

GRATITUDE
I doubt if people are born with this admirable quality. If an infant smiles at his mother, he just feels good about something pleasing—that's all; he has no reason for the smile as a response; his symptom is one of amusement, when he comes to think about it.

I gave my very small grandson some small reins. He hurried with them to his toy bank and put them in, apparently much pleased with the increase in his wealth. His mother, who was the transaction, asked firmly, "Now, what do you say?" A very conventional "Thank you" came, wholly meaningless.

Not that I expected something in return for my very trifling generosity—no, not that—but I have always been a student of human nature, and I am drawing inferences therefrom.

There are a great many grown up children in the same category with my little grandson; they are the recipients of gifts of many times more value than the pennies I bestow. Yet they forget to say anything. We are richly blessed in practical days, with our clothing, health, loved ones and social contacts with our fellow-men. I cannot think of anything good that may not be obtained, if we but obtain it in the right way. The wonder is, why do I forget the golden privilege of being grateful, and of saying so.

I could not live a single hour without this wholesome environment of mine. Light illuminates my pathway; air refreshes the weariness from a tiring day; the comfortable enough of a full effort; moisture and delicacy preserve my physical balance; gentle night affords its balmy sources; friends and loved ones are about me to be grateful to. Who is so indifferent as to harbor ingratitude? What do you say?

Canal Company Starts Repairs

The severe cold of the past winter has so affected the bridges and banks of the Twin Falls Canal company's system that a large repair bill is necessary this year to put the lateral into a safe condition. L. G. Gooding, superintendent, John Ross, watermaster, W. C. Hays, watermaster of repairs, and Manager John E. Hayes, are co-operating on the work.

Mr. Gooding, a director, is completing a survey to determine just what damage has been done and in what areas it is the worst. The survey is being completed by causing them to erect when the force of the ice broke away with the snow, and the banks and timber structures were also cracked and dislocated in places. The same condition prevails on other river banks, according to officials here.

Las Vegas Booms

From a desert, half town several months ago, Las Vegas, Nevada, has been rejuvenated by the prospective building of the Boulder dam in the Colorado river, a few miles distant. The dam is to cost $160,000,000, one of the biggest engineering enterprises ever undertaken in the world. Speculators, promoters and other groups of men have been flocking on hand by scores, million upon millions of desert ground to establish greenhouses far and near, and have been buying up this rocky area on time payments. The population of Las Vegas is reported growing at the rate of 500 a week.

Poison Forage Kills Horses

Forage poisoning was given as the cause of the death of nine horses belonging to two men near Richfield recently. Six of the animals were owned by A. H. McKee and three by J. H. Patrick. J. F. Inland, deputy state veterinarian, made an investigation in company with Truman C. McClendon, county coroner. He expressed the opinion that the horses ate some form of poisonous hay or forage. As the hay could not be seen without a microscope, it was difficult to discover where it was found by the horses. This condition has occurred in other localities at different times, killing a number of horses.

AIRMAIL LIFE BRINGS OTHER ADVANTAGES

Installation of Heaton Lights Provides Power for Isolated Farms on North Side.

The establishment and development of the government airmail line from Salt Lake City to Pasco, Washington, via Butte, Montana and Boise, Idaho, is bringing about some advantages that are of considerable importance to many farmers in the Twin Falls area. The people were formerly counted on being too far isolated for the installation of electric lines, and this being the case, the airmail line now brought them into a most fortunate situation.

The installation of the airmail line brought these people what the telephone and power companies could not afford to do before. Since it is not possible to run lines have been built and are still being extended among farmers on the north side of the Snake river from the mouth of the Snake to Jerome, Wendell, Bliss and Mountain Home, Idaho.

Five of the four Heaton lights have been installed and are now in operation. Their powerful beams of light and revolving every night bring airmail aviation along their routes. These lights are in the neighborhoods of Bliss, Tattle, Jerome, Wendell, and Eden. The stars are set out in about five miles east of Hazelton as soon as the bad roads and weather conditions make it impossible to travel from Hazelton it has blocked, preventing the creation of power extending that way. The equipment is of the latest type.

Installation of the five Heaton lights has taken about two days. The lights are being installed in places from Bliss westward, making 29 in all between Burley and Boise. Manager H. W. Carey, in charge of the installation of the Idaho Power company, which is providing the lights, stated that the airmail line is to be the main line for the airmail route between Burley and Salt Lake, finishing the illumination of the line, but the line is not yet complete. Mr. Carpenter and many miles of power extensions had been constructed and that were yet to be installed. The line is a long one, about 60 miles of power lines were put in last year. The line is being installed in about 15 more places in the year's program of development. A still further advantage is the fact that the line is being installed in the same areas in which the power lines are being built.

