than the average for the three plants. Feed sales increased 10.9 per cent in 1928, while a new tow and-half truck was purchased to improve the transportation facilities. He also said that nearly 100 per cent of the members had already signed the new twenty-year contracts.

Dr. Schilling spoke about poultry diseases, detailing the methods of care to prevent disease outbreaks in a household in the flock. Once started, he said, it is costly spread through infection water and by flock owners zoning around an infected pen to others that are clean. Young chicks should be kept away from water and ground should be cultivated for three or four years to eliminate the disease from a place where infected chickens have been kept.

He advised changing quarters to new ground when disease occurs, since it is from houses that a poultryman will start out with considerable success the first year and thereafter reverse because the grounds have become infected and dirty.

Footwear should be disinfected when a person goes into the chicken yard to others' newly hatched chicks are bought. Thorough disinfection should be made in the house and henhouse. Wash and boiling water on the inside of a band to 40 gallons being used for scrubbing. Streets or protected run parlors should be provided, fly trap built, and litter changed or saturated with a solution of formalin and soap for a minimum. Strains and other well-known and well-bred egg birds. Cook in top of double boiler until thickened as a hot liquid and cream. Freeze in a 1.5 salt mixture.

Miss Ruth Kempton, Kimberly high school girl, was almost overcome by the blizzard Sunday when she was walking to the home of friends six miles southeast of that town. Great relief, school bus driver, climbing toward Twin Falls, happened, found her a short distance from her destination and took her to the house and later to the home of her friends.

amount of additional power, commissioner told Senator Burah, it was not wise to spend the $1,200,000 for building the power plant when the North Side project could not be developed for some years. To do so would be to great extravagance by providing a costly power plant which would produce small revenues and which would cost approximately $65,000 a year for operation, including depreciation.

After several months of negotiation, the government accordingly made the ten-year lease contract by which the Idaho Power company will pay $31,000 a year for use of the government's surplus storage water in American Falls reservoir, pending the time when that storage may be needed for irrigation. The company will furnish what additional water power the Minidoka project needs up to 7,500 kilowatts, of which 3,000 is for emergency needs which are the government's machinery.

(breaks down) in exchange for this power to the government will permit the surplus water to be used for irrigation. The rate of two kilowatts per acre single kilowatt per acre in the summer. This is a job, Commissioner Mead says, that the power generated during the winter would otherwise be of no use to the reclamation department and would constitute a waste.

By such an arrangement he contends that the Minidoka project will secure the additional power it needs at practically no cost, with the factor gain of $31,000 a year paid by the Idaho Power company.

The government has refused several offers to sell the surplus storage in American Falls reservoir, but the transfer was made possible to develop the Minidoka north side project, which is to do so any time after October 1, 1932, it may contract with the power company and proceed to build the building of the American power plant at this time without the development of the project, but would, in the long run, make it longer in the making. The arrangement made by the government is going to be a big one, with money which would lay idle and be of no use to the project.

It was to prevent the $1,200,000 appropriation being tied up and to complete the Minidoka Gravity extension other projects in this state and to complete the $1,200,000 appropriation being tied up and to complete the Minidoka Gravity extension other projects in this state and to complete the $1,200,000 appropriation being tied up and to complete the Minidoka Gravity extension other projects in this state.

Mead Explains

money for both was not available. Although he had asked for $1,500,000 for the gravity extension project, the budget bureau supplied the funds by transferring the appropriation which had been made for the Minidoka North Side project instead of meeting both requests.

According to the original contract with the Idaho Power company by which the government acquired ownership of the site of the American Falls dam as well as of other power sites along the Snake river, the reclamation department could not supply power to any extent in the commercial field of the power company, but only to the irrigation projects which it wished to develop.

Since the Minidoka project needed only a comparatively small amount of power, the government was able to supply it.

