Armistice Day 1929

Eleven years ago, on this day, the most fearful holocaust of modern times came to its termination, and scenes of carnage, sacrifice and disaster were again clothed in the vestments of peace.

There came into being the glorious prospect of international amity, the hope for universal brotherhood among men of all nations and creeds that had long been envisioned by the guides and leaders of humanity.

Much has been done in furtherance of this beautiful ideal, much remains to be accomplished. Never was man faced with a more difficult or more inspiring task.

As we voice our thanks for the peace and prosperity of our land, let us give a thought to the brave souls who passed on that we might live in security and comfort; and let us, too, unite in prayer for the realization of the noble ideals promulgated by those who are dedicating themselves to the Christlike task of promoting world harmony and mutual understanding.

DEVIL-MAY-CARE

by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE
ILLUSTRATED BY DONALD RILEY

SYNOPSIS
A party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clay, Lesson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harkness, known as Devil-May-Care, because of her adventurous, eventful life. In a game in which partners for the evening are chosen, Lucy is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful heart-breaker. Lesson is a bit jealous. Tim Stevens tells Lucy they are going aboard his boat, the Minerva, and she accedes in order not to be a quitter. Asked if she is sure that he was her company, Lucy says she is, and that evidently Fate has arranged it. Tim thereupon tells her to stop looking reproachfully after Lesson. (Now Go On With the Story)

She remembered Moths, the Minerva's skipper. A full-faced man, of inexact ancestry, a touch of the Levantine in his hooked nose. The men were ordinary sailors, and the domestic staff, so to speak, were Japs. No help from the latter would be forthcoming. It was not far from the scene in the actions of the burlesques who employed them. The white sailors were crude, stupid men; and Moths was not his master's man.

Wardens opened her; this allusion, absurdly impossible though it might seem later when she narrate it, was definitely dangerous now. The extent of its danger depended entirely on the degree of madness which possessed Stevens.

"And it all leads to... what? she asked. "You'd keep your word. It leads to your promise to marry me. When I have that, I'll put you ashore."

"And as the months, or years, pass blithely by," she asked, "I don't want that long," he said. "Blithe, after a while, you'll not be so merry."

"Isn't this a trifle to melodramatize, Tim? The trained maiden pleads with her despairer..."

"The trouble with you, Lucy," he interrupted, "is that you're a young experience, you don't know when, or you'd know that I mean what I say."

"Don't ask me! Why does the tide come in? You believe in Fate; you've said so often enough, anyway. Well, you're my Fate, Lucy. God! I haven't mentioned love to you, but 40 I had words to tell you..."

"The only nonerect lites, eh?" she interjected. "It's only marking you," he told her, "but he will bite."

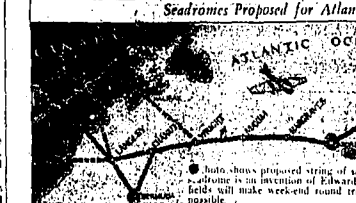

"Get this into your pretty head, and make it stick there," he cried. "Where you're concerned I just certainly don't give a damn! I always thought that men who went blab over-ton particular woman were weak-kneed and mean. But I've changed my mind. You... oh, I can't make it clear, but you... absorb the sun for me, Lucy. There's a cloud on my forehead, and I'll turn my head to look the other way, the cloud is still there. It's you, you all the time, everywhere. If some one speaks to me it's your voice I hear. A girl dances in the theater and it's Lucy Harkness that I'm watching. The sun sets over Lake Word and it's Lucy Harkness' face I see. A magazine, a newspaper supplement prints pictures of women and they're all photographs of you. Your name is in the headlines, in the signs along the road, this is honest-to-God. I've never told you, never asked you to marry me, but you've known. Yes, I've known of course," she admitted.

"He matched at her admission. And you came here to-night—Lucy, why did you come? Why is because..."

"It was because, solely, you won the race. No other reason. I've skirted an issue, never avoided a problem. Fate meant me to come here to-night. But I've told you this a dozen times." "And don't you think that Fate also means us to care for each other?"

"I've answered that, before. Tim, but I'll answer it again. I'd rather be dead than let your hands rest upon me. I'd rather be dead than be condemned to an eternal hell than let you kiss me. Now is the answer clear?"

