

DECIDES FOR THE GOVERNMENT LINES

Long Awaited Decision Aneat the Disputed Lines.

JUDGE WALTERS, AFTER MUCH STUDY ON CASE, ENDS SUSPENSE.

Written Decision Not Given—Letter to Twin Falls Attorneys Notifies Them of Result—Appeal Taken.

The following letter from Judge Edward A. Walters of the Fourth district, about the survey controversy, will be of great interest to all the litigants on the tract, and is published as received without comment.

Shoshone, Idaho, Sept. 4th, '08.

Messrs. Sweeley & Sweeley and S. T. Hamilton, Twin Falls, Idaho, and Messrs. Stockinger & Bowen, Halley, Idaho:

Gentlemen: In the case of Humphrey et al. vs. James G. Whitton, et al., known as the "Survey Case," judgment will be ordered in favor of the plaintiffs, as prayed for in their complaint.

As I leave within the next couple of days for Alloua, I will not have time or be able to indicate to you the views I have taken in reaching the conclusion now announced. By reason of the importance of this matter and the care, attention and thoroughness with which counsel on both sides have presented it, and inasmuch as I have given it perhaps more care and study than any case yet before me. It is somewhat reluctantly that I forego the pleasure of a "written opinion." The judgment shall be prepared on the theory that the survey made by Lovise locates the lost government corners and is the survey that shall be adopted as fixing the boundaries of the lands here involved, as described by the patents received from the government or the state. There is a slight doubt in my mind as to the last matter mentioned, but it will be far better for the decree to so rectify in order that on appeal this entire case may be settled and determined. Such authorities as were left with me by counsel for inspection will be returned at my earliest opportunity. I trust counsel for plaintiffs will very speedily prepare findings and decree. Very truly yours,

EDWARD A. WALTERS.

The opinion means that the Lovise survey, which was a re-locating of government corners, has been decided to be the correct survey by the district court. This decision will not settle the dispute and The Times has been informed by one of the attorneys for the company survey case that an immediate appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

Some fine samples of Crawford and Alexander peaches are on exhibition in the window of Hill & Taylor's real estate office. The peaches were raised on the ranch of Geo. H. Smith, in section five and on trees planted in 1906. Mr. Smith says the trees have at least a half bushel each. The specimens are in every way equal to any being sold in the market here from fruit sections.

STILL UNDECIDED.

Blackfoot and Twin Falls Again Tie for Championship.

Sunday the locals met defeat at the hands of Blackfoot by a score of 5 to 4, in a game that was remarkable for number of errors made. Holoban pitched a good game and should have been accorded better support.

On Monday in a five inning game, Twin Falls so far outplayed the visitors as to leave the respective merits of the teams well settled, at least in the minds of the fans here. The rain at the end of the fifth put an end to an unequal contest in which Twin Falls scored seven times in Blackfoot's one. It was pitched a steady game and allowed only one hit, while the boys hit the visiting pitcher at will. The fans here will never be convinced that Blackfoot is in our class and are looking forward to another game to settle the matter.

EXCITING RICKING CONTENT.

Some Nervy Riders Furnish Amusement for Twin Falls.

Owing to the rain on Monday the bucking contest was postponed until Tuesday afternoon. The managers of the after Messrs. Miller Evans and J. D. Hamilton, had made great preparation for the event and the eight riders and the eight horses were enough to give any one an afternoon's sport. The horse drawing the prize for fiercest bucking belonged to Swanson of Cedar Grove, and fully merited the honor.

Vergil Hall of Rock Creek was awarded first prize for best horsemanship, while Tim Urie of Twin Falls and Roy Cole of Shoshone Basin drew second and third, respectively.

GALA DAY FOR LABOR UNIONS

Twin Falls Turned Out Biggest Crowd of Year.

PARADE OF UNIONS AN EYE-OPENER FOR SPECTATORS.

Eyes Marred by Rain Storm at Noon—Dance in the Evening Attracted a Large Crowd, and Proved Most Enjoyable.

Twin Falls paid its respects to the workers of the city by turning out the biggest crowd ever seen in the city since the Railroad day in 1905, and the unions had planned a program calculated to give everyone a royal good time, all of which was executed (the dance) seriously deranged because of the rain that set in about eleven o'clock while the ball game was in progress.

