

POULTRY SHOW OPENS TODAY

A Large Number of Entries from All Over Country.

OFFICERS HIGHLY PLEASSED WITH RESPONSE FROM EXHIBITORS.

Over Four Hundred Entries Reported By Mrs. B. F. McPherson, Secretary of the Twin Falls Poultry Association.

The Twin Falls poultry exhibit started out with a flourish this morning when the doors of the rink were thrown open to the visitor's gaze. The flock of chickens, including biddies and roosters, were ranged around the big floor nearly filling the space on all sides. While it is too early to estimate the total number of entries at the beginning of the show, yet the management is delighted over the interest in which the fanciers of the county have responded and the people of the county will receive a surprise over the varieties and breeds exhibited.

His Sublimity a Hard Body Blow in His Entertainments.

The event of Germaine, the Wizard, in Twin Falls, may safely be put down as the star attraction of the local course, and in his demonstrations last night proved his title to the term "Wizard." While performing a large number of the stock tricks of the demand he introduced some tricks in the spiritualistic world at the same time protesting that he did not claim to call in the aid of the supernatural. The slate writing and the cloning scenes not only startled the audience, but proved equally mystifying to all.

TO BEATIFY SHOSHONE FALLS.

Senator M. J. Sweeley introduces Bill in Legislature.

Senator M. J. Sweeley has introduced a bill in the senate, to provide for a state park at the Shoshone Falls. The state owns 127 acres of land west of the falls that is of no use for anything else but for park purposes. If the bill is passed, this county is to spend $2,000 a year to be asked from the state to improve the land.

The bill refers to the surroundings at the falls as follows:

"The surroundings of the falls are but little improved and furnish inadequate accommodations and conveniences for tourists. The land desired for a park provides some of the finest views of the scenery and embraces places that by improvement can be made of great interest and national attraction."

"The land is rough and rocky and so close by the Snake river and ravines to be of practically no financial value, but with the proper outlet and attention can be developed into an asset of great importance to the state."

COUNCIL ORDERS RIGID QUARANTINE

Calls Special Meeting to Confer with Citizens.

SCHOOL PATRONS ASK STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF HEALTH LAWS.

City Council Appoints Special Patrolmen to See that No Persons Shall Enter or Leave Afflicted Quarters.

Pursuant to a request made by the patrons and trustees of the public schools, the city council convened in special session last Thursday night to decide on better quarantine for three cases of scarlet fever so far reported within the corporate limits. After the indignant citizens had expressed their opinion the council issued orders to the health officer to appoint special officers to patrol the streets in front of the houses and to arrest anyone attempting to enter or leave the premises. While rumors make the danger seem much greater than reality, yet the disease is stopped as far as the city is concerned and the authorities wish to keep it in check. One more case has been reported in the country, but owing to the lack of state laws the authorities are helpless to establish a quarantine outside the city limits.

The school board, while keeping a strict watch on the disease, do not anticipate further spread and will not close the schools until such action should become imperative.

RIVAL COMPANIES IN THE FIELD

REPRESENTATIVES FROM BUTTE AND SALT LAKE IN THE CITY.

Montana Company Offers Reductions in Present Rates On An Automatic System—Committee Will Investigate.

"The meeting of the Commercial club on Monday evening brought out nothing but further perplexity for the phone users. The cause of the perplexity lies this time in the number of companies applying for a franchise. Representatives from the Utah Independent Telephone company and the Montana automatic telephone of Butte were present and presented, through Mr. Rixley, placed the cost for Butte, on behalf of his company, stated that in his opinion the cost of installing a new system would be in the neighborhood of $25,000, and that it could be ready for use in about sixty days. He further stated in response to questions that the rates in Butte for the automatic system were lower than the rates of the Bell company in cities of the same size. A rough estimate by Mr. Rixley placed the cost for service at $2.00 for business phones and $1.50 to $2.00 for residences. Long distance service could not be promised short of six months."

It. B. Jones of Salt Lake City, representing the Utah Independent Telephone company, was next given a hearing and proceeded to state that in his opinion that a system of central energy would cost $35,000 and would take three months to install from the time of beginning. He would make no promise of reduction of rates in any case.

The club then took up the question of franchise and after debate voted to ask the council to grant a franchise to one of the two independent companies after a committee from the club had investigated the merits of the rival propositions.

DOING A FLOURISHING BUSINESS.

He has installed complete equipment for repairing every make of car and will also be in a position to do high grade machine work.

GETTING DOWN TO CERTAINTY.

The construction of the Buhl main line extension of the Short Line through the Brunceau country along the north side of the Snake river to a point opposite Parma, and from that point across the river to the present main line would seem assured, reliable reports are received to the effect that the Short Line cut-off of engineers, who have been working in the Brunceau country for the past several months, are now cross sectioning the extension and have reached a point midway between the Salmon river and Brunceau at a place called "water camp."

