A ROCKY ROAD AHEAD FOR POOR PRINTING

Every bit of good printing done for your competitor makes the poor printing---or the ordinary printing---which you are "using up" because you have it, more certainly and inevitably harmful to your business.

For this is the day and the hour and the vogue of distinctive, GOOD printing. And it does, usually, cost somewhat more, of course ---in "first-cost." After that, it doesn't "cost" ---it "pays."

PROSPERITY OF THE NAVAJO.

They Have Ample Pasture and Make Money by Their Silver Work.

The Navajos are today by long odds the most prosperous Indians in America. Their vast reserve offers ample pastureage for their sheep and ponies, and though their flocks are a scrub lot, yielding little more than fifty or seventy cents a head in wool on the average, still it costs nothing to keep sheep and goats. Both furnish a supply of meat. The hides fetch ready money. So do the wool and the blankets. And the Navajos are the finest silversmiths in America. Formerly, they obtained their supply of raw bullion from the Spaniards, but today they melt and hammer down United States currency into butterfly brooches and snake bracelets and leather belts with the 50-cent coins changed into flower blossoms with a turquoise center. Two-cent pieces and quarters are transformed into necklaces of silver beads or buttons for shirt and moccasins. If you buy these things in the big western cities they are as costly as Chinese or Hindu silver, but on the reserve there is a very simple way of computing the value. First, take the value of the coin from which the silver ornament is made. Add a dollar for the silversmith's labor, and also add whatever the value of the turquoise happens to be and you have the price for which true Navajo silverwork can be bought out on the Reserve.—Travel Magazine.

FLOCK OF CROWS ON A JAG

Farmer Boake Corn in Whiskey and Finds Eight Birds Acting Mischief Like Men.

William Oles of Colebrook, has a large field of corn which has been ravaged for months by crows. Mr. Oles did not like that sort of thing very much. Searching his brain for a plan to end the unwelcome situation of the crows, he came upon this idea: He would soak some of the corn in whiskey and place it in the corn patch.

He did that the other night. The next morning he was awakened by a fearful jabbering in the cornfield. He rushed out to investigate. He found eight large crows staggering around the field and simulating the human voice as closely as nature would permit. He says he heard one of the crows singing.

When they saw Mr. Oles they tried to fly, but it was impossible. They couldn't even walk straight; in fact, they fell every few seconds.

Mr. Oles bundled them into a couple of parrot cages. When they sobered up he fastured them severely. Then he took them into the field, shot them, and left their bodies as a warning to other crows.—Wanted Correspondent New York World.

If "Bargain Hunting" Is Extravagance, Isn't It Strange that Bargain Hunters Can Always Afford It?

And haven't you noticed that, event the family income is not at all great, the bargain hunting woman always seems to have the money with which to indulge her "extravagance?"

This fact should teach her critics something—perhaps teach them that the fixed habit of intelligent buying, based upon a persistent study of the ads, is a form of "extravagance" that should prevail in every home in the land!

The recommendation of the tax commission curtailing the bonding limit of county and municipalities has brought out a great deal of opposition from all parts of the state where rapid progress is most noted. Representatives are hearing from home in nearly every case where the bonding limit would cut off further progress if the McLean recommendation was adopted as part of the revenue law. Twin Falls county can ill afford to cut down on bonding limit with the future fall of promise and with so many needed improvements in the matter of roads and bridges. Twin Falls city, with the expenditure of a large sum for waterworks absolutely needed, with paving and sewer extensions and the other improvements required by a growing city, would be seriously hurt. Every other county in the state has the same condition. It is so general that the bonding limit portion will have a hard run to get to become a law.

