SAVE THE BUILDING

It has required the onward march of commercial progress to focus attention on the preservation of a community relic which long ago should have received public interest.

Recent announcement that a large new super-service station is to be erected at Fourth street and Main avenue south becomes especially significant in the minds of pioneers here because they know that on this site at the present time is an historic structure: the first frame building to be erected in Twin Falls.

The building is small and excepting for its historic interest, would ordinarily be considered of trifling value. But Fred Fess, Jr., head of the concern which is about to erect a new business block on the site, offers the old building to the community. The Old Settlers' Society of Twin Falls County, an organization of pioneers who date their arrival here previous to the formation of the county on February 21, 1897, is taking in hand the matter of preserving the one-room frame shack which was at once headquarters of the land company during the inception of Twin Falls South side tract, a land-mark, and the goal of thousands of home-seekers who filed on the land which in few years was to become a great agriculture empire.

It is fitting that agitation for the preservation of this relic comes during 1930, the year which marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the tract, an event which has led the Chamber of Commerce to include a silver anniversary celebration in its program of activities.

Doubtlessly the immediate necessity for finding a new location for Twin Falls' first building will provide the most practical method of focusing public interest in pioneers and pioneering in general on the Twin Falls area and furnishes just the proper medium about which to center a fitting Silver Jubilee in Twin Falls this year commemorating the transformation of the sagebrush desert into the present great agricultural and industrial empire.

It took the threat of destruction to bring about realization of the value of the building which, incidentally, is true in many human experiences. Through the generosity of the recent purchasers of the building and the cooperation of the public, the little old structure now has a new lease on life.

It must and shall be preserved.

WASHINGTON

The greatness of Washington is appreciated more and more keenly with each passing year, as historians throw new light upon the Father of his Country. Greatness cannot be defined, but it is easily recognized in the perspective of time. The greatest men are those whose lives and works have influenced the greatest number of other persons. Measured by that rule, George Washington towers as one of the greatest figures of all history. He, more than any other man, created the new nation which was to set its impression upon the entire world. It is not mere pseudo-patriotic boastfulness to declare that the United States is the world's greatest nation today; great not only in material things but greatest in its influence upon all the rest of the world. And our national greatness has been made partly possible by the leadership of George Washington.

Politically, Washington established one tradition which has been largely responsible for the success of our American experiment in popular government. That was that the President, after his term of office was finished, should retire from public life and take no further active part in politics. In two or three instances has this rule been violated. John Quincy Adams served in the House of Representatives after having been President; and in our own time the political activity of Theodore Roosevelt did not end with his Presidential term. But the tradition of aloofness from interference with the conduct of his successors in office has guided every other ex-President. In the republics of South and Central America, where this has not been the rule, national progress has been impeded by revolutions headed by former presidents in dozens of examples.

Washington as a young man saw clearly what some others did not realize, that the territory of which the British colonies occupied the eastern fringe must be protected against invasion by any other nation. Historians seldom emphasize the service which he, as a young man, rendered in driving the French out of Ohio and the Mississippi Valley country. This was a service which later rendered possible the expansion of the young United States to the westward. Our march toward the Pacific began with the ending of the Revolution. Had the French remained in possession of the Ohio River country and of Canada our whole national history would have been different if, indeed, we had any national history other than that of British colonies.

Washington is the one American whose birthday is observed wherever the American flag flies. He is the one American concerning whose essential greatness there is no longer the slightest difference of opinion among the people of the nation which he led.

The members of the board of directors of the Twin Falls Canal company are to be complimented on their apparent desire to keep at the helm, the present administrative head, John E. Mayes, whose services are deemed valuable to the best interests of this tract.

PIECES OF PAPER

Efforts to compel the Governor and legislature through court action to invoke such Democratic measures as the initiative and referendum are apparently destined to failure, but the agitation is a healthy evidence of the voters' increasing interest in their government—an interest which also brings wonderment at the type of political control in this state which dictates in February who are to be the nominees next August for the election in November. Statewide primaries would restore this control to the voters in the respective political parties.

The place to secure these remedial legislative measures, if they are wanted, is through the ballot. But a large number of voters have yet to appreciate that ballots are more than pieces of paper.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

THE OPEN DOOR

By Louis J. Taler, National Grange Master

The Grange stands second to no organization in America, in support of the Federal Marketing Act, and of every movement that will make for orderly marketing and sounder business methods in the distribution of farm products. History tells us that a committee was appointed by the National Master, following the Pittsburgh session of the National Grange in 1923, to propose a marketing bill. Final plans which had the approval of the then Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace, and Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover were presented to Congress. During the year, and the delay that followed, the Grange has consistently supported this type of legislation; at the same time, we have been asking for other steps to bring economic parity to agriculture.

