SAN DIEGO PROGRESSING.

Work on Exposition Buildings Being Rushed.

San Diego, Cal., April 29.—With shipping after ship discharging each week, cargoes of lumber and other building material for the 1915 exposition work,
this port has taken on a far busier
aspect than was the case before the great exposition and harbor improvement projects were undertaken.

Millions of feet of lumber from the
forests of northern California, Washington and Oregon are being passed over San Diego wharfs, and some slight hint of what the port is destined to become, after the opening of the Panama canal, is becoming apparent.

The ten millions of dollars San Diego is expending in harbor improvement for the fulfillment of her posed to the elements, is being what will be the result to the territory of Diego, are ultimately to find their

The countless millions of tons of lumber, the hundreds of thousands of passengers from all over the world, who will leave ship here, will be a stimulus to the business of the port, and the harbor of San Diego as an ultimate destination, and this territory to be enriched by such almost incalculable means of business, will be prepared for the great awakening.

Exposition building is progressing rapidly. Already the immense electricity building is nearing completion, and work is well under way on its nearest neighbor, the machinery building. The contractor has begun work on the five-story building, and commenced preparatory work on that great structure near the east entrance of the grounds, and within the next few weeks work will be progressing on some five or six other buildings.
Building sites are rapidly being prepared to grade and build upon, and building material as can be had delivered expeditiously is already on the ground.

While this work is going on out of doors, the offices in the administration building are as busy as beehives, with every conceivable business transaction going on, and the city engineer doing his utmost to keep abreast of the work.

The department of exhibits has been almost swamped with applications for public privileges have been made that the department has been compelled to adopt a policy of elimination and selection.

SAN DIEGO PROGRESSING.

Work on Exposition Buildings Being Rushed.

San Diego, Cal., April 29.—With shipping after ship discharging each week, cargoes of lumber and other building material for the 1915 exposition work,
this port has taken on a far busier
aspect than was the case before the great exposition and harbor improvement projects were undertaken.

Millions of feet of lumber from the
forests of northern California, Washington and Oregon are being passed
over San Diego wharfs, and some slight hint of what the port is destined to become, after the opening of the Panama canal, is becoming apparent.

The ten millions of dollars San

CRANE CREEK BOND SOLD.

Nearly 25,000 Acres of Land Between Payette and Waiilatpe to be Irrigated.

Bringing renewed confidence to Idaho irrigationists and assurance that good irrigation facilities in the future will be available, comes the announcement that the Kuhn of Pittsburgh have just completed the purchase of bonds of an aggregate value of $250,000 in the Crane Creek and Sunnyside associated irrigation districts, subject to Waiilatpe Washington county. The money is available at once, and will begin to pay on the huge project before a week has passed, and water will be delivered to settlers on 22,000 acres of land embraced in the two districts next season.

This is the largest and most important sale of Idaho irrigation bonds in five years, and the first sale of any consequence in three years. It is taken as not only the immediate development of a large and fertile area in southern Idaho, but to indicate the faith of eastern capital in satisfactory irrigation facilities of this state.

Tuesday's important sale of bonds marks the culmination of several years of negotiation. It is taken on the part of Edwin D. Ford, general manager of the Crane Creek Land & Irrigation company, by J. C. McKinney, A. H. Keller and others of his associates, who have all worked tirelessly and with unbounded faith in the great enterprise. Already they have expended between $100,000 and $200,000, money raised at home, in the purchase of bonds and in the partial construction of a dam. While about 22,000 acres of land, as fertile as any in Idaho, are embraced within the two projects, the total amount to receive water upon completion of the project through direct and subirrigation will exceed 25,000 acres.

The land is located on a high bench north and east of the city of Waiilatpe, and is adapted for truck gardening, berrying, dairying, and especially for the growing of fruit. It is identical in analysis with soil in the lower valley adjoining, which unceasing effort has been made to not as high as $250 an acre for five years, taking the bad years with the good.

The completion of negotiations for the sale of the bonds was followed by the awarding of the contract for construction to Black Brothers Construction company of Boise, who will start work early next week on the completion of the big dam and storage reservoir, the construction of canals and flumes and other work.

This purchase of bonds by the Kuhn interests represents a total investment for them in Idaho irrigation enterprises, and exclusive of their power projects, of $12,000,000. They have recently laid out in Jackson lake, in connection with the Twin Falls Canal company, approximately $1,000,000. This work has been done under supervision of the government with funds furnished by the Kuhn and the South Side Twin Falls settlers.

