TWIN FALLS, TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 18, 1929

Number 60

The most important question in the world for a man to decide is not his attitude toward the tariff, or prohibition, or the income tax, but what manner of woman he is going to live with all his life. Other questions may come and go, but this one goes on forever. To use a term of Bacon's, it comes down to men's business and women's.

A preacher once came to John Wesley and asked him to advise as to whether he should marry a certain woman. "Why ask me?" said Mr. Wesley. "I am already married, you wouldn't have consulted me."

1. Marry for love. For any other reason, money, fame, convenience, or anything else, is disastrous.

2. Marry someone who is not a fortune teller. A marriage made in May and December does not usually turn out well.

3. Marry a healthy woman. It may be all right to love a sickly woman, but you may make all sort of poems to her eyebrow and cherish her as an ideal, but generally, do not marry her.

4. Do not marry a bad woman to reform. Do not let no woman marry an evil man to reform him. Let the preacher do that. Marriage is not a reformatory institution.

5. Select a woman with a sense of humor. You will find one who is cheerful. You can overcome almost anything by a perpetual gloom. You will find that you need, more than anything else, to be perpetually cheered. Not that you want a cheerful girl for a partner, but you want a reasonable amount of cheer.

6. Select a woman with common sense. This goes further in the long run, than to select a fool, even if she has a pretty face. And some fools are beautiful.

Do not be determined solely by passion, but use your brain. Special hours, of course, passion is essential, but marriage is a matter of every-day life.

In 1928 Idaho exported 270 carloads of poultry products, valued at 211 in 1927. The quantity of poultry on the farms of the state in the early part of 1928 was a considerable increase over the situation, the first nine months revealing shipments valued at $1,000,000, an increase of 167 for the same period in 1926. From this increase of 100 carloads in nine months, the year's total exports of both poultry and eggs for the first nine months of last year amounted to 358 carloads, an increase of 130 over 1927.

Tariff to Hold Says R. C. Rich

Rose C. Rich of Burley, re-elected president of the Idaho Wool Growers' Association, said there will be no cutting of the tariff on wool, as indicated in some dispatches from the east with the tariff on wool in consideration for readjustment. Mr. Rich declares that it is the manifest will of the wool growers that the national wool industry be protected, but that the national wool growers' associations are closely watching the situation with a view of preventing any such occurrence.

Moreover in view of the promise of agricultural relief as made by the national administration and which President-elect Hoover has approved with assurance of a special session of congress for this purpose, Mr. Rich considers an increase in the wool tariff to be more likely than a decrease.

Because sheepmen were required to start shearing earlier this year than last fall, and have had to buy about 20 per cent more wool, together with the lower quality of the wool, the wool growers' poor range conditions last summer, he states that prospects for 1929 wool prices are not so good, and that the price received may be less than the average for the last five years, and almost certain to be less than the price received for the 1928 clip.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

Few men that ever lived have left such an impress on civilization as did Benjamin Franklin, whose birthday anniversary, Thursday, January 17, is being commemorated throughout America with Thrift week.

It has fallen to the lot of thousands to achieve greatness by virtue of some outstanding achievement in a single field, but it is a rare privilege for a man to become great in two or more lines. Anyone of a dozen accomplishments would have made Franklin great. Because of this fact his name cannot be reckoned with alone with the great men of all time.

Here was a man whose philosophy and whose writings will live through the ages; his diplomatic career was a notable contribution to America's place in the sun; his inventive genius brought comfort and pleasure to mankind; and his discovery of electricity heralded the entrance of the Golden Age in history.

Perhaps it is a tribute to his posterity that of all his admirable qualities and accomplishments, his pronouncements on the virtues of Thrift are considered most worthy of glorification. There is a vital lesson in that point alone. Spend an evening this week, if you can, with Ben Franklin. Read about his life, the history he made and his philosophy. You will be made to have a high appreciation of your forbears and will soon discover that you are in the company of one of the great men of the world.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

The country has been aroused in recent months, as it never has previously, to the importance that agriculture holds to general prosperity. Public opinion will see to it that some adequate relief measure is passed. Constructive aid is needed in the marketing and warehousing of farm products in such a way that the farmers will be assured of getting a fair return for their labor and receiving their fair share of the general prosperity to which their contribution is so great. Agriculture ought now to enter into an era of prosperity such as it has never before seen, and this prosperity coming to our 28,000,000 of farm population must be reflected in general prosperity.

What is needed to insure this prosperity? John J. Watson, president of the International Agricultural Corporation, is among those who hold that warehousing is one of the most important requirements. A difficulty is stated by the farmer is that he must dump his surplus crops on the market at one time, whereas the consumption of one crop takes place during the entire twelve months of the year.

The government, says Mr. Watson, should assist farmers or associations of farmers in establishing warehouses under government supervision so that the farmer or farm association could properly store and warehouse their surplus crops, receiving for the same proper standard warehouse receipts, acceptable as security for loans, on which the farmer could readily borrow for his immediate cash requirements.

Thus the farmer would be enabled to sell his crop in an orderly way, not being forced to dump it all on the market at the time of harvest.

CONTROL THE AXES!

Forest fires are steadily growing worse in this country, and fire prevention is important. But another, and perhaps more important factor in the degradation of our forest is the axe. Spare the axe and save the forests.

Out of 822,000,000 acres of virgin forest, only about one-eighth remains.

No where in the world is there anything like the kind of timber we need to take the place of what has been destroyed. Until the axe is controlled, there can be no real solution of the problem. On four-fifths of our forest land the axe holds unregulated sway. The national forests alone are safe.

The axe must be controlled on privately owned lands or the future prosperity of our country is seriously threatened.

The world wears a path to the door of the man who knows Emerson.

By and by he returned and the bird told him to make a little bill for the nut and put it on the limb of the old oak tree. Bobbie put the nut down on the limb and it fell into the hole in the old oak tree. He saw it fall and he saw the nut fall into the hole in the old oak tree.

Billie gave him a nut and he gave him a nut and he gave him a nut. "You're not smart," replied the bird. The rabbit children skipped and noise up in the tree and there home and waiting to see the nut. "I like to play golf," she replied.

More relates to this theme and person than any other subject in the Bible. The world is indeed Christ-centric. White President Coolidge's Thanksgiving proclamation did not say anything new to him. It was a reminder in the year of the Lord - Only New Testament Scripture portions are included for reasons, but many could have pertinently been given from the Old Testament.

LAMBS PRODUCE BIGGEST PROFIT FOR SHEEP MEN

Surveys Made in Four Western States Show Wool is Giving Way to Mutton As Money Maker.

A survey conducted by the Idaho Wool Growers' association and the University of Idaho extension division shows that the profit on each sheep in 32 flocks studied was $2.45 for 1917. There were 182,000 sheep included. The income per ewe was $10.28 and the total cost was $7.83.

This is compared with the 1920 survey when 58 flocks comprising 193,000 ewes were included. The profit per ewe was $2.63, while in 1925, a total of 148,000 ewes were represented by 37 flocks, with a profit of $1.67 per ewe.

Similar surveys were made in Wyoming, Utah and California. The latter two states showed a smaller cost of operation and a smaller income from the wool with varying proportions of profit. In Wyoming, operation cost and amount of income were about the same as in Idaho. Utah reported a less difference in the proportion of income from lambs and wool, the latter bringing $4.64 out of a total income per ewe of $1.95.

Up to about fifty years ago shepherds depended entirely on wool for their profit on sheep, but lambs have been gradually gaining since that time until now they are the most profitable portion of the industry. In some sections more than two-thirds of a sheepman's income is derived from the sale of lambs.
