PINKY DINKY

SANTA WAS CERTAINLY GOOD TO PINKY

By TERRY GILKISON

BONE DRY

"Idaho—the Driest State in the Union." Where have we heard those words before? It was Mr. Borah, who only a short time ago justified the Gem State's spotless (sic) prohibition record before the senate of the United States.

After the exposure of the so-called "whiskey rebellion" in Northern Idaho, Senator Borah has gone up in the air over the entire prohibition enforcement matter as applied to the United States and bluntness says "the present law enforcement personnel from top to bottom will never enforce the dry laws."

Thus has Idaho's "rebellion" unwittingly taken on national importance and along with Mr. Borah's charges, may be responsible for a countrywide shake-up that will become epochal in prohibition history.

Meanwhile, the New Year was ushered in over the country with the customary conviviality!

SAWTOOTH HAS MUCH ACTIVITY IN YEAR CLOSED

Supervisor M. S. Benedict Outlook Development Committee Which Have Influence in Twin Falls.

A recent report by Captain M. S. Benedict, supervisor of the Sawtooth National forest, shows much work accomplished which is of direct and indirect benefit to Twin Falls and neighboring areas. The report of Mr. Benedict's entire statement is that great developments have been under way on the forest this season. When completed they will serve to give the large fire empire of Central Idaho from the "thrillating hand of inaccessibility," as he expressed it.

Twenty miles of the Sawtooth trails highway are to be completed. Of this, 12 miles were improved this summer and will be finished next year. It is expected the other 8 miles will be completed this year, to be completed as soon as convenient.

Open Camp Resources That will provide easy access to great resources of timber, game, minerals, stock ranges, sawmills, hot springs and recreation camps. Development of the Warm Springs creek and this year was especially advantageous to that end. Other tributary roads are also being improved by open up the country.

The telephone lines have been improved and several booths provided to make it easier to report on forest fires and bring rapid assistance. All these booths are equipped with telephones and are of such value to visitors, Captain Benedict states.

Ranges Improved Eighteen ranges were put in condition for use. This consists of cleaning out a deep or spring, improving the water and spring it into large water troughs which are transported to the more isolated range sections. The cattle watering troughs are 10 feet long and weigh troughs from 80 to 100 feet.

Five thousand lodgepole pines were cut, peeled and crosscut during the year and some felled. The process lengthens their life service from five to ten years.

Ranges were hard hit by drought the last two years but cows came off this fall in good condition, the supervisor reported. Green feed will be needed to prevent serious range deterioration as a result of that drought.

Bad Fire Year This was one of the worst fire years in the forest. The worst places having been caused by smokers, and a few by lightning. This hindered development work which went ahead rapidly regardless.

Development of the Rocky Mountain club on the Salmon river and the Bald Mountain Hot Springs resort at Ketchum were referred to as features that will attract many more tourists in next season. Many other camping facilities have been built and improved. Hunting has been enhanced and industries helped.

W. H. Horton, one of the best known rangers on the forest, was released on government pension after 20 years of service. Captain Benedict paid tribute to Horton's services during his career for important developments in central Idaho.

H. H. Van Winkle took his place. Other rangers are T. L. Garner, Arthur Berry, J. E. Miner and T. H. Van Meter.

TURKEYS FOR GIFTS

Good turkey growers sent nearly 100 prime birds as Christmas presents to relatives and friends in practically every state in the union, including Kansas and Texas, both large producers of turkeys. Others went as far as New York.

Mother: I wonder who it was that had his clothes when he went to bed? Little Lawrence pulled the bed clothes over his head and answered, "Adam!"

DAZZLING SCENES OF "PARIS" MADE IN TECHNICOLOR The summit of achievement in natural color photography is now to be seen at the Orpheum Theatre, where Irene Bordino is starring in "Paris," a First National picture adapted from her phenomenal success—stage play of last year.

Technical process has taken the motion picture world by storm within the past few months. Some of the most spectacular scenes of "Paris" have been made by this process. They are dazzling; they are gorgeous; and they are spectacularly beautiful.

Thus the screen has taken another long step forward in its task of holding the mirror up to Nature. For here at last Nature in her own varied hues, faithfully reproduced and even intensified as a background for sparkling comedy and moving drama.

Jack Buchanan, the most famous of London comedians, is Mrs. Bordino's leading man, and they are supported by a practically all-star cast in which Jason Robards, Louise Chase, Hale, Margaret Fielding and Zena Pitts are featured.

"Paris" is witty, gay and entertaining from the first scene to the last; and not least among its triumphs is the really wonderful skill and artistry displayed in the technical sequences. Literally there must be seen to be believed. The new technique in photography has opened a fresh and boundless field for dramatic action and presentation.

