Switzerland, the Land of Scenic Splendors

No. 1. LAKE OF-LUCERNE

"Learn One Thing Every Day."

Copyright, 1913, by The Associated Newspaper School, Inc.

Lucerne, the resting-place of Switzerland, is beloved by tourists. With its two sentinel peaks, Pilatus and Rigi, its picturesque scenery, and its own calm Lake of Lucerne, the quiet town on the banks of the Rhine River is a magnet for all visitors to the land of William Tell.

Mount Pilatus, nearly seven thousand feet high, is the barometer of Lucerne. Its flat top of clouds it foretells the weather.

There is a legend about Mount Pilatus which says that Pontius Pilatus, his wanderings through the world, impelled at last by horror and remorse, committed suicide upon its summit.

And so the mountain got its name. For a long time it was considered haunted, and people were forbidden to ascend it on Friday. Now there is a hotel on the top, and every day in the week a train ascends Pilatus to the summit.

On August 10, 1732, twenty-six officers and seven hundred and sixty soldiers of the Swiss guard fell in defending the Tullerles from the Paris mob. Fighting for Louis XVI., a king they were not their own ruler, nevertheless they went bravely to their deaths. They alone were faithful, and for their fidelity they paid with their lives.

The "Lion of Lucerne" commemorates the bravery of the Swiss guard. It was the model by the Danish sculptor Thorwaldsen, and was carved out of natural sandstone in 1821. The lion is twenty-eight feet long and reclines in a monstrous niche. Beneath the figure, chiseled in the rock, are the names of the officers murdered by the mob. Above is the simple Latin inscription, meaning "To the fidelity and bravery of the Swiss."

In the neighborhood of the Lion of Lucerne is the Glacier Garden, a sort of pathos worn in the sandstone bed of an ancient glacier. Old Lucerne is a walled town. The wall, including its nine watch-towers, erected in 1322.

The Lake of Lucerne is the most beautiful in all Switzerland. It is twenty-three miles long, and has the form of a huge cross. More than 500,000 travelers cross it during the summer months alone.

No. 2. VIEW OF THE ST. GOTTHARD RAILWAY

The St. Gotthard Railway, constructed in 1872-73 at a cost of $52,000,000, is one of the greatest achievements of modern science. Besides the great tunnel at the top of the line, there are twenty-nine others of shorter length. Seven of these are spiral tunnels which pierce the sides of the valley, making the ascent more gradual.

In 1829 and 1871 Germany, Italy, and Switzerland signed an agreement for the construction of a railway with a tunnel through the St. Gotthard. This great tunnel itself cost over $11,000,000 to build. It is nine and a quarter miles long. This makes it about three miles shorter than the Simplon tunnel, the longest in the world. At its center the St. Gotthard tunnel is 3,785 feet above sea level, from which it descends on both sides. It is twenty-eight feet broad and twenty-one feet high. It takes an express train about twenty minutes to pass through the tunnel. The air in the tunnel is fresh and free from smoke.

During the construction of the St. Gotthard tunnel, which took twenty years, there were 600 deaths among the workmen. Included among these were the engineer and contractor. This heavy loss of life was due to insufficient ventilation, the high temperature, the exposure of the men to the Alpine climate after emerging from the tunnel, and the poor character of the food.

The St. Gotthard is a mountain group, one hundred and sixty square miles in area, with a number of different peaks, extensive glaciers, and about thirty small lakes. It is famous for its rich Alpine flora. Many rare minerals are also found there. All approaches to the St. Gotthard are guarded by modern fortifications.

The pass of St. Gotthard is the principal route from southern Europe to northern Italy. At its highest point it is 6,935 feet above the sea. It takes its name for some unknown reason from St. Gotthard, bishop of Hildesheim, who died in 1033.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century the St. Gotthard was probably the most frequented Alpine pass, but it was gradually deserted for others. The road over the pass, constructed between 1520 and 1832 by the cantons of Uri and Ticino, is one of the best and most convenient of the Alpine carriages, and is free from snow during four or five months of the year, but since the completion of the railway it is not much used. Nevertheless, it is still interesting to walk or drive over the pass, as the grandeur of the scenery is remarkable.

