

FATE OF FAIR IN THE BALANCE

Meeting Held Last Night to Discuss Situation

FAILURE TO RAISE MONEY CHIEF REASON FOR IT.

Baseball Management Not Inclined to Allow Fair in the Ball Park.

The fate of the Twin Falls County fair was probably decided last night after this paper went to press at a meeting called by the Commercial club to talk over the matter. Dates for the fair and contracts for several attractions had been practically signed up by the committee and everything had taken on a bright aspect up to the time that two important committees were ready to report.

The committee on finances after a very thorough canvass of the business houses reported only $2,000 in sight. The fair to be successful must have at least $20,000.

The committee on grounds after discussing the question of using the ball park for the fair were informed by the baseball management that the baseball park would be used by the ball team for games. To erect buildings and enclose the entire within a suitable fence would cost more than the total funds raised.

The above situation does not point to a successful fair and the meeting last night was to thresh out the matter and determine what should be done. A great many of the business men are disgusted with the action of the baseball management, and favor cutting off the fair altogether.

AUTOS IN PARK NEXT YEAR

But They Will Not be Allowed There This Season.

There will be no trial opening of Yellowstone National Park to motor-driven vehicles this year. Every park will be open to autos in 1914, during the Panama-Pacific exposition, and possibly some of the roads may be opened this year, unless possibly after the close of the present park season on September 15.

The decision was reached by Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane and Assistant Secretary Adolph Miller. The secretary has under agreement a proposal to permit autos to use park roads between September 5 and August 1, when all the park stages are pulled off for the season, and will not make a decision for some time—Pocatello Tribune.

BUSH TALKS IN SALT LAKE

Thinks Twin Falls Tract Wonderful Country.

The electrifying of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad from Grand Junction, Colo., to Salt Lake City is now being considered, according to a statement given out this morning at the Hotel Utah by B. F. Bush, president of the Denver & Rio Grande, the Missouri Pacific, and Western Pacific railroad systems. President Bush, accompanied by other officials of the three railroads, arrived in Salt Lake City this morning on the Twin Falls train, where an inspection of the farming country in that section was made a few days ago.

President Bush was reluctant today to give out an interview. He was asked several questions pertaining to the electrifying of the Denver & Rio Grande and the building of "feeders" out of Salt Lake into the northern part of the state and Idaho, but was careful not to commit himself.

"Yes, we are considering the proposition of electrifying the Denver & Rio Grande railroad," he said. "At present we have electrical engineers busy drawing up plans and specifications as to what expenditure it will take to electrify the road. The road will be electrified from Grand Junction to Salt Lake City. I do not feel like giving out a statement concerning the improvements on the Rio Grande until the engineers have completed their examination and have made a report concerning the matter."

Mr. Bush's manager in discussing the electrification of the road is regarded as an evidence that this work is almost assured. Mr. Bush refused to say in which part of the state the engineers were working, how long they have been working, and when their work will be complete and the report made.

"The agricultural country in and around Twin Falls is wonderful. In fact, that country and the farm lands in the state within a radius of 100 miles in the entire country," said the railroad magnate, in discussing his inspection of the farm lands.

Mr. Bush's manager early went to Wells, Nevada, the latter part of last week and went by automobile from that place to Twin Falls. A whole day was spent going through the agricultural country. The party left Twin Falls last night, arriving here at about early this morning. The officials will leave the city tonight for the west—Salt Lake Telegram.

GOODING PACKERS ARE IN TROUBLE

Officials Catch Them Cremat- ing Cholera Hogs

TWENTY OTHERS FOUND IN PEN HAD DISEASE.

Officers of Packing Company Ar- rested and Will be Prosecuted to Limit.

An alarming condition of hog cholera was disclosed Tuesday morning at the plant of the Gooding Packing company, as the result of an inspection made by State Pure Food Commissioner James H. Wallis, Deputy State Veterinarian R. H. Smith, and Deputy Food Commissioner Dr. M. W. Smith. On arrival at the plant two live hogs were found burning, in which a dozen hogs were being cremated. Those animals had died but there were 20 others in the adjoining pens which showed symptoms of the disease. One of the hogs was killed and a post mortem made by Deputy Veterinarian Smith, fully satisfying the officials that the only thing to be done was to kill and cremate the balance of the hogs.

Commissioner Wallis issued orders to this effect and closed up the slaughter house, and ordered all the grounds cleaned up and the refuse burned and all pens and chutes and the buildings whitewashed with lime and crude carbolic acid. The management of the packing plant were taken severely to task for not reporting the true condition of affairs to the state officials, and besides having their slaughter house licensed and kept under inspection and taken into court for not promptly notifying the state veterinarian of the disease.