In addition the Kuhn interests will expend several hundred thousand dollars in power improvements in this state during the coming season. The final legal arrangements for the transfer of the Crane Creek bonds were completed Tuesday by J. R. Coulter, of Waiilatpe, attorney for the settlers; B. S. Varian of Waiilatpe, attorney for Mr. Ford, and the Crane Creek company, assisted by Attorneys

P. B. Carter and Paris Martin of Boise. The Kuhn interests were represented by S. H. Hays, their legal representative in this territory.

The sale of these irrigation securities to the Kuhn interests, Mr. Hays said, was negotiated only after the most thorough and painstaking investigation had been made—it may be taken as a guarantee that Idaho irrigation securities will have a market and this will be the means, he believes, of encouraging a market for other similar bonds, just as good which until now have been a scum on the market. This one sale means the immediate rapid development and settlement of a large area in Washington county, but the entire southern part of the state.

The sale and management of the property on the great project will be vested in the Crane Creek Land & Irrigation company, of which Mr. Ford is general manager. Much of the land already has been purchased and has been under successful and profitable cultivation as dry farm land, but a great quantity is still in sagebrush and the sale and development will mean the addition of hundreds of new families to the population of the area.

In anticipation of this growth and development, the city of Waiilatpe is expending $400,000 in municipal improvements.—Statesman.

O. K'D UNDER COVER.

Notation Found on Articles of Delinquent Insurance Co.

"O. K'd" by the attorney general under cover.

This significant notation in pencil is to be found on the articles of incorporation of the Overland Fire Insurance company, now on file in the office of Secretary of State. Aside from this pencil notation there is nothing about the articles to distinguish them from many others, but in the light of the exposure made in the Statesman Saturday morning many will be curious to know just what the words mean. Of course there has been a complete change in the office of the attorney general since the filing of the articles March 15, 1912. On the face of it a person might assume that the whole matter was to be kept "under cover"—that is, kept from the public as much as possible.

According to the articles the Overland Fire Insurance company was incorporated for $200,000 in shares of $100 each. The organizers of the company as named in the articles were W. E. Pierce, W. J. Homer, W. H. Puckett, W. S. McCormick and David L. Evans. McCormick and Pierce are of Boise; Homer and Puckett are of Idaho; and Evans is one of the original promoters of the enterprise, coming to Boise from Montana.

In the issue of the Underwriters' Report, the official insurance newspaper for this section, published at San Francisco, that reached Boise Saturday morning, there was an item concerning the difficulties of the Overland Fire Insurance company. In this item it was also announced that a meeting of the stockholders of the company was to be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 25, at the Commercial club, to discuss plans for straightening out the angle. Announcement of the meeting, according to the report, was sent out by Secretary Puckett April 12. In the notice it was said:

"Pursuant to the opinion of the contract holders residing in Boise and vicinity it is deemed best for the interest of all concerned to have a meeting of the contract holders, with a view of determining what action to take under the present condition of affairs, and present to them the present conditions of the company and its affairs as can be determined from the information at hand. Therefore, you are requested to be present at a meeting of the contract holders to be held in Boise, Ida., Saturday, April 26, 1912, at 2 p. m., in the Boise Commercial club rooms."

For some reason not made public the time of holding this meeting was changed. It was held at the Commercial club rooms last Tuesday evening at which time there were several insurance men present from outside the city. The plan suggested then was to hook the Overland onto some other and larger company with headquarters in some city outside of Idaho. Nothing definite was done in the matter so far as the public has been advised.—Statesman.

OBITUARY OF MRS. GAGER.

The whole community of Hansen was saddened on the 20th of April by the death of Mrs. Katherine W. Gager, wife of R. W. Gager. The neighbors and friends were drawn to Mrs. Gager by the kindly disposition and the gracious character always shown in her association with them and the sympathy of the whole community went out to the bereaved husband and children. The remains were laid to rest in the Twin Falls cemetery. Decidedly left the following relatives to mourn her untimely demise: Mr. R. W. Gager, the husband, and four sons and daughters, Claude W., Misses Mabel M., Minnie M., and Edith G. Gager. The mother of the deceased with one sister, Mrs. L. E. Gurnea, and Mrs. A. C. Gurnea, live at Buhl and were in attendance at the funeral services. Another sister, Mrs. Walter Finley of Andrick, Wash., was unable to be present. Road Will Run from Alexander to Preston.

