Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for June 1, 1934. LATER EXPERIENCES OF JEREMIAH. Jeremiah 28:1-13. Rev. Samuel H. Price, D.D.

The comforting army of the Chaldeans was all about Jerusalem. Already some of the Jews had been deported to Babylon. Zedekiah had been appointed king by Nebuchadnezzar but failed in his loyalty to that mighty chieftain.

Jeremiah's voice did not meet with approval for he had predicted such an overthrow of the nation if they would not reform and live righteously. When the inevitable was at hand the prophetic advice, submission to Nebuchadnezzar, in short, it was to their interest to make the very most of the best situation.

The fall in attack furnished opportunity for Jeremiah to start out of his home town, Anathoth. Then the king talking. Pardon them and they will do away with all race prejudice. When we begin to look for the good in others we cannot fail to see their excellencies, and these often put us to shame by comparison.

Reaping Prosperity

PROSPERITY does not come itself. It is always the result of a background of earnest effort, painstaking development and whole-hearted cooperation. To reap prosperity it is necessary to plant the seeds of prosperity by engaging in our pursuits on a high ethical plane and in a true spirit of brotherhood.

Competition has given way to cooperation. More and More the agricultural and business world are in accord with that principle. We envision a greater community, more advanced and prosperous, as the outcome of this era of cooperative activity.

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE The Sheridan Dramatic Club, of which Tom Bilbeck, the barber, Maryella, the girl he cares for, and Jim Cooper, his rival, are members, is to give Pygmalion and Calcutta at the Old Soldiers' Home, Mr. Hemmingway, husband of one of the actresses, thinks Bilbeck is in love with his wife. The escape of passengers from the local post-venture bus, Bilbeck being at the newspaper work, so that he gets away from the dramatic group, but Maryella summons him, and Tom, Cooper, his rival, are members, who believes that everything that happens turns out to be for the best.

The players arrive at the Old Soldiers' Home, being greeted royally and meeting Phil Howenthal and others.

The play at the Old Soldiers' Home is interrupted because of a fire, the players and veterans escaping.

How go on with the Story.

Jim Cooper laughed.

"You'll have to get a new car. Tom even has a new one. He says you have to admit it's getting out of date."

"That's my," commented our friend. I indignantly applauded him. "Can't you start her anyway, Bill?"

"Sure. I can start her all right," Bill said confidently.

It is grand to approach a motor in that frame of mind, especially in cold weather. If there is anything in this theory of the superiority of mind over matter it is certainly correct to hold a hopeful thought when about to start.

Bill grumbled a little though, having to turn the engine over by hand. He went out in front of the car and grasped the handle firmly.

"When I get her going, Julius," Bill said before cranking, "you make quick jump for the car and we'll be off before anybody can start anything."

"All right," assented Julius.

All arrangements for the get-away completed, Bill started the car. He cranked it several times, in fact, without any definite result. Grandmother began to cry, having like a brick—a load of bricks, one might almost say. She would respond to none but the hand of her son, and to the ministrations of another she only surged.

"What's the matter, Bill? Can't you start her?" questioned Jim Cooper sympathetically, apparently it is all for the best, Bill. This will teach you to crank the car and will likewise develop the muscles. If you would devote the same amount of energy to the pursuit of an upright and noble life, you would doubtless become President of the United States some day. Think, Bill, of how this life of crime has aged your poor old mother. Think of your mother, Bill! Bill exploded at last.

"If that was any other mother, I'd hit her, but Jim!"

Jim shrugged, but from time to time thereafter he writhed with eagerness to offer suggestions to console. He just naturally couldn't keep from lending a helping hand in everyone else's business.

"It means well, too," Jim said, "but I don't doubt but that Jim Cooper is one of the best hearted men in the world; but for the time he has approached me wrong. I do not doubt but that you yourself you got to want his appearance on the scene."

Bill's temper had not been improved any by Jim's earnest advice. He twisted the crank violently and then delivered a vicious kick on the radiator.

"Who owns this piece of Junk anyway?" he demanded, at last approaching our own "If it yours?"

He pointed at Jim.

"It is not," Jim declined hastily. "You couldn't give it to us on a lark."

I made a mental resolve to square up with him sometime for his scornful comment. No man knew to hate the things that he owns so ridiculed. Grandmother might not have all the modern attachments, but I loved every bolt in her body.

"Then you must be the guy," Bill said, including me. "You come here and see what I mean."

Now, I had no particular desire to have Grandmother's Ford killed, it seemed simple enough to make a perfunctory effort and tell them it would not go. So I monkeyed with the levers, almost had cranked a couple of times, I did not prime the cylinders with gasoline and stuff a glove in the air intake, as I knew I would have to do to get her to respond.

"She won't start," I announced. Jim Cooper snatched a strident laugh.

"What are you laughing at?" Bill demanded harshly.

"Because," Jim returned, "two says he can start that car in any kind of weather when nobody else can."

How cheerfully I could have dropped off.

I paused for breath.

"You've got your killing," snarled the highwayman, showing the muzzle of the revolver under my nose. "Take off that coat and make her go. Take it off, I say!" I obeyed. Neither of us was prepared for what followed. I had forgotten the white lights, which were all I wore beneath my overcoat, and he, of course, was not expecting me to look as pale as I did.