Commissioner Wallis left Dr. Smith in charge with instructions to see that the orders served on the Gooding Packing company management are carried out.

Both Commissioner Wallis and State Veterinarian Smith expressed deep concern over the condition found at the plant, and the condition of this packing company may have led to ship meat from diseased animals. This could not be shipped out of the state without being inspected by a federal inspector, but this would not hinder its shipment to points in Idaho. These officials expressed concern to protect the matter to the bottom and to prosecute the offenders to the limit—Statesman.

SPECIAL ONE LINE INDUCEMENTS BY EACH BUSINESS.

Ranchers on Saturday, August 16th, Will be Able to Supply all Needs at Reduced Prices.

If the plans of the Commercial club materialize the farmers of the Twin Falls country will be able to make a big saving on their purchases made in this city for just one day this month. For some time the club has been working on the plan of a Trader's Day similar to the plan used by some of the other cities of this state. While the date is not absolutely fixed for Saturday, August 16th, yet if the advertising can be lined up in time, that is the time when the merchants through the Commercial club, will offer special bargains that will save many dollars to the people of this tract.

The plan is as follows: In a big poster or page advertisement the space is blocked out into small portions and allotted to the business houses which desire to enter into the plan. In each of the spaces one bargain at a wonderful low rate will be advertised by that store. On just one thing will this low price be made, but with forty or fifty houses each offering a low price on some staple article, the combination will result in forty low prices that will save much money. The business men will be solicited in the matter some time this week.

IS KILLED BY LIGHTNING

St. Anthony Man Meets Death During Electric Storm.

E. R. Rosenberg, a married man about 35 years of age, making his home in St. Anthony, an employee of the Utah Light and Power company, was killed yesterday afternoon near where the railroad bridge of the Ashton-Driggs line crosses Fall river. The man had just finished his day's work with a construction crew and was driving away when struck by the flash. Fellow workmen some distance away saw the flash and saw the corpse lying on the ground, though the driver was sitting upright on the wagon seat.

The coroner developed the fact that the man and horses were dead, the man sitting bolt upright with his foot on the wagon brake.

Word was telephoned to Manager Cates of the company at his home here last night. Mr. Cates stated that Rosenberg was a valued employee of the company and a valuable man and expressed a great deal of regret at his untimely death. He is survived by his wife and several children.

The coroner, Rosenberg, is one of several which have occurred by lightning in the Teton Basin section since the winter of 1912—Idaho Falls Register.

WEISER TEAM HAD NO CHANCE

Locals Make Monkeys of the Weiser-Payette Crowd

Weiser's great unbeaten Oregon league team was probably suffering from cold pedal extremities when confronted with the idea of playing a real ball team. At any rate when the manager of that famous team arrived in town he might rightly have been taken for Pat Grightly or any other cradle robber. They were a nice bunch of boys and in their class could play good baseball, but not with Twin Falls.

Friday's game was a slaughter and Saturday was worse. Then for some unknown reason the Weiser worms turned and snorted their oppressors on Sunday in a batting contest that gave the spectators plenty of excitement. Twin Falls was so surprised that they did not recover until the visitors were too far in the lead.

AMERICAN NOVELISTS

No. 4. JAMES LANE ALLEN

"Learn One Thing Every Day"

Copyright, 1912, by The Associated Newspaper School, Inc.

A historical novelist worthy of rank with Nathaniel Hawthorne, James Lane Allen has been called. Both have given us pictures of the lives of our forefathers; but while Hawthorne has shown us New England, Allen draws the Blue Grass region of Kentucky and its people.

It may be due to the fact that James Lane Allen was a seventh child that he has achieved such remarkable success in literature. He was born in Fayette county, near Lexington, Kentucky, in 1849, the youngest child of Richard and Helen Allen. He can number among his ancestors some of the first settlers of Virginia. One of these ancestors, Richard Allen, moved to Kentucky, where he lived the busy, hospitable life of a gentleman farmer on his large estate.

Mr. Allen's mother was a descendant of the Pennsylvania Scotch-Irish and the Brooks family of Virginia. A native of Mississippi, she was a lover of nature and literature. She inspired in her son a love for reading old romances, poetry, and history.