Former Pitching Star Is Now Yankee Manager

He was called "Holy" Shawkey when he pitched for the Yankees. Now he's been named successor of the late Miller Huggins as manager of the Yankees, and more than likely it will be Robert John Shawkey in the future. Colored Reporters, in announcing the appointment, said Huggins himself had recommended Shawkey as a possible successor.

TURKEY PRICES DOWN THIS YEAR

Big Production Increase Causes Drop in Birds for Thanksgiving

When bids were submitted last week at this time for the 1920 Thanksgiving turkey crop of the Idaho Turkey Growers' association, the officers endeavored to raise the bids by telegraphing to market centers in different parts of the country but without success.

The highest bid submitted was accordingly accepted. This was from the Meridian Produce company for 27 carloads constituting the Thanksgiving crop. Prices were offered as follows: No. One birds, young ones 32 cents and hens 30 cents, with old flocks at 27 cents. No. two birds ten cents a pound less in each classification. These prices are not to growers.

The directors found the market weak on account of a 25 per cent increase in production over the national average. Despite that the Idaho growers will receive more than was offered for turkeys in Salt Lake City or Medford and Roseburg, Oregon, all of which places refused all bids offered for the Thanksgiving turkeys.

While federal grades are purely optional, representatives of many every turkey district in Idaho voted to adopt these grades, as the result of which the state department of agriculture will furnish inspectors to grade turkeys at the request of any of the growers. The state association started

Armistice Day is a product of the World War, born of the holocaust that grew out of hatred and strife, now carried on in the hope of preventing another such disaster.

The heat of the conflict inspired Lieutenant John McTear of the Canadian forces to write this poetic challenge:

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead, short days ago,
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields."

"Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from falling walls we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders fields."

The buddies carried on until this challenge was fulfilled. Now they are still carrying on through the American Legion and other such societies to fulfill the objects for which the war was fought.

That object was to end the age-old strife that caused war and plant instead a firm resolve for peace in the hearts of all men.

AMERICA NEEDS A MAN!

Never, it seems, has America needed a Big Leader, more than right at this time, and the supply appears to be woefully short.

Whether he be Republican or Democrat, Progressive or what-not, the country right now would welcome the advent of a Roosevelt or a Wilson. Someone who could captivate the popular imagination; present a solution to the wet and dry issue which has inflicted itself upon the nation and sidetracked attention from other important and vital issues; someone who can lead America out of the financial and commercial hypnosis which is paralyzing other activities; a leader who can point the way to the solving of the unemployment problem that is slowly but surely tightening its grip; one who can lead the congress into affirmatively action and away from its pettiness; someone who runs all the way the end and spectacle of sentimentality through valuable time investigating each other to impeding in legislation.

America needs more than figureheads, it needs one who can phrase the aspirations of the people; it needs a man like the statesmen of yore, more concerned with action than with votes. Away with pussyfooters and yes men. Give us leaders and doers and sayers!

The country calls for those kind of men.

Some fellows are fired with enthusiasm—on the part of the boss.

Being a Scotchman, Mr. MacDonnald doubtless favors freedom of the seas.

In China husbands and wives seldom see each other before marriage. In America some seldom see each other afterward.

Migration from the Farms
Is Seen in a New Light

Decrease in Population Not Always To Be Counted a "Loss"
BY ARINGTON SMITH

Those who "view with alarm" the movement from farms to cities, as has been taken for granted, that this movement was something indeed, Professor Walter Burr of the University of Missouri says the other side of the matter.

Professor Burr strikes the keynote of his life thus: "Much stress has been placed upon the loss of population from the small town and country areas coincident with the very rapid gain in population in the city. It is assumed that the one sign of decadence and disaster and the other a sign of progress and success. This assumption may be due to the fact that in census reports we are likely to head one column 'Gain' and the other column 'Loss'." An increase in population is assumed to be a 'gain' in every sense of the word, and a decrease in population is assumed to be a 'loss'.

"And, further, says Professor Burr: 'Slowly but surely a new type of person is appearing in great numbers in many of our states. If it was true that for a period of time amiable persons migrated from the farm and from small towns, this does not tell the whole story. It is also true that many who were forced out of farming sections merely from lack of employment, drifted naturally to the great industrial centers where work was more plentiful. It is doubtful if among these who left the rural community there was any larger percentage of the ambitious and capable than of those who were leaving the border line of native intelligence and adaptability, and therefore incapable of remaining on parts of the agricultural personnel under the new order.'

