

Odd Powers Attributed to Gills in Past Ages

While in modern times the value of a beard depends on such things as its length and its color, and its possession in certain professions and other instances, the ancients attributed to it different attributes to them. In their mind, a beard was endowed with the magical and mysterious powers which were credited with the ability to cure diseases, avert evil spirits and other forces of the universe. This conception gave rise to the wearing of amulets, the presiding deity of a man's life, and the deity carried about in the form of a necklace.

These ideas were so prevalent in the past that the beard was considered to be the source of life and vitality. It was believed that the soul which, at death, had to seek a state of stability, passed through the beard, and that the beard was the source of life and vitality. This conception gave rise to the wearing of amulets, the presiding deity of a man's life, and the deity carried about in the form of a necklace.

What Happened Before? Remember Steddon comes West to avoid revealing the result of an unfortunate love affair to her father.

The Rev. Dr. Steddon, a clergyman of kind heart but narrow mind who attributes much of the evil of the world to the "movies" and constantly inveighs against them, having her lover Edward Farnaby slain in an accident at the advice of the Rev. Dr. Steddon, gipsy her back caught as an excuse to get to Arizona and from there writes home that she has met and married Mr. Woodville, a "wholly imaginary person. Later she writes again to say that her "husband" has died of a heart ailment. She takes a job as a domestic to avoid being a burden on her parents. A fall prevents her becoming a mother. In Arizona she had met Tom Holley, a leading man in a motion picture company, and through his influence she is invited to play a part in a concert drama. With the company is Robina Teelo, a Star, friend of Holley and

After her accident, Mem becomes friendly with M. A. Opens. Mrs. Deck, a poor woman of Palm Springs, Arizona, writes an interesting letter to Mem. Mrs. Deck, who has a great gift of mimicry, explains to Mem that she has come to Los Angeles to take a job in a film laboratory. (Now Go On With the Story.)

One day in Westlake Park she sat down on a bench and by and by was lulled by a steady mid-Western wind.

"Well, I'm alive and breathe! It ain't Miss Steddon!"

"Why, how do you do, Mrs. Steddon?"

It was a mid-aged woman who had been a member of her father's church and had come West because of her husband's illness.

Mem's first thought was to come anyone from home. Her second was to get anyone from home. Mrs. Steddon's life in the West had been a struggle with small towns, noisy or prejudiced neighbors.

Mem's wife scurried in vain to bring up a protesting foe. Mrs. Steddon was so full of her own opinions and ambitions to ask any embarrassing questions beyond a hearty "how do you do, my dear?"

"I declare it makes my blood run cold just to—don't it yours?"

"I don't believe it," said Mem.

She had heard a vast amount of gossip, but she had not heard of anyone paying such an attention fee. She had seen no vice at all.

Mrs. Steddon stared up. There is nothing so defensible more zealous than a woman's heart.

"Don't believe it! Why, it's true as gospel! They sell their souls for bread. Any girl that's too honest to let her blood get engaged—that's all—she just can't get engaged! Oh dear! that's my car."

Next day the mail brought her a check in a letter from Mrs. Deck.

Dear Mrs. Woodville: I was awful kind to get your letter. Been meaning to answer it but trying to fix up my affairs at home. I and Terry could come up to your city. Today I was to Mrs. Reddick and she said she had a telegram for you but had no address and so could not forward it. It said your mother was so worried not having had no answer to her letter she was coming out on the first train and taking her little house on the mountains near Palm Springs day tomorrow. Hoping to see you sooner or later.

Mrs. P. Deck you love you lots of love.

Mem was puzzled. Nothing could stop her mother from coming. The first blaze of joy at the thought of the reunion was quenced in the flood of impossible situations her presence would create.

Mem had had a faint idea that Steddon had taken a fancy to her and had been waiting for the up train, and when Mrs. Steddon dropped off the steps Mem put her right hand to her forehead.

Mrs. Steddon had been prepared to find a scolded and sickly child in a shack in Palm Springs. She had come as a restorer angel. She found that her wings and halo were old-fashioned!

When they reached Los Angeles they left Mrs. Deck and Terry at the home of a cousin, then sped on to the bungalow, where Leva met Mrs. Steddon welcome.

And now Mem recalled Mrs. Steddon's and her statement (so glibly did she substitute faith facts) that "every one of them has to pay their dues."

Mem grew grim as she meditated. "The Price"—it was only a vague phrase. But she was ready to pay it whatever it was. The question was, to whom?

She proceeded a long while before she thought of a shop to visit, she recalled fearfully the requirements of the Women's Exchange at home where women sold what they made, painted china, hammered brass, knit goods, cakes and candies.

Now the Flying Grocery

ALMOST everything has taken to flying but it comes as a surprise to hear that even a grocery store has found something new in the air.

The airplane is the latest modern version of the distribution car. It has recently become a completed fact.