Construction has commenced on what will finally be a branch railroad from Alexander, on the main line of the Oregon Short Line, to Preston, through the fertile dentile valley. More than 600 men are at present at work on the first section of the road between Alexander and Grace, a distance of about 10 miles. The work is being done by the Phoenix Construction company. The construction is being financed by the Utah Power and Light company, but will be formally taken over by the Oregon Short Line in August of this year. The electric company desires to build the road itself rather than wait the approval of the Short Line for this purpose, in order to facilitate transportation of supplies necessary for its great power plant near Grace and to the Narrows, where the company is engaged in securing transmission to Utah and Idaho towns. It seems to be generally assumed that the road will be pushed through to Preston, making a cutoff with the southern Idaho and the Logan valley that will be much appreciated. Salt Lake Telegram.

Navel Ill in Young Animals.
Navel ill, often called "joint-ill" or "foal lameness," is a disease of young animals, occurring soon after birth, and usually terminating in death. It is a form of blood poison entering through the unhealed navel. The first symptoms of the disease noted are swollen joints, fever, lameness, and later, abscesses and diarrhea, resulting in death.
Colts and calves are the principal victims, although all young may become affected.
The treatment is principally prevention. Do not turn the mare about to foal in an old filthy box stall, or in a stall where the disease has occurred. Disinfect the stall with a strong solution of lye, thoroughly. In warm weather, turn pregnant mares or cows outdoors. Paint the navel with a weak solution of tincture of iodine or very weak carbolic acid—five drops of carbolic acid to a half-pint of water. Keep the young animal clean and examine the navel cord to see if it is drying up normally.

Some Factors Affecting the Keeping Quality of Butter.

The keeping quality of butter is of considerable importance as a factor in determining the demand for that product on the market.

Some butter makers would maintain that because their butter is placed in the market in a fresh condition there is no need of taking steps to improve the keeping quality. Most butter, even though it is sold to the consumer fresh, is in a majority of cases kept by the consumer in place where the temperature is quite high. If the butter can withstand this condition without taking on a disagreeable flavor the consumer will demand the same brand of butter the next time. On the other hand, if the butter assumes a strong flavor in a few days the housewife is dissatisfied and will likely try another brand of butter thereafter.

The age and condition of the cream previous to churning has a decided influence upon the keeping quality of butter. This is especially true when the cream is pasteurized. An excellent proof of that statement is found in the result recently obtained in the storage of pasteurized sweet cream butter for the United States navy, as compared with that made from sour cream. After six or seven months of storage, the pasteurized sweet cream butter was found to be practically as good as when placed in storage, while sour cream butter held under the same conditions was found to have deteriorated in quality to a much greater extent. Similar results have been obtained in experimental work conducted by this experimental station. However, in case of raw cream butter, in many instances, the results have been best where the cream was allowed to sour before churning.

Another factor which bears an important relationship to the keeping quality of the butter is the temperature at which the butter is kept. Any kind of butter will deteriorate to a considerable extent if held at a high temperature. Many times the butter maker is blamed for making poor butter when the fault is mainly with the consumer for keeping it in a place where it will become soft and develop a strong flavor. Then also, it is frequently kept in a place where it will take up bad flavors from its surroundings. This is especially true where the butter is kept in an icebox with strong smelling vegetables.

The incorporation of considerable quantities of buttermilk in the butter tends to lessen its keeping quality. Over-churning is usually responsible for a high per cent of buttermilk in butter. The churn should be stopped when the butter is in the form of granules a little larger than a wheat kernel.

If the buttermilk is drawn off at that stage and this volume in the churn is replaced with water of the same temperature as that of the buttermilk, the butter can be successfully washed by a few revolutions of the churn. Butter that is well washed in this way does not become strong so quickly as does butter from which the buttermilk has not been sufficiently removed.

While there are many other factors which might influence the keeping quality of butter, the above mentioned ones are among the most important.

Feeding Grain to Cows on Pasture.

The question is frequently asked whether it is economical to feed grain to cows during the pasture season. On this question there is a considerable difference of opinion. Judging by the direct results in milk production from feeding grain to cows on an adjacent and abundant pasture there seems to be no profit in such a procedure. While there may be some increase in milk yields, the increased yields do not in all instances pay for the grain consumed.

