FARM GRANGE SEEKS HIGHER SUGAR PRICES

$400,000 Leaf Hopper Fund Also Requested of Congress by Western Beet Growers.

W. G. Swenson, district manager of the Amalgamated Sugar company, returned last week from Washington, D. C., where he spent a month conferring with congressmen and others in the interests of a higher tariff on sugar and a federal appropriation for leaf hopper pest.

He reports the prospects are good, both for higher duties on imported sugar and for a federal appropriation of $100,000 for carrying on the research work here.

Mr. Swenson also reported that the beet growers are making a strong case for a higher tariff on sugar and a federal appropriation for leaf hopper pest.

Bake Potatoes in Jackets —Eat Them Skins and All

If the American potato shrewdly wish to cut down the death rate in this country they will eat more potatoes with their skins on.

Dr. Kellogg came to the defense of the Irish potato, which he declared had been suffering unjustly of late.

Rich in Organic Bases The Irish potato has an additional advantage over other tubers in that it contains 400 for an equal weight of niacin and 70 for an average potato.

What the potato lacks in fats and salts can be supplied by milk and green food, such as spinach, lettuce and turnip tops.

Orchard Problems Will Be Discussed February 8 in Twin Falls.

Unless unusual circumstances occur to prevent it, the Twin Falls County Horticultural association will hold its annual meeting on February 8.

President-elect Hoover has promised to call a special session of Congress to meet on February 15 to deal with two problems, both affecting agriculture.

Mr. Hoover gave out a statement during the press during Mr. Swenson's stay in Washington.

INSTRUCTION IN POULTRY GIVEN

Fourth Annual School for Poultrymen Held February 11-16

The fourth annual poultry short course of the University of Idaho college of agriculture, arranged primarily for poultry producers and general farmers interested in the industry, will be given February 11 to 16. It is announced by Professor F. J. Laumason, head of the poultry department. The course is designed for both beginner and experienced poultry raisers. The program will be held on "Poultry Raising as a Means of Increasing Income from Products for Distant Markets," "Feeding and Management," "How to Retire the Poultryman," "Feed Cost and Profitability," and many others of similar helpful suggestions.

The course is being offered this year with the cooperation of several other departments of the University. Faculty members who will assist include Professors Hobart and H. H. Hoffbauer, agricultural economics; E. M. Gilchrist, veterinarian, and G. W. Sealing, horticulture. These assistant departments will discuss present-day problems in poultry raising, related to the profession with results and applications of recent experimental work conducted at the University's agricultural experiment station.

In the past the poultry short course has been of two weeks' duration. This year it was shortened to one week, explained by Professor Laumason, because many farmers interested found it impossible to be away from their homes longer than two weeks. Those who cannot attend the entire course are invited to attend any part they find convenient, the poultry department announces.

WINTS FOR THE HOME

By NANCY HART

The background of architecture and furniture may render form for the living room for glass and chrome, but the accessories of the home change style with amazing frequency.

Pictures, vases, framed or hung too high, with peaked wires, air-brake that is pushed, or arranged in a way no longer considered "artistic"—are all the decorative errors in these homes as out of date far quicker than the furniture and fixtures. Pictures, vases, reading lamps and esthetic library seats; the decorative screen fittings for the dining room; lack of care in the carefully, for a while changes have been at work among them, refining, simplifying, making them in the same way that the French woman's toilet-sets that stamp the ensemble as up to date, or frankly "out."

For Bridge Luncheon Fruit cocktail Schnitzapples, potatoes, Stuffed tomatoes Charlotte Coffee

Delicious Salmon Pudding Remove skin and bones from 1/2 salmon, cut into 1/2 inch cubes, cut fine with fork, mix with 1 cup of hot milk; add 1/2 cup butter and pepper to taste. In buttered pudding mold, 2 beaten eggs, add fish. Put in cup and bake 1 hour. Serve with hot white sauce.

