How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeCoady, V. S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeCoady is professor of the Poultry Department at the University of Missouri. He has written the standard text book on raising poultry. His book is the only one that covers the entire range of poultry raising from the selection of stock and incubation to the marketing of the product. It is the only book that covers the entire range of poultry raising from the selection of stock and incubation to the marketing of the product.

WHY EGGS ARE GOOD TO EAT

Richness in Food Value Makes Eggs a Real More Egg Part of the Meal Even at High or Prices.

Whenever I have occasion to discuss the food value of eggs, I am reminded of a story told me some years ago by a New York sewer worker. A group of children from the congested Bowery District were making their first visit to the country. One typical little gent was asked, "How do you like the nice fresh country eggs. 'Aw, they ain't no good," was the reply.

"Why ain't they any good with them?" he was asked.

"Well," explained the youngster, "they ain't got no smell and they ain't got no taste."

Those children had never had eggs, and it was not until they had eaten two or three that they were able to appreciate the difference between the eggs they had eaten and the eggs they had seen. They were so used to eating the eggs that they had seen that they had not noticed the difference between the eggs they had eaten and the eggs they had seen.

Coveted Air Trophy

Famous men and women pilots are racing through 32 states of the United States and four Canadian provinces in the National Air Tour, covering nearly 5,000 miles, in an effort to raise money for the Edna B. Ford. The top wind up on October 21.

As for those much courted but little understood food elements, the vitamins, eggs contain most favorably with other foods. No body knows what vitamins are, but what they can do is fairly well understood. For example, when eggs contain ten times as much vitamin A as milk. While it is true we do get more milk at a price than we do eggs, their great vitamin A content makes them a valuable addition to milk. As vitamin A is essential for the maintenance of the eyes, their great vitamin A content makes them a valuable addition to milk. As vitamin A is essential for the maintenance of the eyes, their great vitamin A content makes them a valuable addition to milk.

Mrs. Mildred Morris was hostess to a group of friends Saturday evening at a turkey dinner complete with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Morris on a birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Herman Melzer was hostess to members of the Holy Trinity church, which will hold its annual convention at the home of Mrs. E. S. Lillian, Monday evening.

Rev. A. C. Lathrop, pastor of the Baptist church, attended an ordination meeting at Jerome acceptable. As a guarantee for various vegetables, salads and other dishes, they are both attractive and palatable. But do you need a diet for cakes, pies, pastries of all kinds, and other dishes were it not for eggs?

Thus in hundreds of ways the egg insinuates its health giving and body building values into our daily menu. Unlike other foods that are good for us, the egg is something that can appear in some form or other at every meal without making us feel it. The egg is good, for the egg is one of the most valuable of all the many

DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has been known since the dawn of time. Medical College in 1875, or since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his own life.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headache, neural depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other ailments with the same medicine of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. There are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of various and other mild herbs, with the simple remedy for constipation, the safe for the child and for the old.

A bottle will last several months, and is always at hand. It is the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All Druggists, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dr. J. C. Caldwell, Littleton, Illinois, or free trial bottle.

MOORE CLAIMS PRESIDENT IS ONLY FOOLING

What Happened Before
Bernard Steedman came West to avoid revealing the real cause of the unfortunate love affair to her father.
The Rev. Dr. Steedman, a clergyman well known here, is a man who attributes much of the evil of the world to the "moviola" and constantly inveighs against the same. Several times Mrs. Farnaby having died in an accident, at the advice of Dr. Steedman, gives her had enough as an excuse to go to Arizona, and from there writes home to the one she has met and married "Mr. Woodville," a wealthy Arizona man.
She writes again to say that her "husband" has died in the desert. She takes a job as a domestic to go to Arizona, and from there writes home to the one she has met and married "Mr. Woodville," a wealthy Arizona man.

Hoover Only Suggested Transferring Public Domain to Arouse Interest and Discussion.

Former Governor C. C. Moore of Idaho, commissioner of the general land office since the death of Governor William Spry of Utah several months ago, last week started his first official visit to the land offices in the western states. Arriving in Salt Lake City, Commissioner Moore asserted that President Hoover's misadventure in leasing it to the public for the purpose of turning over to the states the unreserved surface rights to the public domain.

