CLEAN UP SALE OF CITY LOTS

Townsite Company This Week Disposes of Much Property.

Lots Near School Building Find Ready Sale—Office of Investment Company Thronged Monday

Twin Falls business men have a good thing when they see it, and for that reason when the Townsite company on Monday of this week made a reduction sale, the men were there for hours. During the entire day and Tuesday a constant string of buyers were pouring in, the office to look over the remaining parcels in dirt. Two business men were for investment bought by them on Monday for the small they payment of $25 and many others were equally fortunate in securing lots in good locations for a small rise above the first price set on them where the town was not planned.

One of the best features of the sale was that a large number of people made purchases for the purpose of building permanent homes and will help to make Twin Falls more settled this year. The lots sold on the new school will help them a year be in demand for twice the sum asked for them this week, and men holding them will reap a harvest for their foresight.

The total amount of sales in the course of the day was about $80,000 and this did not represent the real value of the property sold.

EXTRA LECTURE NUMBER

Montaville Flowers in Monologue Thursday, April 9th.

The management of the lecture course has secured as a complimentary number for all holders of season tickets, Montaville Flowers, one of our greatest monologue artists in the country. Mr. Flowers will appear here on Thursday April 9th. He will give an excellent program of interpretive recitals from the masterpieces, including selections from Ibsen, Merchant of Venice, Julius Caesar, Macbeth, and several other characters in "his own class." Mr. Flowers appeared in Bolson last season for the first time and he has so well liked that they asked for a return date this season. Although the management of the lecture course have been to some expense to secure this attraction, it will be absolutely free to all holders of season tickets. Reservations will be granted to all season ticket holders in ample time for that night. If seats are overlooked, if they will need

RUMORED MOVE OF WATER CO.

Report of Purchase of Owyhee Irrigation Project.

Purchase If Made Will Add About 25,000 Acres to Water Rights of Twin Falls Company.

It is reported the Twin Falls Land & Water company has taken over the Owyhee high line canal project which is to irrigate between 20,000 and 30,000 acres of land along the south bank of the Snake River in Idaho and Oregon, lying west of the Brannan project recently acquired. It is known that negotiations between the owners of the water right and the Owyhee land and agents of the Twin Falls company have been under way, but no official announcement has been made of the consummation of the deal.

This project is similar to many ways to the Glenn Ferry irrigation in that the tract, showing right, extends along the river bank, thus requiring much canal and dam work to furnish the water to the laterals. The only point across the irrigated area will extend back a great distance from the river which will be near the mouth of the Owyhee where it ran parallel with the course of that stream almost across two townships.

The project will extend from point just west of the Murphy project to a point in Oregon opposite Weiser, and will irrigate 25,000 acres in the Owyhee Valley. In that the acreage lies in two states it cannot be segregated under the Carey act, and the water will therefore be marketed to parties taking direct entries. Many such entries for farms that will be served by this project have already been made. Statesman.

AN ALL STAR AGGREGATION

Pythian Dramatic Club Gives Splendid Production.

The only disappointed people in this city since last Thursday evening, are the ones who failed to hear the Pythian Dramatic club give the drama, "Nevada." From the time the curtain rose on the first scene until the fall for the great triumph of Nevada in the recovery of his lost mine and lost child, there was not a single uninteresting moment. All of the people carried their lives with it, in fact, considerably better than any of the professional lights who have visited this city for some time. The scenery which was supplied entirely by the town artists, was well adapted to

SOMETHING OF AN ENGINEERING FEAT

Bridge Below Shoshone Falls Would be a Marvel.

Narrow Point Across Canyon Would Require Longest Span in This Country. Would Insure Fine View.

By long odds, the most spectacular engineering work projected by the company, even more than the taking of a great river like either of the big canals out of the steep canyon and spreading it over the thirsty land, is the proposed bridge across Snake river at the Shoshone falls.

Just below the falls, there is a vast chert where the waters have broken and spilled for ages, and lapped away the bridge by their mad violence. But a few hundred yards down stream, the canyon closes in again, until the cliffs are only 125 feet apart at the top. A line thrown straight across at this point would be 550 feet high—twice as high as any other bridge ever built. It is here that it is proposed to build a bridge that shall carry the traveler across the great chasm, without descending a foot into the gorge. Thirty-two suspension spans of this length, or a cantilever or arch span somewhat less, could be built for approximately $200,000. The arch or cantilever span could be shorter as it would be possible to build the towers up from the canyon and so shorten to possibly 300 feet the enormous expense main spans.