The pastures in the early spring are immature and the grass contains a high percentage of water and a low percentage of dry matter, and the high producing cow does not secure sufficient nutrients to furnish the needs of the body and maintain a large production of milk. For a cow of this type, that is, one that produces one to two pounds of butter fat daily, a grain ration should supplement the pasture and she should be allowed all the leguminous hay that she will consume.

The cow that is producing an average quantity of milk, say from twenty-five to thirty pounds of milk of average quality, will produce but little more when fed grain to supplement good pasture, and for economy of production should not be so fed.

Quite extensive feeding investigations, carried on by the Cornell experimental station, resulted in the following conclusion: "That an additional pound of milk was secured for each pound of grain fed, but it was observed that the cows that received grain during the pasture season gave sixteen per cent better returns after the grazing period than did those that received no grain. In other words, there was an increase in weight in the lot that were fed grain which resulted in the laying up of a considerable amount of surplus nutrients on their body which was utilized in future productions."

E. V. ELLINGTON, Department of Dairy Production, Idaho Experiment Station.

Seasonal Typhoid Danger.

Health authorities agree that early spring, a short season following the melting of winter snows, and late summer are the danger periods relative to the contraction of typhoid fever. The causes of the increased number of cases at the two seasons, but of the year are not difficult to understand. The melting of snow and ice, which have become contaminated with typhoid bacteria from typhoid patients in the spring, results in the release and distribution over wide areas of variable millions of these active forces of man. In the late weeks of summer, the "Typhoid Fly" is present in great numbers and is active in the work of transmitting infected material from vaults, the fly nursery, to food and drink wherever opportunity is afforded.

Floods at this season of the year are more dangerous than at any other season of the year. Body excretions from persons suffering with typhoid fever are thrown upon the snow or ice or upon the frozen ground. The bacteria remain inactive, but alive and are released and scattered by the melting of the snow or are washed from the frozen ground by heavy rains. Flooded sections are the ones which carry this disease, but avoidable distribution of fever germs.

Surface contamination of wells is the danger which should be guarded against. It is not possible to safeguard conditions, but correct surface construction will decrease by a large per cent possibility of contamination. Attention to the following points in construction of wells may prove to be a paying investment from the standpoint of the individual farmer, for the expense and a loss of time during sickness:

1. A platform that is a foot or more above any possible flood-water.
2. A light platform.
3. A liberal earth mound for the platform that is not possible to saturate.
4. A drive well of thirty feet or more in depth, ending below rock.
5. A location at a distance from the house vaults and barnyard.
6. A screened pump used during the fly season.

If a well furnishes cloudy water after heavy rains, it should be used with care, as such a condition usually means surface contamination. It is possible to render such water safe by judicious treatment. The following point, if there have been any cases of typhoid fever in the section in the last year or more, there is a possibility of the organism gaining entrance to the well. If it is desired to know whether or not the well is safe, the best way is to have the water analyzed by a bacteriologist. It can be arranged for by writing to the experiment station, Moscow, Idaho. Why Plant Trees in Idaho? Our history and our literature alike abound in references to trees. We have but to recall the Charter Oak, the Washington Elm, the Spreading Chestnut Tree, and the Church of Berkeley Manor "beneath its shade of elm and oak" in order to see how great a part the tree has played in the minds of those who would record our early struggles for liberty, or enrich our literature.

Yet we cannot sing the praises of all the trees that have blessed us. In fact, Idaho has a great many of the trees that are of great value to us. We have many of the trees that are of great value to us. We have many of the trees that are of great value to us. We have many of the trees that are of great value to us.

Many of the more progressive towns in Idaho have organized "City Beautiful" clubs and park commissions and are showing a lively interest in the improvement of the planting and care of trees as well as the aesthetic and economical value of the same.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Idaho Delegation Hard at Work for Idaho.

(Special Correspondence.)
Washington, D. C. April 23.—Last week the Republicans of the house adopted a resolution, adopted at an open conference and caucus of the house members and in doing so advanced another step in line with the demand of republican for the past several years.

The members of the Republican party in congress appear to be fully impressed with the significance of Republican defeat in the last election and are bending their energies toward a policy of radical legislation that will command respect to the country.

They believe that this course is essential to the life of the Republican party and they believe that the rank and file of the Republican party will sustain their actions.

Among those who are earnestly working for the committing of the Republican party to definite progressive policies among the members of preceding congresses are Senators Cummins, Borah and La Follette, and Representatives Loomis, French, Davis, and others who are well known as progressive Republicans. The Republicans of both house and senate are greatly impressed with the significance that have told of the outcome of elections this spring.