Tomato Relish 1/2 cup minced onion, 1/2 cup tomatoes, 1/2 cup vinegar, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup salt, 1/2 cup oil, 1/2 cup ketchup, 1/2 cup catsup, 1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1/2 cup hot water. Boil 1 hour. Serve with hot white sauce.

Rabbit Pie 1 cup minced rabbit, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 cup eggs, 1/2 cup cream, 1/2 cup salt, 1/2 cup pepper. Bake 1 hour. Serve with hot white sauce.

Grape Fruit Salad Remove rind from grapefruit and separate into sections, carefully removing skin from each section. Arrange on a bed of lettuce with blanched almonds and little balls of cream cheese. Serve with French dressing.

The Graf Zeppelin Flight Caused Big Rush For Telephone Service

The Graf Zeppelin reaching its destination at Lakehurst

The Graf Zeppelin over its hangar at Friedrichshafen, Germany before the transatlantic flight

The Town of Lakehurst, N. A. Suddenly Became a City of 80,000 People

By JOHN B. O'BRIEN
When the Graf Zeppelin reached Lakehurst last night, something like a national riot across the Atlantic from Germany, the outside world, eager for the news of its safe arrival, took as a matter of course the fact that the radio and the newspapers would bring to them the information as to each detail. They gave little thought to the means that had to be taken where by telephone facilities would be provided to enable their eager to get the news. For it was not until about the big event. It was, however, a noteworthy achievement.

The town of Lakehurst normally has a population of about 2,000 people and, of course, a corresponding telephone service. Suddenly, overnight, as it were, the Graf Zeppelin had a population of about 80,000 people and, of course, a corresponding telephone service.

Between Lakehurst and Lakeview, there are about 100 miles of wire. Eight circuits could be tapped, but eight circuits were far too few to handle the tremendous amount of traffic caused by the arrival of the Zeppelin. The telephone company was called upon to handle the emergency.

As the Zeppelin was within 100 miles across the Atlantic the problem of the telephone company was to handle the emergency. The telephone company was called upon to handle the emergency.

While this work was going on at Lakehurst, the telephone company was also working at Lakeview. The telephone company was called upon to handle the emergency.

WHEN RECEIVER IS LEFT OFF THE-HOOK

An Isolated Home Telephone

When a receiver is taken off its supporting arm, a signal light appears on the switchboard which informs the operator that a party wishes to give a number. Hurrying to reply to his request, "Number, please," she waits and rings again. It, however, after several minutes also receives a response and the signal continues, the number has thus an out of order and the intervening operator, after determining that the trouble is caused by a receiver off the hook, puts on a "howler." In many cases this signal makes unnecessary long delays in the attention of the operator. It is not unusual for the operator to be forced to send out a man for the purpose of restoring the instrument to its normal position.

TRANSPOSITION OF WIRES IMPROVES TRANSMISSION

Even a Transatlantic Call Lakehurst has never experienced such a volume of telephone traffic as took place at the time of the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin, which in almost one day, telephone traffic went from an average of 500 calls to a maximum of 1,500 calls a 600 per cent increase. This volume of telephone traffic reached Lakehurst early Sunday morning, but no word had come from the Zeppelin as to the time of its arrival. She cited the potato as good source for vitamins B, and C. When eaten in sufficient quantities it will prevent the symptoms due to deficiency of these factors, she said. She also pointed to the potato as a cheap source of the two vitamins.

For nutrition the best method of cooking the potato is to bake with the skins and then eat the potato with the skins. It is as desirable as other foods unless it is steeped in fat.

Miss Whitaker urged better grading regulations to produce better potatoes. "It is a waste of time to cut out the rotten spots and a waste of money to pay for food that must be thrown away," she declared.

Notice to Patron

In spite of every possible effort it has been impossible for our trucks to reach all of our milk and cream patrons because of the heavy condition of roads. We realize that these conditions are causing a great deal of inconvenience and possible loss to patrons, hence our truck drivers and others associated with the organization are putting forth every effort possible to overcome the trouble and until this is accomplished we ask the forbearance of our patrons.

