No. 1. HUNTING

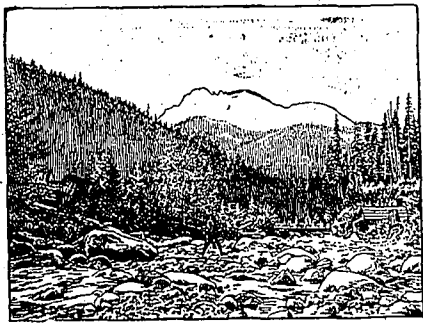

When one has packed his things and shipped his ammunition and camping outfit, when he has left the office for the last time and is indeed on his way to the train that is to take him to the hunting grounds, what a feeling of exhilaration comes upon him! Nothing to do for a week, two weeks, or a month, but hunt and fish and be refreshed in a life near to Nature! Even now those whose inclinations have this bent are planning and preparing for their fall hunting trip. It may be that you will go again to Dakota for wild geese. How well you remember last year's trip—the getting up before dawn, the freezing wind to set the decoys, the wait in the bitter cold, the break of dawn in the east, and finally the "hook, honk," and the whistling whir of the approaching birds!

Or did you go for ducks along the shore of the Chesapeake? If so, you recall the early trip to the shooting blind, the attire of the decoys, and then how you settled back into an easy position as possible which you could hold without much moving about, and how surprised you were to find yourself just nodding for a second, and to wake and see the water alive with ducks which you had too soon away before you could get a wing shot. Then you vividly live again those few days you spent with your good dog among the woods and partridge; your training, cautiously about the undergrowth until the covey was pointed, and the sliding birds gave you a right and left shot which you made, to your great delight.

Perhaps you go after bigger game—deer in the north, or moose in Canada. How you shook with excitement when your first moose came by, so that you made a clean miss, although the target was big enough and the shot an easy one. Since then you have grown to be a real hand with the rifle, as the mounted heads in your club and your own evidence. Even the grizzly and the mountain lion of the Rockies may have succumbed to your prowess as a hunter, and the long, hard climb, the hunting for "sign," and the days of no success have merged into a remembrance of weeks pleasantly spent among florid surroundings, air that was invigorating, and resultant, plenty scenes of beauty beyond description, and an appetite that would make an ostrich bury its head in the sand.

No. 2. FISHING

Gently the man in the khaki suit made his way down the bank, and out on the dead, overhanging cedar trunk. Off and on he was looking at the hammering, and in the big oak near at hand a squirrel was chattering. The only other sound was the laughing and bubbling of the little stream. Just down the stream the rapid fumed and foamed and suddenly it sank out of sight in a deep, black pool. That was the spot! Carefully poking his rod, the man made the cast. The line spun out, the fly went straight to the center of the pool—splash! A gleam of silver, a splutter of the surface, and he felt the deep delight that always comes with a pull of the line and a bend of the rod. The fish fought and gulped and fought again, until at last, guiding the line carefully with his left hand, the man bent low and scooped him in with the net. In his right hand, a spotted and speckled, and panting with the unequal struggle!

There is no more exhilarating sport in the world than trout fishing, despite the hard work, the long walks, the discomfort of pushing through bushes and branches, and the slipping on the wet stones and loes.

Maskalouge fishing is different. If you are after this fish, you go to the smaller lakes in the north, or to Canada. Either with frog or minnow bait, made his way down the bank, and out on the dead, overhanging cedar trunk. Off and on he was looking at the hammering, and in the big oak near at hand a squirrel was chattering. The only other sound was the laughing and bubbling of the little stream. Just down the stream the rapid fumed and foamed and suddenly it sank out of sight in a deep, black pool. That was the spot! Carefully poking his rod, the man made the cast. The line spun out, the fly went straight to the center of the pool—splash! A gleam of silver, a splutter of the surface, and he felt the deep delight that always comes with a pull of the line and a bend of the rod. The fish fought and gulped and fought again, until at last, guiding the line carefully with his left hand, the man bent low and scooped him in with the net. In his right hand, a spotted and speckled, and panting with the unequal struggle!

The cast is made; there is a vicious strike and a terrific splash, and almost before you are aware of it the struggle is on. The line sinks through the water. The reel spins round so fast that it burns your fingers, and of sudden there is a leap for freedom. Clear out into the air comes the great fish, and shakes himself to free the hook. Then down he goes, making for the other side of the boat; then up again into the air. With a taut line you need not fear his leaps; and after awhile he tires of this form of exertion and makes for the bottom, to gain the friendly protection of the weeds.