Railroad men and engineers familiar with the system followed in the surveying on surveys, making out the route and driving grade stakes, has been noncommittal and information as to the probable connection with the present main line has not been vouchsafed.

For a short time indications pointed toward the probable point of connection, but from recent developments it would seem that Parma or a point in that vicinity is to be the connecting link of the Brunceau country line of the railroad. It is said that by crossing at a point nearly opposite Parma many miles of construction, through swampy country along the Snake river to the west of Parma, will be avoided and the present track from Parma on through Oregon utilized.

The route surveyed taps a rich section of the Brunceau country, passing as it does through the largest of the largest irrigation projects and proposed one, and at the same time obtaining almost a water grade along the Snake river from Buhl through the Brunceau country to the present main line again near the state line between Oregon and Idaho.

The route has been considered the most feasible one in southern Idaho for a transcontinental road and it is known that the Short Line has long had the project in mind, and that the project has been considered, will be the main line of the Short Line in judgment of the railroad promoters, as on this route the two long hills in the vicinity of Glenn Ferry and King Hill will be eliminated and the cost of operation of the road greatly reduced.

INSTITUTE PROVES MOST SUCCESSFUL

Rain and Bad Roads Make Attendance Small.

EXCELLENT PAPERS READ BY STATE UNIVERSITY EXPERTS.

Several of the Helpful Articles Prepared To Be Reproduced in the County Newspapers.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week the Farmers' Institute occupied the center-of-the-stage and attracted a large number of ranchers in spite of the mud and rain. The program as published was carried out to a great extent and the different topics of farm work were ably handled by the speakers. Most of the men were farmers who have made a marked success in some branch of agriculture or horticulture and their papers, carefully written, were subjected to a critical questioning by the audience. The debates in all cases developed much information. The institute which was to a great extent the direct work of Alex. McPherson and J. A. Waters, proved of such benefit to all who attended that next year a larger attendance is certain. The presence at the meeting of Professor Francis Frandon and Shinn of the State University at Moscow, added materially to the success of the institute with their articles on Sheep, Dairying and Landscape Gardening.

A number of the papers given were secured by the managers and will be published in the county papers for the benefit of the farmers unable to attend the sessions.

Articles by Prof. Frandon and A. P. Senor on "Dairying" and "Market Gardening," respectively, appear in this issue and the other articles will be printed in later issues.

DAIRYING.

(By Professor J. H. Frandon, University of Idaho.)

That dairy farming is a profitable business is fully shown by its marvellous growth during the last decade. No other branch of agriculture has ever seen such rapid development in the same length of time. Its growth has been undiminished and it is in all parts of our country. The dairy cow produces more human food from a given amount of feed than any other animal, and the farm, and as the population of the United States increases, dairying will become more and more important.

Many sections of Idaho possess conditions particularly favorable to dairying. Here is found cheaper land, plenty of water, and a rich soil in protein, good water and a mild and sunny climate.

1809 1909 The Lincoln Centenary

The Nation's Tribute to
"A Great White Soul," a
"Humanized Interpretation of the Golden Rule"

By James A. Edgerton
Copyright, 1909, by the American Press Association

THE hour when a great white soul comes to earth should be held in perpetual memory. The soul has found our press as a hallowed ground. Time and place are never so sacred as when they mark the advent of these sent of God to help men. They form the links that bind heaven and earth. They lend an added luster to every time and every place, just as one who wears the human form worthily confers nobility on all of the sons of men.

Abraham Lincoln made every one in human guise more precious. He was a symbol of the homeliest and commonest, yet of the highest and rarest human things. We cannot think of him without becoming more loving, more charitable and more true. There is not an element in him that does not make one better to contemplate. The pure in heart can read all of his life without a blush, and the gentlest and most timid can view his every deed without a shudder. Lincoln had goodness without self righteousness, spirituality without cant, intellectuality without dogmatism and power without tyranny. He had most of the talents with none of their abuses. There are many great men we can admire and respect, but Lincoln we can love.

He was born a hundred years ago this year. It is fitting, therefore, that the land for which he lived and died should honor the event as it has honored but one other of its sons. We have not enough of the supreme souls that we can spare the example of one. It is not for their sake that we canonize them, but for the sake of all the rest. They do not need our canonization, we need their stimulus. By uplifting them we uplift ourselves. They act as local committee of the Lincoln Centennial association are such distinguished men as former Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson, Chief Justice Fuller of the United States supreme court, Senators Cullum and Hopkins, General Cannon, Governor Deneen, General Manager M. V. Stone of the Associated Press and other old or new friends of the martyr president equally eminent.