"I like you, Miss Steedman. We worked hard. I find that the exhibitors are wiring in: 'Give more Steedman stuff.' Why don't you star here? When the exhibitors say 'come—come' it can't be so bad."
"We can't star you now, but I know you. And when the good times come again you must be prepared for them. So I'll put on a package to get to Arizona, and from there you start here. When the exhibitors say 'come—come' it can't be so bad."
"Your last picture looks like a knock-out. I'm going to take down Clive Cleland's name and feature yours alone. I want you to go East—no West and no Boston. Philly, that's the big city, and you let the people see you when they see the picture."
"I'll pay your traveling expense and my car must go along as my guest."
"Of course." Men cried. "And it's ever so kind of you."

Commissioner Approved
He declared that those who have referred to the matter as a "land sale" were completely wrong and that the president's purpose was to arouse interest and let the people through their representatives determine what action should be taken.

Tom Holby, a leading man in a motion picture company, and through him gets the opportunity to play a part in a desert drama. With company Robins Terry, a Star, fond of Holby and Louise LeVain, an extra woman. After an accident, Bern becomes friendly with Mrs. Dick, a poor woman of Palm Springs, Arizona, and takes an interest in her. She writes to her mother, who writes back to her that she has a great deal of money. Inspired by a letter from her mother, Mem plans to go to Los Angeles to take a job in a film laboratory.

She gets a job in a film laboratory, but is not interested. Mrs. Stone, from her home town, who talks of the evils of the movies, and says she is coming to visit her. Mem is worried about her fiancée. (How Can We With The Story?) Bern comes home, and offers herself to him in return for a job in the motion picture business. Mem's father reads a publicity story calling her "the prettiest girl in America" and writes a letter of refusal to his daughter. Mem's face begins to splotch, and Claymore, the director, takes an unusual interest in her. He is infatuated with Mem but tries to be tactful and professional. Mem's face becomes more and more interested in each other. Out riding one day Claymore makes physical advances to her but she repels them. He holds-up men approaches and demands their money.

Yet here she was, passionately interested in several gentlemen, as if just each of them fascinating. So far, and faithful thereafter. Instead of giving them her heart she takes to the hills of matrimony she was debating the advisability, practicality, and profit. She must be the best of both worlds; one of those adventuresses.
Then came "The Pause." Hard times struck "The movies so hard that in the studios they became a thing of the past.
Most of the motion-picture factories disbanded entirely, and the rest of them nearly. The Bernard Studios kept one company at work, and it was not Mem's company.
She was stricken with terror, she confronted her problems.
What could she do now—not to perfect her shame, but to make a living? She would be poorer than ever. She would be poorer than ever. She would be poorer than ever. She would be poorer than ever.
"conscience fund" which she had learned to expect from Dexter Brothers. She could not even pay the installment on numerous vanities she had bought for herself from the shop.
Her lovers were as defunct as herself. Authors, actors, directors—all—instead of marriage they talked society.
No one had talked hard times longer or louder than Bernard. Having heard him croak of disaster so long, Mem assumed her contract would be canceled. Bernard sent

Utah Hunters Wear Red Caps

With the hunting season on, Utah hunters are being urged to wear red caps as a means of identification to prevent accidental killing by other hunters. The red caps were chosen because they are plainly visible against the foliage and distinctly identify men as hunters instead of deer for which many of them have been mistaken, causing numerous accidental deaths.

DEBT TO RURAL PRESS

The Department of Agriculture has just published the results of a study costs in getting farm information to the farmers of the country. It found, among other things, that newspapers yield 15 times the results per unit of expenditure yielded by extension exhibits and other means.

Commenting on this statement, the Minneapolis Journal, a big-town daily, says:

"The medium through which this news service is circulated is, of course, the rural press of America. As the purpose of the work is the enhancement of farm income, and the improvement of rural living conditions, it may be readily seen that agriculture owes to the country newspaper a heavy debt for this one service alone."

A HUNDRED BILLIONS

Modern business figures have reached such large proportions that the human mind can not begin to grasp them. Who, for example, can form an intelligent idea of what 100 billion dollars really means? Yet, that is the amount of life insurance now in force in the United States.