Many of the large manufacturers and distributors of canned foods has fitted out a complete line of his products and is sending this flying grocery to every town in the country.

One of the large manufacturers of this flying grocery is now in the process of describing the contents of trailers at the various points. Before the airplane is put into service, it will be a full line of canned vegetables, fruits, cereals, and other goods.

Mr. Gilson further stated that this has been an ideal business season. The hot weather prevailing up to September 1 caused all crops to grow rapidly and ripen fast. The cool spell that came with the fair was just in time, he said, to keep the soil moist to apples and other crops and in hastening the ripening of the fruit, insuring a fine quality as well as an abundance of the product.

arranged in the plane for passengers and large windows allow a view of the country over which the airplane passes.

The airplane is the latest modern Ford all metal monoplane. According to "The Evening Age" it is a duplicate in design of the airplane used by the Transcontinental Air transport. It has a "high wing" design, a Lindbergh and Colonel Lamphear, that used by Mrs. Lindbergh in her trip to Mexico in 1927, and of the plane now in use with Boyd's Antarctic Expedition.

While this flying grocery is designed for selling, but rather for the display of foods, who knows how long it will be before airplanes will be bringing groceries to every town in the country at regular intervals. The rapid advances in aviation bring this wish within the realm of possibility.

"bureau director," said Sunday that he had heard of no damage to any of the commercial crops in this territory. Manager C. H. Detweiler of the Southern Idaho Beekeepers' association had planned a trip over the bean area Saturday afternoon. He reported that no damage was done he did not go. These reports came also from Hazelton on the way.

MERCURY GOES TO 30 DEGREES

Few Plants Nipped by Cold Experienced The Last Three Nights.

Frost hit this section of southern Idaho the last three nights, the official temperature registering 30 degrees Friday and Saturday night and 30 degrees Sunday night. While it was reported from practically all districts that no material damage had been done to crops, one farmer said his beans were injured by the Saturday night frost and such other vines as tomatoes and eggplants were blackened.

PLAN TO MAKE THROAT TESTS OF STUDENTS

Dr. David M. Cowgill and School Officials Lay Plans Preventing Another Outbreak of Meningitis.

"Efforts are being made by the school authorities cooperating with Dr. David M. Cowgill of the county health service to have throat cultures taken of all students in the Twin Falls county schools as soon after the opening term as possible. This has been planned all summer as a means of preventing another such outbreak of meningitis, as occurred last fall, resulting in the death of quite a few persons, mostly young people.

The financial help of the department of public welfare is being solicited toward making this work effective. Dr. Cowgill has expressed the belief that if throat cultures are taken of all school students promptly there need be no recurrence of the epidemic of a year ago.

Examinations have been given children at various points in the county since the Berkeley health unit was established here in June. Dr. Cowgill has had the assistance of Mrs. Richard Smith and Miss Helen Wolfe, with J. H. Jackson as sanitary inspector.

The throat cultures taken last winter of all suspected contacts revealed quite a number of those who were quarantined and effectively treated, thereby preventing the spread of the disease and helping materially to curb the epidemic of meningitis. Similar results are expected from the forthcoming tests.

Fourteenth Annual Fair Last Week Is Now History

The fourteenth annual Twin Falls fair, many of these persons came from places 100 miles or more away, representing less than last year's record of 26,348, but almost that much more than for the previous fair of 1927. On Thursday evening officials were confident that this year's attendance would exceed that of last year, but the rainstorm that broke just as the opening plays were to begin caused a postponement of that portion of the fair, still weather, which settled over the region on the opening day of the fair, fell week, combined with the heavy harvest which is in full; the Twin Falls county health unit, and a style show of fall dresses modeled conducted by J. COMMON SENSE AND CRIME

The American people as a whole may be negligent about our crime record, but there is no dearth of suggestions on the part of optimistic reformers.

Possible cures include harsher and more stringent punishments for offenders, moral laws to make more acts illegal, prohibitive revolver and pistol legislation and restrictive legislation of 37 varieties, all injuring the law-abiding in the "hope" of curbing the criminal.

It is all very fine, but somehow it does not ring true. Laws which will principally affect the good citizens rather than the real criminal, are hardly a crime cure. We have had considerable of such legislation in the past quarter-century and all it has done is to make more criminals.

The United States has the most laws of any nation in the world and likewise the most crime. Our judicial procedure is the most technical and long drawn-out. We have an army of peace officers but the majority of criminals are never punished.

We need fewer laws but more effective ones. Our legal system requires a release from red tape caused by the delays and invasions made possible by countless litigations. The application of a little common sense might do more to subdue crime than additional and dubious panaceas offered by enthusiastic, but misled, reformers.

THE PUBLIC DOMAIN

A serious problem confronts the west in the proposal to transfer the surface rights of the public domain from the department of the interior of the United States government to the individual states.