Ten o'clock found Main avenue lined with people waiting for the street parade, and after the event was over a great deal of praise was accorded the enterprise of the participants. Lead by the band, the various labor and civic organizations, the fire companies and a number of finely decorated bands flanked helped to make the parade attractive. Typographical Union No. 241 of this city, presented a float of a miniature printing plant that made a hit with the spectators.

Perhaps none of the business men of the city have had an adequate idea of the numbers and strength of the organized labor in the city until after the parade of Monday.

The ball given by the printers on the evening of Labor Day was one of the best ever given in the city and the boys who had the matter in charge should be very proud of the event. The rink was crowded to overflowing with the merry throng and the music was of the best. The prize waits was one of the main events of the evening, and the prizes were won by the following ladies and gentlemen: First lady's prize, gold hat pin, Mrs. O. M. Gant; second lady's prize, brooch, set with brilliants, Miss Edith Sawyer; first gentleman's prize, set of gold cuff buttons and stick-pin-in-match, Mr. Stout; second gentleman's prize, handsome watch, Mr. Hansen.

SCHOOLS OPENED TUESDAY.

Enrollment of Seven Hundred Pupils in Two Days.

Superintendent Parker, while very busy with his duties at school, very courteously paid The Times man a little time and stated that the enrollment on Tuesday was over six hundred and on the next day had passed the seventh hundred mark. Twenty-five teachers reported for duty and temporary quarters in the Christian and Methodist churches have been fitted up, in order to take care of all the new Lincoln building can be used.

STEAM ROAD ON NORTH SIDE

Electricity for Operating to Be Installed Later.

TRAFFIC ON NEW ROAD FROM GOODING TO JEROME THIS FALL.

Locomotive for Construction Work Ordered—Tim and Material Being Rapidly Placed on Right-of-Way.

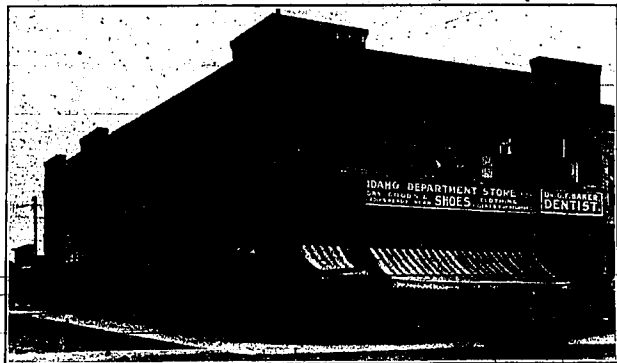

The Miller-Gooding railroad, in course of construction and to be eventually one of the network of electric lines that will traverse the southern part of the state, will be operated by steam this fall and winter and until such a time next spring as the trolley wires can be strung on the pole line, which will be erected.

The first locomotive has been purchased by the Twin Falls company, which is putting through the electric road, for construction work and orders have been issued from headquarters to rush the work as fast as possible. All material for the new road, including ties and rails, have been purchased and are being delivered along the right of way as rapidly as possible.

S. H. Hays, attorney for the Twin Falls company, and one of those interested in the building of the Miller-Gooding road, stated, when seen this afternoon, that it is true that work is being rushed along as fast as possible, and that track laying will proceed at a rapid rate until completed.

In regard to the operation of the eastern this fall he said: "During the fall the road will be operated with steam, the trolley wires to be strung early next spring. The ties and rails are being delivered on the ground as fast as we can get them, all such material for the road having been purchased. Orders have been issued to rush the work. The track laying has commenced, a locomotive, the first that will be in operation on the road, having been purchased from the Oregon Short Line Company for construction purposes.

"It is the first time that anything so ambitious has been attempted in this state, the people filling upon land many miles from any transportation and will be able to govern the land necessary for the purpose of settling there and building a railroad within a few miles of their land and water ready for their ranches.—Capital News.

Under the advice of Mr. Beach and management of Mr. Banta, the business has been conducted on sound, conservative business principles, and has again proven these gentlemen to be eminently adapted to the business, groceries, provisions, all of the best grades may be had at this great store, which is pleasing the most particular, every day.

Mr. Beach, president of this company, is one of the leading business men in the west, owns the largest department store in Lewiston, Idaho, and is an expert at buying, making trips semi-annually to the Eastern markets, bringing home with him only the cream of the various stocks.