The legislative action on the tax laws seems rather remote, owing to the strongly developed antagonism of the Republicans for Hawley's tax commission. The Republicans have in the place of the commission, advocated other plans which they believe will remedy the present evils without the commission. The plan advocates the cash value law, but makes the basis of taxation on a percentage of the full value. The plan in a nutshell is to table the governor's bill known as house bill No. 1, and substitute a Republican measure with merely the essential reforms which will straighten out the present tangle. That it will be vetoed by the governor is certain unless the tax commission is made a part of it. Action with such determination is out of the question. To pass the bill over the governor's veto is out of the question, owing to the small working majority of the Republicans who among themselves are not in complete harmony as to the value of the tax commission. Twin Falls county's representatives, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, are both willing to forget party lines in order to protect the county's interests, but there is little chance of their being called upon to exercise any independence on either side. The extra session will undoubtedly be closed as an extraordinary one for the lack of legislation enacted.

A TWENTY-FIVE BILLION DOLLAR CORPORATION.

In "McLure's Magazine" for January Mr. William W. Cook, a prominent corporation lawyer of New York, who is general counsel for the Mackay Cable and Telegraph Companies, which have a capital of one hundred million dollars, makes the remarkable suggestion that the only way to cure some of the evils of the trusts is to create the greatest private corporation that the world has ever known or dreamed of—a corporation with a capital of twenty-five billion of dollars. The proposal is certainly a startling one, but, as it is made by an expert lawyer who is thoroughly familiar with modern American industrial conditions, it deserves respectful consideration. It is sure, at all events, to excite public interest. Mr. Cook reviews the relation of the government to the railways; points out the attempt which the American people are now in process of making to subordinate the railways to government control; asserts that the people will never submit to Wall Street's control of the government; and expresses the fear that in their struggle to free the government from the malign influence of the "money power" the people will eventually fall to government ownership of the railways. Mr. Cook does not defend the "money power"; he is as frank in pointing out its evils and the desirability of establishing an industrial democracy in this country as any radical progressive. Mr. Cook, however, does not hold to either of the usual methods proposed for supplanting the money power—industrial oligarchy with no control over the government, or better in the proposal, which some radicals, including the Socialists, advocate, that the government own the railways, and he appears to hold that effective governmental regulations, such as The Outlook has long favored, is impossible. Instead of either he proposes as a substitute a sort of joint management of all railways by government and private capital. He suggests that congress should create a holding company with a capital of $25,000,000,000; that this holding company should purchase in the open market or by condemnation proceedings all the railways of the United States; that the stock of this holding company should pay three per cent, guaranteed by the government; that congress in creating the company should choose the board of twenty-five directors; that the board should be self-perpetuating, but that no directors should be elected without the approval of the president of the United States, and possibly of the United States senate; that a further safeguard against the domination of special interests in this board of directors might be provided by applying the principle of the "recall" when the stockholders disapprove the acts of any particular director or directors. The control of special interests might be still further prevented, he thinks, by following the example of the Bank of England, in which "the right of voting" for directors is limited to stockholders who have owned for six months at least $500 of the bank stock. Each stockholder has but one vote; no proxies are allowed. We do not attempt to go into the details of Mr. Cook's plan, but refer our readers to his article. He believes that able financiers and able railway men could be obtained to manage such a holding company with the same patriotic motives that distinguished Englishmen in administering the Bank of England for the benefit of the whole country. Perhaps the most significant thing about Mr. Cook's plan is that it indicates the changed temper of great corporation experts towards the definite attempt of the people of the United States to make "big business" subordinate to general social and political rights. As a manifestation of the growth of this movement, Mr. Cook's plan ought to receive serious attention.—The Outlook.

A BASIS FOR MINE VALUATION.
If you had a property that would house you an income of $1,000, what would such a property be worth? Wouldn't it be absurd to say it is worth only $1,000?

Mind you, we don't mean a property that enables you by your own labor to earn $1,000, such as a farm where the farmer by the use of his own best endeavors, the utilization of his team and farm implements, the increase on his cattle and horses, the milk and butter that he sells, could earn the cash or the stock and eggs he gets from the chickens—where he raises his own garden produce and counts that in, and thus enables him to "make" $1,000. What we mean is a property which, without so much as a croak of your finger, other than signature indorsement on the remittance check, would bring you in $1,000. We want to know what such a property is worth? Is it worth only $1,000?

What's your own absurd law say. And it's only the fact that the saying so is a direct and apparent violation of our constitution, we have been unable to arouse our governor and the legislature that he has called into session for the very purpose to take action to change the absurd revenue law that says such an absurd thing.