THE DESPERATE LOVER

By E. Phillips Oppenheim
ILLUSTRATED BY FRANK B. DORFEN

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Palermo is the scene. There are six. Leonardo is the hero. He comes for love of Adriana Caracciolo, who spurs him. He meets an Englishman, Lord St. Maurice, who falls in love with Adriana on sight. Leonardo sees his sister Margherita, who tells him his love for Adriana is hopeless. But he pleads with her to arrange an accidental meeting, to say farewell, between Adriana and him.

"My dear Adrienne, don't you think we were a little foolish to walk home so late as this? See, there is not a soul upon the promenade."

"Tant mieux!" was the light answer. "Is it not to escape from them all, that we came this way?" The stillness is exquisite, and the night breeze from the sea, after that hot room, is divine. What a view we shall have of the bay when we get to the top of the hill.

"They say that this place is infested with robbers, and it is terribly lonely," was the somewhat fearful answer. "Why would you let poor Leonardo come with us?"

"Because I did not want Leonardo, cherie. Leonardo is very good, but he worries me by insisting to dwell upon a forbidden subject; and as for protection—well, I fancy Giovanni is sufficient."

They were passing him now so close that he felt impelled to hold her. He had only a momentary glimpse of them, but it was sufficient. A few yards behind a sullen-looking servant was trudging along, looking exactly round. In the white moonlight their faces, even their expressions, were perfectly visible to him.

Adrienne's rapt and absorbed by the still restful beauty of the dreaming night, and indifferent to all fear; her companion's whose dark eyes were glancing some what anxiously around her, and Giovanni's, whose furtive looks were more expectant than apprehensive, marked him out to the Englishman as an accomplice in whatever device they was about. Unless himself he watched these pairs, and listened to their voices growing fainter and fainter in the distance. They were out of sight and out of hearing.

He was preparing to follow them when suddenly a loud sound broke the stillness. He held his breath, and crouched down watching. In a minute, two dark forms, keeping carefully in the shadows by the side of the road, crept steadily past.

He waited till they, too, were out of sight, and then stood up with tingling pulses, but quite cool. Moving on tip toe he stepped lightly over the low fence wall into the road, and gazed after them.

The scent was steep, and the road curved round and round in zig-zag fashion. On one side it was bordered by a thick-growing orange grove, whose delicate perfume was sweetening the still languid air. On the other was a stretch of waste open country, separated from the road by a low wall. He chose the seaward side, and keeping under the shadow of the trees, followed them, his footsteps sinking noiselessly into the thick dust.

Once the two ladies paused to look back. He stepped forward and the two bending figures between them drew closer into the shadow, and waited. He was some distance away, but the sound of her voice floated clearly down to him on a breath of that faint night air.

Again they turned and again he followed. Suddenly his heart gave a great bound. About fifty yards in front of the two girls was a rudely-built country carriage, drawn by a pair of mules and with a single man on the box. They had paused at such an unexpected sight, and seemed to be whispering in whispers whether or not they should proceed. Before they had come to any decision, the two men had crept out from the shadow of the wall and tress into the road, and with bodies hurried toward them.

He did not shout out or make any noise; he simply lessened the distance between him and them by increasing his pace. The two stooping forms, casting long, oblique shadows across the white, hard road, were almost level with their intended victims. Now the shadow of one of them crept a little in advance of the ladies, and Adriana Caracciolo, seeing it, stepped suddenly back with a cry of alarm.

"Giovanni! Giovanni! there are robbers! Ah!"

The cry became a shriek, but it was instantly stifled by a coarse hand thrust upon her mouth. At the same moment her companion felt herself treated in a similar manner. They could only gaze into the dark ruffianly faces of their captors in mute terror. The whole thing had been too sudden for them to make and resistance, and Giovanni, their trusted escort, appeared suddenly to have disappeared. As a matter of fact, he was watching the proceedings from behind a convenient bowlder.

The man who was holding Adriana pointed to the carriage, the door of which the driver had thrown open.

"This way, signorina," he said, "it is useless to struggle. We shall not harm you."

She shook her head violently, and with a sudden effort thrust his hand away from her mouth.

"What do you want?" she cried. "Who are you? You can have my jewels, but I will never step inside that carriage. Help! Help!"