All this time the carman has been pulling you into deep water, and you have had a chance to take in a good deal of slack line. Then, tired out with the fight, the fish is pulled to the top and captured. The maskalouge is often called the tiger of fresh water because of its fierce characteristics, and it sometimes grows to a very large size.

No. 3. CAMPING

There are so many attractions about camping as a means of enjoying one's vacation that it is almost in a class by itself, especially in the comparatively newer parts of the country, and in the older parts also there are many thousands who enjoy this form of recreation. Its greatest advantage over the summer resort is that one can go into the wilder and less frequented country, and need not be tied to the neighborhood of settled communities. It is true there are some disadvantages, but to the experienced camper these do not count. There is a lot of work to be done, there are some discomforts to be met with; but these are outweighed by the pleasure and the freedom experienced. One thing is absolutely essential to the successful camp—water. There must be a stream nearby or a lake at the tent about, and spring for drinking water is necessary. And there should be woods, for shade and to furnish that air of mystery and privacy that adds so much to the pleasure of camp life. After the first experience one has a pretty good idea of the necessities of this sort of outing—a good tent, with fly to keep off rain and sun, bedding, provisions, cooking equipment, boat or canoe to explore the neighboring water. First of all, after the start, is the choosing of the camp site, which should be open enough and high enough to keep it free from dampness. An ideal site is a level knoll top, sloping at the back to the woods and in front toward the lake or stream. When once the tent is pitched, bedding of green pine boughs installed, and the daily routine established, the hardest work is over and the camper can settle down to pure enjoyment.

The days are free of care and the nights exhilarating, and it is no wonder that appetite, sleep, and good health are the rewards. There are long tramps by day, or canoe trips to distant waters, fishing or hunting to supply the camper with fresh meat.

Then the evenings around the campfire—they are compensation for many days of work and travel. The night air is chilly and sweaters are brought into use. Seated on logs or rough chairs, you watch the flames leap up from the pile of brush, and listen to the pleasant crackling odor of pine. And you listen to songs and stories and smoke many pipefuls of your favorite tobacco. Then the first morning down to the glowing logs, the great moon comes up over the lake, away off a lone cabin, and from the woods back there comes the howl of the owl. A sense of peace and quiet steals over you in this bewitching hour, and when at last the time comes to turn in, you go to bed clear headed and content.

BREAD BY THE POUND

Idaho People Will Now Get Full 16 Ounces of Bread for Pound.

Bread will be sold by the pound in Idaho from this time henceforth, and every loaf will be plainly labeled as to its contents in ounces. If not, the baker who ignores the law will have trouble. The pound loaf is to contain 16 full ounces, and the half pound loaf eight ounces.

This is the result of a late move on the part of Inspector Wallis. He called in all the bakers, read the law to them and told them that it was up to them to comply or take the consequences. To their credit be it said, every local baker was ready and willing to fall into line. They asked for time to have labels printed and make other necessary arrangements and were given until August to make their preparations.

This law, enacted at the last session of the legislature, is not confined to cities of any particular population, or to any particular class of business. It applies to every bakery in the state who furnishes bread to the public. It is intended to protect the public against short weight and to give the consumer that for which he pays.

Just as in all other articles of food, the bread buyer must learn labels to find out what the package contains. Or in the absence of labels the loaves must be standardized to each contain the requisite weight. It is ounces for the pound and eight ounces for the half pound.

At the conference held between Inspector Wallis and the local bakers, there was a complete understanding reached and no trouble of any kind is anticipated.

ELEPHANT CHASES AUTO

Animal Escaped from Circus at Downey Becomes Violent.

Salt Lake—A. H. Bush and family arrived here Tuesday with the story of how an elephant in Idaho chased them while in an auto, across the country. The beast, which had escaped from a small circus at Downey, Idaho, met and charged them on an unfenced road. Ensign did not have time to turn completely around, and had to take off at right angles to the road, with the maddened beast whipping his trunk in the air only 20 feet behind. After a wild chase of a mile or more, in which the machine threatened to go to pieces on the rough ground, the elephant tired and gave up the chase. Just as a eagle blocked the further progress of the auto. The keeper later captured the animal before it did any harm—Stateman.