Because of the extra milk and poor keeping qualities of winter milk those patrons accustomed to selling this product are urged to separate or skim their milk and hold the cream until we can reach them with our trucks or deliver it to us at any of our plants located at Jerome, Burley, Buhl or any assembling station at Wendell, Eden or Kimberly.

Any cooperation given us by our patrons in delivering their own cream or milk, or by asking our truck drivers to secure the permit, will be very greatly appreciated.

Make your preparations now to attend the Twin Falls County Cooperative Dairymen's association annual meeting to be held Filer, Tuesday, February 7 (today). A good program has been prepared. All our patrons and friends are urged to attend.

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Palermo is the scene. There an exile, Leonardo di Marzio, has come for love of Adriana Cartuccio, who spurs him. He meets an Englishman, Lord St. Maurice, who falls in love with Marzia. Leonardo sees his sister Margharita, who tells him his love for Adriana is hopeless. But he pleads with her to witness an accidental meeting, to say farewell, between Adriana and him. The Englishman is informed of an attempt being made to carry off Signorina Cartuccio and Margharita, who are waiting, by her father, employed by a rejected suitor, on a lonely road. He rushes to the scene, and proves able to avert the blue eyes.

The two ladies looked at their preserver standing in the middle of the road—fair and straight and tall, like a Greek god, with a terrible fury blazing in his dark blue eyes.

"You are not hurt, I trust?" he asked, his breath coming quickly, for he was in a towering passion. He was not speaking to the darkness of the two girls at all; in fact he was unconscious of her presence. He was standing by Adrienne Cartuccio's side, watching the faint color steal again into her cheeks, and the terror dying out of her eyes, to be replaced by a far softer light. Her black lace wraps, which she had been wearing in Spanish fashion, had fallen a little back of her head, and the moonlight was streaming upon her ruddy golden hair, all wavy and disarranged, throwing into soft relief and outline of her slim, girlish figure, her haunting frown, and the exquisite transparency of her complexion. She stood there like an offended young queen, passionately wrathful with the man who had dared to lay their hands upon her, yet feeling all a woman's gratitude to their preserver. Her eyes were flashing like stars, and her brows were bent, but as she looked into his face her expression softened. Of the two sensations gratitude was the stronger.

"You are not hurt?" he repeated. "I am sorry that I did not get here earlier, before that fellow touched you."

She held out her hand to him with a little impetuous movement. "Thank you, yes. No, I am not hurt," she said, her eyes suddenly filling with tears. Oh, how grateful we are, we are not, Margharita!"

"Indeed, indeed we are. The Signor had saved us from a terrible danger."

"It is nothing. This fellow was a rascal, but that was the carriage doing here?"

He pointed along the road. Already the churning vehicle had become a black speck in the distance, swaying heavily from side to side from the pace at which it was being driven, and almost enveloped in a cloud of dust.

Adrienne shook her head. Margharita had turned away, with her face buried in her hands. "I cannot imagine. Perhaps they were brigands and intended to carry us off for a ransom."

The Englishman shrugged his shoulders. "Odd sort of bandits," he remarked. "Why they didn't pluck of a chicken between them, especially this one."

He touched the prostrate figure with his foot, and the two girls shuddered.

"He is—is not dead, is he?" Margharita asked.

"Not he. I should say that he was very badly hurt either," the Englishman declared, bending down and checking his breathing. "More frightened than anything. He'll get up and be off directly we leave. You will let me see you home?" he continued, speaking to Adrienne. She looked up at him with a gleam of humor in her wet eyes. "You don't imagine, that we should let you go and leave us here?" she said. "Come Margharita."

The Englishman looked at the other girl, almost for the first time as she came up and joined them. Her dark eyes were full of tears and her face was troubled. There was very little relief or thankfulness for her escape in her expression. The Englishman was no physiognomist, but he was a little shrewd.