In Michigan for instance, where last fall the Progressive party took a couple of weeks ago in the off year election of several state officers, the Republican ticket was successful, while the Progressive ticket had fallen back to a poor third.

In St. Louis, where the Progressive ticket received 25,000 votes last fall, the Progressive municipal ticket received recently 4,551 votes as against more than 55,000 votes for the Republican ticket and 55,000 for the Democrat. The Socialist ticket received 10,000.

In Chicago in the November election, Roosevelt carried the city by 55,000 votes over Taft, while the municipal election last month, the Republican candidates received three times as many votes as the candidates on the Progressive ticket.

Republicans, still smarting under the rebuke given by the rank and file last November, are confident the rank and file of those who administered the rebuke are still Republicans. As indicated by the vote in Chicago, Michigan and St. Louis, and that they do not propose to align themselves definitely with a third party. At the same time, candid Democratic leaders see in the heavy swing to the Republican party, the possibility of a Republican congress two years from now, with a Republican president four years hence of such type as Hadley, Cummins or Borah.

It is generally admitted that save geography alone, Senator Borah would be a strong candidate in 1916.

The state of Idaho is up in arms over a statement published by Wisconsin firm, and scattered broadcast through the mails over the country, branding Idaho alfalfa seed as infected with weevil. Telegrams and letters are pouring into Senator Brady's office from the seed interests, state officials, and other prominent Idaho citizens, urging his support at Washington.

Senator Brady is giving the matter careful attention. He has laid before the postmaster general the facts of the case in detail, and he will continue his activities until the affair is thoroughly probed, and the parties who are responsible for this slanderous matter which was sent broadcast through the mails are brought to justice.

The Idaho horticultural department has conducted an investigation, and it is alleged that it was discovered Hensberger & Lieberman, a Wisconsin firm, had flooded the mails with alfalfa seed, the alfalfa seed was infected. It is also alleged to have been discovered that Idaho people have bought up a large amount of Idaho alfalfa seed, and labelling it Montana seed, was disposing of it.

The Idaho congressional delegation has received an invitation from Secretary Lane to be present at the conference to be held on May 1, to which a representative of each water users' association in the west has been invited as well as members of congress for the consideration of the administrative features of the department touching reclamation service. Mr. French has called upon the various water users' associations in Idaho to assist him with complete information setting forth their views on the subject, in order that he may have it to present to the conference.

Secretary of the Interior Lane has announced a sixty-year-old precedent at the request of Congressman Smith. Mr. Smith was appointed registrar of land office at Boise by the president, which people have been mistaken about a hundred of Idaho's leading citizens, including the Idaho delegation in congress. Their letters were filed by the archivist of the interior department along with thousands of similar endorsements of other federal officials. Mr. Smith desired to have these papers returned to him that he might preserve them for his children as an heirloom and made a formal application to Secretary Fisher about a year for them. The secretary replied that in 1853 an order had been issued that no letters of endorsement on which favorable action had been taken could be returned and that he was unable to comply with the request. Mr. Smith made a personal call on Secretary Lane yesterday, in the just old order which the secretary immediately proceeded to cancel stating that there was no possible reason why these papers should be retained in the files. His action will probably result in a general clean up of the old papers which it is believed now must weigh several tons and which are stored in the basement of the interior department.

The following resolutions adopted at the annual convention of the Columbia and Snake River Waterways association at Pendleton, Ore., on April 16, and wired to Senator Brady by the association with an earnest request for his support:

"We deprecate the widespread propaganda manifestly carried on by the great railway interests seeking the nullification of the law providing for free tolls for American shipping control of American enterprises built up on American territory to be an inviolate right which cannot in the very nature of national sovereignty be jeopardized by the simple treaty rights entered into with any other nation and therefore the claim that the granting of free tolls to American shipping is a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty is self-evident so plenary equal rights to all foreign nations as well as to the Panama Canal is all that in justice and reason could be demanded of the American nation."

"We believe the propaganda for tolls for American shipping at the Panama Canal involves the principle of tolls at all national canals and government built waterways and is purely in the interest of the corporate transportation enterprises of the nation and subversive of the freedom of waterways competition. Therefore we are hereby resolved that this association strongly urge the present American congress and the national administration to sustain the law adopted by the preceding congress respecting tolls at the Panama Canal."