Among those who will participate in the centenary exercises are the British and French ambassadors, the two recent candidates for the presidency, ex-Secretary Taft and Mr. Bryan, and others whose names are household words in more than one land. Now that the Springfield program has been adopted by the educational authorities of so many of the states this simple ceremony will become the most widely distributed and impressive memorial service ever given to a single man on the American continent if not in the world. But this will by no means end the observation of the Lincoln centenary. Almost equally notable will be the celebration at the birthplace and the adoption by the educational authorities of so many of the states this simple ceremony will become the most widely distributed and impressive memorial service ever given to a single man on the American continent if not in the world.

There is a generous emulation without rivalry between the two committees that have in charge the respective celebration at the birthplace and the tomb. Thus the two ends of Mr. Lincoln's pathway will be bright with glory, while the fame of his life will stretch like a rainbow between them. If Lincoln had lived back in the days of Pericles or Augustus I have often imagined the sort of rich story Plutarch would have made of him. At a little earlier period, born in that charming but uncertain dawn of history before the shadows had quite lifted, men would have created of him an Odin or one of those delightful old pagan demigods that struggled dragons with their naked hands. But we have not so much to crow over, for they almost did that with Washington in our own day.

Let us beware of putting Lincoln on a pedestal. It is the record and every day humanity of the man that is his chief charm. It is easy to marvel at a higher order of beings, but hard to love them. Lincoln is close enough to us to love, and we must keep him so. There are enough little tin deities, but we need this man for our common humanity. He is too big, too warm and too precious to get him out of reach. They have robbed us of most of our heroes by making them unhuman and impossible, but they shall not do it with Lincoln. He belongs to our man and woman world, and we are going to keep him for our own. The far shining greatness of his soul makes his guarded hands and wrinkled face all the more precious to us. Let us have all the continuities of him, the message of the years will permit, let us have libraries full of books about him, but never let him be removed from the plain people that he loved and that loved him. Almost anybody can be an aristocrat, but it takes one of God's own great, tender men to be a perfect democrat. It is this quality that makes Lincoln so alive in the hearts of the millions, and the man that robes him of even a part of it will in that far do him to death. Make the birthplace farm an splendid park as you like, but keep the little old one room cabin on it as a reminder. Retain enough of the homelike to show what they were. We men who have to carve our way in the world, who have to cling to principles and choose right from wrong, who have to keep our hearts aware through trials need all of the example of Lincoln to help us on. The man who robs us of even the humblest part of that inspiring story is a fraud neither to Lincoln nor to us. We want to feel that he was such a man as we are, or at least such a man as we may become. He was our big brother, and we see the way he did things and then, kind as you may do them. He was great not because remote, but because so close. He was so common he became the most uncommon man in our time. He was so human he grew the most divine. He was so meek he became a king of men. He was so poor he has all the riches of our love.

It is such a man whose centenary we celebrate. There is no square on all the broad land who will not participate in word or deed or thought. There are no classes in the appreciation of Lincoln. Labor loves him because he was a friend of labor and himself talked with his hands. The black man loves him for freedom. The north loves him as a leader, the south as a native son and a true friend. Culture appreciates him for his great literature, his high quality and his high soul. The common people cherish him as their own child. The nation reverences him as its preserver. The whole race of man prizes him for his large heart and his loving kindness. He was a humanized interpretation of the Golden Rule, an incarnation of the sermon on the mount.

spiritual magnets to draw us to their height. By contemplating them we unconsciously grow like them. No one can measure the moral force of one Lincoln centenary.

All men are in substantial agreement as to their verdict concerning him. The only difference is in the degree of their praise. There is no sectionalism in his appreciation. The south could not spare his gentle memory more than the north. Never was a victor less like a conqueror. It is as impossible to feel resentment toward him as toward a dead father.

We grow like what we love. It is this fact which lends such a beautiful significance to the universal regard for Lincoln, that makes so inspiring the widespread celebration of the centenary of his birth. A nation which builds itself around such an ideal will not only have "new birth of freedom," but will have a new birth of peace, of manhood and of nobility that will place it in the forefront of the nations of all time.

It will be an inspiring spectacle when at the same hour on 25 states and territories in all parts of the nation turn their faces toward the tomb at Springfield. It may well be that this ceremony will become worldwide and that Americans in all parts of the world will join the celebrators at Springfield in repeating certain of Mr. Lincoln's utterances with their faces toward his place of rest. Among the eminent illustrious who form the if mainformation we are in concerning Washington, in whose case we have to depend on the speeches and "witnesses" for some historical fairy tales.

Lincoln has not entirely escaped from these romances even as it is, but they started their fiction factories so early that it has been possible to create and brand most of the output. For example, there were a lot of the oldest inhabitants in several southern states who felt it their bounden duty to reflect on his paternity. All all have been duly traced to their origin, proved to be erroneous and branded. Then somebody came to the surface who said he had heard somebody say that had heard somebody else say that Lincoln was not born on the birthplace farm, but in an entirely different part of Kentucky. He made some sort of affidavit on the ground of this hearsay information. Now, it is fortunate all this happened while there were reliable, truth loving people on earth who knew—just where Lincoln was born. Thus the thing could be demonstrated beyond cavil, nailed down and established for the ages. This saves posterity a lot of unnecessary speculation, investigation and trouble. Suppose these stories had been sprung after everybody that knew Lincoln had died. The thing would have trickled its way down through the centuries. A very large portion of ancient history belongs in the fiction department of our libraries.