The only difference is that instead of being only $1,000, it is millions of dollars, and instead of being YOK it is the rich mine owners.

Do you consider that a sufficient difference to warrant a continuance of the farce? We don't.

The mine owners have a property which last year produced an income to them of $2,709,236.89 with no more exertion on their part than the mere indorsement of their names on the check remitting the money, and our law said that the sum represented the full actual cash value of that property.

One year this same property brought them in the same way $6,612,976.96 and our laws said that that was the full actual cash value of that property for that year.

Don't you yet think it absurd? And don't you wonder that when the governor has given so much consideration to the taxation question this year, and when he has called the legislature into session especially to deal with this question, he never so much as mentioned this great big portion of his subject—that when the special revenue law is considered, by which we prepare a revenue bill to eliminate all the inequalities of our assessment laws they never even so much as mentioned the subject? And wouldn't you wonder grow, at knowing that the special session of the legislature has been at work for more than a week and that their attention has been daily called to this remarkably absurd and unjust law, and yet that they have, as far as any of us know, at least, given absolutely no attention to the matter? We do not wonder if you have wondered. We wonder at it ourselves.
Now, if you had such a property that was bringing you $1,000 as a net income, how would you figure out its value? Why, you would, of course, figure how much money at a given, reasonable rate of interest would lay down for you just that much income. If 5 per cent were considered a reasonable rate, you would consider your property worth $20,000. If 7 per cent were taken as a reasonable rate, your property would be worth $14,285.71.

If these rich mines pay a net income, why should not their true value come, year, at least, for taxation purposes, be ascertained in just the same way?

Taking 7 per cent, the legal rate of interest in this state, as a basis, most equitably fair to the mine owners, the net income received by them last year of $2,709,236.89, was the income that would have been produced on a property valued at $38,702,384.

On the same basis the net income of the preceding year of $2,107,301.42 was produced from a valuation of $30,105,162.

We claim that this is an eminently fair method of valuation of the property of the mine owners for assessment purposes. Let their net profits be ascertained in the future just as in the past, and let that be capitalized at any reasonable rate. (We have suggested 7 per cent merely because that is the legal rate of interest in this state) and let them pay taxes upon such valuation. The people will thus get some reasonable relief, and the mine owners cannot complain for the valuation of their property would be fixed upon an absolutely guaranteed income producing basis, fully ascertained before the valuation, shall be fixed. There is no element of chance to them. The state still continues that chance, for if the mines "play out," or should the price of the product decline, or the cost of production increase, it would affect the net income, hence would affect the value of the property for that year, and there would be a reduction in accordance therewith.—Capital News.

DISCARD TAX COMMISSION.

Annual Appropriation Bill.
The boards of county commissioners are required to pass an annual appropriation bill at their regular April meeting in each year, and to make an estimate of all expenses to be incurred in the county for the current year. Expenditures are limited to the amounts of these estimates. This plan is similar to that in force in cities and villages, and its object is to promote economy.

Who Shall Pay Taxes.
It is provided when taxes become a lien on lands, and by whom they shall be paid when a sale is made, as between the purchaser and the seller. The substance of a "double" statute of this kind has frequently provoked controversy in sales of real estate. It applies only when there is no express agreement as to who shall pay the taxes.

Bank of Tax Levies.
The most vital change in the whole bill, however, is in the method of valuation for purposes of assessment. It is provided that all taxable property must be valued at its full cash value, and must be assessed at 40 per cent of such full cash value, and such assessed value shall be taken and considered as the taxable value of such property, and the valuation at which it shall be listed and upon which the levies shall be made and extended.

Legalizes All Future Assessments.
The effect of this provision is a body blow at the full cash value program of the governor. It authorizes a return to the basis of assessment in use prior to 1911 since statehood, and legalizes what has heretofore been the custom in the state for valuation of property. The percentage at which property shall be assessed to the various assessors of the counties, such percentage is fixed by law, and its advocates claim it will result in a more uniform assessment throughout the state. It is pointed out that the present law, which called the legislature to call a special session of the legislature every two years to change the assessment in the state to assess at a percentage valuation, and the way to overcome these difficulties is to return to the percentage basis.