Although Allen was only twelve years old when the storm of Civil war broke over our country, he was old enough to realize its horrors and the suffering that it brought to the people of the South. Just before the beginning of the war, his father lost his fortune; so the formal education that Allen received was small; but under his mother's guidance he pursued his studies at home. Long walks in the fields and forests about his home gave him a keen insight into nature. He was graduated from Transylvania University at Lexington, Kentucky, in 1872. Three years later he received a degree of A. M. from there. A little before this his father died, and James had to begin teaching in order to meet expenses. He spent a year as master in a country school, walking six miles to and from the school every day.

For two years he taught in Missouri, and then came back to Kentucky as a private tutor. He was called to his alma mater to teach, and two years later Bethany College, in West Virginia, offered him the chair of Latin and higher English.

He planned to go to Germany for a time; but gave this up when the idea of becoming a doctor of medicine attracted him. He spent a year as a doctor in a hospital in New York.

He arrived there unknown and with no letters of introduction; but he took up his abode in a garret and wrote in a very short time his first letters to the New York Evening Post, poems to Harper's and the Atlantic Monthly, and essays to the Critic and the Forum.

Henry James' "Portrait of a Lady" first attracted attention to the young author, and soon there was a strong demand for his sketches of Kentucky life. "The Blue Grass Region of Kentucky" was the title given to the collected volume of these sketches.

Mr. Allen then moved to Cincinnati; but later moved again to Washington, believing that the capital of the country would be the future home of literature and art in America. In Washington, however, he found too much social and official attraction; so he returned to New York.

"The Kentucky Cardinal," published in 1895, is one of Mr. Allen's best books. It is a sort of pastoral poem in prose, showing the struggle between Nature and Love. "The Choir Invisible" shows the noble love of a married woman for a man who is not her husband.

James Lane Allen is best known as a writer of fiction; but he has also published many critical articles and much verse. He is recognized as one of the most poetic and dramatic of American novelists.

No. 5. WINSTON CHURCHILL

Although he graduated from Annapolis in 1894, Winston Churchill never served in the navy. Instead, immediately after completing his studies he began writing. He had found out that he could write when he was still at Annapolis, and decided that fiction rather than the navy was his life work. For this the young graduate had fine equipment. Annapolis gave him self-reliance and determination.

Phased graduates of the Naval Academy who have not gone into the navy have usually been successful in whatever they have done. This is particularly true in the case of Churchill. Well educated, at the same time he is full of the joy of life itself, and likes all sorts of outdoor sports. He is a favorite everywhere.

Winston Churchill was born in St. Louis, Missouri, on November 10, 1871, and spent the first sixteen years of his life there. From a school in St. Louis he went to Annapolis. There he became strongly interested in American history and problems, and made up his mind to devote his life and energies to these. In the brief intervals between studies and drills he gathered much of the material that he afterward used in his novels.

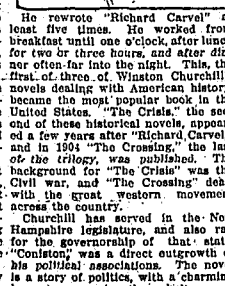

While at Annapolis he stood among the first five or six in his class. He also recognized the crew and was captain for a year. He likewise played a good game of football. Fencing, tennis, and horseback riding are his favorite sports.

For awhile after graduation he worked on the Army and Navy Journal and then joined the staff of the Cosmopolitan Magazine. During this time he wrote a great deal; but did not attempt to publish these first experiments in fiction.

He married in 1895 and moved not long afterward to his home at Cornish, New Hampshire, which is at present the summer residence of President Wilson. Churchill was very fortunate. He did not have to earn a living by going backwork, and could take plenty of time with anything that he wrote.

It is said that genius is the capacity for taking great pains. Winston Churchill surely illustrates this adage. Hard work, determination, and a keen sense of values made him the successful novelist that he is. He was ambitious.

tious to write the very best he knew how. Once, when living in St. Louis, he hired an office and went down to the office every day to write his business. His writing was business, and was treated as such.

He rewrote "Richard Carvel" at least five times. He worked from breakfast until one o'clock, after lunch for two or three hours, and after dinner until ten o'clock. The first of three of Winston Churchill's novels dealing with American history, became the most popular book in the United States. "The Crisis" is the second of these historical novels, appeared a few years after "Richard Carvel," and in 1904 "The Crossing," the last of the trilogy.

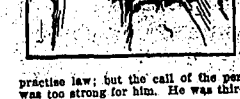

The background for "The Crisis" was the Civil war, and "The Crossing" dealt with the great restoration movement across the country.