NEWS NOTES OF JARBIDGE

Jarbridge, Nev., July 16-1913.

H. F. McCowan, Johnny Escallon, Charley Harris, Jack Cornora and Henry Kinsinger have returned from a fishing trip down the canyon below the junction of the Jarbridge and the East Fork. They report the fishing in that vicinity as extra fine and brought back enough beautiful trout to prove the statement. They also brought back the rattles of nine snakes—and one cannot pick rattles from snakes unless they (the snakes) are real. At one point on the river, where the slide rock comes clear to the water's edge, the fishing is particularly good. But the rattlers are thick in the rocks and the music they play is not particularly nothing to the service.

The fishing within a mile or two of town is not as good as it might be this year, but the same and grouse shooting promises to be unusually good. The birds are plentiful and fat and are now ripe.

Mrs. Roy R. Cook left last Wednesday for Caldwell, Idaho, where she will visit with her sister for some time.

While fishing on Cow creek last week Mrs. Jack Gandy lost her watch which she prized very highly.

Jack McLaughlin came in from Deeth Wednesday with a load of freckles.

Clifford McCormick has returned from a visit to Rupert, Idaho.

Wm. Schopke, the local banker, is spending the day working the hills and will do the annual work on some claims while he is out.

Jas. Lund went to Rupert, Idaho, on Wednesday. While there she will close up the estate of her mother.

George Winkler has been nursing a badly cut leg since the fourth and has been unable to go to the hills. He fell down while participating in the foot race and for a time the injury threatened to be serious. The cut leg establishes his skill when he is asked the question, "Who stole the ice cream?" but he says that he once shook hands with Sherlock Holmes and that when the reward offered is large enough he will name the thief.

On hearing this, one of the boys remarked, "I'll bet you're a Kally!"

Miss Farris and Miss Hansen, charming young ladies from Chicago, arrived in town last Wednesday. They are visiting with the Rev. Swannson and the bachelors are already trying to devise ways and means to make them forget the hot springs last week, but left Monday morning for the springs near Ogden.

A. T. Macaulay and J. G. Dufner have returned from a short visit to the Craters.

FILER NEWS.

(Filer Journal.)

Lots of strangers in town every day. Geo. Allen was a Twin Falls visitor the first of the week.

A girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walters last Monday.

Homer Miller has been appointed first assistant at the Nibbel-Channel lumber yard.

Ray Brown, accompanied by a young brother from Iowa, who is visiting here, was in Filer Monday.

Miss Walter McKinley came down from Twin Falls, Idaho, for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson.

Robt. Lee returned to Filer Saturday evening from Chico, California, where he has spent the past three months.

Mrs. Clark, wife of J. P. Clark, of Prescott, Iowa, joined her husband here last Thursday. They are guests at the Nibbel home.

Filer and Castleford played a game of ball last Sunday, on the Nibbel grounds, which resulted in a victory for Filer by a score of 6 to 2.

Raymond Taylor left Monday morning for Amesbury, where he will stay to see about filling on a homestead. He will return tomorrow.

Hutch Adkins returned to Filer to start up his business affairs, after which he will accept a position as buyer with the Gooding Packing Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins and five children of Los Angeles, Calif., arrived in Filer Tuesday evening. Mrs. Hawkins is a sister of Wm. Walters, north of town, and the family are now guests at the Walters home. They are looking for a location.

Carl Stanley, who visited here last week, left Saturday evening for Portland, Ore., where he will spend a few days before resuming his journey to Canada, where he goes to attend business matters. He will remain there a week before returning to his home in Cornish, Iowa.

The dance Saturday night was better attended than could have been hoped for. With two shows in tents, a brass band and an elephant to compete against, it is a wonder that the dance survived. Remember there will be a dance in the Filer opera house every Saturday night.

O. A. Wood and family departed Monday for their old home at St. Paul, Nebr. They will go by automobile, stopping over a couple of days at Salt Lake and two weeks at Denver. This family will be back in the judgment of the writer. "Shorty" was slightly hurt, and his auto was damaged, but a few of his old "cronies" back there will return and he satisfied the rest of his days.

L. G. Hill and wife drove to Twin Falls Tuesday.

Mrs. Guy Shearer and Miss Francis Brown were in Twin Falls Wednesday.