The St. Gotthard hospice on the summit of the pass is first mentioned in 1241. In 1775 some of its buildings were destroyed by an avalanche, and in 1799-80 everything was destroyed by the French soldiers. It was rebuilt in 1831, but in March, 1906, was again destroyed, this time by fire.

There is now a new hospice with a meteorological station.

No. 3. LAKE GENEVA AND THE CASTLE OF CHILLON

One night less than a century ago a little boat grated on the shore of Lake Geneva, and there stepped from it a man enveloped in a long black cloak. The man looked slightly. For an hour he remained all by himself in the historic dungeon. When he had gone home, he found a note pinned to the post which Bonnard Bonnard, the defender of Swiss liberties, was imprisoned in the Castle of Chillon nearly four centuries ago by the tyrant Charles III. of Savoy. For six years he languished in a gloomy cell chained to a post in the center. For six long, dreary years his fathers heard no word of consolation or suffering pass his lips. And when at last he was rescued by his countrymen his first thought was not of himself, but for his fatherland. Pale and emaciated, still chained to the pillar round which he had walked so many years, he was but, a shadow of his former self.

"Bonnard, you are free!" they cried. He slowly rose. "And Geneva?" he asked.

"Free also!" they replied. To tell of all the tragedies that have been enacted within the walls of the time-worn stronghold would be impossible. One of the most terrible is the story of the hundreds of Jews who were tortured and then buried alive in the foolish supposition that they had poisoned all the wells of Europe.

But the tragedy of Bonnard is the most famous of all, and this is due to the poem "The Prisoner of Chillon" written by Lord Byron. And, strange to say, Byron's "Prisoner" was a purely imaginary person. The real Bonnard's story was quite different.

The Lake of Geneva, the lake of poetry and song, is sometimes also known by the name of Lake Lemman. Its waters form a beautiful blue crescent, forty-five miles long and eight miles wide. It is said that Neptune, the sea-god, once came to see the lake of Geneva, and he was so struck by its beauty that he gave it his own likeness in miniature.

The names of many men of genius are associated with this famous lake. Byron often sailed upon its surface. The poet Shelley nearly drowned there. Madame de Staël lived at one point about its shore. Voltaire, the great genius of France, held his literary court there for years. Gibbon finished "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" near its waters.

Many have praised the Lake of Geneva. Tyndall said that its water was the purest natural water ever analyzed. Voltaire declared it to be the "First of Lakes." Alexander Dumas compared it to the Bay of Naples. It is indeed a lovely lake, and only to linger on its shores for a few days is a delight not to be excelled the world over.

The movement which resulted in the visit of the Salt Lake business men will prove of great value to this county in getting Utah capital invested. For the next five years Twin Falls ranchers and business men must depend upon outside capital for keeping business going. Eastern capitalists during paucity times is too fickle and too hard to interest, for that reason western capital put up by western men who understand western values and western conditions is more desirable. Salt Lake City with its drop of wealthy mining men has more capital than it can invest with profit in that city or state. Twin Falls needs that capital and the visit from Salt Lake men will do much to give them faith in the great future of irrigated land in Idaho. It will probably do much to boost the building of the Oregon Short Line south to create a shorter route to Salt Lake and her markets.

The games with Turkey were indeed greatly by the constant blitheness of many members of the team. Good sport, clean baseball and one of the finest of sports in the world, most sportsmen after people desire a square game regardless of who wins. The Times believe that the majority of the people in this city long to see above class. Saturday's game with Burley was spoiled for the fans by the kicks on the umbrellas and by the final action of a few Turkey players in quitting the game because of a doubtful decision. Unpro Golden has demanded to cut out the kicking and in it has the backing of the fans of Twin Falls. But there is need for stronger protest on the part of the baseball fans to prevent the constant kicking which has characterized the series with Turkey. The Times does not care which team is to blame in the matter or what individuals. The kicking should be cut out. If a Twin Falls player kicks let the management put him out of the game until better behavior is promised. Back up the umpire in his attempt to have clean, fast baseball in this city.