Another matter of respect. Many of those who have written lives of Mr. Lincoln associated with him daily. He was great enough to seem great to his secretaries and partners. The telegraph operators at the war department, the attendants about the White House, the common soldiers who saw their commander in chief, all had some sort of inner prompting that this was not just an ordinary president but that there was the sort of man that would interest the twenty-second century. So they made mental notes and printed them. The world has grown in 2000 years so much that a prophet has been able to own country and among those of his own household. They may not see all of his greatness, but if they even measure some angles of it these furnish a basis for future computations. If Lincoln had lived back in the days of Pericles or Augustus I have often imagined the sort of rich story Plutarch would have made of him. At a little earlier period, born in that charming but uncertain dawn of history before the shadows had quite lifted, men would have created of him an Odin or one of those delightful old pagan demigods that struggled dragons with their naked hands. But we have not so much to crow over, for they almost did that with Washington in our own day.

Let us beware of putting Lincoln on a pedestal. It is the record and every day humanity of the man that is his chief charm. It is easy to marvel at a higher order of beings, but hard to love them. Lincoln is close enough to us to love, and we must keep him so. There are enough little tin deities, but we need this man for our common humanity. He is too big, too warm and too precious to get him out of reach. They have robbed us of most of our heroes by making them unhuman and impossible, but they shall not do it with Lincoln. He belongs to our man and woman world, and we are going to keep him for our own. The far shining greatness of his soul makes his guarded hands and wrinkled face all the more precious to us. Let us have all the continuities of him, the message of the years will permit, let us have libraries full of books about him, but never let him be removed from the plain people that he loved and that loved him. Almost anybody can be an aristocrat, but it takes one of God's own great, tender men to be a perfect democrat. It is this quality that makes Lincoln so alive in the hearts of the millions, and the man that robes him of even a part of it will in that far do him to death. Make the birthplace farm an splendid park as you like, but keep the little old one room cabin on it as a reminder. Retain enough of the homelike to show what they were. GARDENING FOR THE MARKET

GROWING EARLY GARDEN TRUCK FOR PROFIT

Paper Read By A. F. Senior at the Market Institute in Twin Falls, Idaho, June 22.

My chief business is fruit growing, principally strawberries, but I can make it quite profitable growing vegetables for market. The only way to grow garden truck in a country town is by getting your stuff ahead of the other fellow. The early start is the most profitable.

The first thing that should be considered by the prospective gardener is location, which should have a southern slope if possible, or close to some live town or have first-class shipping facilities.

The second thought to me is not to have the garden so close to the property taken care of. Slipshod methods of cultivation will not produce results. Again, another thought—be close to the probable demand and plant accordingly.

After all these preliminaries have been thought out the next thought is the soil which should be enriched by well rotted manure or compost. Again, another thought—be close to the probable demand and plant accordingly. Next, make all your rows straight as a line and just as long as possible. It is more economical to cultivate long rows than short ones.

In buying seeds buy the best even if they cost a little more. Buying cheap seeds is a costly saving.

After the seeds are planted, at their proper time, the gardener should not let his hands get ready for irrigation and in place as he will not have time later on. And let me say right now, I consider the proper cultivation of the water, both as to time and quantity, one of the first essentials of successful gardening. Never flood your ground, if you do you are making a heap of trouble for yourself later on.

When you have to irrigate make your furrows deep and allow the water to sub. Let this piece of advice be remembered by everyone as it is applicable to everyone farming on this tract. And again be careful as possible in the use of the water. If the above advice is followed one, and not over two, irrigations will mature most of the crops, at least I have found it so.

When you market your vegetables see that they are washed clean and put in the best form possible, and get them to market as quickly as you can.

Every gardener should have a small hot bed. The hot bed is an essential to every garden. Peppers, egg plant, cauliflower, early cabbage and tomatoes can be raised in a hot bed profitably without the aid of a hot bed.

To treat on every kind of vegetable separately would take up too much time, but we will say if the above advice is taken seriously the market gardener can make a financial success of his business.

Practice intensive and scientific gardening. Try everything new in a small way as you may get something good. Practice the community as well as yourself. As to the line of vegetables to grow the gardener must be governed by the demand. Gardening is hard work, but you must use your own matter along with the whole and you will obtain results.

Record Breaking Exhibit of Thoroughbreds and Grades.

BIGGEST AND BEST SHOW EVER HELD IN AMERICA.

Idaho Range Breeder Wins the Silver Trophy Cup and Honors the Gem State.