C. H. Perrine of Chicago, is here looking after his ranch interests east of Filer.

Mrs. Cartwright is home from her visit to different points in the state. A little niece accompanied her home for a visit.

Mr. Patton, who recently located here has purchased the Joe Wood property in the southwest part of town, through C. W. Case.

Miss Case, from Lewistown, Ill., arrived in Filer Saturday, and will visit with C. W. Case until about begins, when she will teach at Dubl.

Hutch Adkins returned to Filer the first of the week. He will try and arrange his business so as to get started up again in the very near future.

Ray Hinkle has moved off the Reynolds Bros. farm and Bob Rosenberg is the new tenant. It is said that some farmer as well as his various other accomplishments.

Dan Comer has an outfit on his place skunking a snake. Somer or later every ranch on the tract will have a good well. Dan expects to find a good well at 200 feet.

Mrs. McGreevy, Mrs. Wilderfelt, Dale McGreevy and Leonard Wood spent Sunday visiting points of interest, including Blue Lake, under the falls, Twin Falls, and Artesian City.

A. J. Daum has resigned his position in the Butte copper mines and will henceforth act as agent on his splendid farm southwest of Filer. His family will join him shortly and become permanent fixtures here.

The sickly baby of Mrs. G. G. Patton on the east has been purchased by the Rehbert boys, who will probably put the child into an adoption. This piece of land belonged to the Gilmore estate and was sold by C. W. Case.

Quite a frost visited certain sections of the tract last Sunday night. There is a point between Kimberly and Twin Falls where it freezes often than anywhere else. Only the beans and pumpkin vines showed the result of the freeze.

At the regular meeting of the school board Tuesday evening, it was decided not to fill the vacancy on the board, caused by the resignation of J. E. Wood, but to allow the board to go over to the regular election, when three members are to be elected. Mrs. Patton and Miss McKelwell were listed as teachers.

E. F. Derwiler of Holbrook, passed through Filer yesterday morning with an auto load of potatoes, who were leaving the country and were being taken through the Snake flat country and on into Twin Falls. It is very easy to find a finer looking potato anywhere.

John Strassburg is putting up a new wagon at the first of the week.

G. Jay Childs autored to Twin Falls, the first of the week.

Mr. Erskine, a veterinarian from Twin Falls, was here yesterday.

Ira Lambing was transacting business at the county seat yesterday.

Messrs. Miller & Brown are busy building an addition to the house on the ranch of W. W. Young.

The Twin Falls motor cars took a run down the line Tuesday morning with the Perrines and their friends aboard.

Dale McGreevy left Tuesday evening for Salt Lake where he has a position as trap drummer in the Monarch theatre at $25 per week.

Mr. Glazebrook, the barber, leaves today for Lava Lake on a business trip for his health. W. A. Mullins will have charge of the shop during his absence.

Two shows struck Filer the same day—last Saturday. So they concluded to double up and give the people the benefit of two shows combined for one admission.

Dave Lynd and Emil Grimmer loaded a boat in a wagon and outfitted for a long camp on the Snake river. They this week where they had placer mine for gold during the summer.

Every cloud has a silver lining. This always proves true. No woman had "Matthe" dried her eyes because "Matthe" had gone than she laughed out loud and strong because "Duh" had returned.

Wm. Snelson, assistant postmaster, loaded up a big wagon and gathered a bunch of Snelson's youngsters and started for the river on his vacation. Fish stories will be in order when they return.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for Twin Falls County.

Citizens State Bank of Dubl, Idaho, a corporation, Plaintiff, vs. Charles W. Arthur, Walter E. Steen, and Parker Marshall Co., a corporation, Defendants.

State of Idaho sends greetings to Walter E. Steen, Defendant.

You are hereby summoned and required to appear in an action brought against you by said plaintiff in the District Court, and to answer the complaint of the above named plaintiff, filed therein, within twenty days exclusive of the day of service of this summons upon you, if it served within this judicial district, or if served elsewhere, within forty days.

This action is brought against the defendant, Charles W. Arthur, to recover on his two promissory notes dated March 7th, 1908, for the principal sum of $150.00 and $250.00 and interest, and for the foreclosure as against each of the defendants of the mortgage given to secure the payment of said notes.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, as above required, the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for Twin Falls County, this 16th day of May, 1913.

By H. COGGINS, Deputy Clerk.