The growth of life insurance in this country since the war has been one of the outstanding business phenomena of the period. When the government provided war risk insurance for its soldiers and sailors during the war, some believed that the private companies might be injured, but it appears that the reverse has been the case.

In any event, the figures speak for themselves. The amount of life insurance in force in 1916 was about 25 billion. By 1922 it had reached 50 billion. The 100 billion in force in 1929 represents, therefore, an increase of 300 per cent in 13 years.

Even this staggering total represents only an average of about $800 for every person in the United States. Hundreds of thousands of families are still without insurance, and the neglect of this important matter is the cause of much suffering on the part of widows and orphans who are left unprotected. Every man owes it to his family to carry a reasonable amount of life insurance.

SHOWS GRANGE TO HAVE BEEN PIONEER

Outstanding in present agriculture tendencies is the very apparent drift toward the cooperative idea, especially emphasized in the new farm relief measure enacted by the present Congress. More than 12,000 active farm co-operatives are now engaged in business, with the likelihood that this number will be doubled during the next few years. Those who appear to think that this co-operative movement among farmers is wholly new do well to realize that such united rural action has been the Grange program for years and its present accomplishment seemingly so sudden, is largely the result of the prolonged and constant agitation of the subject for years in thousands of Grange meetings. The seed germinated slowly but has taken root at last, until now the full-grown plant appears.

More than 50 years ago the founders of the Grange, in proclaiming their intentions to the world, made this significant declaration:—"We propose meeting together, talking together, working together, buying together, selling together, and in general acting together, for our mutual protection and advancement, as occasion may require. For our business interests we desire to bring producers and consumers, farmers and manufacturers, into the most direct and friendly relations possible."

Not only in theory but in practice the Grange has been a pioneer in spreading the gospel of co-operation and the present apparent readiness of all interests to acquiesce in the co-operation program now stressed at Washington—in contrast to the bitter opposition of a generation ago—is a striking commentary on what a quarter century of Grange educational work has done.

Since Congress passed the marketing act a few months ago and the powerful Federal Farm Board was named, Granges in all the states are discussing the new legislation, eager to make it accomplish the greatest amount of good for the American farmer. Grange leaders, although keenly disappointed at the failure to have the Debuten plan included in the new legislation, as a further aid to the farmer, have thrown the full force of their organization behind the new statute, because it embodies so many of the principles of actual farm co-operation for which the Grange so long has contended.

It is to be expected that the new legislation will be modified in some respects, but it now remains to be seen what the House and Hoover will do with it.

Bing, bong! Bing, bong!

The bell on the Frazzville school house stopped. "Bing just as Freddie Frog and his brother Fritzi slipped into their seats."

Miss Fannie Frog opened the exercises reading a Pinky Pinky story to the children. When she had finished, Jeremiah Frog was sent to the black board with a piece of chalk.

"Now, Jeremiah," began the teacher, "if I have two apples and give you one and you eat it, how many have you left?"

"The core," answered Jeremiah.

"In, in, in!" roared the class.

"You may stay an hour after school" said Miss Frog to Jeremiah, as she called on Freddie Frog.

"Now, Freddie, I have one apple and you have two. You give me one—how many apples have I?"

"Applesauce," replied Freddie.

"You may stay an hour and a half after school," said Miss Frog, as she went to the black board, turning her back to the class.

Shady the teacher wrote on the board and when she had finished one line she said, without turning around: "You may stay an hour after school for shouting that rubber band, Adolphus."

"I wonder how she knew I did that?" whispered Adolphus to Freddie Frog.

"She has eyes in the back of her head," said Fritzi Frog.

"No, she hasn't," said Freddie Frog. "She has eye glasses on and the black board behind makes a mirror so she can see in the edge of her glasses—that's the reason."

"Guess you're right," said Adolphus; "but what's she writing?"

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little aspects of them. All your care cannot prevent them, but you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done as baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. As you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug, Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot put away. And it's always ready for the earlier stages of colic, or constipation, or ailments effective, too, for older children. Group five million bottles are bought each year.