Along with the forty-fifth annual convention of the National Woolgrowers' association, the Midwinter Sheep Show in this city has passed into history. It will live in the memory of members of the organization as by long odds the greatest sheep exhibition ever held in America. It was undoubtedly a brilliant success. Not only were there double the number of entries ever shown at a previous international show, but the character of the exhibits was of high standard. Among the entries were blue ribbon winners from the famous international show at Chicago, the Derby event in the livestock world.

The magnificent silver trophy cup, offered by the national association, to the best single exhibit, was, of course, the prize most sought after. The awarding of this cup to the Butterfield Livestock company gave general satisfaction, although A. J. Knollin of Chicago, felt rather disappointed in not being selected as the lucky man. Mr. Knollin's exhibit, taken as a whole was a most excellent one. The Butterfield exhibit consisted of Hampshire, Delaines and Ramboulllets. The Hampshire consisted of a number of the Butterfield company's home bred and a number of imported ones, some of which have taken prizes at exhibitions both in this country and England.

The Hampshire was also specimens of that breed, and very large, one of them weighing 400 pounds. They are descendants of the famous Shattuck herd of Stansbury, Missouri. More prizes have been taken by Ramboulllets from the Shattuck herd, at exhibitions than all other herds in the country combined. One of the rams in this bunch took first prize at the international livestock show at Chicago last year. They are very valuable animals.

The bunch of Delaines were a beautiful lot of sheep, probably a finer could not be got together in the United States. They represent the best of the Delaine breed. Two of the animals were exhibited in eight different competitions in England, and took first prizes in every contest but one, and in that took second prize. A ram and ewe of the bunch were exhibited at the Royal Sheep show in England last year, before being imported to the United States. Home bred yearlings of this breed won all the prizes at the Idaho State Fair at Boise last fall.

The car was in charge of George H. Brodell, manager of the Butterfield Livestock company, one of the best authorities on fine sheep in the United States.

The Butterfield Livestock company is one of the foremost breeders of fine sheep in the country, and their yards and runs at the home ranch two miles west of Weiser are models and well worth a visit by those who are admirers of fine sheep.

Sheepmen from all over the United States attended the convention and were surprised to find that the finest sheep in the country were in far-off Idaho.

Too much credit for the success of the show cannot be given to the members of the exhibit committee. Chairman Richard Douglas and Secretary Rork worked early and late to make the affair a record-breaker and that they succeeded is generally conceded.—Pocatello Tribune.

The sentiment in favor of paying Main avenue is growing stronger every day that the mud continues, and the city council will no doubt be petitioned to order such paving laid and the cost of the same charged to the abutting property owners. The business men upon whom the expense of such improvement falls the heaviest, are all heartily in favor and with their usual hustle wish to have the matter taken up and paving put in before the dust gets too thick. While the taxation would fall on only a few of the business men, and all citizens get the benefit, yet as long as these public spirited business men do not kick the rest should not.

That the pay of the county commissioners, which is set at three hundred dollars per year, is too small, is pretty generally conceded by the business men of the tract. While under ordinary conditions in an old county the work of the commissioners narrows down to the quarterly sessions at which the work is done in a week's time and the commissioners can return home, in this county it is far different and the task of the commissioners is by no means easy. New business is continually arising and the commissioners have to be continually in session or viewing roads and other improvements and the amount received is not enough compensation when a man gives his time to the county's business. Besides the increasing value of the present county court house construction will necessarily take up considerable time for which the commissioners are at present virtually donating their services. By rating this county from the third to the first class the pay of the commissioners could be increased to five or seven hundred-fifty dollars per year and give at least a recompense for actual time expended which the present rate does not. Besides it is worth something to be in the first class of counties of this state.

The Commercial club has given its choice Monday night of two forms of telephone systems from two independent sources. In one case, that of the Utah Independent company, the only promise made was of good service, with no reduction of the present rates. If that in the final decision of the said independent company then it is fully to make any change, for the Bell company promises better service. From its own proposition the Utah Independent Telephone company is out of the running as far as asking for a franchise is concerned. On the other hand the Montana system through its representative, promised a lower rate and instantaneous automatic service in return for a franchise. It would seem that the latter proposition is the one toward which the citizens of this city should look for relief. The investigation of its service and financial standing is at the same time necessary and the committee should see to it that a thorough report be made of its investigation in order that no mistake may be made in the future.

In the Senate—S. R. No. 19, by Sweetley an ACT.

Giving to any city or village the power to require individuals, associations and corporations operating any heating plant, waterworks, gas works, electric light or power plant or telephone system or exchange within such city or village, or supplying the products of such plants, works, systems or exchanges, to furnish said products and the proper service connected therewith, and to regulate and fix the rates and charges for such products and services and the charges and rentals for meters and devices for measuring the consumption of said products, and providing that such powers shall not be annulled or abridged by ordinance, resolution or contract. Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Idaho:

Section 1. In addition to the other powers now conferred by law, any city or village shall have the power to require every individual, association or corporation operating within such city

A Communication.