DEVIL-MAY-CARE

by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE
ILLUSTRATED BY DONALD RILEY

(What Happened Before)
At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clark, Leson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harkness, known as Devil-May-Care because of her adventurous life. In a game in which partners for the evening are chosen, Lucy is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful basketballer. Leson is a bit jealous. Tim Stevens tells Lucy they are going aboard his boat, the Minerva, and she accedes in Tim's desire to be a "cutter." Asked if she is sorry that she won her company, Lucy says she is not and that she is sorry that she has arranged in Tim's desire to be a "cutter."

Asked Stevens' boat, the Minerva, Stevens tells Lucy of his love for the vessel and that it is a tramp for him, he grows violently angry and she becomes afraid of him. He says he will never let her go from the ship and still she is afraid. To escape him, she leaps into the water from her cabin window, swimming a short distance under water.

Lucy reaches land and meets Dr. Ferguson as an attendant. He takes care of her and takes her home. Everyone is worried about her, and when she meets Stevens he is frantic, regretful and still afraid of her. Leson informs Lucy that Stevens must raise a quarter of a million dollars to go to jail—"at five dollars a day." Lucy says to her lack and raises the sum.

Lucy goes to Stevens to help him, but he refuses to take money from a woman to whom he is not married. She then goes to the bank and asks him to marry her, and she takes him away from him, going to her staunch friend Dr. Ferguson to tell what has happened.

Stevens sets out in search of Lucy. Meanwhile, Dr. Ferguson and Lucy launch a new boat. A hurricane wrecks them on their first voyage. Lucy is rescued and still half-aboard the Minerva, wondering what happened to Dr. Ferguson. Dr. Ferguson is aboard the Minerva when she is wrecked and still half-aboard the Minerva, wondering what happened to Dr. Ferguson.

"Only man that wasn't satisfied was the marshal. I thought he was short, but he was smaller than I. You, Madrox, was pretty sure at what I'd said, and the men I'd slugged were angry, so I'm under arrest, out on bail, and I'm to be tried this afternoon. I'll plead guilty and pay a fine; only, this Madrox chap got my goat, and he ought to be removed from his two-penny office, so I'll go to court. And that's that."

The man was up and out of the house, when at lunch-time, she awoke and found, she was surprised in his absence, and vaguely looking regretfully after Leson.

"My lawyers have been telling me that a conviction, trifling as it is, won't help me with investors. It's not terribly important, but... would you mind testifying in my behalf?"

"Why... of course not," she replied.

The judge opened proceedings. Madrox, called and sworn, testified that he, acting upon the request of Clement Clark, who had told him he had reason to believe that violence would be offered his peaceful gang of laborers by the defendant, had, with half a dozen deputies, gone to Seaside Creek. There two of his deputies had been assaulted by the defendant, Timothy Stevens, who had later threatened Madrox with a revolver. He had put Stevens under arrest, but the defendant had resisted restraint.

Two of his deputy marshals were called and corroborated his story. The three were sworn to stand. Duly sworn, he began his story.

"Madrox may tell the truth, your honor, but he says that Clark stated he expected trouble. The truth of the matter is that I never dreamed of such action until my wife came to me in Mango Creek, several days ago. She told me that she had been on the bridge over Seaside Creek, and informed me that she had learned of the proposed assault upon my property. U.S. BEANS ARE GIVEN CHOICE Efforts Made to Keep American Market for American Growers.

Answering an inquiry by Representative Addison T. Smith in Washington, D. C., the acting paymaster general of the U. S. navy, S. G. Hays, stated that preference is ordinarily given to American grown beans when supplies are purchased for the navy. The Twin Falls chamber of commerce had asked whether a large consignment of foreign beans had been purchased and the indication was made accordingly.

Mr. Hays made a detailed explanation of bean purchases, saying that there are no restrictions as to place of origin, but where all conditions are equal the secretary of the navy is required to consider American beans first. Foreign beans are required to be labeled with identification tags on the bags. First consideration is given to the quality of the beans purchased for use by the navy, it was stated.

Mr. Hays said the origin of the recent purchase of beans was not known, intimating that no foreign beans were purchased. He said that 427 tons had been purchased and his explanation indicated that these were American beans. Local growers of the Twin Falls have been interested in keeping the large navy market for American bean growers.

L. F. PARSONS IS NEW SECRETARY

Will Help Important Shippers Association Affecting Idaho Farm Products.

BOISE—L. F. Parsons, secretary of the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce, has accepted the appointment as secretary of the Idaho unit of the Central Western Shippers' Advisory board, along with his duties as chamber secretary. Notification of his appointment came from J. W. Shorthill, general chairman of the board of Omaha.

Until recently this post was held by M. A. Riger, secretary of the Idaho public utilities' commission.

The work of this board, which is part of the car service division of the American Railway association, is of great importance to the producers of Idaho as it is the medium through which producers get cars for shipping their products.

Before these boards came into existence several years ago all over the country car shortages in the shipping season were not only frequent, but serious. Since then the supply of cars for shipping has been more evenly divided and the service to the producers of Idaho and the entire country has been adequate.