While the solicitors are out for funds for the County Fair next month, The Times wishes to make a suggestion to that committee and a protest at the same time. There are in this city a large number of property owners in the business district who aside from owning rentable property contribute nothing to the welfare of the city as far as contributions for public benefit are concerned. A great many of them are making a living off the merchants and the other business men. In fact can be said to make all the profit from some businesses, paid in the form of a rental. The Times has noted in the past that outside of the banks, who contribute liberally, the landlord class is as a rule distinctly inimical on the list of the donors for any public charity. It would be a good plan on the part of the committee to interview these men and get a donation of a good fat sum from each of them who are not in business in this city. It should add at least five hundred dollars to the fund for the fair. If the landlords do their rightful part in the building work of this city, it seems unfair to ask the business men to continually contribute funds which boost the real estate values of the city and make the city grow, while the property owner completely shirks his duty and watches the business, but does nothing to show his loyalty to the city.

NEW KNOTS IN THE RAILROAD TANGLE

The universal satisfaction in the east, shown by the press, over the proposition that the threatened railroad strike, has been shaken somewhat by the fact that the intervention of new lawyers will make peace impossible. The first obstacle in the way of peaceful arbitration, it will be remembered, was the objection that the Edmund act. By prompt action of congress, after a White House conference, this difficulty was smoothed out by the enactment of a law providing more satisfactory methods of settlement, and by the appointment of the new commission by the president. But the statement of the railroad managers that they were willing to have this board consider, not merely the demands of the unions, but "all differences relative to pay and working conditions," introduced a new chance for difference of opinion. For this apparently innocent phrase was followed by the announcement that the roads would submit to the board of mediation and conciliation grievances of their own. And in reply came charges of bad faith from the leaders of the employees and these emphatic words from President Lee, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen: "Unless the eastern railroad managers make an about-face from their position, every conductor and fireman employed on the forty-three lines involved in the present dispute will be ordered to strike." So the press, all hoping for the best, though somewhat worried over the possibility of the worst, take their various positions on the new issue. Some of them, with Sen Low, president of the American Civic Federation, share the view of the railroad workers, while others see no reason why a board established to settle railroad disputes should not consider the grievances of both parties. The wage question, which started the present friction, was stated in our last week's issue. The eight counter-demands of the railroads ask for certain readjustments of methods of payment and of conditions of service in the interest of the employee.

What is this but trickery? ask the spokesmen of the railroad workers. As Mr. Low puts it, the conductors and trainmen "believe the railroads are honorably bound to dispose of the questions raised by them * * * before they are asked to consider new and far-reaching problems to which neither they nor their brotherhood have given the slightest consideration," and he declares himself "entirely in sympathy with their views." So, too, does the Washington Times, which thinks the railroad proposals "savor all too strongly of bad faith."

Taking issue with the railway employees, persons like the New York World and New York News, agree with the more conservative New York Journal of Commerce, Commercial Appeal and Brooklyn Eagle and Standard Union that "turn about is fair play." As The World puts it, if the new law "were based on the assumption that the unions should hold the position of responsibility and the railroads the position of perpetual defendant, it would be a one-sided affair. Equality of opportunity to ask for public hearings and secure just decisions in the public interest so as to prevent strife and strikes is the only sound principle."

The enactment of the Newlands bill establishing a permanent board of mediation and conciliation, and providing for the arbitration of labor disputes on railroads in interstate commerce, will probably, in the opinion of the Buffalo Express, "mark the end of the railroad strikes in this country." The Springfield Republican, Baltimore Sun, and New York Tribune, Journal of Commerce, and Wall Street Journal are not quite so sanguine, but believe that the new plan is a long step ahead. The new law, explains the New York Journal of Commerce in a Washington dispatch, "establishes the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation," to consist of a federal commissioner of mediation and conciliation and two other officials of the government to be designated by the president. This board could be appealed to to intervene in a railroad labor dispute by either party and would first use its best efforts, by mediation and conciliation, to bring the disputants to an agreement. Failure would be followed by an attempt on the part of the board to induce the parties to submit their controversy to arbitration, and in case arbitration was agreed to, special boards of three or six mediators would be chosen by the railroads and their employees.