BIG SHEEP POOL SOLD
The Bonneville Woolgrowers' association with two other pools of sheep, totaling 140,000 fleeces, but the price was not given, the contract stating that it would be received from a number of buyers for the Idaho Falls and Oregan wool pools. A down payment of $1 a fleece was made, the balance scheduled for the last day of June.

Gillis Refuses Opinion Anent Color of Hair

State Attorney General W. D. Gillis of Piler refused to discriminate against a "red-headed grass widow" in a decision made this week regarding the divorce in a community district. A complaint was made to him by C. B. McClendon of New Plymouth, that the directors of the board of assessed holders of city lots at a higher rate than owners of suburban property. McClendon thought an elderly woman who lives in the suburbs had influenced the directors. Mr. Gillis explained to Mr. McClendon that the levies are made according to law and not according to the red-headed grass widow. He stated that the levies were all right, if raised, if they were in accordance with the law, even though the red-headed grass widow did influence them.

'The HORSE WRANGLER'

The cattle roundup was on in Shoshone Basin. It was evening—the night herders had just relieved the day men. Collins had generously filled his tin plate at the mess wagon and sat cross-legged on a saddle blanket to enjoy a well-earned meal. He had wrangled horses all day long with nothing to eat with the exception of a sour-dough biscuit that he had placed in his saddle pocket that morning.

Hungry men are not usually congenial, and Collins was no exception. He was cross and crabbed, but as he ate, his old spirit gradually returned and his tongue became loosened. Soon he was surrounded by cowboys, all eagerly anticipating a story of the wrangler's long experiences on the range.

It took some persuasion to get Collins started, but finally he said, "Wal, boys, if I'm going to tell you all of my experience on the range, I reckon it will be a long, long yarn, starting when I was a boy back in Missouri—how I made a trip into Colorado 'n' got a job wrangling horses with a cattle drive—and I certainly felt like I had some job when they turned that bunch of muntangs over to me.

We were headed for the Goose Creek mountains in northern Nevada and Southern Idaho with four thousand head of long horn cattle, about forty head of Mustang horses and a lot of mules and pack animals.

"J. E. Bower was our foreman. This was the second drive he had taken into the county for Barley Harald of the Shoe Sole outfit. Our cook was an old trapper who had trapped all the streams tributary to the Snake river and was well acquainted with the Indian tribes."

"When we got toward the north end of the Great Salt Lake we were in the home of the Banocks, where General Connors, a few years before, had tried to make good injuns out of all Banocks, but he wasn't successful in gettin' Chief Pocentello in the snare, 'as long as that old rascal was running loose, outside. We were takin' chances in drivin' through his country."

"We wasn't so much afraid of bein' attacked by the red devils, but was afraid of havin' our horses stampeded and stolen and the night cattle herd scattered. You know them Banocks liked spotted buffaloes, and they pulled in all the spotted horses they could get."

"We was all well armed, every man carryin' one or more six-shooters in his holster, besides a rifle slung from his saddle. 'Ol Tex, the puncher, who was put on as my night partner, was an old Texas ranger, and what Tex didn't know about injuns they didn't know about themselves."

"We knowed that the injuns were keepin' close about us for we could see 'em every day watchin' us from some high top too far away for gun shot.

"They had never bothered us, but I want to tell you that some of them nights were plenty spooky, when everything was quiet and all of a sudden a coyote would set up a howl on some nearby ridge and we would wonder if it was a real coyote—or maybe—a Banock-Injun giving signals to his theivins' gang, and would a bunch of yel'lin' hair raisin injuns stampede our horses."

"For night we were keyed up to a high pitch and we was mighty well pleased that a few days would take us into the foothills for we knowed that once we got into the mountains we would have no injun trouble.

"Well, one night about a coyote came out when our boss herd was huddled down for the night and Tex and I had rode all night—always tryin' to keep ourselves below the sky-line. Tex said to be in a whisper, 'Let's go to that bunch of cedars and have a smoke.' It was Jake with me, and we carefully led our horses to the cedars, and he built one smokes, when another came out on top of 'em. "Quik'ly lightnin' Tex dropped his unfinished pipe, grabbed his rifle from his saddle and whispered: 'That ain't no coyote, that's an Injun.'

"The night was moonlight, with flintin clouds. I had taken my rifle from his sling and again my cowboy came to a yell and pointed his rifle to me at his shoulder, and just as I thought 'I saw something movin' at the top of the ridge 'waint' went Tex's rifle and an Injun pony without a rider come runnin' towards us, then quietly turned and entered our boss herd.

"Tex said, 'That's all right—that coyote won't yell no more.'