To the Editor of the Twin Falls Times.
Dear Sir:—I was much pleased with your editorial of December 10th in regard to the establishment of some state institution for the proper care of homeless children. It gives me pleasure to inform you and the readers of your paper that the "National Home Society," which has done most commendable work in other parts of the country, has established an auxiliary society in this state with headquarters in Boise. Rev. O. P. Christian has been appointed superintendent for this state, and he can be addressed at Boise where he has his work well begun. It is to be hoped that he will soon visit Twin Falls, that we may get in touch with such a noble organization. Experience has proven that the most desirable and most successful plans to rear a child to a useful and happy manhood or womanhood is in a Christian home, where the child can enjoy the mutual love and helpfulness of family life. The Children's Home Society keeps its children in its institutional home only long enough to find the proper family home for them, and then continues to exercise a watchful care over their interests.
GEO. W. CARTER.

ELEVATOR AND MILL FOR JEROME.

J. K. Mullins Elevator Company, of Denver, Colo., Buys Building Site.

Raise all the grain you care to this year and by the time you have threshed there will be a big mill and elevator at Jerome ready to handle your crop. A personal representative of the J. K. Mullins Elevator & Milling Company of Denver, Colorado, was in Jerome this week for the purpose of investigating the resources of the section for a mill and elevator. He was so well pleased with the North-Side that he immediately closed a deal for lots 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16, in block 100, the consideration being $1,000.

It is understood that an elevator similar to the one at Twin Falls owned by the Mullins people will be built here and milling machinery will be installed for flour making at an early date—North Side News.

For a week there has not been a train into Jerome, as the various engines used by the Idaho Pacific have not been as yet repaired. This has cut Jerome off from the outside world as the livestockmen will not guarantee to haul a person in either Twin Falls or Shoshone until the roads get better.

Al Owens and Geo. Kenney have moved the store room to the new building which will be used for their office. These gentlemen have been connected with the engineering department of the Idaho Pacific and are the best posted men on the tract as to the lay of the land. GROWTH OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Nearly 25,000,000 Children Are Now Studying the Bible.

Whether in city or country, housed in its own magnificent building or picking in a dilapidated mountain shack, with thousands of children or with barely a baker's dozen, the Sunday school is today considered the strategic center of the great church militant.

The Sunday schools of the United States today are estimated to have 11,500,000 pupils and 1,500,000 teachers. Given a voice in affairs of church or state, this would represent no mean influence.

The Sunday schools of the world show 22,738,322 little Christians working their way through the grades of Bible study, learning the needs of the mission field and being graduated into church membership.—Dollinger.

DAIRYING.

healthful climate. The land is so productive that more cows can be kept on the same amount of land here than elsewhere.

The various industries in the state, such as the mines, the large lumber camps, besides the large demands of the Alaskan and Oriental trade, tend always to give us a ready market and good prices for dairy products.

The last report of the Idaho dairy commissioner states that 1,400,000 pounds of butter are annually imported into this state to help supply our own market. Certainly this ought to show that we need not fear any over production.

PROFITS.

It is a generally conceded fact that good dairy cows yield a larger profit for the farmer than any other kind of livestock consumed than can be expected from any other branch of farming.

A good cow will annually yield not less than 300 pounds of butter, which at 25 cents per pound, is worth $75. Adding to this the value of 6,000 pounds of skim milk at 20 cents per pound, she will produce a fair value for the calf. This would give us a total income of $75. Allowing $50 for the cost of the cow, we are left with $25 as a profit to pay for the labor and interest on investment.

SOIL FERTILITY.

However, in addition to this direct profit must not fail to lay sufficient stress on the importance of dairying in retaining the fertility of the soil. By feeding the raw materials of cream to the dairy cows, we are not only manufacturing high priced products, but we are retaining upon the soil the fertility of the soil.

By fertilizing material taken from the soil by the growing crop, by selling only the cream, or by making butter, fully 50 per cent of the fertility of the soil is contained in the feed is retained on the farm. One ton of oats taken from the soil as manure fertility of 4.5 tons of cream. As most dairymen would leave the soil in $20 worth of wheat as in $300 worth of cream.

Those living in rich soil, so hard to appreciate the true significance of the importance of soil fertility. This question, however, has to be mentioned to be understood by people who have lived in the east. Several of our eastern states are even now each spending annually more than $2,000,000 for fertilizing material to help them produce crops.

In many parts of our own state people are realizing that the soil is becoming depleted and that if the present system of cropping continues our soil must soon be replenished with artificial fertilizers.

By dairying only about 5 per cent of the fertility is lost, the balance being made by plant life from water and manure. As a result, the farms in Europe have succeeded in maintaining their soil fertility for more than a thousand years, while some of our dairy farms have been almost exhausted in 50 years.