"Arbitration under the new law would be undertaken only after a definite agreement had been made by both parties to abide by the decision of the arbitration board for a stated period."

The personnel of the board of mediation as appointed by President Wilson is as follows: William L. Chambers, commissioner; Assistant Secretary of Labor Louis F. Post, and Judge Martin A. Knapp, of the commerce court. Mr. G. W. W. Hamer, now in the department of labor, has been accepted as assistant to Commissioner Chambers—Literary Digest.

HOG CHOLERA IN IDAHO

To Prevent Spread Work is Necessary on the Part of the Hog Raiser.

There are two general types of hog cholera recognized by veterinarians. One type is acute and kills the animal in ten to fourteen days. The other type is more chronic and may persist for two to five weeks. The mortality rate is not present in that part of the state among the hogs. After several postmortem examinations there is no doubt but that the disease in that section of Idaho is the true hog cholera. The acute type found in the central states was not found but a modified type in which the hogs showed most of the symptoms of the acute was present. Due to climatic conditions largely, the type of disease in the state is not as severe as that found in the Mississippi valley.

A few of the general recognized symptoms may help the farmer to recognize this disease. About the first thing noticed is a drop of hogs. Infected will be a quick, dry cough in some of the hogs, accompanied by the refusal of food. The afflicted ones do not leave their beds, shiver and if their temperature were taken, it would be found that they had a rather high degree of fever. Another sign is a constipation of the bowels, and by a weak, staggering gait, when they are forced to move about. Just before death, numerous red spots may appear on the belly and the inside of the thigh. During the later stages, also, they generally have a very marked diarrhea. The cough in these afflicted in Idaho persists throughout the case and is generally accompanied by a discharge of mucous at the nose.

Post-Mortem Appearances. If one wants to be certain that the hog has died of cholera an examination of the internal organs will reveal some positive changes. In most cases ulcers will be found on the intestines where the small and large intestines meet. There will be numerous congestions on the intestines on the intestines and on other organs. The most constant appearance comes on the kidneys. The kidneys will show little red spots about the size of a pin-head giving the appearance of a turkey egg, while the kidney itself is paler in color than normal. A few little spots cannot be seen by the eye, but the thin membrane over the kidney is peeled off. The lymph glands are generally enlarged and more or less reddened. The spleen, or spleen, is enlarged generally and shows reddened spots. In most of the cases in this state the hogs die badly congested and dark red in color, and portions of them will be solidified.

To Prevent Spread. The real cause of hog cholera has not yet been discovered. The disease arises in every way like a germ and is spread just as other contagious diseases are spread. The best precaution therefore will be along the lines of sanitation which means clean pens, good feed, and pure water. When a farmer finds his hogs taken sick the first thing he should do would be to put them in clean pens by themselves and keep the neighborhoods, dogs, and other travelers away from the sick animals. The most important thing that may materialize away from pens may spread it to healthy herds, even the streams and irrigation ditches may carry it for miles to re-infect another's hogs. When a hog dies it should be buried. If it is buried it is apt to be dug up later and the infection scattered again. When all the sick hogs have died the pens should be thoroughly disinfected by spraying every part of them with one of the coal tar disinfectants. These disinfectants, such as Zoleum, are cheap and very effective. The solution should be diluted at the rate of one quart of the solution to twenty parts of water.