He wound his arm around her, and, without a word, commenced dragging her across the road.

"You may shout as much as you like," he muttered. "There will only be echoes to answer you."

A sudden warning cry rang out from his companion, and with a start he released his victim. The Englishman had stepped into the middle of the group, and, before he could spring back, a swelling and hander sent him down into the dust with a dull, heavy thud.

"You blackguard!" he thundered out. Then turning quickly round he faced the other man, who had sprung across the road with bent body, and with his right hand through by a vice, and slowly bent backward. He dropped the weapon, with a shriek of pain, upon the road, and fell on his knees before his captor.

The Englishman's grasp relaxed, and taking advantage of it, the man suddenly jumped up, leaped

Relief Society Honors Worker

About 76 people attended a surprise party Monday night in the new L. D. S. church for Mrs. Ida Hoggan who is leaving Twin Falls this week to live in Salt Lake City. She has been first coutinor in the ward Relief society for about three years and has been active in all affairs of the church, particularly in charity work.

Her husband, L. G. Hoggan, has been manager in this district for the Utah Oil Refining company; and was recently transferred to a position in Salt Lake. They have lived in Twin Falls ten years and have a daughter, Phyllis, in the Northwestern States mission.

Bishop Roy Wood presented Mrs. Hoggan with a large picture of Shoshone falls, given by the Relief society. Mrs. Kate Kirkman, state president, complimented her work in the ward of Mrs. E. L. Matthews and Mrs. Herman G. Lind had charge of the social and the following parts were on the program:

Song, Mrs. Bertha Brown, Mrs. Ellis Bjorling and Mrs. Flossie Kirkman; violin selection, Mrs. W. A. Thompson; reading, Mrs. Mitchell Hunt; solo, President E. M. Guest; reading, Mrs. Leo Thurston; solo, Mrs. E. L. Matthews; complimentary talk, Mrs. Kate Kirkman; solo, Mrs. Flossie Kirkman; talk, Bishop Wood; response, Mrs. Hoggan; benediction, J. A. Phillips.

Attendance at the quarterly conference of the L. D. S. church in Twin Falls Saturday and Sunday was considerably reduced by the heavy snow and cold weather. Very few members from other wards coming in. J. Golden Kimball represented the general authorities of the church at Salt Lake City. He addressed the people on current topics on the Sunday sessions. Mrs. Bertha Brown, president of the Young Women's M. J. A., presided at the Sunday evening meeting when John Miller, Bishop, spoke on observance of law, emphasizing the Mutual slogan: "We Stand for Law, for the People Who Live It, and for the Officers Who Enforce It."

The conference was the first one held in the new church building. It is hoped to have the building completed in time to hold the annual M. J. A. conference in June when the anniversary of the organization is observed throughout the church.

PROGRESS THE RESULT OF COOPERATION

Community development depends upon working one with another for the benefit of all.

The results of cooperation, will be more civic improvements, finer schools, greater religious activity, higher morals and better business. All these things directly affect the people of this entire section.

Real prosperity will have to come to us by having developed the Community Spirit in the Twinland Empire.

It will bring about individual prosperity, happiness and contentment to every resident of this community.

It is essential that the citizens of this community cooperate in spirit and action with other men and women to successfully bring about the dawn of a new day in civic, moral, religious, and business progress in the Twinland Empire.

"AMERICA"

During Hoover's recent trip about South America he had to refrain studiously from referring to the people of the United States as "Americans." The correspondents with him were enjoined to make no use of the term even in their communications home.

It seems that the Brazilians, the Argentines and the Columbians, who feel they have as much right to the word "American" as we have, strongly resent our using it to designate this country alone.

The term "American" has no exact significance. So many nations are in North and South America! In referring to our countrymen, foreign papers must of necessity use the long term, "Americans of the United States."

The word "United States" is awkward in many of its forms. No one can be a "United Stateser!" We can talk of "United States territory" or "United States history," but think of talking of "United States literature" or the "United States language."