Senator Brady has visited the president as the chairman of the inter-oceanic canal committee in the interest of this legislation. He is a strong believer in the free toll bill passed by the last congress, and it is believed that on account of his practical knowledge and experience along this line he will wield an influence when the matter comes before Congress.

Upon the invitation of the National Woman's Suffrage association, Representative French appeared last week before the woman's suffrage committee of the senate and urged the passage of the amendment to the constitution granting suffrage to the women of the various states.

WILL REMAIN HEAD OF SCHOOL

No Change to Be Made In Head of State Industrial School.

Superintendent Humphries will be retained at the head of the St. Anthony industrial school, according to announcement made Sunday by Walter S. Bruce, president of the state board of education, upon his return from an inspection trip to that institution.

A committee of the state board, consisting of Mr. Bruce, Herman J. Ross, H. Horton and David L. Evans, has just completed a hurried inspection of the southern Idaho state institutions controlled by the board. Mr. Bruce said that calls were made at the school for Dent and Bluff and Gooding; at the Albion state normal school; the Academy of Idaho at Pocatello and the Idaho industrial training school at St. Anthony.

Mr. Bruce made the following statement: "In each of those institutions very satisfactory conditions were shown. The schools are presided over by competent instructors, and the discipline and general normal and physical conditions are excellent, indicating a high class student body and competent management on the part of the faculty."

In some instances the buildings and equipment were found to be in more or less bad repair, or deficient in size or quality, owing to lack of sufficient funds to meet the requirements. A few pressing needs of this kind were ordered—immediately, the board and other proposed repairs and expenditures taken under consideration. Arrangements were made for the engagement of teachers and professors for the coming year for all schools, those who have been employed during the last year being retained, with a few exceptions.

"A careful consideration of conditions at the Idaho industrial training school at St. Anthony convinced the committee that the management has been competent and—in a high degree, for the best interest of the pupils. The standard of discipline is maintained, thorough instruction in all branches of study up to and including the eighth grade is given, a number of trades are taught, both boys and girls and a general atmosphere of general usefulness, morality and contentment is everywhere in evidence. The institution, in a decided sense, is a school and not a place of punishment."

"The pupils are not confined by locks or bars, even at night. The food is plain but plentiful, and well prepared. The old rule of early to bed and early to rise is followed in this school. Ample provision is made for baths, and the lavatory facilities are sanitary."

"The school owns over 400 acres of land, a large part of which is in cultivation, most of the work being done by pupils under the direction of competent instructors. The health of the pupils appears to be excellent, only three cases of minor nature being in the hospital when we were there. These are cared for by a trained nurse, working under a regular school physician."

"In view of the insistent demands that have recently been made for a change in the management of this institution the committee considered it as far as could be done in the limited time at our command with the actual conditions now existing in the school. As a result of our investigations we are unanimously decided to make no change in the management of the present time, and so advised Mr. Humphries, the superintendent."

"It would not be just to fail in acknowledging the uniform courtesy of faculty and student body in each of the institutions visited, and I feel also that for the excellent condition of these schools the state owes a debt of gratitude to the untiring, unselfish and self-sacrificing efforts of the various boards which have had the oversight of their affairs in the past."

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

The quince is an attractive and profitable fruit.

Storing apples in crates makes it easier to detect rot.

Almost any old time is a good time to spread manure in the orchard.

It is a good idea to start a hedge over the strawberries after the ground is frozen.

Common window screening makes good protection from rabbits for young trees.

The quince does not make a fine place to store apples if they did not take on that "earthy" flavor.

Corn stalks or other litter about the trunks of apple trees invite the mice, and girdled trees are the result.

Do not purchase trees from unknown parties, no matter how fine their pictures and their promises.

The quince, properly planted, yields almost as much fruit as the pear, and is even more profitable than the pear in some localities.

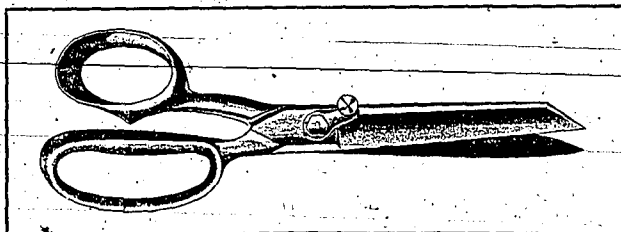

Field mice like to take up their winter quarters in the orchard—because here they are usually safe from the hawks and owl.
