or barley.

Start feeding this mash as soon as the presence of the disease is detected. Keep the mash constantly before the chicks in large quantities. The essential thing is to get sufficient milk into the chick and into the house and surroundings immediately.

"Sick chicks should immediately be separated from healthy ones. Burn the dead ones."