Mr. Banta, manager, owns stock in this company, and although only continued here since the first of the year he has wisely concluded that Twin Falls ought to suit anybody, and has built himself a comfortable home and is one of us. He came here from Lewiston, having resided in the state

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE days of the house party at Shotover were numbered. A fresh relay of guests was to replace them on Monday, and so they were making the most of the remaining hours, and must, in covert and blind, or motoring madly over the state or riding in parties to Vermillion Light. Tennis and lawn bowls came into fashion. Even water polo and squash alternated, on days too rare for more than a sport.

And during all these days Beverly Plank appeared with undiminished persistence and assiduity, until his familiar, big round head and patent, dirty hair, Peck hair, a constant multiplier of course at Shotover, indoors and out.

The accomplished establishment of Beverly Plank was probably due as much to his own obstinate and good unbroken persistence as to Mrs. Mortimer. He was a Harvard graduate—there are all kinds of them—snobbishly wealthy, and, though he had no particular personal tastes to gratify, he was willing and able to gratify the tastes of others. He did whatever anybody else did and did it well enough to be amusing, and as lack of intellectual development never barred anybody from any section of the fashionable world, it seemed fair to infer that he would land where he wanted to sooner or later.

Meanwhile Mrs. Mortimer led him about with the confidence that was her prerogative, and the chances were that in the time he would have house parties of his own at Black Falls—not the kind he had—a body denied himself the pleasure of giving, with such neighbors as the Ferralls to observe, but the sort he desired. However, there were many things to be accomplished for him and by him before he could expect to use his great yacht and his estates and his shooting boxes and the vast granite mansion recently completed and facing central park just north of the new palaces built on the edges of the outer desert where Fifth avenue fringes the mountains.

Meanwhile he had become fit a wary, dovetailed at Shotover, and Shotover people gradually came to ride, drive and motor over the Fells, which was a good beginning, though not necessarily a promise for anything definite in the future.

Mortimer, riding a huge chestnut—he could still wedge himself into a saddle—had now made it a regular practice to affect the peculiar early line and stride and then, as he rode, "Plank's acquaintance among people who knew Mortimer being limited, he had no means of determining the latter's social value except through hearsay and a leading newspaper or two. Therefore he was not yet aware of Mortimer's personal worth of money, and when Mortimer laughingly alluded to his poverty, Plank accepted the proposition in a purely comparative sense, and, stretched out his thick Dutch snout untroubled by misgivings.

Meanwhile Mortimer had come among other things, on information; how much, and possibly of what nature, he was afraid to mention, and he admitted definitely, even to himself, "There was much about Plank that was unattractive, genuine, even simple, in one sense. He cared for people for their own sakes, and could stubbornly adhere to a decided opinion, but he enabled him to dispense with the society of many people he might easily have cultivated and like—people nearer his own sort, and that, perhaps, was the reason he so read Mr. Mortimer whose course then soon wore through the polished when rubbed against by a closer fiber. And Plank liked him aside from gratitude, and they got on famously on the basis of social and mutual recognition. Then, one day, very suddenly, Mortimer stumbled on something valuable—a thread, a mere clue—so astonishing that for an instant it absented his mind from his unadmitted theories and conclusions.

It was nothing—a vague word or two—a forced laugh—and the scared silence of this man Plank, who had blundered on the verge of a confidence to a man like him.

A moment of amusement, or half incredulous suspicion, of certainty, and Mortimer pounced playfully upon him like a tiger—a big fat, friendly, jocosely tiger.

"Plank, is that what you're up to?"

"Up to? Why, I never thought of such a thing."

"How, have?" roared Mortimer. "If you could only see your feet!"

And Beverly Plank, not at all best, comfortably outworn with reassurance under the reaction from his scare, attempted to refute the other's conclusions: "It doesn't mean anything, Mortimer. She's just the hair-dresser's girl I ever saw. I know she's engaged; I only admired her a lot."

"You're not the only man," said Mortimer bluntly, still striving to recall his preconceived theories with the awkward half confusion of his present red faced, huffing horseback riding at his stirrup.

"I wouldn't have her dream," stamped mered Plank, "that I had ever thought of such a thing."

"Why not? It would only flatter her."

"Flatter a woman who is engaged to marry another man?" gasped Plank.