Use of Hog Cholera Serum. In the last few years, there has developed a method of suppressing disease by use of a serum manufactured from the blood of animals treated in a certain way. Hog cholera was found to be one of the diseases that could be combated by using the blood of animals naturally, or artificially, immune to the disease. This serum is now widely used throughout the United States. It has the endorsement of the United States government, and every experiment station in the Union. This serum is not a cure but a prevention. When a farmer finds the disease among his hogs, he should at once notify the state veterinarian. There is a likelihood of its spreading from the sick ones to his herd, he certainly ought to take all the precautions necessary to protect himself and there is no better insurance than that of treating his whole herd with hog cholera serum. The treatment may cost a few dollars but one does not need to lose many hogs to equal the cost of the serum for his whole herd. In Idaho if disease breaks out among the hogs, one is forced by law to notify the state veterinarian. If he desires to have his hogs treated with serum he must also apply to the state veterinarian.

With hog cholera in Idaho, and the experience of older states as an example, the farmers can and they will, speedily drive this disease from the state. It will take cooperation, however, between the farmers and the livestock mortality board in order to accomplish the desired results.

Genuine Maple Sugar.

There are few people outside the maple sugar making districts, says a writer in the Country Gentleman, who really know what the genuine article tastes like. The superior flavor thus spoken of is probably due in a degree to the same causes that make strawberries eaten off the vine and cherries consumed on the tree so delectable. The writer quoted, however, puts some of the blame for the poor flavor of commercial maple sugar on the "wily wholesale dealer and mixer."

Never Sells His Horses.

It is the proud boast of Senator George New Jersey that in all the years he has been farming he has never sold a horse. When a horse gets too old to work he retires it on full rations and lets it just loaf around the pasture until it dies.

HAS ITS ROOTS IN CONFIDENCE

So True Friendship Elevates Two Hearts Above Sordid Struggles of Their Time.

As the love of Romeo and Juliet elevated their souls above the strife of their houses, so can friendship elevate two hearts above the struggles of their time, though the individuals be ever engaged in it; while those friends who happily walk the same path cheer and strengthen each other by their mutual example; and since essential confidence can exist between good men only, they propel each other in the path of virtue, for it is a primary law of all intercourse, that if two, or more of the same inclination, pursuit or character—good, frivolous or wicked—are brought in close contact with one another, in the same direction they will propel one another still more rapidly. Friendship must rest on mutuality, it is one of its essential qualities; for one of its regularities and blessings is the enjoyment of confidence—a luxury to good men; and Aeschylus is right when he says that kings suffer one evil, they do not know how to confide in friends, while the reason that, was given of Tiresias having friends is that he was a friend of himself.—Francis Lieber.

Have You Found Your Real Estate?

Somewhere in this city is a piece of property YOU OUGHT TO OWN—because it would be worth to you a little more than to any one else in the whole city.

You probably WILL own it, sometime—but why not try to locate it NOW, or SOON, by watching the real estate ads, and answering "likely ones?"

a ditch near the fence and after a moment held up the ball to show that he had caught it. Faulkner was at third. Golden refused to call Faulkner out, claiming that he could not see the catcher and would not allow it. Burley's catcher immediately started things and the wind-up was that the major portion of the visiting team left the grounds and the umpire declared the game forfeited to Twin Falls.

Sunday's Game.

With the bleachers and the grandstands crowded, the exciting game of series went to Twin Falls after the visitors had tied the score to the seventh inning. Hays and Chapin for Twin Falls, received good support and the hits registered were very small and well scattered. A hitting rally by the locals in the seventh brought in the winning runs and Burley was unable to overcome the lead in the rest of the game.

Final score 8 to 5.

FARMER'S PLANT TREES

Ten Commandments for Windbreak Planters.