Churchill has served in the New Hampshire legislature, and also ran for the governorship of that state. "Confessions" was a direct outgrowth of his political associations. The novel is a story of politics, with a charming love story running through it.

Winston Churchill is still a young man, and there is every reason to believe that his best and biggest work is still to come.

No. 6. OWEN WISTER

It is remarkable how many successful writers go into literature by accident. Very few novelists begin by taking up writing as a profession; most of them drift into it from other fields. Owen Wister was no exception to this. He settled down in Philadelphia in twenty-one years old before he began to write. Owen Wister is a grandson of Francis Pickens, better known as Francis Pickens, the famous seceder. He was born on July 14, 1860, in Philadelphia, and when he was ten years old he was taken to Europe, where he remained three years. On his return to this country he entered St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire, and Harvard, graduating in 1882. He took highest honors in music.

At Harvard he showed that he could write when he produced the libretto, "Dido and Sappho," for one of the Elsie Pudding Club entertainments. When there he also edited one of the college papers, and made up his mind to write a poem on Beethoven, which was published in the Atlantic Monthly.

nothing at this time. He returned east and entered the Harvard Law School. He graduated in 1888, and a year later was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia.

But the west had great attraction for him. In the next ten years he made fifteen trips there. He soon saw that law was not his career.

In 1891 a series of studies and stories of the west by Wister started in Harper's Magazine. These were later gathered together in a volume called "Red Men and White." All the characters in these sketches were true to life. Wister was the Indian of fact, and the cowboy was the cowboy of reality.

When Wister first began to write in Harper's Magazine, and critics of him said, "Owen Wister has written some creditable stories; but so, too, have many others. His real strength lies in musical criticism." This opinion hardly holds good today.

"The Virginian" is the best thing that Wister has done. It is absolutely realistic. This is a quality of all this author's work, as is shown by an anecdote he himself tells:

"Once a copyholder listened patiently while I read him a manuscript. It concerned an event on an Indian reservation. 'Was that the Crow reservation?' he inquired at the finish. 'I told him that it was no real reservation and no real event; and his face expressed his assurance. 'Why,' he demanded, 'do you waste your time writing what never happened, when you know so many things that did happen?'"

So well was the story told that the copyholder had believed he was listening to fact.

"Lady Baltimore" was another successful novel of Wister's, and besides he has written several interesting biographies, the best of which is "The Seven Ages of Washington."

Wister is not only a writer. He has actively fought for decent government in Philadelphia, and he has run for city councilman of his ward, knowing that his fight was hopeless. He is in America through and through, and in his books he portrays the best things in the life of our country.

In each issue of The Times three different human-interest stories will appear. You can get a beautiful insight into the life of the people, with five others, equally attractive. "The Times" will have Art, Music, History, Science, and Travel, and the Liberal Stand and Close Book Store own exquisite pictures. IN GOLDEN AGE OF YOUTH.

"College Life" a Thing Always to Be Regarded With the Tenderest of Memories.

The phrase "college life" is an Americanism and it has no equivalent in any other language but English. It describes, to those whose eyes with understanding and sympathy, an experience out of which grows a deep sentiment made up of pleasure, friendship, affection, loyalty and pride. It seems to them "a tender influence, a peculiar grace," that reaches across miles and years, drawing them back to their Alma Mater, and the comradeship of their classmates.

To most graduates their college life seems their golden age, through the mist of years the campus becomes an island of Utopia whose very ledges glow bright in the retrospect, the sifting of the years and failures was always lessened by the power of the ideals and hopes that filled it.

No campus ever was a Utopia, and the most golden age of memory has doubtless been much alloyed with baser metal, but if there is not something very bright and beautiful in American college life it is hard to account for the feeling in thousands of gray-haired men that long ago in their youth, beaded the fountain of youth.

They gained around the knees of Alma Mater instilling joy, strength and inspiration that was not entirely contained in the books they read and cannot always be measured by the college edge they acquired.—Paul Van Dyke, in Scribner's Magazine.

Simple Portable Elevator.

The revolvator is a portable elevator which is designed for use in warehouses and storerooms where it may be desired to stack heavy packages one above the other for the economical use of space. It consists of a truck which may be readily moved about the room and an upright arm supporting a platform on which the box or package is placed. Reaching this point desired, the machine and its load may be readily swung around into the most convenient position for unloading and the burden is raised to the height necessary and the box is pushed off on top of another similar box. Several men might be required to perform this task, but with the revolvator one or two men are entirely sufficient to handle the large and heavy packages.

Stock-Watering.