"Certainly. Do you think any woman ever had enough admiration in this world?" asked Mortimer coolly. "And as for Sylvia Landis, she'd be flattered to death if anybody hinted that you had ever hinted her."

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Plank, alarmed. "You wouldn't make a joke of it? You wouldn't be careless about such a thing? And there's Quarrier! I'm not on joking terms with him. I'm on most formal terms."

"Certainly," muttered the other, steering at his stirrup with his crop. "He's on formal terms with everybody, including himself. He never lingers on purpose in his life; once a month only to keep his goods in the market. Do you suppose any woman would stand for him if a letter man looked sideways at her? And, reversing his riding crop, he deliberately pointed Mr. Plank in the ribs.

"A—'a better man!" muttered Plank, scarce crediting his ears.

"Certainly. A man who can make good, is good, but a man who can't—'a better man."—God bless 'em!" he added, displaying a heavy set of teeth.

Beverly Plank knew perfectly well that in the comparison so delicately suggested by Mortimer his material equipment could be accurately compared to the immense fortune controlled by Howard Quarrier, and as he thought it his reflections were put into words by Mortimer, angrily enough.

"—'a better man," he muttered in a show down with Quarrier, "but—"

Plank gasped until the tension became unbearable.

"That—that?" he blurted out.

"That," said Mortimer solemnly, and his voice throbbed with feeling, "let me do a little thinking before I ask you a—'a vital question."

But Plank had become agitated again, and he said something so bluntly that Mr. Mortimer wheeled on him, growling:

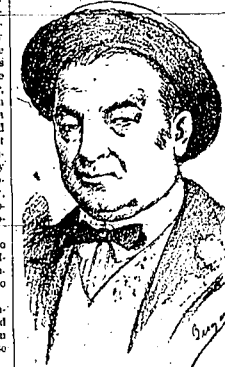

"Look here, Plank; you don't suppose I'm capable of repeating a confidence, do you—if you choose to make me understand a confidence?"

"It isn't a confidence; it isn't anything. I mean it is confidential, of course. All there's in it is what I said, or rather, what you took me up on so fast," ended Plank, ashamed, "about your being in love with Sylvia."

"Confound it!" roared Plank, crimson to his hair. And he set his heavy square to his mouth and plunged forward in a storm of abuse. Mortimer followed, silent, profoundly immersed in his own thoughts and deductions.

And all that afternoon, having taken to his room on pretense of neuralgia, he might even in a contemplative way, but he (Mortimer) did not resemble such men in any particular. All he desired was to do Plank a good turn. There was nothing disreputable in doing a wealthy man a favor. And God knew that Mrs. Mortimer's gratitude expressed to him at that very moment—gratitude substantially acknowledged. He liked Plank, wished him well. That was all right, too, but a man is not his own master when it comes to his wife. And he had no love for his wife! Besides, it would teach Sylvia—a wholesome lesson—teach her that he still counted; serve her right for her disgusting friendship for Plank.

No, there was to be nothing disreputable in his proceedings; that he would be very careful about. Producing Major Belwether, that expressed his gratitude substantially if he, Mortimer, went to him frankly and volunteered not to mention to Quarrier the scene

he had witnessed between Sylvia Landis and Stephen Sward at 3 o'clock in the morning in the corridor, and if in playful rebellion he had displayed the cap and rain coat and the big fan, all crushed, which objects of interest he had discovered later in the bay window. Yes, probably Major Belwether would be very grateful, because he wanted Quarrier in the family. He needed Quarrier in his business. But, faith! That was close enough to blackmail to rub off. No, no! He wouldn't go to Belwether and promise any such thing. On the contrary, he felt it his duty to inform Quarrier that he had a right to know what sort

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET.

For President,
WM. H. TAFT.
For Vice-President,
JAS. R. SHERMAN.

A good many voters in this county will be particularly anxious to know just how much time the candidates will promise to spend in their office, if elected.

Very little dissatisfaction is expressed in political circles over French's defeat at the convention. Nearly every Republican seems to think that a change will do no harm.

Bryan is to again make a "jack rabbit tour" campaigning this fall. If he makes the same impression as he did during the silver campaign, the rest of the barnstormers will have to work just so much harder to offset the falling enthusiasm.