LATE MARKET NEWS

Apple harvest in full swing in Idaho and estimated to amount to 4,712,000 bushels of which 3,771,000 bushels are estimated as commercial. This compares with 5,600,000 and 4,000,000 bushels respectively last year. Size and color are good, and the crop is reported cleaner than last year. The United States total apple crop is placed at 110,637,000 bushels, compared with 106,000,000 in 1928. The commercial crop totals 28,691,000 bushels against 25,000,000 bushels last year.

Potatoes Potato production in Idaho is placed at 17,170,000 bushels, based on information available October first. Reports from harvest fields indicated a state average acre yield of 170 bushels, which may change up or down when complete harvest returns are received. Unusually early frost September 7 and 8 checked late season production in the important Idaho Falls district, but damage elsewhere was slight. The tubers are not as large as last year, but they are smooth and good quality, which means a high proportion of market ones. Prices at Idaho Falls for U. S. No. 1 Harvest about October first were mostly $1.00 to $2.00 per cwt., compared with mostly $1.00 a year ago. Idaho's 1929 production was 19,729,000 bushels and the five year average is 15,959,000.

The United States crop registered a further loss of four million bushels since September 1st. Standings now at 346 million bushels compared with 404 million bushels in 1928 and a five year average of 382 million. For crop production in the United States this year is about 2.8 bushels, the same as in the five year average. In 1918, in 1928 it was 2.8 bushels.

Hay The tame hay crop in Idaho is placed at 2,927,000 tons against 2,516,000 in 1928, and the five year average of 2,850,000 tons. Production in recent years has been as follows—1927, 3,151,000; 1928, 2,768,000; 1925, 3,185,000; 1924, 3,232,000 tons.

"Devil-May-Care" by A. S. Roche, A Thrilling Story

Will Be Published in the Idaho Citizen Starting Soon

Author's Career Interesting Story of a girl who married many pulp-fiction stories and a crop of more than successful novels, started out by being a lawyer. Born in 1883, in the town of Somerville, Mass. Roche is very peculiar for the artistic life and by his love of mystery books and by his interest in a bitterly contested game of marbles which he had been told to the press.

After the usual education of reading, writing, arithmetic, and other important subjects, finished with a course in law at Boston University, Mr. Roche continued in the practice of law. But after eighteen months he left the profession of the law, the grand championing justice and other defendants, for the free and varied career of a newspaperman.

Since 1919, he has contributed regularly to magazines, in the United States during the war and served as captain in the Military Intelligence Division of the United States Army. Upon receiving his honorable discharge, he returned to his typewriter and has been planning the best ever since.

REAL ESTATE DEALER KILLED BY CAR ACCIDENT

Cornor's Jury Exonerates Wisconsin Boy's Wife In Fatal Hitting B. T. Cutler's Car.

A coroner's jury of nine men met Friday and decided that Frances T. Cutler, 20-year-old resident of Twin Falls, met her death from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Thursday about 6 o'clock, Mr. Cutler died at the hospital five hours later.

The immediate cause of death was a clean-cut hole about as large as a dime just above the right eye and the forehead. The bullet had penetrated the brain, interfering with the breathing and the heart center.

Testimony of witnesses given before the coroner's jury showed that the car was struck from the rear by a car driven by a Wisconsin boy.

Witnesses before the coroner's jury were Dr. George H. Smith, county coroner, and Dr. John P. Connelley, who was the physician who treated Mrs. Cutler.

The latter three were in the car which struck Mr. Cutler's machine. They had been picking apples at the M. A. Strunk orchard about miles west of Addison, Idaho.

The impact broke all the glass in both cars but Schultz and his companions were unhurt. They assisted Cutler to the hospital, where he died.

Mr. Cutler had been in the real estate business 20 years, owning Twin Falls three years ago. He had recently purchased the Arlington hotel here as a residence.

Mr. Cutler had been visiting in Idaho here, Oregon, and Washington. He was in the hospital for several days before he died.

Five Motor Crops in Idaho Provide Jobs for Everyone.

An unusually heavy demand for labor has been observed all the surplus labor during the harvest season in the leading agricultural districts according to the monthly industrial survey of the state department of labor.

At least four major crops have combined to create employment for all extra hand. In the leading districts, reports indicate, these are fruit, beef, beans and potatoes.

The fruit picking was largely out of the way when the fact and potato picking started, but these overlapped each other, as many apples will remain on the trees while the stud crop has been commencing.