The final passage of the marketing act and the appointment of the Federal Farm Board, bring to the front questions of tremendous importance, but no problem connected with the policies of the Board, in the creation of nation-wide cooperatives, is of greater importance than the principle of equal opportunity to every tiller of the soil, to participate in the advantages which the Marketing Act can offer. We might term this policy "The Open Door" in marketing, which simply means that any agency using the machinery of the Federal Farm Board, or borrowing Federal money, must be open on equal terms to every agricultural producer of a given commodity, regardless of religion, politics, or farm organization membership.

The Grange has no quarrel with any other farm organization. We desire to cooperate with all, and we concede to any organization the right to build up any agency that its judgment and experience may dictate to be wise; but when these marketing agencies become an integral part of a great nation-wide farm cooperative, and they accept Federal money and the advantages of nation-wide control, they must of necessity open the door to all producers of the given commodity, on equal terms.

The Grange policy on this question of almost 50 years stands and it is the result of experience in building cooperative associations in practically every state in the nation. We insist that in every case where volume and control of the product are concerned, the Grange, or any other organization, can best serve its membership by holding on the basis of the foundation of American agriculture, rather than upon its own membership. Experience teaches that the best way to build the Grange or any other organization is to render outstanding service to agriculture and the community. When this is done, the membership question takes care of itself.

The Grange has supported every sound commodity cooperative that has sought to benefit producing members, and will continue to do so. For example, the Grange has supported the Grange Highway and many local units have organized in Grange highways. The success of the movement depended upon interesting the largest possible number of producers, regardless of whether they were members of the Grange or not. What is true of highway work is true in every other case of marketing. Successful cooperatives must be based on commodity producers, and has nothing to do with color, creed or political faith.

It is true that in such matters as Grange insurance, whether fire or automobile, where the objective risk and not volume is the controlling factor, the Grange does rightly apply the membership test. Home-owning American citizens are better fire insurance risks, consequently there is saving and value in keeping these agencies confined to selected membership. But it does not make a particle of difference, where a bushel of wheat, a hog, or a bale of cotton reaches the market, whether it is grown by a Grange member, a Farm Bureau member, or a Farmers' Union supporter; or whether the producer was a Democrat, a Republican, a Quaker, or a Catholic. The problem involved is the quality of the product, the largest possible control of its volume, and its intelligent merchandising.

Consequently the Grange offers no apology for insisting emphatically that in all machinery that it takes part in under the Marketing Act, the American farmer shall be considered as a farmer and a producer, regardless of any affiliations he may have. It will be intolerable, if under the new National Grain Corporation for example, we have Grange elevators, Farm Bureau elevators, Farmers' Union elevators, Equity Union elevators, and other groups, all competing for the farmer's grain. The success of this great movement is dependent, not upon how much grain the Union, the Farm Bureau or the Grange can deliver, but upon the volume of grain controlled and the loyalty of the producer to the National Marketing agency.

The Grange must wholeheartedly endorse the efforts of the Federal Farm Board in its program to bring the largest amount of benefit, with the least delay, to all of our farm producers. In endorsing the attitude of the Farm Board, we are at the same time insuring the future of agriculture is dependent upon maintaining strong, loyal, independent farm organizations, capable of doing their own thinking, supplying their own leadership, and standing unflinchingly for the good of agriculture.—National Grange Monthly.

WHAT THEY HAVE RECEIVED

(Idaho Statement)

There is at hand a copy of the Twin Falls Idaho Citizen, quoting various civic bodies of that territory as opposing the "Baltimore-Wood highway program" on the ground that Twin Falls is tired of paying taxes to build roads in other districts, again, the article speaks of Twin Falls county replying that to build roads in Ada county for which Ada county is unwilling to pay.

Throughout the discussion there is evident a disposition to regard the gasoline tax paid in any given county as entirely the product of that county; a further disposition to feel injured that roads are to be built with this gasoline tax in other counties. The assumption is that Twin Falls county not only has contributed for out-of-proportion to the gasoline tax, but in addition has spent more than her share of local funds for highway building.

Now the records of the state department of public works are open to anyone who cares to consult them, and there really is no necessity for referring to "a considerable sum" of money paid out and "only a small proportion" of money sent back.

The five largest counties in the state, from the standpoint of wealth and population, are Ada, Bannock, Bonnevill, Canyon and Twin Falls. Idaho happens that the largest proportion of the gasoline tax is collected in these five counties; and not only because of the use of gasoline by their citizens, but, and this point cannot be sufficiently stressed, because of the fact that on a very large proportion of the gasoline used in the smaller sparsely settled areas is paid by the jobbers and wholesalers in the five counties mentioned. Thus an actual check of the gasoline tax paid by the inhabitants in any one of these counties is an impossibility.