Governors Baldrige of Idaho and Dern of Utah have indicated their opposition to the plan, while Secretary Wilbur of the president's cabinet, and Congressman Addison T. Smith are sponsoring the idea. Mr. Smith in an interview at Boise Monday came out flat-footed for the suggestion of the president.

Another opponent of the project is Senator Darrah, who, in vigorous terms is denouncing the suggestion.

The problem has many angles. There does not appear sufficient reasons for such a transfer at the present time, and it is unlikely that the negotiations will go further than the appointment of another commission.

SCHOOLS' REOPENING

The entire community welcomes the reopening of the schools.

Thousands of boys and girls are back in the classrooms, learning the things they will need in later life; mischievous minds are now profitably employed; the educational facilities of the community are once more functioning.

Some deny the idea of three months vacation from public school work will be abandoned and school will remain open the entire twelve months. Pupils will still be enabled to take a nine-months course, but they will not be deprived of "summer school." There are many arguments in favor of such a plan; summer, for instance is one of the healthiest periods of the year; there is available the best of instructional material; and many pupils and parents would prefer the vacation period to come at another period of the year.

Most everyone, except the thoughtless youth, is glad the schools are open. May this be a successful year for them all!

PRAISE FROM NEIGHBORS

(Nampa Free Press)

Just returned from the fair at Filer and from the Twin Falls country. The fair is what may be termed the ideal of an old-fashioned county fair. It was one in which agricultural, stock, horticultural and women's exhibits outweigh all other considerations and interests.

The displays by merchants, also, were numerous and well arranged. The track events and the Midway amusements were auxiliary rather than primary attractions.

We congratulate our sister valley upon her enterprise in the production and display of her basic and primary wealth.

"I wish I had a waste basket," said B're'r Rabbit, as he pushed his chair back from the table one evening.

"Perhaps the dear children can find one for you," suggested Mother Rabbit.

"That's a good idea," said B'obbe. Then he added: "Come along, B'ill—let's get 'op a waste basket."

Away the children went as B're'r Rabbit sent himself by the open window. "I'll have to get some candy for those children," he said.

"I believe enough candy is good for them, but not too much," answered Mother Rabbit.

BANG! A piece of mud whizzed past B're'r Rabbit's head and hit the newspaper. "What on earth are you doing?" he asked of the children.

"We're busy!" shouted B'obbe. B're'r Rabbit put the window down.

BANG! A cold of dirt hit the window. "Hey, stop that!" shouted the old fellow.

All was still for a while and by and by the two youngsters came in grinning from big ear to big ear. "We have dug a hole for you to use as waste basket, and get it," they said in one breath.

"Get out of here, you rascals!" shouted B're'r Rabbit, as he made a dash for them.

Ladies of Long Age

The ladies to whom the troubadours sang had invariably hair of the color of flax, as soft as silk and shimmering with the sheen of the finest gold. In ancient Sparta's numbers the hair is either pure gold, or dark, nearly black. In modern Germany, Greece and in Java "fair hair" like the gold; long, bright, and curly. There is a famous description of a French lady of the Thirteenth century. "Her hair had the brilliancy of gold, and was inclosed in a recumbent curl" — an identity perhaps not having been known.

Cleaver and Dangerous

The electric shaver in western lands is a formidable and often poisonous insect, but the electric razor with honest human feelings of every man and child. A friend of the inventor is a species of great endeavor, the complete safety razor came to build a safety razor—found itself one it goes to sleep. It is most interesting to watch the assembly of the razorblade as they lie at rest, while their mechanism cannot crawl over the razor, which they will never pack.

Gas Pressure Fire

Carbon dioxide, which is expelled from your body whenever you exhale, has been put to use by the Los Angeles fire department. They put out fires in which streams of water are of little use, as in chemical fires. The gas is carried in high pressure cylinders, and when released a cloud of dry ice refrigeration is applied over the fire. This reduces the temperature and prevents oxygen from reaching the blaze, thus smothering it.

Thinned Stuff Used in Navy

More than 100,000 pounds of canned goods are consumed by the sailors of the United States navy in a year. Canned tomatoes take the lead in vegetables, followed by beans. Among fruits, peaches lead, followed closely by pineapples. They come, apricots, apples, peaches, apricots, peaches and raisins. They are relatively new in the canned goods products, but the navy uses them to the extent of 1,000 pounds annually.

Win Success at Home
Says Small Town Novelist

You Don't Have to Go to New York; Write About Your Home State

Young literary aspirants need not feel hampered by a small town environment, declared Mark Hart Lovelace, novelist, interviewed by a representative of Publishers Service while visiting New York. "If they believe they can't begin their careers until they have traveled or gone to the great city they are simply the Blue States and Minnesota overlooking the story material rivers, and it is there that the old folk them. Every state, every man of the love story, the scene taken, every tiny hamlet has its between Della Dugray, daughter confines of her home state. She