It has been claimed that the migration from the farm decreased the number of farms and farm families, decreased the number of acres under cultivation, and thus suggested a time of stagnation for city dwellers because of lesser production. Professor Burr says:

"There has been a tendency for the well-to-do farmer to buy out his poorer neighbor. With the introduction of power machinery many farmers have needed more land, and farms have merged, thus selling out moving to lands elsewhere or to the city.

Tomato Dishes Make A Red Letter Day

It is the mission of the Democracy to apply its principles to present conditions, remembering that anti-trust laws as well as prohibitory laws are made to be obeyed; that monopoly, which is mostly the outgrowth of privilege, can best be combated by removal of the conditions which create it; that a count of noses, though a majority of 'noses' must be secured.

"Honesty is the best policy" for a party of the people and in active force to Democratic obligations will still remove at the same time the means of getting and the means of Bolshevism. If the Democratic party remains soundly democratic an national economic issues will be solved by the great Socialist party will prove to be only a mirage.

It is not surprising the election of Warren G. Harding as the great Socialist party will prove to be only a mirage.

JEROME IS IN MOST OF BIG BUILDING BOOM

Not only is Jerome but the North Side Canal company has been busy this season showing prospective purchasers over their territory. It is estimated that about 200 farms sold around Jerome in the last three years, approximately 75 last year and particularly in the first few weeks, according to C. G. Wilburn, realtor and secretary of the Jerome chamber of commerce.

Swamped With Sales
Floyd O. Hedell, sales manager of the North Side Canal company, said last week that the company had had a large number of inquiries involving land sales there and that this movement had been increasing for some time. The North Side Canal company has been carrying on an advertising campaign which has created demand for many farms in that section. The company has also developed hundreds of acres of its property which are being sold as developed land.

Mr. Hedell and Mr. Wilburn both say most of the sales have been to Idaho people. A few outside buyers have been attracted from Nebraska having made cash purchases.

Lots Sold at Auction

Taking advantage of this land boom, the Jerome chamber of commerce conducted an auction sale early this month and disposed of 200 pieces of property including about 400 acres of undeveloped receipts amounting $20,000, it is estimated. These were town lots in many of which the purchaser plan to build homes.

Jerome, like other towns of this section, is under-built, Mr. Wilburn explained. There is not an empty house there and the sale of the numerous lots and farms is the means of bringing the building program up to the equal of the other rural districts.

The North Side Canal company is enlarging its canals to provide more water for lands from the American Falls project. The directors of the Milwaukee canal is having some effect in improving land sales on the Big Water and Gooding projects.

GAS PUMPS ARE IN GOOD SHAPE

Ernest J. Crouch, state inspector of weights and measures, reports that he has restored the number of inefficient measuring pumps in Idaho from 30 per cent at the beginning of the year to about half that number now. This figure Idaho car drivers of a fairly accurate supply of service which they purchase at reasonable prices.

The state allows a variation of seven plus inches of gasoline, less than half a pint, in five gallons.

Mr. Crouch and his assistants have the duty of inspecting all scales and measurements in the state, condemning those which are clearly unbalanced and having others put in order.

Report Given On Hospital

A report from Mrs. Margaret Aggett, superintendent of the Twin Falls hospital, which shows earnings of $7701 and collections of $6880. Care of inpatients required $1392 and for other hospital purposes $129. During October 1935 patients were admitted but 164 released, leaving 69 at the end of the month compared with 10 at the beginning of October. The hospital has 10 inpatients in charge and about 40 inmates in the operating room. There are 22 major and 47 minor. Ten boys and 15 girls were born. Deaths numbered 12, including four medical and three surgical. The hospital and staff are in the pull.