The fire Tuesday served at least to point out defects in our fire-fighting system. After a splendid run to the fire at the Haverstick residence the hose carts were unused because no fire plugs could be tapped within a radius of two blocks in any direction. It is up to the city council to get busy at once and provide taxpayers with fire protection. Fire plugs should be located in alternate corners all over the city, so that every residence would be within reach of one plug.

Secretary of State Lansing must have tried to pick the easiest faction to beat when he dubbed the anti-Dubois bunch as the regular Democratic ticket. Certainly he could not have made his selection on the proceedings of the convention.

Campaign season is the one time in the year when the newspaper man can get something for nothing. During the past week The Times has had more free editorials offered than it will be able to use in four years. No thanks, we prefer to do our own thing about the perfection of the state candidates. It will be easier to keep tabs on each one.

J. K. Hart has shied his castor into the ring and wants the nomination for county commissioner from the second district. Mr. Hart is a shrewd and bright business man and would be sure to give the taxpayers at least a chance to get due service out of the officers for their salary and would carefully guard the expenditures of the officers. As far as letting padded bills go through arising on the county, Mr. Hart is from Missouri, and will have to be shown. Furthermore, he has the backbone to turn a bill down, if he thinks it unjust.

R. A. Carter this week has something of interest for the voters on the front page, and he is to be commended for taking the initiative in promising to the voters a faithful attention to the duties of his office in case he is nominated and elected to the office of probate judge. The notorious neglect of the office by the present incumbent has been too well known to the voters to need any comment, and yet it might be well to state that the county in each month paying fees into the justice court which should by all rights be added to the fees of the probate court of the county.

The shameful treatment of the temperance lecturer by a bunch of rowdies last Monday evening, who attempted by vile language to break up the meeting, is rightfully resented by every citizen who believes in fair play and decency. If the men who used the indecent language had no respect for the speaker, they should have at least had respect for the ladies who were passing, or who formed a part of the speaker's audience. The police should have run the men in and given them a chance to sober up. It is high time that the use of vile and profane language on our streets should be cut out.

Dr. George L. Crocker of Marcos has declared his intention of running for representative from this district, subject to the primaries next Monday. Dr. Crocker is a man of education and particularly broad-minded in every way, and this characteristic, coupled with his known honesty, should make him a valuable man for the legislature. If the voters make him the nominee at the primaries, they can rest assured that the interests of the tract will be taken care of in a careful manner. While the doctor is not an orator, yet in the committee work he has shown intelligence and knowledge of public affairs would be of inestimable value to the constituency. One thing is certain that any nominee made in the state platform would be actively supported by Mr. Crocker.

The special edition which this week will be sent out from The Times office is not as large and as complete as we hoped to make it, but considering the space of time in which the work had to be done, we have no apologies to offer and will not attempt to make any. The editor of The Times wishes to be distinctly understood in saying that the edition is not intended as a reflection on any business man whose name does not appear. Every man was given a chance to get in on the deal and no coercion was used in any way, shape or manner. The gentlemen who have entered into the advertising of the edition will no doubt receive returns from it, and they have paid for the privilege as for any other form. Those who have not have just as much public spirit and just as much business ability no doubt, and it is our purpose to remind each and every man that only the best of feeling will be manifested toward every business man, regardless of the special edition.

THE EXONERATION OF JEROME.
Nobody seems to be very greatly surprised or grieved at the exoneration of District Attorney Jerome, of New York, except the two newspapers that have been demanding his deportation. The Baltimore News believes the verdict "is not unexpected by those who have followed the case," and it thinks that "there is no reason to doubt either the honesty or capacity of Jerome." The Brooklyn Standard Union, similarly, says his vindication "is but the rightful due of an honest and competent official," and the New York Evening Post declares it has always believed in him, and adds that although "positive proof" of his corruption has been ascertained many times, "the proof was never been forthcoming." In the present verdict, remarks the New York Sun, "not a trace remains of the whole treacherous, miserable, threepenny fabric of malice, mercenary interest, and yellow sensationalism; while we get, about as fine a portrait as was ever drawn in history or fiction of an honest man and a public servant of rare ability and energy and sincere purpose in the public service." Literary Digest.

THE TARIFF ISSUE.

(From Sherman's Speech of Acceptance.)

First, then, let me say that I am a protectionist. I am fully practical to value the utility of a fact higher than the beauty of a theory, and I am a protectionist because experience has demonstrated that the application of that principle has lifted up a nation to a plane of prosperity above that occupied by any other people.