Washington, July 12.—The forest service has devised a decalogue for the use of farmers in planting windbreaks. These ten commandments are to be displayed as part of the exhibit which the forest service is preparing for an exposition to be held during October at Tulsa, Oklahoma, in connection with the eighth international forestry congress. The commandments are:

1. Place the windbreak at right angles to the direction of injurious prevailing winds.
2. Devote from one-eighth to one-fifth of the farm to timber. Its protective value alone justifies the cost. It occupies, to say nothing of the timber yield.
3. Plant only species suited to windbreak use, to the region and to the locality.
4. Plant rapid growers for quick results; but underplant with slower growing species which are usually longer lived and more valuable.
5. Supplement a deciduous windbreak with evergreens to afford protection in winter.
6. Separate trees by the spacing proper to the species used. The trees should be close enough to produce a dense windbreak and to yield good poles, but should not be so crowded as to produce sapling growth.
7. Do not thin your windbreak from the bottom up, especially on the side toward the wind. This may be done by using species which branch near the ground and have a wide spread of low-growing trees, by encouraging natural reproduction, and by underplanting.
8. Cultivate the plantation thoroughly while it is young.
9. Do not allow excessive grazing where reproduction is desired.
10. Do not thin your windbreak too heavily or take out the best trees for minor uses. Remember that a timber tract should be managed for use and that each clearing should leave it in better condition than before.

Other exhibits will show the proper location of windbreaks, suitable species for planting, and the direction of harmful prevailing winds in various regions.

TIME FOR HIM TO DEPART

Youngful Lecturer, it's a Loss to Know What Next to Do, Had to Be Given Strong Hint.

A young author and critic, who had come to Twin Falls after a certain modern phase of education, went a few days ago to deliver his first lecture at a girls' school. He had lectured before, but never at a "young ladies' school" and was a bit crooked, curly-haired, whiskered fellow to the platform, and he sat down beside the matronly principal among the women who made up the faculty, and faced a sea of girls' faces, he was young enough to feel a bit of embarrassment himself. It was rather difficult at first, but once the lecture was started things went all right.

He finished what he had to say and sat down. The audience and the matronly principal and the women who made up the faculty clapped their hands enthusiastically. Then the applause died down and silence settled upon the lecture hall. The young man sat on waiting for someone to say something, dimly concluding that a move of one kind or another was expected of him. But his lecture was finished, he had said all he had to say; there were no questions from faculty or students. A few minutes began to fade, but no one spoke.

The young man became unpleasantly aware that he was expected to do something and to do it at once; but he did not know what to do. He realized enough to feel that he was not the etiquette of a girls' school anyhow. And then there was a signal from the principal and a move in the audience, and the prettiest of the two girls walked up to him, a little shy, determined to do her duty.

"I'm so sorry, Mr. R., she murmured, 'but I'm afraid you'll have to—' you'll have to start right this minute if you want to make your train!'"

OIL FOR JAPANESE UMBRELLAS

Seeds of the Rubber Plant Furnish Material for Peculiar Outfit of the Island Empire.

The vegetable oil used in making paper umbrellas in Japan is pressed out of the seeds of the rubber plant. This oil is made in the various islands famous for oil and seeds from these plants. Sandy ground is favored for the cultivation of the plant and the oil is extracted from the seeds by process. The yield of seeds is estimated at 20 bushels an acre.

The annual production throughout Japan amounts to 350,000 bushels, from which over a gallon of oil a bushel is extracted. The oil before it is used boiled and then cooled until it can be applied by hand to umbrellas with a piece of cloth or waste. No machinery or tools are used in applying the oil. When the oiling is completed the umbrellas are exposed in the sun for about two hours. This is also used in making Japanese lanterns, artificial leather, printing ink, lacquer, varnishes, oil paper, and paints—Scientific American.

Gentle Hint.

Professional Hanger (in Harpurd's office): "I've been out o' work for over a year, mister, and ain't got the price of a night's lodgin'." Can you do anything to help him out? I'd like to, but I sprained my foot on a collector yesterday.

THE LARGEST IN ENTIRE WEST

Nampa Man at Head of Great Irrigation and Power Scheme.

The construction of the largest power plant in Idaho and of the largest pumping plant in the west, together with the supplying of electricity for heating purposes to the towns of the Boise valley at a rate that will cut present fuel bills in two, are all included in the plans for the reclamation of 44,700 acres of land under the Owyhee irrigation district.

The proposition has been in the hands of the promoters for the last 18 months, and they have at last received satisfactory assurance of financial backing for their project.