"There is no danger now, Signorina," he said reassuringly. "To-nowhere I will go to the police, and there say that we shall get to the bottom of the whole affair."

She shuddered but made no reply, walking on by their side, but a little distance apart. As for the Englishman, he was in paradise. All intents and purposes, he was alone with Adrienne Cartuccio, listening to her low voice, and every now and then stealing a glance downward into those wonderful eyes, just then very soft and sweet.

That walk through the scented dunes, with the far off murmur of the sea always in their ears, it was like the dawning of a new era in his life.

It was she who talked most, and he who listened. Yet he was very happy, and when they reached her villa, and he left them at the door, she gave him a white flower which he had found courage to beg for.

"May I call on you tomorrow?" he asked, trembling for the answer. "You would like to, yes," she answered readily. "Come early if you have nothing to do, and we will give you a afternoon tea at 4 o'clock. If you do, she added a little shyly, "is there not something which you have forgotten?"

He divined her meaning at once. "Oh, please I ought to have told you my name!" he exclaimed hastily.

"He is—is not dead, is he?" Margharita asked.

County Library Bill Proposed

There is a prospect that a bill will be introduced at the present legislature providing for county libraries, making books available to rural people who are unable to obtain reading matter with convenience at existing libraries. If the bill passes, county commissioners would be permitted to levy a small tax for the maintenance of a county library. Thirty four states have laws now, including Utah, Montana, Oregon and California, which prohibit books to be circulated free and would not interfere with the circulation of libraries already established, but would provide a greater opportunity without the necessity of buying it direct.

PROGRESS THE RESULT OF COOPERATION

Community development depends upon working one with another for the benefit of all.

The results of cooperation will be more civic improvements, finer schools, greater religious activity, higher morals and better business. All these things directly affect the people of this entire section.

Real prosperity will have to come to us by having developed the Community Spirit in the Twinland Empire.

It will bring about individual prosperity, happiness and contentment to every resident of this community.

It is essential that the citizens of this community cooperate in spirit and action with other men and women to successfully bring about the dawn of a new day in civic, moral, religious, and business progress in the Twinland Empire.

Back To The Farm

Chief Executive Determined That Legislature Give Attention to Revenue Producing Measures.

Governor Bradbridge Thursday issued a public statement in which he outlined his ideas regarding the proposed state tax on cigarettes.

The statement in full follows: My message delivered at the beginning of this session of the legislature I emphasized the need of finding some way to reduce the tax levied upon real and personal property of state taxpayers and suggested three new sources of revenue—intangibles, non-residents and a consumption tax. I have made specific recommendations because I feel it is not the prerogative of the governor to attempt to dictate to the legislature.

However, in connection with many other cities of the state of Idaho I have arrived at certain definite conclusions regarding the existing tax situation, and I welcome this opportunity to make my position clear.

Although the tax collected in Idaho for state purposes is not low, it is not as low as it should be. I feel that in my message, I believe the home is the most sacred institution in the world and that the tax levied on the home by rural or urban, I believe any system which discourages such property is a system which is fundamentally unsound and un-American.

Stale Tax Not Excessive. My contention with the state is that the tax charge in Idaho for state purposes is not excessive. I know nevertheless, that many of our citizens in the towns and cities, each year are confronted with a grave financial problem when taxes are levied on their property.

When, then, the earnings come at a profit, the property tax is levied on the property. I favor a tax on non-residents as an indirect tax in this direction. Specifically, I favor a tax on cigarettes. First, because such a tax can be collected at a small expense and, secondly, creating any new state offices, because the experience of other states proves that such a tax is practically unobtainable as a consistent revenue source.

Dim, as a cost of approximately $100,000 per year, and the revenue from this source, collected $137,000 in 1928. This amount was an increase of $10,000 over 1927. North Dakota at a cost less than 3 per cent collected $300,000 during the last fiscal year, which was a substantial increase over the preceding year. Both Dakota and Idaho's cost of less than 3 per cent collected $228,000 during the past year. This was an increase of approximately $90,000 over the preceding year.