"We laid quiet until just about daybreak, then ventured out from cover to find a 'good Injun' at the top of the ridge, and an Injun pony with an Injun saddle and a rawhide thong at his lower jaw for a bridle. Tex put his rope on the pony, took off the saddle and rawhide thong and turned the pony loose with our herd.

"I said, 'Tex, what will we do with the Injun,' and he answered, 'Oh, he'll make good food for buzzards.' "We didn't see an Injun that day and was beginning to think we was getting out of their country when we pulled up to the sign of the drive. The cook at the mess wagon was preparin' the meal and the riders was cuttin' out their horses for the night herd, when all of a sudden five Injuns came in sight so close and unexpected that it seemed like they had sprung out of the ground.

"They rode straight at the cook, and until they was in easy gun shot—they then stopped, and the leader threw up one hand and gave us the sign of friendship. Then, leaving the other Injuns behind, the leader rode almost into our camp, gave the sign of friendship again, an said in English, 'How.' Quik'ly the cook at the mess wagon, Pocentello, broke loose in Banock, telling him that he had trapped on the Portneut and knew him, Pocentello, very well. The cook knew that Pocentello and other Banocks had a terror of General Connors, and he took him to trust, but he him think that the cattle were driving her for General Connors' army."

"Pocentello granted and said 'Injun head hungry, and with a wave of the hand he signalled the other Injuns to come in. The cook gave each one a sour dough biscuit and a hunk of buttered bread, and they rode away, and the cook said that we would not be bothered with that bunch any more."

PUTTING SMALL COMMUNITIES ON THE MAP

There is at present an unprecedented opportunity for the smaller city and town to prosper and develop, through the acquisition of outside industries.

Bonnets Ferry, Idaho, a town of some 2,000 population, is a good illustration of how civic spirit should manifest itself.

Bonnets Ferry will undoubtedly realize its ambition. It has the requisites and what is equally important— it understands how to "sell" them.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

The great, green day is at hand—St. Patrick's Day. Who can deny the thrill of it? The bright color of it! Everywhere jovial veterans of the green—a festival held for participants and spectators, a day of joy with hallowed traditions and sacred ceremonies.

St. Patrick's example is such as to make finer, truer men and women. The day is an inspiration to the noble ambitions and the higher aspirations of humanity.

And so, greet the wearers of the green cordially hoping that this St. Patrick's Day will find them in the greatest health and happiness.

HE SAID A MOUTHFUL

An estimate of the legislature which has just completed its labors in Boise is given in the following terse words by Senator Rockwell of Blaine county:

"As we take our homeward road, I cannot but feel, commenting on our failure to solve the great problem of taxation.

"I am frankly disappointed in this session. It has failed to measure up to the great opportunities before it.

"As it is, I say to you in all earnestness, if the answer is not on the desks of the next legislature the republicary party may as well go out of business."

Mr. Rockwell was one of the Republican leaders of the senate.

We take him at his word.

The chamber of commerce or the Rotary club, or the Kiwanis, or some organization here should call a meeting and thrash out this weather question. Something should be done about it. Committees should be appointed and resolutions passed!

The Ideas of March have come!

It is better that a community meeting break up in a fight than adjourn without accomplishing anything.

Under the title, "Whence, Oh Heaven, Whither," J. E. Keith writes an article in your issue of March 12 which an honorable American citizen I cannot let go unchallenged.

His first statement that "Ten years ago the people of this nation adopted a policy that has plunged us into civil war" is not correct. It was not until 1918 that a radical statement, which cannot be supported by facts.

It is true that some have refused to abide by that policy and they are most deeply defiled. It is the ones who have cultivated "force for reason" and all their doors is rightly laid the responsibility for the ruin.

Mr. Keith also makes the statement that "Custodian as old as the mountains" is a measure of the criminal over night. I presume he refers to the custom of drinking and eating in a measure of the criminal over night.

SPRING STARTS AGAIN AFTER A SNOWY RELAPSE

Traffic hindered by mud on all routes; Sheepmen lose a few lambs as result of storm.

Beautiful weather prevailed Thursday as the aftermath of the storm which hit the Twin Falls territory Sunday evening and continued all the following day without abatement. With the sky clear, the sunshine warm and the ground thoroughly moistened from the late snow and rain, the time of year would indicate that this year was Winter's final throwback from a season that had already made itself famous as one of the coldest and snowiest in Twin Falls' history.

The snow was unusually plentiful for the late winter, part of the storm being rain and sleet, but undoubtedly prove of great value to the farms and ranches, the soil being soaked and the roads and pasture with the wetness that even the gravelled highways have not held up under the traffic in many places.