Assessment of Bank Stock.
Shares of stock in banks and trust companies are assessed by adding to their face value the surplus and undivided profits, and deducting such portion of the capital stock as has been invested in real estate, the real estate to be assessed at its full cash value, and the balance at its assessed value. The governor's measure provided for the deduction of all real estate, and was much more liberal to the bankers than the present bill.

No deduction for debts is allowed from the assessment of banks, as is permitted by the present law.

May Decrease Assessments.
Boards of county commissioners sitting as boards of equalization are permitted to decrease as well as increase valuations, without application of the owner of property, thus giving them full power to equalize the valuations in their counties. They are required to meet on the first Monday of July, instead of the second Monday, as now provided, in order to give them more time for the business of equalization.

Apportionment of State Taxes.
The method of apportioning the state tax among the various counties is changed. Instead of such apportionment being based on the assessment of the preceding year as now provided, it is based on the present year's assessment.

Numerical Assessment Is Provided.
The numerical system of assessing and listing real estate is enacted in place of the antiquated method of listing it according to the letters of the alphabet, and it is provided that where the tax on personal property is a lien on real estate it may be extended on the real property list. The assessor is also required to have prepared a full and complete plan-book of the taxes in his county.

Semi-Annual Payment of Taxes.
Semi-annual payments of taxes are provided for when the amount due from any person, firm or corporation exceeds the sum of $20. Taxes become due and payable on the first Monday of January, and the first Monday in July.

Securing of Tax Deeds.
Tax deeds cannot be issued unless the holder of the tax certificate serves notice on the occupant of the property and on the record owner at least three months and not more than five months before the time for redemption has expired, or if he cannot be found within the state, publishes the same during such period in the newspaper published nearest the land, stating in whose name the land stands, when he purchased it, the description thereof, for what year taxed, and when the time of redemption will expire and demand for a tax deed be made. If the owner wishes to redeem the property after the service of such notice he has the privilege of doing so.

This method is much more simple than the foreclosure of tax certificates, and less expensive, and, according to its advocates, protects the owner of the property as completely as the more cumbersome and expensive method proposed by the governor's commission.

HILL PROPOSE GREATER EFFORT

Northwest Development League as a Colonizer.

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—In a statement issued from the offices of the Northwestern Development League, James J. Hill, chairman of the board of the Great Northern railroad, advocates the strengthening of the organization, co-operation of the northwest states and establishment of a central colonization or immigration bureau to aid in the development and settling of the American northwest. The statement from Mr. Hill is a powerful endorsement of the movement started in Helena, Mont., last May when the Northwest League was organized.

"The states of this league spend enough separately on immigration projects to bring in several times as many people each year as they have had. A considerable portion of it is devoted to entangling settlers from one of them to another," says Mr. Hill. "The states in the league are Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and the territory of Alaska."

Mr. Hill goes on to say: "A most desirable result of this confederation would be the establishment of a common immigration agency, with resources sufficient for a comprehensive canvass of possible settlers, but absolutely impartial as to the location anywhere within this zone between the Mississippi and the Pacific. Substitute one central colonization bureau for seven and every dollar expended will do the work that five do now."

"This association of states and our one great undeveloped territory comes into existence in an intimate way. The Northwest Development League is not the creation of the promoter's art. It is not a product of either ambition or jealousy. It is a group of business men having work in common which can be accomplished better united than divided."

The conduct of business in the long run is not a mere scramble for the best place at the trough. As science advances, the trend general principles by which the world of nature works, so the study of human association for the increase of wealth and the growth of communities reveals similar general principles, underlying and governing the lives of men and communities in that intimate intercourse which is the distinguishing mark of modern times.