The power to be used in the North Fork of the Payette river, about three miles above the junction of the North and South forks and a few miles below Snake's Ferry in Boise county. The land is under the Owyhee irrigation district, located north and south of the Owyhee river in Malheur county, Ore., tributary to the town of Nampa. The tract includes 44,700 acres, 60 per cent of which is deemed land and the remainder homestead and desert entries.

Water for irrigation will be pumped from the Snake river at a point near Brown's Bluff, 12 miles south of Nampa.

The project entails an expenditure of over $3,000,000 and the water will cost the settlers $60 per acre. The power will be sold to the town of Nampa, who is the original promoter of the project. He has recently secured in interesting in the proposition, a number of construction companies, many of whom, who assert that ample financial backing is now practically assured.

With the power generated by this plant required for pumping purposes only five months of the year the company will have available for sale seven months of the year 20,000 horsepower, sufficient to supply the entire Boise valley with electricity for domestic heating purposes. This surplus power can be disposed of to a manufacturing company at a rate that will make the cost of electrical heating, in a comparative way, what it would be if the power of the district were about $1 a ton.

The importance of this fact to the people of this section is best emphasized by the statement that the city of Boise alone uses annually over $250,000 worth of coal for domestic purposes, while the entire territory that it serves uses the same amount of fuel annually.

With the total output of the power plant planned of this year seven months of the year, it is figured that the proceeds of the contract would not only pay the interest on the bonds of the district, but would also provide a sinking fund that would pay a large part of the bonded indebtedness at the end of 20 years.

The building that will house the power plant on the Payette river will be 200 feet long and 40 feet wide. Above it, at the lower end of the hill, will be built a solid concrete dam which will divert water into a steel flume five miles in length. With 40 second feet of water available, the flume will give an effect of head water of 600 feet.

The plant will be equipped with standard water wheels, three 5000 K. V. A. generators and two 2500 K. V. A. generators. The transmission line from the plant to the city of Nampa will be 72 miles in length, constructed on 40-foot poles and will have lines enough to carry 20,000 horsepower.

Water for the irrigation of the entire district will be pumped from the Snake river at Station No. 1, 12 miles south of Nampa, and it is claimed that this station will be the largest pumping plant in the west. It will be equipped with four 2000-horsepower motors. This first lift will be one of 115 feet; from the main station ditches will be built to feed a number of other stations located at suitable points for watering the lands of the district.

district, will lift the water to the 2400 feet level, giving a gross lift of 325 feet.

The main pipe at station No. 1, where the water is lifted 115 feet, will be 3 feet in diameter and will have a 10-foot depth to a depth of five and a half feet.

All of the pumping stations will be constructed of concrete and rock and will be absolutely fireproof. The buildings for station No. 1 will be 1200 feet. MAKES "RED FIRE" locally as much as 75 or 80 feet, but the exact thickness is difficult to ascertain in all places owing to the presence of wash and talcum. East of Cave Spring Wash the outcropping rock or band of celestite was traced and found to be about 75 feet thick. This outcrop is contained in not very calcareous, but it is more than probable that the pure mineral will be found in some places in thin bands and streaks and in other places in the form of celestite, gypsum, quartz in the form of sand or chalcocite, clay, and the oxides of manganese and iron.

The general campaign for a "safe and sane Fourth of July" which has been sweeping the country threatens to eradicate the use of "red fire," except by those experienced in handling fireworks, although there is no doubt that there will always be more or less "colored fire" displayed during the national holiday.

The celestite deposits in Arizona visited by Mr. Phalen are 15 miles south of Glen Bend, Maricopa county. Here the celestite occurs in the form of a bed or beds overlying and underlying in some places by sandstone beds and in others by limestone flows. In the northwestern part of the district, where the relations and thickness can be determined, the bed with which the celestite is directly associated is 40 to 60 feet thick. This thickness is upper 8 to 10 feet looked most promising as a source of the mineral. Careful prospecting, however, will be necessary to determine the thickness and extent of the purer layers of the mineral.