"Did you see what watering the stock today?" asked the city manager of her husband, on their vacation.

"No," replied the head of the big corporation, "not since I left the office last week."

At the time you bring your wants to your neighbor's door.

POLICY IN MEXICO

President Wilson Sends Representative to Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 5.—No announcement of the policy or further steps to be taken by President Wilson in the Mexican situation will be made until former Governor John Lind of Minnesota, nominal representative of the president, arrives in Mexico City and familiarizes himself with conditions there. This was made clear at the White House today. Lind carries instructions to talk informally with prominent Mexicans. Officials indicate that Lind's mission is to be attempted until Lind sounds out sentiment in Mexico. Lind will inform inquiries on the authority of an understanding that only a government constitutionally set up will be recognized. This involves the resignation of Huerta and the appointment of a provisional president selected by the various factions. While Lind's position is not that of an adviser

NEW PARCEL POST RULES

Order Will Work Hardship on Mail Order-Houses.

The parcels post regulation on August 15th will work a hardship on the mail order and catalogue houses and will make it difficult for them to conduct local business, as under the new regulation a 20-pound parcel which is mailable may be sent a distance of one hundred and fifty miles for 24 cents while a parcel of similar weight sent from the big mail order houses of Chicago would cost the sender $2.00.

As an illustration, a 20-pound parcel may be sent a distance as great as from American Falls, Idaho, to La Grande, Oregon, for 25 cents, while the same weight parcel sent into the same territory from Chicago would cost $2.00. This will prove a distinct advantage to the local dealers and will permit them to serve their patrons and compete with the great mail order concerns.

A new "banking by mail" system will be introduced also to work in connection with the new parcels post rulings.

Reduction in charge on matter for local delivery is from the present of five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional two pounds or fraction thereof. For delivery in the first zone the rate will be reduced from five cents for the first and three cents for each additional two pounds or fraction thereof. For the second zone the rate will be cut from six cents and four cents for five cents and the third—Idaho Falls Register.

NEW PLANTS DISCOVERED

125 New Species Found by Government Experts.

In making a study of grazing lands on the national forests, 125 entirely new species of plants have been discovered by the government's experts, and will be named and classified by the botanists of the department of agriculture.

Their discovery came about through the collection of some 9,000 different plant specimens, which notes as to their habits, growth and forage value. This work is part of a comprehensive plan to determine the grazing capacity of each acre of national forest land, in which the capacity of the soil to grow certain forage crops is to be determined and an effort made to decide for which class of stock—sheep, cattle, or goats—the range is best suited.

The men who have made the studies have combined the qualities of practical stockmen and trained botanists. They divided the areas into such small subdivisions that maps have been prepared which show exactly the kind of feed which grows on each acre, and the time of year it is ready for grazing. They also made maps showing the water supply and indicate the kind of stock best suited to the area.

The investigation also showed the enormous areas covered with flourishing plants which apparently should furnish excellent grazing, but which were not of a character relished by stock and therefore had little or no stock-carrying capacity. As a result of the study, the forest service announces that it will be in a position to protect the areas of grazing management to bring about still better conditions for both stock and range.

AND MR. VANDERBILT PAID

"Get the Very Best." Was His instruction—Bachel Became Only a Matter of Course.

This is how the late Cornelius Vanderbilt found himself giving to an institution the same costly carpet he had just selected for his palatial New York home.

Saint Johnland is a church community on Long Island, where differences of faith play little part in the admission of some 200 children and old people. Mr. Vanderbilt, its vice-president, offered one day, through Dr. Henry Mottet, to give the chapel a much-needed carpet, and told Dr. Mottet where to buy it. The article continues:

"Get the very best," said Mr. Vanderbilt, who had just finished his new house at 1 West Fifty-seventh street. Mr. Mottet accordingly looked over carpets and selected a costly one of red velvet. He told the clerk it was for an institution, gave its rather generous dimensions to be, and added that the bill should go to Mr. Vanderbilt. The clerk had some difficulty to recover his composure.

"I don't suppose you know," he yet uttered, "that this is the identical carpet selected by Mr. Vanderbilt for his new house?"

The Vanderbilt carpet is still in the little chapel.—The Churchman.

"Secret of Happiness." Most of us begin well. When we are quite young, we are full of faith. We believe in others, and we also believe in our own powers of overcoming faults and failings.

We set out full of the zest of life—no hill is too high to climb, no point too lofty to reach.