The phase of growth which more particularly excites the best minds of today is combination within proper, just and reasonable limits. We found out long ago that individuals, communities, corporations and every instrumentality having to do with the common life of men can accomplish more results, both to quality and quantity, when working together free from hostile suspicion. Our own and many other countries have been experimenting for a century with this way. Almost every business in the United States today uses the method of associated enterprise in handling important matters. The common factor in the highest court has only recently laid down the equitable rule by which the co-operation of business is not hurtful monopoly may be directed and limited in the future. We are witnessing a rapid evolution of the commercial life of human partnership."—Pocatello Tribune.

Resolutions of Condolence.
Hall of No. 23, I. O. O. F.
Twin Falls, Id., Jan. 25, 1912.
Whereas, The Grim Reaper with his scythe has again visited our lodge and cut down our well beloved Brother, Chas. J. W. Walker, who was just in the prime of life; therefore, be it resolved, That we deeply feel the loss we have sustained inasmuch as our departed brother was an exemplary Odd Fellow, a true friend and a wise counselor. That our sympathy is extended to his surviving relatives and friends in the hour of their need.
That the charter of this lodge be draped in mourning for a period of 30 days, in loving remembrance of our brother.

That a copy of these resolutions be furnished for publication, a copy sent to the widow of Mrs. Walker, and a copy entered upon the minutes of the transactions of this lodge.

Local and Personal

Attorney J. H. Wise was a passenger for Shoshone Tuesday evening, where he went to look after several cases he has in court, and will now in session in the county seat of Lincoln county.

All the folks who come to the Methodist church are cordially invited to attend the "Get-Acquainted-Social" at the church Friday evening, January 26. Bring along some smiles and a glad hand, but leave your pocketbooks at home.

Don C. Bryan arrived in the city Tuesday from Jarldale, where he is doing some work on one of the best claims in that camp. Mr. Bryan reports business moving along nicely in Jarldale and predicts a great growth there this coming summer.

W. J. Adams returned to his home in Europa, Utah, Wednesday evening after spending several days with his brother, George Adams, of the Adams-Pilgrimage Lumber company. Mr. Adams is manager of the Tintic Lumber company in his home city.

F. G. Moorehouse of Des Moines, Iowa, was in the city yesterday looking after some private business matters. He departed the same evening for Boise, where he will remain for several days before returning to his town home. Mr. Moorehouse is the editor of the Iowa Homestead, one of the best farm journals in the middle west.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Ernest White entertained a large number of ladies at her beautiful home in Eastlawn. The time was spent most pleasantly in playing progressive five hundred. Mrs. Chas. H. Robbins winning the prize for high score and Mrs. A. N. Sprague receiving consolation. After several games had been played the hostess was assisted by Mesdames Hall, Rogers and Jenkins in serving delicious refreshments. Those invited were Mesdames C. C. Bedford, C. E. Booth, G. F. F. M. Buckley received the sad news Friday that his brother, Dr. E. M. Buckley had suddenly passed away in Chicago. The telegram gave no details of his death. Dr. Buckley was well known in this city, having spent the greater part of last summer here. He was a geologist of national reputation and was here looking over the Jarldale mining district. Mr. Buckley departed Friday evening for Tama, Wis., where the funeral is to be held.

Mrs. W. H. Greenhow gave an informal bridge tea Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. W. S. Oakley, who leaves next week for Salt Lake City, to make her future home. The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion. Mesdames Oakley and Morrill presided at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. Dodd and Mrs. Wikler. Mrs. Hartdegen won the prize, a beautiful handkerchief, for high score. The guest of honor received a dainty boucler cap. The following ladies were present: Mesdames Allen, Bedford, Dodd, White, Senior, Wikler, McAlister, Hartdegen, Williams, Milner and W. T. Wood. Mrs. Greenhow has issued invitations for another affair next week in honor of her mother and daughter.

Mrs. Everett M. Sweeney was hostess at a delightful one o'clock luncheon last Friday afternoon at her home on Eighth avenue North. Each guest found her plate at the daintily appointed luncheon table marked by a place card, done in water colors, the handiwork of Mrs. M. J. Sweeney. Following the luncheon the remainder of the afternoon was spent at bridge. Mrs. Harold Dodd winning the prize for high score. Those present were Mesdames H. F. Allen, G. D. Allen, G. F. Baker, C. C.