But as to favors received from the state highway bureau, which controls the allocation of state and federal funds, the figures are enlightening; the figures covering the entire existence of the federal aid law, in other words the time since the establishment of the state highway system.

These figures show that Bannock county has received the lion's share of state and federal funds in that period—or a total of $1,165,776. Next in order come Twin Falls county; the chief claimant on this score, with a total of $1,135,904. Bonnevill ranks third with $771,388. Ada county, which is in fourth place, has but little more than half what has been received by Bannock county, and about three-fifths of the Twin Falls figure.—Idaho Citizen.

Idaho Citizen. Bannock county has received state and federal funds totaling $482,735, thus being an extremely poor fifth.

In connection with the bonded highway debt, which Twin Falls county opponents like to stress, it is interesting to observe that the highway bonds of that county total about two million dollars, against an assessed valuation of 27 million dollars, and an automobile registration of 9000 cars. The fees from these cars are, by law, to be used in paying interest and principal on highway bonds. In contrast with this, Lemhi county, with a fifth of the assessed valuation and one-tenth of the automobile registration, has issued $350,000 in highway bonds. Yet so far from complaining at the heavy per capita burden thus imposed, Lemhi county is enthusiastically supporting the highway program. Lemhi county has realized the value of sound connecting roads, even though these lines be built outside her boundaries, as a means of marketing her products and attracting business.

THE WAY TO DO IT

(Twin Falls News)

The facts do not warrant the Idaho Statesman's inference that Twin Falls County is playing the dog in the manger act in respect to the proposed speeded up program of state highway construction.

There is here, it is true, some disposition to question the advisability of hypochondriac for any considerable period, the State's incentive for highway construction and maintenance, but this disposition, probably, is not more pronounced here than elsewhere in the State.

And there is no lack of appreciation here of the importance of a state-wide highway program to be completed as rapidly as possible.

It is true that Twin Falls is one of a few counties in the State that collect a large proportion of the gas tax that goes for state highway construction and maintenance.

It is true, too, that the State bureau administered State and Federal highway funds at the time when Twin Falls County highway districts constructed the State highway through this county.

But while this is true, it is a further fact that not one dime of State money went into construction of the State highway east from the Flit district to the Coana county line. Construction of the State highway eastward from Latah was delayed for months until the Murtagh district could collect money to pay for a new right of way that was required by State and Federal highway officials, and the Flit district labored long and diligently to collect the State's promised share in the cost of improvement of the State highway through the Flit district.

Ninety-nine per cent of the objection in this County to the proposed State highway program arises from the fact that this program proposed to use money collected here to do for other Counties what this county has done and is doing for itself.

Include in the program, according to other Counties and districts, out of these funds, but that they have already spent or obligated themselves to spend on State highways, and the program will be insured of much more favorable consideration hereabouts.

He said when the building is renovated and decorated with stucco which will be planned erected, it will not be an unattractive object in the park. The plan is to make the historic old structure a repository for relics of this section. One of these, it was suggested, would be an old box which served as the first postoffice in which stage drivers put Twin Falls mail.

The old building has remained the same spot since it was put up in the summer of 1904. It will be housed within an iron railing and otherwise protected against damage.

Twin Falls city council took action Monday night toward eradicating tree pests by approving the suggestion of Thomas Sanderson, commissioner of streets and water works, to turn the job over to a qualified contractor experienced in this work. The latter might rent the city's spraying equipment which was purchased by city employees last year when spraying cost $850, at 50 cents a tree, slightly lower than usual costs.

MORE TREES TO BE OBTAINED

farmers Urged to Take Advantage of Them and Make Windbreaks.

On his return from attending the biennial agricultural extension conference held in Moscow at the College of Agriculture of the State University, County Agent R. C. Broadard states that the supply of shade and ornamental trees and shrubs available from the State Nursery at Moscow is large and better than ever before. It was brought out that the farmers and townspeople can make home life more enjoyable here by planting of forest and shade trees to the end that our estate as a whole also will become more attractive.

The lists of forest and shade trees available from the State Nursery is now being sent out and they all should be in the mails by the latter part of February. Those not receiving a copy by that time will be furnished one on request to the county agent or from the School of Forestry, Moscow. Tree stock purchased under the terms of the act of March 1927, law for windbreaks, shelterbelts, and roadside planting can be secured at half cost of production. The cash advance of $1000 in advance distributed at approximately the cost of production. From recent tree improvements are being made in the planting of the trees at this nursery for establishment.