But later most of us get discouraged. We find that our friends are not so noble as we thought them, and it is much harder to root out our faults and failings than we imagined, and perhaps in time to take up the foolish, soul-destroying idea that so long as we are "no-worse than other people" it is all right.

Let us try to keep the high ideals that we learned at our mother's knee, to still keep our faith in human nature, no matter how often we may be disappointed. Let us still strive for perfection and resolve to dig out best again and again, no matter how often we may fail. For only by doing this can we keep our hearts young, however old we may live to be, and only so can we do our best and do our best.

Reverse Pleasure.

"People who take holidays to see baseball games, have rather a paradoxical time of it, haven't they?" "Why so?" "Because they take out time to see innings."

PRETTY LANGUAGE OF LOVE

In Switzerland Flowers are Made Use of by Those Who Seek Their Companions in Life.

In remote Alpine hamlets and villages especially in the Bernese Oberland there still exist ancient and pretty customs of proposing marriage by the language of flowers. If a maid accepts a bouquet of edelweiss from a young man, she is promising to marry him. Another method which exists in the Canton of Glarus is for the young man to place a flowerpot containing a single rose and a note on the window sill of the girl's room when she is absent from home and wait—perhaps days—for a reply. If the maid takes the rose, the young man boldly enters the house to arrange matters with her parents, but if the rose is allowed to fade away the proposal is rejected without a single word having been exchanged between the couple. Sometimes a fickle girl will keep a young man waiting a day or two for an answer, but whatever it may be it is considered final.

15,000 Miles of Silver. The greatest money count in the history of the United States is now on. Every piece of money in the country's billion-bulging treasury must be handled and each security fingered. A corps of men—the most expert money counters in the world—will work at the task day and night, but it will take them sixty days to finish it. There are 356,708,000 silver dollars alone in this vast sum. Much of the coin counting is done by weighing, but there is an ingenious machine which digests silver dollars, quarters and halves and counts them as fast as a man can turn the handle. If the silver dollars were stacked one on top of another, they would tower 835 miles high. If they could be laid in a continuous line, each touching the other, the silver hoard would stretch out for a distance of 15,000 miles.

Modern Idealism. Our intuitions of a goodness, a beauty, a truth, transcending anything that earth can show, our persistent devotion to ideals that actual life, always disappointing, our postulates of a perfection that rebukes and shapes our practice—what can these things mean save that . . . a refraction of the white light of eternity by life's dome of many-colored glass, a sequence of shadowy pictures cast on the further wall of the dim cavern where we sit, our eyes . . . averted from the light of the world?—Paul Shorey (on Plato).

MADE HIM STOP AND THINK

Leading Citizen Wanted to Be Regarded as Something More Than an "Old Grouch."

"I had a little lesson several weeks ago," remarked the man with the gray mustache, "and it called me in good shape."

"Go ahead," said the stout man. "I was in the garage where I keep my car and happened to overhear a conversation among the boys. A certain man had been injured while traveling abroad—very badly injured. It was reported—and one of the boys was telling the others about it. 'The story in the paper says he can't get well,' the youngster went on. 'Did you know him, Pete?' And the boy addressed promptly replied: 'Sure, I know the old grouch.' Say, that hit me pretty hard. Here was a leading citizen dying and all the boys could remember about him was that he was a grouch. Yes, sir, it made me sit up and think hard. And I got in my mind that when I passed out I'd like to be remembered for something different."

He paused. "That's worth considering," said the other man. "Good text," said the first man. "Good sermon," said the other.

Mechanical Horses. A real "mechanical horse" is being experimented with abroad. It is a "tractor" that is easily hitched to a horse-drawn vehicle, just as a team of horses may be, and combines all the advantages of the horse with those of the auto truck at an exceedingly low price. The outfit comprises a steel bar and coupler and sprocket wheels designed to be attached to the wheels and tongue of the wagon. There is only one wheel on the "horse" and that is at the front, the most of the support for the tractor depending upon the front wagon wheels by which it is driven. The engine, mounted under the front hood as in an automobile, is of 40 or 50 horse power and drives the wagon at a speed of from 8 to 30 miles an hour, the latter speed only being used when it is designed for fire engine service. The front wheel is used to steer by and it allows a turn being made at an angle of 85 degrees, thus giving remarkable turning ability in narrow streets. One of the greatest advantages of the "mechanical horse" is the fact that it may be kept constantly at work while unloading or loading is going on.

Had First to Find Himself. Everybody who ever did anything, anywhere, had to find the grindstone and run himself against it until he developed an edge that would cut something.—Herbert Kaufman.