Bird Season To Close Sooner

State Game Commissioner R. E. Thomas has agreed to shorten the pheasant hunting season in Twin Falls county from November 28 to November 15. Local sportsmen appealed for this action on the ground that all other counties in southern Idaho will close November 15 and if Twin Falls were left open there would be a rush of hunters from other sections during the last ten days. This would be unfair not only to the pheasant but to the hunters. State officials believe the birds are not so numerous as in the past, the development of farm lands pushing them farther each year into the country.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

By NANCY HART

Who has not had the disagreeable feeling of turning, anticipating a long evening at the radio, only to find "tube trouble" had mysteriously introduced itself? One veritable feature of the old-style tubes has always been their fragility. If you have ever examined them carefully you have probably found the almost invisible wires arranged much like those in an electric light bulb—a construction so delicate that every slight jar could cause damage to the two-pillar center brace.

Now the screen grid tube made by Philco has met this difficulty by using a four-pillar tube with the tiny supporting wires anchored at the top by a stiff mica plate. This holds the elements rigidly in place, so that they cannot be disturbed by the jolts and jars of alignment or by necessary handling.

Another nice improvement to what might be called "two-unit construction" whereby the power and control sections are separated from the remaining tubes so that in case of trouble the one unit could be removed and serviced independently of the other.

For Sunday Dinner Cream of Salsify Soup

Thinly sliced salsify of Park. Candied sweet potatoes and apples. Spanish corn. Endive salad. Coffee-oungie with cream.

Creamed Corned Beef

In two tablespoons of butter add salt, two tablespoons mixed vegetables and two cups white sauce; season with celery salt and paprika, and cook for 10 minutes. When perfectly blended, add 1 1/2 cups cold cooked corned beef, cut thoroughly and cover with lukewarm water.

Coffee Sponge

Beat 2 cups sifted flour, 1/2 cup sugar and 1/2 cup strong black coffee, boiling hot; then add 2 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup cream, and 1/2 cup coffee. Beat until quite stiff. Add whites of 3 eggs, beaten stiff, or 1/2 cup stiff whipped cream, and continue beating until mixture will hold its shape. Turn into mold, chill, thoroughly, remove and serve with this cream.

Washing Wool Sweaters

To wash woolen wool garments, make a soapy solution of pure soap flakes and lukewarm water. Put garments in and agitate with the hands, but do not rub or wring, the last slightly soapy. Dry on a folded blanket spread flat on a table, shaping the garments carefully. Turn when one side is dry.

"VERY LATESTS"

The short fur jacket, one of the jazziest of the season styles has been most enthusiastically sponsored by the youngest set, who find it an indispensable garment for sports and the collegiate wardrobe.

Usually the fur jacket of finger length is worn with a harmonizing frock of jersey or one of the soft crepe wools, in the manner illustrated by this effective ensemble which Henri Bendel (New York) has imported from Group.

The little jacket is of natural gray knit; the dress of black and white striped jersey. This is the most delicate of the new styles. It is made by a new leather belt, and the fullness of the skirt is formed by shirring, an unusual departure in jersey.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGang, V. S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGang is a graduate of the Ohio Veterinary College, Columbus, Ohio, and has a diploma in the science of Poultry Raising from the University of California, Davis, California. He is a poultry breeder, exhibitor and lecturer.

Will they lay in cold December? They did in May! The answer is "Yes, With Proper Care and Common-Sense Feeding the Winter Months Can Be Good Egg Months." Luck is not a factor in raising poultry. Many Poultry Raisers Imagine...

The famous painter, Whistler, once asked how he might be painted to get such unusual effects. With more truth than good man, he retorted quizzically: "With brains, sir, with brains!"

Ingredients might very properly be incorporated into the country fare of those who are frequently heard to complain bitterly because their hens "do down on the job" instead of laying eggs. The most when winter comes, found that Nature has a habit of abiding with the man who studies the requirements of his flock, doing nothing without knowing definitely what he does and what result to expect.

First of all, he will learn the nature of different feeds and what they contain. It is not the quantity or the upkeep of the fowl's own food. The flock should be approximately one-half developed early hatched pullets, and the late ones that have been closely pulled and into molters.

A balanced ration is negligible at all times, but never so important during the winter months. Then, natural force foods, bugs, worms and green foods are no longer available, except in warm climates, so the lack must be made up in the molting and scratch grains. The natural scratch of the hen is also seriously diminished and must be supplied by extra feedings of heat producing grains, especially corn. Mash this point, that Nature must supply the necessary body warmth from within.