At the extension conference it was stated that Chairman of the Federal Farm Board in speaking over the radio indicated would be interested in one way to help keep down agricultural surplus. This means bringing in use for tree growing all the year round, rough, rocky, and otherwise typically non-agricultural portions of the farm land for planting to forest and shade trees. The marginal lands too can serve a good purpose if planted to growing a forest and shade tree crop. The trees which are planted must be carefully selected. The outcome would be that each farm might provide its own needs in the way of forest products at the lowest possible cost.

SWENSEN HAS QUIT JOB HERE

Warren G. Swensen has resigned his position as district superintendent of the Amalgamated Sugar company and moved to his former home in Boise. The headquarters of the Amalgamated Sugar company have another man in his place with the new future although no indications regarding his identity are available.

Mr. Swensen came here in 1928 when the beet crop turned out to be a failure on account of the white fly. It also lost out in 1928 after Dr. Walter Carter led a forecast against planting beets in 1927 and 1928 beet crops in this region were record low.

Dr. Carter's forecast for 1930 was also about right. The beets were taken in at the minimum station the middle of month, the forecast being that the beets would be held in the white.

Mr. Swensen, an agricultural student of the sugar, has no reports contracts have been made to come in but they will be favorable for sugar beets.

World's Highest Paid Radio Personality

1. Hugh Barrett Dobbs accepting his new contract with the Shell Oil Company from E. H. Sanders, Advertising and Sales Promotion Manager. 2. Dobbs, at left, in the broadcast studio. 3. At home with his wife and daughter. 4. "Dobbsie" with the audience you can hear in his voice.

THE historic role of Hugh Barrett Dobbs, "Dobbsie," conductor of the Shell Hymn, from the Pacific Coast Station of the N. B. C. network every morning 8:00 to 9:00 o'clock, Pacific time, was a chapter from "Aladdin's Wonderful Lamp."

Four and a half years ago, Dobbs, an unknown and untried personality, walking the streets of KVO and applied for an audition. The result was an immediate "clicking" and Dobbs began a broadcast known as the Health Exercises period.

Success was so outstanding that he evolved the idea of conducting his daily crusade to the posts of the way, the dream, the equivalent—carrying to them a thousand of his people and a million of his people.

His success attracted the attention of E. H. Sanders, an executive of the Shell Oil Company and one of the West's greatest visionaries. He engaged Dobbs to broadcast for the Shell Company.

What has he accomplished with that program words so special mention He soon earned the recognition of his listeners as the West's greatest radio personality—attending to this fact over 100,000 letters—letters of sincerity—letters of appreciation—letters from the fans of radio are available to prove this assertion.

The result has brought about Dobbs being signed by the Shell Oil Company to a broadcast known as a yearly figure far exceeding the salary of the President of the United States. From now on, Dobbs will devote his entire time to work of the Shell Company, the work which will not him over a quarter of a million dollars, and will give him the distinction of being the world's highest paid radio personality.

And now for the man Dobbs in whom the eyes of the entire radio world are focused. He was born in Kentucky, 1887. Throughout his boyhood life he was a student of the law. He learned from the secrets of his secret of mind. Hand him almost any incident and "Dobbsie" will extract some kind of time from his art a perfect card and those who in the art of music wonder at his ability.

From early childhood he had a leaning toward good natured, "Dobbsie" is a fact that caused his discharge from the United States Navy Academy at Annapolis. But Dobbs' youth years recorded him to the fact of his Naval career—the progress of vision and character would not allow him to be changed.

He entered Idaho as a medical student at the University of Idaho. He later became an instructor of physical culture, leaving the naval story of the navy to his cousin, Richmond Carson Hudson, hero of the Merrimack sinking in San Juan Harbor during the Spanish-American War. His father, then a Congressman from the State of Kentucky, asked him by sending him on a world tour.

It is Dobbs who is responsible for the creation of Outdoor Physical Culture for children. After being several of them in New York City, he was called by Judge Ben Lindsey to supervise the building of Denver's playgrounds. This interest in children reveals the side of the man which is always strong to all of us as an writer who may say, "Dobbsie" is a perfect card and those who in the art of music wonder at his ability.

Trophy Cup On Display Here

The large silver trophy cup awarded to Idaho last year for having made the best health record during the week for a two-week visit among schools of the county. It is on a tour of schools throughout the state. The cup was awarded by the National Tuberculosis association to Idaho for having the greatest number of Modern Health Graders in proportion to the total school enrollment for the year. To qualify as Modern Health Graders, students must perform 54 or more health chores each week, including a weekly bath, for 12 consecutive weeks.