Strive to Be Kind.

Is not the sin of sine unkindness? Because of it tears flow, hopes die, friendships are strained, and hearts well-nigh broken. Not to be kind means the breaking of ties between rich and poor, labor and capital, the fortunate and the unfortunate. Just to be kind heartens the discouraged, strengthens the weak, and makes heavy loads easy to carry. Be kind to those about you. It costs you little or nothing and it is the best investment you can make. The returns will come back in compound interest. Your employees, your friends, your household, even your foes, will respond to kindness.—J. Wilbur Chapman.

How the Eiffel Tower Moves.

That the Eiffel Tower moves daily in a vertical and horizontal sense has long been beyond doubt. Apart from the scientific laws of expansion and contraction, which inevitably affected it, one could see it during a late swing from side to side. But its vertical movements were a mere matter of conjecture until M. Guillaume undertook to investigate them. He shows that the great iron structure may vary an inch in height every day. The elevation or depression is equally distributed, as only one of its sides may be affected by the rise or fall of the temperature, and thus the tower may be compared to a person shifting his weight alternately from one foot to the other.

Remember the baseball dance Saturday night. The boys need the funds and everybody should help, then out. C. W. Cross, the fueling real estate agent, has purchased a fine new Buick with which to hustle over the tract to show his place.

This country seems to be changing in some particulars. The rain fall is certain on the increase, and where thunder and lightning used to be considered a rarity, it is becoming very common.

John Williams, an attorney of Twin Falls, has gone back to his old home in Ohio on a vacation. The Journal hopes John will have a good time among his old friends in Canton.

Mrs. Dolores, mother of Mrs. Shoenor, who has been visiting here for some time, left last Monday for her home at Port Washington, Wis. She was glad to welcome her back at any time.

The cutting of grain has started in a few fields. Next week we will be in the midst of harvesting. Expert grain men say that there will be a yield of wheat on this tract of a million and a quarter bushels. This is figuring the crop at 35 bushels per acre.

Very low estimate on many of the fields.

Geo. Leonard will not lose his reputation as the "bosa potato raiser" of this section this year, judging from a sample lot he left at the Journal last night.

Raising spuds is an art, and Mr. Leonard has made a study of potato culture, and the results of his efforts are apparent to everybody. He brought in several bushels last Friday for C. A. Love, and they are certainly fine.

Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Shoenor, the Filer Women's Club gave a farewell reception to Mrs. McCree who has severed her business relations here and will leave for her departure—first to visit her son Dale at Bingham, Utah.

Mrs. McCree was a charter member of the club and has been prominently identified with it ever since. The president, Mrs. Truitt, who held the club, presented her with a souvenir spoon.

The school board let the contract for the two rooms in the basement Monday night. Ellis is an art, and carpenter work, and Al Holmes the excavating and cement work. The rooms will be used for domestic science, and also as a place where a cafeteria service will be provided for the scholars at cost. Something warm for the children at the noon hour is as important as education. The Journal desires to congratulate the board on their enterprise.

Wm. Bunce was at the county seat Monday.

Wm. Price and family spent Tuesday at Shoshone falls.

A. A. Timm and family were Twin Falls visitors Tuesday.

The R. L. Austin Wagonload on Yakima avenue, is fast assuming form and shape. It will be one of the nicest homes in Filer. C. W. Thornton is the contractor.

IDAHO PIE-COUNTER

Democrats Who are Likely to Land Good Places.

Dame Democracy, in charge of the federal pie counter in Idaho, who has been courted by ardent workers in both factions of the party so hitherto opposed to each other, may be able to bring her suitors together on harmonious ground, without bloodshed, for she has leaked out that she is making arrangements to displace the federal patronage and with the content of the Hawley-Porky wings. It is said, has offered to no less a personage than John P. Nugent, former chairman of the state central committee and leader of the Nugent-Pence faction, the Idaho States district attorney.

It is said that the federal patronage will meet the opposing faction on common ground and agree on the applicants for other federal positions. While not a candidate for the appointment of district attorney, Mr. Nugent and his followers are seriously considering the offer.

It is said that Democratic political circles that the more important state on federal patronage may look something like this:

District attorney—John P. Nugent.

United States marshal—Don R. Gray.

Boise postmaster—Peter M. Davis.

Receiver Blackfoot district office—J. C. Molden.

Surveyor general—To be filled by a Nugent-Pence Democrat.

Register and receiver of the Boise land office—To be filled by Nugent-Pence Democrats—Capital News.

Seven autos, loaded to the brim, came into our midst Monday morning.