WEED OUT THE POOR COWS.

Many of Idaho's milk cows do not come up to a fair standard. It is perhaps a safe to say that one-third of all our cows are milked at a loss. It is the poor milk cow that is responsible for the statements that "dairying is not profitable."

The most reliable guide in selecting a dairy cow is to get at her actual milk production. By having a good milk tester and a pair of scales this can easily be accomplished. Remember it is not enough to simply know that a cow gives rich milk, nor is it alone sufficient to know that the cow gives a large quantity of milk. It is the butterfat that has the commercial value and to determine its amount it is necessary to know the amount of milk given and its richness in butterfat.

HOW TO PICK COWS.

Weigh milk, keep a record of the number of pounds of milk given by each cow. By having a pair of scales in a convenient place the milk can be easily weighed. If you are too busy to weigh every day, arrange to weigh regularly three times a month.

Test milk. Take a sample of each cow's milk about three times a month. Care must be taken to see that the sample is accurate. The milk should be well stirred before sample is taken, and placed in a clean glass jar.

Ready for testing. A simple and complete Babcock testing outfit can be purchased for $2. It is so easy to manipulate that anyone with a little intelligence can in a few hours readily understand all its details. Any one wishing full particulars in regard to apparatus or method of testing can obtain it by writing to the dairy department of the University of Idaho at Moscow.

RESULTS OF TESTING.

WINTER DAIRYING.

There are many advantages in having cows come fresh in the winter when all dairy products sell at a high price. Here in Idaho butter is fully 50 per cent higher in winter than in summer.

When the cows calve in the spring they generally milk well until the pastures "dry up," when the flow of milk quickly falls off, so that by the time the milk comes in the cows are "dried up." Now, if the cows come fresh in the fall, they produce a good flow of milk during the winter months, and in the spring when the pastures are green the change acts as a second freshening and thus lengthens the period of milk production. Another advantage in winter dairying is that during this season the farmer is not so busy with other work, consequently he can give more time to the care of his cows, the milk and the butter, than is possible during the busy season of the year. When winter dairying becomes more generally practiced, the subject of winter feeds will be given more attention. Of these, silage is one of the most important, since one acre of good silage material yields as much feed as three acres of pasture.

VALUE OF SEPARATION.

No dairyman can afford to do without one good separator. A separator will remove practically all the butterfat from the milk, while the old method of skimming will leave as much as 25 per cent of all the butterfat in the skim milk. Certainly butterfat is too expensive to lose.

CARE OF CREAM.

After separation the cream should be quickly cooled to as low a temperature as is possible with well water. The best method of doing this is to place the cream in a deep vat of cold water. Stir with a stirrer until the cream is about the same temperature as the water. Warm cream should never be mixed with cold cream. Warm cream raises the temperature enough to hasten the growth of the souring bacteria. The result of mixing is always sour cream.

Some one has well said: "Clean cream, clean cream and rich cream are the words which tell the secret of producing good cream." There is always a demand for the highest price for cream of this quality.

PATRONIZE CREAMERIES.

A striking feature noticed in almost every successful dairy district of the east is the absence of "ranch butter" and "country butter." These districts have long ago realized that the creameries are in a position to make a better butter and then spend his time and money by the individual farmer.

It would seem that the dairy community where good creameries can be conveniently reached that the dairyman cannot afford to make his own butter and then spend his time and money by the individual farmer.

The writer firmly believes no one thing does more to lower the price of milk than the individual farmer's attempt to produce his own butter. Every dairy community with a good creamery and quality of ranch butter thrown on the market at any price will find the market for it to be established reputation for good butter, which always sells at a good price. It will be found that by patronizing some creamery, be it co-operative or not, is profitable.

A report has been circulated that Mrs. John G. Smith has served papers for a divorce from John G. Smith, to whom she was married on January 10, 1908. This report has been found by investigation to be untrue.

The company building located on South Broadway avenue, and used for school purposes since the local school district No. 12 was organized, was sold on the 26th to Messrs. Clinton and Barry, local parties. This is a very choice piece of business property, well located, being practically in the center of the business section of Buhl. This deal was negotiated by the Buhl Land Co. The consideration is said to have been $17,750. About twenty minutes after the deal was closed, Messrs. Clinton and Barry refused an offer of $2,500.

Geo. H. Payne, while working Thursday morning on the Milner-Perkins warehouse at Paaver, which a few days previous had been blown down by the wind, had quite a serious accident.

He was standing on top of the ridge pulling in the end of the rope and the bones protruding from the flesh. Immediately after the accident, he was put into a back and taken to Twin Falls to the hospital by his partner, Walter Heyl. Owing to the bad condition of the roads, they were unable to reach Twin Falls until 2:30 p. m. Mr. Payne suffering greatly from the jar of the wagon, which caused them to drive very slow and carefully. On examination at the hospital it was found that the bones were shattered in such a manner that several pieces had to be removed, and the attending physicians say that the leg will have to be amputated below the knee.