HOGS IN QUARANTINE

Carload Shipped From Kearney, Nebraska, Infected.

On orders from the state veterinarian, Sheriff Aiken placed in quarantine a carload of hogs which were shipped in for sale to the farmers. The animals have been in the city for ten days awaiting disposition by the owner and it is alleged that ten of them were dead from the plague when the car reached Twin Falls. The carload where the animals are kept has been quarantined likewise, the road over which they traveled after being unloaded, and a vigorous effort will be made to prevent spread of the disease. State Veterinarian Noble will be here tomorrow to take charge of swine.

MAN HURT BY RUNAWAY

C. C. Houston Attempts to Stop Wild Team on Shoshone Avenue.

In a futile effort to stop a runaway team yesterday Clifford T. Houston suffered a serious injury which will keep him a long time in the hospital. While attempting to stop a runaway team attached to a lumber wagon near the Idaho Lumber company's yard on Shoshone avenue, Houston failed to stop the frightened horses and was thrown under the back wheels which passed over his head and neck inflicting severe injury. When aid reached him it was found that he was unconscious. The ambulance was called and the injured man was taken to the hospital for treatment. Today he is much improved and hopes to be out in about a month. Mr. Houston came to Twin Falls from a Millner and has been employed for a short time by Galliter and son.

Wild Horses

Wild horses by the thousands are overrunning the government National Forests of Nevada and neighboring states, and the authorities in Washington are being urged by national forest stockmen and farmers begging them to put a stop to the nuisance. A recent dispatch from Reno conveyed the intelligence that there are fifteen thousand of the animals. Upon the "Toiyas," Toiyas and Monitor forest reserves in Inyo County alone, and their orders for a more systematic warfare extermination upon them. This dispatch, although without as to facts, does not exaggerate the number of horses now supposed to be ranging at large in the districts mentioned. As a matter of probable truth there are a good many more than fifteen thousand wild horses in Nevada and the neighboring states, and they are doing harm to the owners of stock and domestic stock.

The part of the Reno telegram, which is so graphic in that it is the endorsement from Washington. Neither the forest rangers nor any other employees of the government have been told to destroy the horses, and unless they do so they will continue to be a threat to the people's interests in the mountains, as they are doing, when they appear and threaten damage to the range. Indeed, if half the stories brought to the capital are true, all the rangers in the Nevada-Sagebrush would have little chance of destroying the big-loads that are ranging over the western state.

At the last year's session they have increased to such an extent that in many localities they are classed as vermin, with wolves, wildcats and grizzlies, and every man's rifle is turned against them. No fence is strong enough to stop the horses, and when they appear in force they have been known to break down and kill cows and calves. After each visitation from a herd, the ranchman is likely to quarrel the loss of his domestic horses, and it requires only a few days' association with their new companions for the best of the animals to become as wild as their nomadic comrades.

A study of the wild-horse problem leads to the conclusion that the best way to deal with the animals is to exterminate them. The Legislature of Nevada, it seems, passed a law many years ago specifically allowing hunters to shoot wild horses and to sell their hides for what they could get in the open market. The law opened the way to a new and unusual industry, and many men found the killing of wild horses very profitable. Besides the work was exciting and gave the hunters the added zest of sport.

At first the men were few, and the work was done on a small scale. As the years passed, however, the number of men increased, and the work was done on a larger and larger scale. It was not until the late '80s that the work was done on a large scale. It was then that the Nevada Legislature was forced to enact the law which prohibited the killing of wild horses and to give the hunters a license.

The report however had good basis of fact, for the wild-horse question has grown to be a serious one in the last few years. It was when the Nevada Legislature was forced to enact the law, that the problem of wild-horse extermination became a serious one. The Nevada Legislature was forced to enact the law which prohibited the killing of wild horses and to give the hunters a license.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

When a man transfers his real estate to another, the title to it is transferred to the latter, and he is bound to pay the taxes on it. In Twin Falls county, Idaho, the law is the same, but the practice is different. When a man transfers his real estate to another, he does not pay the taxes on it, but the transferee does. This is the way it is done in Twin Falls county, Idaho, and it is a very bad practice, as it encourages the owners to neglect their property and to allow it to fall into disrepair.