His jaw fell and his arm dropped limp at his side.

"What are you?" he asked. "I was probably the only opportunity that I would have and I made the most of it. As the muzzle of his arm dropped I jumped for him and placed his arms to his sides.

We rolled over and over in the snow, the revolver exploding as we fell.

Sometimes weight is an advantage. This was a case in point. In two minutes I was sitting on his chest and had taken his weapons away from him.

Finger on trigger, ready to fire, I looked around for the other bandit.

"Where is he?" I asked.

"Gone," replied Maryella. "He ran away when he saw you were winning."

"It's all for the best," Jim asserted. "You couldn't fight him at the same time anyway."

I rose from my seat. "Get up!" I ordered my prisoner.

THE IDAHO CITIZEN

SEMI-WEEKLY PER YEAR, $2.50

A semi-weekly newspaper published on Tuesday and Friday of each week at Twin Falls, Idaho, by the Citizen Publishing Company

AUTOCATER NEWS PUBLISHING

Entered as second class mail matter at the postoffice at Twin Falls, Idaho, under the act of March 3, 1879

CITIZEN PUBLISHING CO., 203 Second Avenue North, Twin Falls, Idaho. Phone 172

ONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

The Citizen learns with profound regret of the hurried acceptance by President Hoover of the resignation of that eminent female barrister, Mabel Walker Willebrandt, jocosely referred to on occasion as Mabel Talker Firebrand.

She somehow did not fit into the Hoover administration, nor did her antics comport to the standards upheld by her Democratic chieflain, Attorney-General Mitchell.

We'll can't be said of Mrs. Willebrandt: "Gone but not forgotten"

VOTE JUNE 7th

The Citizen feels it is doing its duty in urging the taxpaying electorate to express its opinion at the polls Friday afternoon, June 7, regarding the proposed $20,000 bond issue for school building improvement.

The polls will be open between the hours of one and six-thirty o'clock P. M. Taxpayers only may vote—but they should VOTE. If the bonds should fall against your wishes and you have failed to vote—then do not complain.

The bond issue appears to be more than justified and the amount is comparatively small. The passage of the measure is dependent entirely upon an informed and VOTING electorate.

Vote June 7th!

JUNE BRIDES

The month of marriages is here. Of course every month is a month of marriages, but June seems especially to abound with them, and there has always been an additional halo of romance over marriages that take place in June.

That is as it should be, for June is in itself beautiful and romantic, the glorious month of roses.

What better time to wed than when the fields are abloom with flowers, and the sweet song of birds is in the air?

What better month for honey moons? Young man—young lady—if you are engaged or expect to be married shortly—why not seize the opportunity to make a June wedding of it?

And while we are on the subject, let's forget the brides of former years. Remember those who married in June of the past with tokens of your affection—perhaps indeed, your mother, too, was a "June Bride."

MEMORIAL DAY

Since last a day was set aside in honor of departed soldiers, the ranks of the great war heroes have been thinned by the passing of Marshal Foch.

One of the great generals of all time, his brave spirit now belongs to eternity. Like many great generals, he espoused peace with all his might and main, yet proved a fierce and unrelenting warrior when struggling for a righteous cause.

Significant was the coupling of his name with that of the Unknown Soldier at the time of his death. Beautiful was the thought of saluting them both—one the greatest general, perhaps, of the World War; the other, unknown, obscure.

It is in that spirit that we must celebrate Decoration Day, reserving our honors not only for the famous and glorious leaders, but dividing them as well among the humblest of those who have served their people in a common cause.

Our tributes of gratitude and love must embrace all those who gave their lives—with equal emphasis for the rulers and the humble, the mighty and the known and the unknown.

POWER FARMING

One of the outstanding features of farming operations in Twin Falls county this spring is the phenomenal increase in number of tractors and other farm machinery that has been purchased by farmers. One dealer estimated that 200 tractors alone have been sold to Twin Falls county farmers this spring—more than were ever sold before. All kinds of other machines have also been distributed.

This dealer said this is in harmony with similar movement throughout the country, indicating a wholesale conversion of farmers from manual to mechanical and scientific methods of farming. It is considered the result of a general educational campaign carried on to show the advantages of farming by the new system, representing a better standard of farm practice in the United States.

The dealer expressed the opinion that one reason for this conversion to farm machinery was the late spring season putting farm operations three weeks behind time at the beginning of spring. By means of this large increase in number of agricultural implements used, together with excellent weather, the last several weeks, farming operations have now just about caught up.

Hundreds of beet workers who have come into the Twinland Empire the last two months are now in the midst of beet thinning. Beet ground is getting rapidly into condition, with beans going into the ground now. Soil conditions are good; weather has been favorable; water supplies are abundant, and all things favorable at this for a most favorable year for farmers in this part of Idaho, Twin Falls county in particular.

Officials venture no statement yet in regard to the prospective bean acreage for the county, although it is expected to be large in view of the high prices received on last year's crop. The Amalgamated Sugar company has the largest acreage of beets it has ever had in this district, with about 15,800 acres in four counties.

A thankful heart is not only the greatest virtue, but parent of all other virtues.—Cicero.