How's Revenue Large. One of the three states in increase in population and from an industrial point of view the situations are not dissimilar. In the larger states, Governor Hannum has on record saying that the cigarette tax in Iowa is a real success, yielding an annual revenue of more than one million dollars. In Arkansas where a tax is levied on cigars as well as cigarettes the revenue from these two sources in the first year amounted to nearly one million dollars. Tennessee income tax on all manufactures and products and in 1928 received a revenue of approximately $1,250,000. The data available from nearly all of the states where a cigarette tax is collected show an increase in revenue from year to year from this source.

Being an estimation on the statement of the tobacco manufacturer regarding the per capita consumption of cigarettes in the United States and assuming the per capita consumption in Idaho is the same as throughout the United States, a tax of 2 cents per pack on the cigarettes sold in Idaho should yield a revenue of approximately four hundred thousand dollars annually. If this estimate should be reduced 50 per cent we would receive a substantial sum and the burden of such a tax would be the initial step in our efforts to reduce the tax on property.

The proposed cigarette tax could be collected from the wholesaler in about the same way as gasoline tax is collected, thereby eliminating the needless nuisance of a tax on the consumer.

EVERYONE has heard of the surplus of fish, the surplus of the salmon, the surplus of the water of a river and later goes out to sea to rot. It is the same with the surplus of the state. It is the surplus of the state that is the surplus of the state. It is the surplus of the state that is the surplus of the state.

The Self-Sustaining Farm. This was when the farm was self-sustaining. It was when the farm was self-sustaining. It was when the farm was self-sustaining. It was when the farm was self-sustaining.

Another reason for preferring the commercially canned food is that it is more uniform. Canned food is selected, cultivated by the most modern, scientific methods, the resulting vegetable is as perfectly uniform as is possible in this imperfect world. But the farm owner, who is not a professional, is not so sure of the result to be secured. There are many who are not so sure of the result to be secured.

Cool Canning. People who have never seen a can of food are apt to speak lightly of getting a couple of boxes of peaches or tomatoes. But the woman who has lived in a tent while the landing sunlight outside raised the temperature up in the nineties has no illusions about the work it takes to get a can of food.

There are farm lands all the time for cultivating the crops, but when harvest time arrives the number of extra hands—and money—becomes immense. Think you you could, of serving twenty people three times a day for a week? Would there be much time left for eating? Well, that is the conclusion that the farm women have been coming to.

Then Home Again. Just what canned foods are used on the farm depends largely on the circumstances. If there are a few acres of good grapes and cherries and some berry bushes, these products are probably home canned. But there are more such fruits as apples, peaches, pears and strawberries which are purchased. For a standard year, corn, peas and stringless beans certainly figure on the list. The purchase of canned food, cotton and wool, particularly, should be more prevalent than it is.

Electricity Again in Mining Camp. The Idaho Power company here successfully accomplished its task last week of repairing a break in its circuit to Jarbridge, after it had been broken by a snow-bound cable to spot the break in the power line somewhere between the Thousand Springs plant and Jarbridge, Nevada, which was cut off from power for about two days. The wire was found to have become loose from the insulator in one place and the men flew back and reported.

Good Proportions for Bear for Next Spring. Anyone intending to buy a bear for the next spring pig crop will be well repaid for a little care in selecting his bear. It may cost him a few extra dollars but it will give him the necessary corn situation and feeding ability to produce a good crop of pigs.

Plan to Increase Average Weight of Hogs. (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Agriculture would benefit and a minimum disturbance of price for all the communities involved would follow, in the opinion of Secretary of Agriculture W. J. Candler, if 200,000 hogs of average weight were devoted to the additional feeding of cattle and hogs this year. However, he warns against the production of hogs heavier than the desirable market weight, because price differentials cannot so heavy hogs would serve to offset the value of the extra weight.