It is estimated that a quarter of a million people in Nevada live on land so infested with them that the children who are born there grow up with the idea of the wild horse as a part of their life. The horses are a real nuisance, as they are a tax on everything. The cattle for April, 1914, in the field, and the wild horses are a very dear and valuable labor is cheap. For the very poor, meat is a luxury and a horse is a necessary part of life. The horses are a real nuisance, as they are a tax on everything. The underhand methods used by some politicians to get office often creates the impression that their usefulness to the taxpayer is a question.

The establishment of a commercial club on broad non-partisan lines and on the basis of the good of Twin Falls city is a move which every citizen should push to the utmost of his ability. But every man who goes into the organization should leave his petty animosities and business jealousies outside. Any attempt by individual members to use the club for aggrandizement will result in wrecking the organization.

The move of the politicians of the republican party in calling for the nominating convention this month is a shrewd one. Whether they hope to line up the delegates for Brady before any opposition can be started and thus put his opponents on the defensive is not known, but the placing of the convention five months before the election looks considerable that way. At present there is but one candidate in the field for nomination for governor, and that man is Brady. If the convention instructs for him at Buhl this month, the delegation will go in to the state convention that had lost and helpless to do other than support him. In the meantime before the nominating convention of the state convenes a better man than Brady may be presented in whose candidacy the republicans of this county could enter. It would seem all of the party it would seem the best plan for the convention to elect uninstructed delegates so that the men opposed to machine control can be lifted up. If on the other hand the delegates are instructed, those opposed to Brady are by force of circumstance left out side the fold.

Congressman Hepburn of Iowa has taken Wall street and its notorious business into camp with tax upon sales of stock of fifty cents per share. His impelling motive being to cut on the gambling which has been a menace to legitimate business for the past fifty years. In speaking before the house in support of his measure Mr. Hepburn says:

All the race-track gambling in the world; all the games of cards in the 'Tenderloins' and the 'red-light districts' of the cities; all the games of chance at Monte Carlo and the other famous gambling resorts of the world are as drops in the bucket compared with the enormous transactions of the stock exchanges of the United States. During the year 1906 the banks in New York made four billion separate loans on account of stocks. I will venture to say that not 5 per cent of the transactions on the New York Stock Exchange are legitimate transfers of stock; no not anywhere near 5 per cent. One of the excellent gentlemen over there is arguing the case as well as he could for the exchange, inadvertently said that one share of stock might change hands three or four times in a single day. Now isn't that a confession? Doesn't that show that the brand of business they do there is gambling pure and simple? Is it at all probable that business men would pay $75,000 or $100,000 for a seat on the New York Stock exchange if there was not a prospect of great returns? Would dozens of brokers, who own these priceless seats, maintain thousands of miles of private wires at a cost of thousands of dollars a month if there was not the 'sure-thing' gamblers' profit in sight? Would they buy these seats of gold and wires of unknown cost if they were only buying and selling stocks in a legitimate manner? And would they now be raising this howl about my bill if they were not afraid that their gambling operations stand a chance of being nipt in the bud, and that they may be compelled to go back to old time decent trading?—Literary Digest.

In the decision of the United States Supreme Court, rendered last week, in the case of the Armour Packing Company vs. the United States, several important questions regarding interstate commerce are definitely settled. The packing company had made a contract with the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad Company for the shipment of certain products from points on the Mississippi river to New York at twenty-three cents per hundred pounds, which was the legal rate at the time. The contract was to cover a period of over seven months. Less than two months later the railway company filed, published and posted in accordance with the law a rate more than half again as high. The packing company continued to ship its products at the lower rate, but did so by means of through bills of lading to foreign ports. Proceedings against the packing company were instituted in Missouri, and resulted in a judgment in the Supreme Court the judgment of the Circuit Court was affirmed. This decision settles cases against three other packing companies and the railway. The packing company presented five main arguments: one of these was to the form of the indictment, raised a question of legal procedure and did not affect any question of interstate commerce, as do the other four. In contradiction of the contentions of the company, the Court decided, in the first place, that the transportation of the goods at a discriminatory rate constituted a violation of the law altogether apart from any question of fraudulent intent; in the second place, that the offense consisted not merely in consigning and accepting the goods for shipment, but in the transportation at the rate acknowledged; that therefore the offense was continuous from the river to the sea, and that proceedings might lawfully be brought in any district traversed by the route; in the third place, that the billing of the goods to a foreign port did not prevent the case from coming within the operation of the law; and in the fourth place, that the existence of the contract made before the raising of the rates did not relieve the packing company or the railway from the obligation to observe the higher rates after they were legally established. Of all these points, the last is the most important. It makes it impossible hereafter for any shipper to gain an advantage over competitors by making a contract with a railway company just before the establishment of higher rates. It was argued that the decision implied a contract, but the Court replied that the law against discrimination in rates, being already in force, "is read into the contract and becomes a part of it." No one can make a valid contract to violate the law. It was furthermore contended (and this is the burden of Justice Brewer's dissenting opinion) that the shipper is thus, at the mercy of the transportation company, which can raise rates even after a contract for a specified time has been made, and thus subject the shipper to an anticipated expense. The Court answers that, whatever injustice is involved in this remedy, it is not by the courts, but by congress.—Outlook