I especially commend that plank of our platform which promises an early revision of tariff schedules. That pledge will be fulfilled in an adjustment based in every particular upon the broad principles of protection for all American interests; alike for labor, for capital, for producers and consumers. The Dingley bill, when enacted, was well adapted to the then existing conditions. The developments of industrial prosperity in a decade, which in volume and degree have surpassed our most rosy expectations, have so altered conditions that in certain details of schedules they no longer in every particular meet out justice to all. In this readjustment the principle of protection must and will govern; such duties must and will be imposed as will equalize the cost of production at home and abroad and insure a reasonable profit to all American interests. The Republican idea of such a profit embraces not alone the manufacturer, nor alone the capitalist investor, but all engaged in American production, the employer and employed, the artisan, the farmer, the miner and those engaged in transportation and trade; broadly speaking, those engaged in every pursuit and calling which but tariff directly or indirectly affects. During a statutory application of this principle, prosperity has shined with us. When a revenue tariff has been the law, adversity and want have been our portion. Our Democratic brethren, whose memories are fast as afloat as their promises are frail, and who have always exhibited a lack of capacity to profit by experience, unmindful of the distress and destruction that arrived and departed with the last Democratic administration, declare in their platform that they favor such "immediate revision of... schedules as may be necessary to restore the tariff to a revenue basis." A "revenue basis," a "tariff for revenue only," "ultimate free trade" all have an identical meaning; that meaning being an assault upon the American industries, an attack upon the American wage scale, a lessening demand for the products of American soil and American toil; less work, less pay, less of the necessities and comforts of life. In the light of history, what issue of the campaign so vitally affects American citizens? Experience, that effective teacher--effective save with the one-man power now parading under the title of the Democratic party--has taught the nation a valuable lesson and the result of the coming November election will once more prove the American people to be apt scholars. What the laborer of the hand, skilled and unskilled, desires is the opportunity at all times to exchange his brain and brawn for good pay in good money. A protective tariff and the gold standard, both now existing achievements of the Republican party, in spite of Democratic opposition, give the laborer that opportunity.

HANSEN NEWS.

Hansen Sept. 6th, 1905.
Hollo Crater went to Twin Falls on Tuesday to enter the high school at that place.
Miss Almada Roberts and her brother Shively has one of the best men on next Saturday to attend school in that place.
Anton Hendricks has moved his family into the new house that he has just completed. The building is a very neat and comfortable one, and is extremely well built. The cost will reach nearly $2,000.
J. M. Shively is building a new house on his farm northwest of town. Shively has one of the best gardeners in the neighborhood and his orchard is coming into bearing, although it will not yet supply the market with Hansen.
Rev. J. H. Barton of Boise will preach next Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock at the school house. Sunday school will convene at 10:00 o'clock, and the question of a permanent change of time to the forenoon, instead of the afternoon for holding the services will be considered.
W. H. Calkins returned the first of the week from the "King's Hill" region where he had gone with the intention of possibly locating. If the opinion is correct, he has not yet located. Evidently it did not suit for he expressed himself as so glad to get back that he felt like going out and rolling in the Twin Falls dust.
H. G. Holmes and family started on Tuesday last for California, going overland. Their destination is to be some point in the northern part of that state, where they expect to locate permanently. Mr. Holmes is one of the oldest settlers of this portion of the tract and he and his family will be greatly missed.
Mr. A. Dextrup of Colorado Springs spent three days last week with the family of F. E. Griswold, he being a relative of Mrs. Griswold. Mr. Dextrup has been engaged in installing the new street car system in the city of Cheyenne, Wyo. He expressed himself as greatly pleased with this portion of the Twin Falls tract, and with the city of Twin Falls.

A Ladies' Circle, an auxiliary to the Presbyterian church, was organized on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Good. The object of the organization is to be an aid to all good work in our community, and also a means of social benefit to all our people. The first regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Towne on Wednesday of this week. A large attendance is expected. Ice cream and cake will be served.
Mr. Everett Green and Miss Frances Brownlee were married on last Wednesday at 2 o'clock p. m. at the Presbyterian parsonage in Twin Falls. Rev. John Gourley performed the ceremony. The young couple set up house-keeping at once in the house owned by F. E. Griswold and there some of their friends found them and tendered some glad music, mostly executed on the bride and groom with them long life and prosperity.