They must be half long enough for occupants to tell their business and it was for the purpose of estimating the tonnage that would likely come off this end of the tract that would support a new railroad. We hope their wants were fully satisfied and they will see their way clear to build the road.

HORSES: LOVE THE SMITHY.

Endearing Terms Used Led Massachusetts Animals to Run Away To Be Shod.

Suetcase has a blacksmith who is so polite to animals that they go to him of their own accord. Julian Saeed is this village smith.

"You see," people accustomed to the "You there" and "Get out of the way" method of some other smiths, stood around and marveled when Mr. Saeed assumed his duties at the local smithy. Saeed may be heard almost any day after this fashion:

"Now, dear," in the softest of tones, "now, sweetheart, let's have your foot. Raise up now, please, dearie."

Whatever the passerby might think of this method, the horses undoubtedly approve of it.

Two horses, Lady Jane and Lady Mary, belonging to Henry T. Cole, the owner of the local livery, recently escaped from the stable. They walked to the blacksmith shop, entered, hurred up to the hitching ropes by the side of the work bench and held up their feet to be manicured, desiring to hear sweet nothing.

The story is true and goes to prove that endearing conversation can be combined with chirpology to good effect as well in a blacksmith shop as in any other place in the world.—Boston Journal.

Newspaper's Great Influence.

The newspaper has greater influence in the home than any other printed thing, and your neighbor's conversation is largely made up of what he or she has read in the paper. What reaches them for the first time in today's issue in a week or a day later has become their belief and knowledge.

Last Seashore Excursion, August 21st. Low rates to Nacotta, Washington, and return via Oregon Short Line. Tickets on sale from all points in Idaho and Oregon, limited to September 6th. See agents regarding rates and further particulars. Aug 5-19

WORLD'S DEBT TO THE AGES

Modern Progress, Thoroughly Analyzed, Not So Much of an Improvement on the Past.

Not by a great deal are all the old-fashioned things admirable, but by no means are they all inferior and out of date because they are old-fashioned. The best of them may strain all our modern resources to equal, and not do it. This best products of old-fashioned training and education are still models for contemporary seminary. As far back as we can reach into the history of mankind we find great people, easily the equals, and often the superiors, of our very best mental and moral qualities. Our good luck is not that we are superior to them in our human material, but that we have at our service an immensely greater accumulation of knowledge, mostly about material things. Thanks to that, we understand the laws of nature much better than our fathers did, and that has helped us to make wonderful machines, and put them to going, after their fashion, what used to be done by fingers, brains, and brawn. But spiritually we got our highest inspiration two thousand years ago, and have been trying ever since to catch up to the really good things we use better tools, we are no better, surely, than Pythagoras or Aristotle or the author of the Book of Job and hundreds of thinkers who must have long preceded any of them.—E. E. Harlow, in Harper's Magazine.

Things That You Can't Do.

Here are some things you can't do. Or, if you can, you are different from 99 per cent of mankind. Can you repeat from memory (don't look at the words) on a 3-cent stamp? Can you copy out from memory the exact figures as they appear on the dial of your watch? Can you copy from memory the exact wording on a 1-cent piece or say "which way the head on the coin is facing? Can you say from memory whether the heads on a cent, a nickel, a dime and a quarter all face the same way? All these are things you have seen and handled since boyhood. They should be far more familiar to you than the alphabet. Yet it is ten to one you can't give correct answers to one of the foregoing questions. Why can't you? Try them on your friends.

Exception.

"How did you find the roads out around Jingleville Corners?" asked Bilkens of Slatersberry, who had just returned from a motor trip.

"Oh, I wasn't particularly stuck on them," said Slatersberry.

"Really?" said Bilkens. "Well, I guess you're the only man that wasn't. I was stuck on 'em for a whole day last year."—Harper's Weekly.

There is a cement gun which is used to apply a mortar covering to structural steel work. A mixture of dry sand and cement is shot from a nozzle by compressed air. A second hose delivers to the same nozzle a supply of water under pressure, and the mixture of sand, cement and water is shot out with a velocity of about 350 feet a second. The nozzle is arranged to produce a thorough wetting of the material. As the mixture strikes the surface to be covered, the coarse sand grains rebound until the fine cement mortar, which adheres immediately, has formed a plastic base in which the coarse particles become imbedded. A covering of any required thickness is then rapidly built up.

One of these guns has been used on the Panama canal in covering the sides of the cuttings with cement, to prevent the unstable earth from sliding into the canal.