Green foods are very necessary, because they supply those indispensable Vitamins A and D. Part of the hen's Vitamin A requirements may be supplied by feeding yellow corn in the scratch grain mash.

If you want a home mixed mash additional supply may be provided by means of sprouted oats, green food, or yellow carrots, if they are available, or iron liver oil. I prefer the green stuff, however, as the hens find it much more appetizing than any substitute I have ever tried.

It is the mysterious agency which enables a hen to manufacture egg shell from the yolk she has provided for that purpose. This essential vitamin is found in the bodies of hens when exposed to direct sunlight. They should be allowed to run outside, with treatment of the Vitamin D is also found in green vegetable matter that has been exposed to direct sunlight, and in cod liver oil. Since the former is not always obtainable in sufficient quantities it may be desirable to include from 1/2 to 1 level coat liver oil in the winter ration.

During the summer, the grain ration may be reduced. As winter approaches, however, the proportion of grain should be gradually increased. Grains are the fat and heat producing foods, and it is natural that they should predominate during the winter. The mash which contains the protein elements such as meat scraps for making early hatched pullets, and the late ones that have been closely pulled and into molters.

A good winter ration is as follows, or by ready-mixed commercial scratch and mash feeds:

Yellow corn (shelled or cracked)	100 lbs.
Dates, wheat, or mill 50 lbs.
Mash
Bean	100 lbs.
Shorts	100 lbs.
Cracked corn	100 lbs.
Yellow ground oats	100 lbs.
Mead scraps	100 lbs.
Falt	100 lbs.
It is the amount of protein element should be supplemented by plenty of green food such as sprouted oats, green pasture, cabbage, mangel wurzel, rutabaga, or any other kind of fresh water-pumpkin green food. It is not available of 40 pounds of a good grade of alfalfa leaf meal with the above yellow corn in the scratch grain mash.

the very best quality only, and are they are thoroughly mixed. If you cannot do this, you had better buy a good commercial mash and use the green grass on the farm, or buy commercial scratch grain. Commercial ready mixed feeds are made by experts will meet and although they may cost more, they usually pay.

Milk, either sweet or sour, or fresh buttermilk is one of the best poultry foods. It will greatly aid winter egg production. It should be put out in clean earthenware vessels set upon platforms, and protected so the fowl cannot get into it with their feet. Let them drink all of it they will if you have it. If you feed plenty of milk you may have to reduce the amount of protein in the mash as brood fowls is likely to occur.

Water is, of course, as necessary in winter as at any other time. It must never be forgotten that eggs are 65 per cent water, and unless hens have a plentiful supply of good clean water at all times, they cannot be good layers. Extra precautions should be taken during freezing weather to keep the drinking fountain free from ice. Either give the fowls warm water at frequent intervals, or arrange to heat the water in some way.

Plenty of exercise is especially necessary for winter egg production. If hens cannot roam the range in the summer, they should be kept in the exercise pen. It will make them exercise, but they do not like to take sufficient exercise, but they also tend to be fat. A more extensive exercise pen should be permitted to get to winter range. See that their legs are always well filled with sand. Proper housing, ventilation, protection from cold, and, above all, proper feeding, are necessary elements in winter egg production.

Don't forget to drain the cooling system periodically—at least once a year. The accumulation of dirt particles and will put any system out of business in time.

SHORT SHORT STORY

"MEN SIMPLY DON'T UNDERSTAND"
"Hello! Troy Laundry? I wish you'd send a salesman up to my house—Aren't you kidding? I want you to send the best, prettiest one you've got. I'm trying to make my wife see that she must stop washing."

"And the counters by saying there's nothing else to do. Washwomen have given her the floor. The poor kid might be better off."

But it was no jaded and weary figure that threw herself on me. I lifted quietly into the living room. And there was no lack of enthusiasm in the kiss which she rewarded my extravagance.

"Seems to me, young woman," I groaned, "you're getting those ers under false pretenses. I brought these here to confer a down-trodden worker, not to be shown a pampered lady who looks like a million dollars! What about that washing?"

"I washed, dear, I made up my mind to send the best, prettiest one you've got. I'm trying to make my wife see that she must stop washing."

"I've been married long enough not to be puzzled when she looks me on like that—but all I could manage was a nod and a wobble."

"Fine mind! You'll get used to it!"