From several areas in southern Idaho and in other states reports have stated this week's storm to have been the most severe of the winter. School 14th the Salmon tract were closed the first of the week because of snow-bound roads. Miles City, Montana, got 12 inches of snow. Sheridan, Wyoming, got 10 inches, while the drift at Laramie was 40 inches. The snow was reported the worst of the winter and in some cases worse than for several years. Several reports show that the storm damage was done at Heyburn, Wyoming by flooding of the Little Horn river.

Stages have not operated from here to Pocatello since a week ago Sunday. The Boise stage was out two days, while those to Gooding and Shoshone were behind schedule this week on account of the mud-soaked roads. Drifts were several feet deep on the highway near Marseilles and on the Salmon tract, and on other north and south stretches.

Some losses report some losses, particularly among the twin lambs, but not serious. The cold wind following the rain of the night of Sunday night proved fatal to a number of lambs in various herds.

GIRLS PLAY BALL.
Four girls' basket ball teams will meet in the Bush high school auditorium Friday and Saturday nights in an Idaho state tournament to determine the 1929 champion. These are Buhi, Caldwell, Idaho Falls and Blackfoot. Games will start at 7:30 o'clock, the champion team to be decided Saturday night. All four teams have made excellent records this past season and will fight hard for the title. Great interest has been shown and many fans will be there.

TRAVIS DEFEATS ROCKY MOORE

Bob Travis and Rocky Moore settled their feuds differences in four rounds of fast fighting in Pleasant playing ring Wednesday night. Travis got the decision by virtue of his greater staying power, his superior fighting power, his advantage in weight, he weighed 144 lb compared with 137 for Moore.

The latter tried hard to prove his declarations repeatedly made that he could whip Travis. The decision was popular with the fans.

In the semi-final, Ernie Windley of Twin Falls won easily from Roy Heiler of Boise, who had defeated four times in the fourth round, after which in the latter's second three in the tournament. Jimmy White of Twin Falls and Bob Gonzalez of Reno, Nevada, fought four rounds even. The latter was a one-handed fighter with the right hand of each fighter tied at his back.

This was the Legion's fourth boxing card.

MAN DEPLORES SPUD SLANDER

Feed Carter, a potato grower of Burley, suggests a campaign to put an end to the idea that eating potatoes condones to excess, also fat and that it ruins the figures of the ladies. This impression is false, he insists, and is the work of those who are engaged in business opposed to the sale of potatoes. These people, Mr. Carter says, have so diligently spread the idea that it takes years to overcome it, and that potato should be taken to silverware, the desirable food qualities of this product. Some food authorities are now learning to correct the impression that potato would increase the weight, he said.

Health Service To Come Here

Two full time health units were expected to be authorized by Dr. W. Covington of Salt Lake who visited Boise Monday to investigate the need for these on behalf of the Rockefeller Foundation which he represents. One of these would be in Twin Falls, which he and the other in Canyon county.

Each unit would consist of a physician, two nurses and a sanitary inspector. The work would be principally in the rural districts, with conferences, special service to families, and sanitary inspection. They would be the first such health units in Idaho and would be supported by federal, county and local funds.

The Twin Falls chamber of commerce and other local agencies have been working for a health unit here.

SCHOOL BOND LEVY PASSES

The seven-mill bond levy was passed at the Twin Falls school election Tuesday by a vote of 79 to 25. The incumbent trustee and the almost impassable roads caused a light response of the voters.

The vote at the Lincoln school was 24 for and 13 against the issue, a total of 46; and at the Blackfoot school it was 47 for and 22 against, a total of 69.

The tax will raise approximately $65,000 with which to carry on the schools for the year. The extra tax has been necessary for the last six years, as the regular tax does not produce enough revenue to school expenses for the year. The regular tax brings in $199,100.

Library Board Terms Fixed

Miscellaneous matters discussed by the city council this week include granting of five building permits to the amount of $2775. Permits of members of the public library board were fixed to clarify a confused situation. By the ruling adopted, the terms of Street H. Taylor and Mrs. John W. Graham will expire January 1, 1930; W. F. Nixon and Mrs. E. M. Sweely January 1, 1931, and Wilbur S. Hill January 1, 1932.

A report showed the assessed valuation of taxable property in Twin Falls had increased from $1,062,000 in 1927 to $5,011,632, and advance of $49,032.

Shoshone votes bonds. Citizens of Shoshone voted Saturday in favor of an $85,000 bond issue, the vote being 232 to 94. As two-thirds were necessary to approve the measure, it was carried by 10 votes. The school board met Monday night to complete plans for construction of two new school buildings in time for the opening term next fall. A portion of the public high school building will be built on the site of the one that burned in January, and a new elementary building will replace the present old one north of the railroad tracks. They will cost $127,000, the balance over the $85,000 having been received from insurance.