Nonh Webster declared that a deeper national feeling would be engendered by the adoption of a felicitous name all our own. But after all usage is everything. Usage will keep the name "American" in our minds and on our tongues for centuries. The word is imbedded in our history and literature. It will be used to recognize, however, that the outside world is likely to grow intolerant of our claims upon the word that designates not merely one nation but two large continents.

BUSINESS THRILLS

That was a great stunt Manager Orr of the Idaho Power company undertook here Wednesday when he sent an airplane over into the Jarbridge country "trouble shooting" a high power transmission line. The happy part of it all is that the stunt turned out to be a most practical proposition. A breakdown on the line was spotted, a crew then set out from Jarbridge to restore the power line and service into that mining camp.

Lionel Dean gets much of the glory for the achievement because the trip was made possible solely because he is the pioneer in Twin Falls in aviation, having not only the first plane, but the first and only landing field.

The entire community is thrilled at this practical demonstration of the utility of aviation right here at home.

HONESTY

Governor Sampson of Kentucky is starting a very worthy movement indeed. He believes too many people are "indifferent honest" and thinks there should be more "affirmative honesty"—especially in business transactions.

He wants a nationwide survey to stimulate fair-dealing. "Integrity is not vanishing," he says, "and all of us ought to be emphatic in saying so. This undertaking is not for the purpose of gathering statistics about acts of honesty. It is a survey of thought concerning honesty."

"The purpose is to increase our realization of the truth that although we all approve the principle of right conduct none of us is as affirmative as we might well be in our aid of increasing the general belief that honesty and good purpose are the prevailing motives of most people."

A great phrase: "Affirmative honesty." It is a quality well worth cultivating, and Governor Sampson is to be congratulated on bringing it so forcibly before the public.

TWO MILLION FARMERS ARE COOPERATING

Two million farmers are organized into 12,000 associations in the United States for the purpose of marketing their products or buying their supplies, or doing both, on a cooperative basis. Last year they sold collectively farm products to the value of nearly two billion dollars and they purchased farm supplies to the value of nearly a half billion dollars.

These cooperatively minded farmers are scattered throughout the 48 states, however, they are numerous in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri, New York, and in the states along the Pacific coast.

Nearly one-third of the farmers engaged in buying or selling together are members of farmers' elevator associations, and about one-fifth belong to cooperative creameries; these factories, or milk-marketing associations. Nearly 150,000 are interested in the cooperative ginning or marketing of cotton. About 50,000 farmers are selling poultry products cooperatively, and about 25,000 are acting collectively in marketing their annual wool clips.

Nearly one-half of the farmers participating in cooperative activity are members of more than one organization.—Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

The legislature now in session does not appear to have done much damage yet.

A MILLION DOLLAR SNOW

There are many compensations that will inure as the result of the great snow storm in which southern Idaho has been gripped for the past week.

Obviously, an abundant water supply for all agricultural land in the Twinland Empire is assured; this includes the Salmon, Okanogan and Goose Creek tracts; then the fact that winter has come upon us so vigorously, doubtlessly portends an early and consistent spring; furthermore, it is now a certainty that the white fly problem, as it affects roots and other crops, is definitely settled.

The temporary inconveniences that the storm has caused, will be more than offset by its benefits.

The Ground Hog will NOT see his shadow Saturday!

THE GOBLIN CITY
The mammoth cave of Kentucky was formerly visited by thousands of curious, interested people every year; now its only patrons are occasional groups of colored people on a summer picnic. The great cavern has not changed, nor has its most of its incredible features; it is a 600-acre area filled with fanciful formations of limestone, its great amphitheater, its echoing river, its eye-like features. It is a beautiful, most absolute loss of former popularity is that its owners have ceased to advertise.

One of the world's standard encyclopedias contains the following item:
The City of Rock in Cavids county, Idaho, is as strange an and but little less magnificent than the Garden of the Gods. The fact that the Idaho city is vastly larger, seems to have been overlooked.