Pat Hill had a chance to see how his clothes looked on the other fellow last week when some light fingered gent stole in to Pat's boudoir and stole inside of his Sunday clothes. When arrested the man was wearing the borrowed flannel shirt with easy assurance of an actor and besides had a big gun in his pocket which Pat says was not a part of his Sunday outfit. The man was given four months in the county jail.
One of the pleasant social events of recent date was the bridge party given by Mrs. George D. Alken on last Monday. The occasion was given in celebration of Mrs. Alken's birthday and about twenty-five ladies added to the making merry. The prizes for score were given to Madamess W. E. Pike Stuart H. Taylor and E. C. Bedford. The hostess assisted by Mrs. Tyler, Mrs. McCollum and Mrs. Nixon served most deftly lunch to the guests who in the course of the banquetting pledged to the long life and happiness of their hostess. A plan of the game to surprise Mrs. Alken with a gift of a handsome work basket was spoiled by the early arrival of the packages and its announcement, while the hostess enjoyed a good laugh at the anxiety of the ladies who they telephoned wildly for the supposedly delayed packages. The ladies present were Madamess Harry Allen, Bedford, Boyd, Booth, C. F. Baker, W. H. Craven, C. M. Hill, W. S. Hill, Larned, Lowe, McCollum, Nixon, Pike, Pike, Rogan, M. J. Swallow, E. M. Dr. C. Thompson will deliver a lecture at the auditorium for the benefit of the High School hall ball game. Dr. Thompson is president of the Southern Idaho Scholastic League, in which the Twin Falls debating team holds the championship, and principal of the State Normal at Albion. The subject of his lecture is "George Rogers Clark and the Winning of the Old Northwest." The school board has had the vacant lots east of the school cleared and plowed for fall ground, and the boys are entering into practice work with enthusiasm. The object of the league is to give the boys and they need the hearty cooperation of all our citizens. With this in mind, the best school team in this part of the state.

An act that was not down on the bills was the marriage of Roy Webb and Miss May Bell Brown, at Pocatello Monday. Miss Brown played the part of the bride in the drama presented by the troupe of the "Dramatic Company" here Saturday night, and Mr. Webb accompanied the party here. After their arrival here they decided to get married and Sunday left for Pocatello for that purpose. Monday a license was obtained and the ceremony performed. Mr. and Mrs. Webb returned here, passing on their way with Mr. Webb's sister, Mrs. Harry A. Webb to his native place, a young man of Pocatello, who has been reared in this place. Miss Brown is a teacher in the Teton school, a most estimable and intelligent, young lady. Her parents reside at Albion. The party were unaware of the intention of the young people until after the ceremony had been performed. -American Falls Press.

It is a very easy matter to pick up a Filer chest and read what Filer needs. Let some of our merchants get out and hustle some of the wants and necessities Filer is a good town and has some fine people as well as fine opportunities but it is very bad to the vast crowds that come in here, not to be able to get a loaf of bread and find this place without a meat market, two of the most essential requirements. Let our grocery keepers wake up, carry a good supply of bread and get some good up-to-date groceries. Each and every day one or more emigrant cars arrive here, families with from one to twelve children, and they all say: They don't want to spend their money any place but Filer but will if necessary. So wake up, get a meat market, get some bread, get a butcher. This is not a "knock" but a boast.