Mr. Payne is the senior member in the firm of Payne & Hoyl, contractors, they having done the majority of the work on the west end of the tract. Mr. Payne will be greatly missed by his friends in Buhl, and they hope that he will soon recover.

The largest crowd that ever turned out to witness any show in the Buhl opera house was there Friday night to see the wonderful home talent minstrel show given by the male quartet for the benefit of the Buhl brass band.

The quartet raised promptly at 9 o'clock. After the usual opening of the introduction of the end men, etc., we were favored with a vocal solo by Francis McDonald who was cheered and loudly applauded by the appreciative audience. Next was a few funny-frames by the clever end men, Messrs. Jake Shank and A. I. Newton. Then came the hit of the evening, a vocal solo by Bob Hays, who was hit with about a dozen tomatoes, five lemons and a head of cabbage. As Mr. Hays walked to his seat the stage began to look like a Chinese truck garden. From that time on, they were nearly all greeted in the same manner, the front seats being occupied by friends of the players who were trying to have a little joke on them. Among those who deserved special mention in the circle was Earl Knight, whom it is said really did the best. Mr. Johnson favored us with a vocal solo, and Jake Shank also gave a vocal solo, which showed very plainly that it was not his first appearance before the footlights. There were several others who deserve special mention, but your correspondent was unable on account of their fine make-up to recognize them.

Part II, was a selection by the quartette. On encore they sang "The Buhl Brass Band," which was very clever. Samuel Farlow, who responded to a hearty encore. Then came some very clever song and wind dancing by Mr. C. E. Boyd, who is the best dancer that has ever been on the Buhl stage.

After this feat, came the airship, which was steered by Mr. Newton and landed on Mars, from which place Mr. Newton hold a very interesting conversation over the wireless telephone with Pat Monahan of Buhl. Last but not least was the burlesque prize fight. Mr. Brown acted as referee and was voted as the cleverest man of the evening in his part. His instructions to the spectators and fighters, were very comical and would make a bowery bully blush with shame. After introducing the fighters, he cautioned the young man in the front seats not to smoke cigarettes and also warned the school marms not to flirt with the fighters. It was a very lively bout of four rounds, which showed that both of the men had plenty of science and speed, the fighters being Alf. Stone and T. E. Lucas. "Himself" was which was at its best, furnished the music and it was a credit to Buhl. The boys realized from the entertainment, about $50.00 clear of expenses. We hope that they will give more such interesting programs in the future.

After the program which lasted until eleven, the young people enjoyed dancing until one o'clock.

At the literary Saturday evening in the Deep Creek district at the school house a very interesting program was rendered.

Clark Fox, president of the above named literary society, left last week with the surveying crew of the Oregon Short Line Co.

The Farmers' Institute was called to order on Wednesday at 3 p. m. by E. R. Sherman. The first speaker was Prof. F. S. Franston of the agricultural department at the state university of Oregon. Prof. Franston spoke on the topic of "Dairying," and touched numerous phases of the subject. He did not favor a condensation at Buhl, for he thought it would be too great an undertaking; but on the other hand he spoke very favorably of establishing a creamery. He said that a creamery could be operated profitably with four or five hundred cows or even with three hundred, though a larger number would be better. After Prof. Franston's address he was asked several questions on the subject, the answers to which proved very interesting and instructive. Next, the farmers were addressed by Prof. Alexander McPherson, who spoke, also, on the subject of dairying. In regard to a condensation of dairying, he said that the farmers were a great deal the same as those of the previous speaker. He spoke with great emphasis on the necessity of grading up the herd, pointing out that if the manager did not have the right kind of cows for dairying purposes that his time and money were lost. The last address of the session in the afternoon was on "Orchards," by Prof. Shinn of the horticultural department of the state university. He prefaced his address with a few general remarks on orchards, showing that that his time and money were lost. The last address of the session in the afternoon was on "Orchards," by Prof. Shinn of the horticultural department of the state university. He prefaced his address with a few general remarks on orchards, showing that that his time and money were lost.

Prof. Gosses was well adopted for fruit raising. He was then asked several questions as to the care, methods of planting, etc. The meeting then adjourned until eight o'clock in the evening. At the evening session the attendance, on account of the weather, was very small. Those present, however, were well repaid. Prof. McPherson returned to Twin Falls on the evening train, so the only speakers at this session were Professors Franston and Shinn, though a number of farmers took part in the discussion.

Samuel Farlow presided, as Mr. Sherman had to return to his home. Following the meeting Mr. A. F. Koenig spoke briefly of the work of the state university and of the valuable advice received from hearing the institute speakers. Also, he moved that a vote of thanks be tendered. This was passed unanimously. Professors Franston and Shinn both replied in brief, stating that they hoped the farmers would feel at liberty to write them on subjects of which they wished information.