Indiana won the trophy cup for two years before Idaho got it. Any state winning it three years straight gains permanent possession. The cup is in charge of Mrs. Rose J. Wilson, county health officer, and will be displayed in the county health unit.

FREE CULTURES ARE OFFERED

Farmers Advised to Use State Treatments to Inoculate Seed for Crop.

The university experiment station has tested ball-tine telling the need and benefit of proper inoculation of certain field crops to produce the best yields. The results that yield have in some cases been less than half what they might have been.

The university advises that its cultures have been especially proven and that it is not safe to use commercial cultures because they have been diluted until they are not effective. As there are 95 of these commercial cultures, it has not been possible to examine them all to determine their value for Idaho farmers.

The university states that it used some well conducted cooperative experiments in each section to establish the value of the inoculation in this state. To obtain these, cultures will be supplied free of charge, with assistance in the planting in order to get the desired results. This is for your information.

The university cultures call for 75 cents a bottle, postage prepaid, each bottle being enough to inoculate three acres. Cultures may be obtained through the office of the county agent who may also provide more detailed information on this matter. Farmers are urged to carefully estimate their needs in order that more culture than is necessary will not be mailed out.

JEROME FAILS TO GET DEPOT

At the hearing several days ago in Jerome before two members of the public utilities commission, 14th, officials of the Oregon Short Line railroad approved the request of five Jerome granges and other organizations to have a depot checked in or out of the station at Shoshone or Gooding. The granges refused to grant a depot closer into town, however, on the grounds that there are hundreds of towns in a similar situation throughout the country's territory. If the Jerome application is granted the other would not; demands and the commission in a position to meet such requests.

Regarding the proposition of getting a railroad from Idaho to the West, the Wendell and Jerome, the Gen. State Transit company offered to operate a shuttle bus over this route but the officials were not inclined to use a main line. The smaller bus would carry about 20 passengers and the people of Jerome and Wendell would direct access to the main line route. They contacted the Wendell-Jerome route to be two miles longer than the present one, but it was not improved as the latter is.

There were about 150 persons at the hearing, representing Jerome, Wendell and Gooding. The Wendell delegation was headed by the public utilities commission. Secretary C. C. Wilbur of the Jerome chamber of commerce presided at the hearing. He had a dozen Oregon Short Line officials, two or three from the grange camps and others were present.

The situation will be studied further and another meeting held at an early date when more definite plans will be adopted. John B. Blazy of Jerome and Frank Smith were the two members of the public utilities commission who conducted the hearing.

THE ROMANCE OF THE RUSTY REX BEACH'S STORY OF AMERICAN BUSINESS

Steel of courage, and modern life, is full of it. The history of the steel industry is a romantic, in its way, as the history of the Spanish Main, if one will take the pains to read it. There is not as much of blood and villainy and elemental passion involved in the story of the steel industry as there is in the story of the Spanish Main.

(THE STORY OF THE ALL-STEEL BODY)

BY REX BEACH

This is the story of a man who had an idea and an ideal, and who possessed the courage and the persistence to stick to both until they were realized. His name was Henry Ford.

That idea was the all-steel automobile body. At the time the idea was conceived, automobiles were made of wood, metal being used mainly for the axle and appearance and as a surface to carry the paint. The steel body was a revolutionary idea.

Mr. Ford was a practical man, he had had shop experience, but he possessed a mighty little else. The company started building with a million dollars worth of determination, unlimited ambition and a sense of actual capital. The factory was a one-story building, its principal equipment consisted of a single mechanical press, selected by a test in a back yard.

At the time of the automobile body, the steel body was a revolutionary idea.

U. S. and hundreds of thousands more in foreign lands. Some of the steel-making processes were not a simple manufacturing process. It involved the developing and building of special machinery, the elaboration and standardization of the number of stampings used in the more complicated body had been reduced to about 100.

That second hand press has been replaced by a new one, which has been built entirely of steel which is stronger, more durable and more dependable in every way than wood that they should add strength rather than weakness to the car.

"AUTOINTOXICATION" that nobody understands his. Most any patient who doesn't understand his medicine, knows what is the matter with himself, because "nobody" seems to be self, because "nobody" seems to be self, because "nobody" seems to be self.

For this man that is just plain. Hundreds of women have been "fed up" on such diagnosis, and cure similarly and expensively. Fighting a poison that exists only in imagination! When we see ourselves all rings, only he had just found out that he was not a poison. He had just found out that he was not a poison.

Now, I have seen hundreds of men and women who suffered more from the belief that they were full of poison, than from any real toxic condition. A man felt that he was full of poison, and he was full of poison.