For most of the following description of Idaho's "Goblin City" the writer is indebted to former Lieutenant Governor L. H. Sweetser of Burley.
The city of Rocks is located 20 miles from Oakley, only a short distance from a highway leading the Oregon Trail, at Burley. In an area of some 15 square miles Nature's architects have created a weird city of grotesque whose exhibits may well hold the tourists' interest for days. Its group of granite spires would adorn the finest cathedral ever built. It has been suggested that President Hiram Young must have obtained one of his designs from the "Tabernacle Rock." Lemnig towers, talen poles, natural bridges, caverns, tunnels, mosques, temples and palaces are found on every hand.

It requires no great stretch of fancy to see resemblances to the elephant, the old hen with chicken legs, frogs at play, and the bearded prophet. A natural but of rock 10 feet square is filled with rainwater at certain seasons. An old Indian legend holds that the battle here before sunrise is to restore lost youth. No new idea, but eternally fascinating.

The City of Rocks has been known to a few travelers for long time. In the days of stage travel, the old hen with chicken legs, frogs at play, and the bearded prophet. A natural but of rock 10 feet square is filled with rainwater at certain seasons. An old Indian legend holds that the battle here before sunrise is to restore lost youth. No new idea, but eternally fascinating.

It is strange that so few, even of Idaho people, know of its existence, and it is to be regretted that greater efforts are not made to advertise, popularize, and capitalize this possession, unquestionably one of the outstanding beauties of the state we live in. How many of our 1,000,000 and thousands of readers of the recently Idaho newspapers missed this article ever heard of it before?

Luxuries of Long Ago
Among the tombs which hold the remains of noble Romans who founded the culture from their native land in Budapest about the year 400, the most interesting and surprising find have been found in the form of perfume, brocade, mirrors, valuable jewelry, as well as other articles which show that the people of ancient days were fond of luxuries as well as modern men and women.

WHY A STATE FAIR?
(Idaho Falls Times-Register)
The members, or at least some of them, of the Idaho State Grange have a question on their minds. Why should the State Fair at Boise, to be financed no doubt, by a state appropriation. Many people will like to inquire why should the forms and other property of the state at large be taxed in order to hold a state fair at Boise section.

The Boise fair and section is beautiful, wealthy and productive and a big fair would be a fine thing, but why not hold Boise and the grangers of that section finance their own fair?

Should the people of the eastern, southeastern, the southern and the northern parts of the state be taxed in order that the Grangers and others of the southern section of the state have a fair which would be attended by and which would benefit a limited few?

HANSEN

The snow-blocked conditions of the roads was the cause of a decided drop in attendance at Sunday school and church services Sunday morning. Rev. O. L. Kendall left by train Monday evening for Portland to attend the eastern Idaho district conference of the Methodist Episcopal church which convenes there this week.

In the absence of Rev. Kendall the Boy Scouts were to have met at the church Monday evening with Elder Gill of Kimberly as leader, but owing to the continued snow fall and drifted roads, Mr. Gill was unable to reach Hansen. The choir play "The Salted Speechless," under the direction of Miss Sadie Nesbitt will be presented Friday evening, February 1.

The mail carriers cannot make their daily rounds because of the deep drifts, but today (Wednesday) they did so and the storm seems to be over so the roads will be opened as soon as possible and various activities restored to normal again.

Everett Dutt and family moved into one of the Jess Turner houses in the west part of town Saturday.

The community council met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kendall.

Romaine Hounes returned to Hansen last week after several months stay in California.

Quite a delegation of Hansen citizens went to Twin Falls on the noon train Saturday.

Miss Ora May Madden left this week for an extended visit to different points in Oregon and California.

Oscar Cox has purchased the Ashbury place which has been occupied by George Wafel and family.

Mrs. S. N. Pittullo left Wednesday for her home in Tucson, Arizona.

Give Colds Good Care

Drying Winter Months
Colds should be looked good at this time of the year, and it is highly important that they be given proper care and attention if we want to keep them from spreading and causing serious trouble.

If your colds are severe, they should be treated with special care. Use a good remedy, such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, to help you get well and prevent a relapse.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is a good remedy for colds, coughs, and other ailments. It helps to strengthen the system and prevent future attacks.
